The Yankee Pedler;

OR, A SKETCH FROM LIFE IN VIRGINIA.

Colonel Johnson, in a late number of Howitt's, Journal, furnishes a most amusing account of the adventures of a Yankee pedlar in the "Old Dominion," which nothing but its extreme length prevents our republishing entire. It is a little overdrawn in some respects—a fault more readily perceived in this county than abroad—but is, nevertheless, exceedingly graphic and life-like.

Ralph Brown, the youngest of six children of a poor widow in Boston, is the hero of the sketch. As a child, he was sprightly, naturally shrewd, and handsome as dark eyes, red cheeks, and brown curly hair could make him; and, at the age of fourteen he had more usefel knowledge than have many of our young aristocrats on leaving college with a diploma in their pockets. Having reaped the advantages of the public schools, he had gone thence to a wholesale dry goods store as a clerk, whence, in the course of time, he emerged as an itinerant pedler. He was soon distinguished, even among his own class, being more shrewd, more silver-tongued, and more handsome than Yankee pedlers generally, and seven or eight years sharp practice in his calling made him positively rich. He first exchanged his knapsack for a pack-horse, then for a wagon and horse; and very few country dames, old or young, gentle or simple, married or unmarried, could resist his tempting display of brilliant goods, as set off and culog'sed by his persuasive eloquence.

Ralph Brown was twenty-five years of age when he first set foot in the drawing room of Major Carroll, the head of one of the "first families in Virginia," who lived upon his estate, sixty miles from richmond, containing 10,250 acres of land and 800 negroes. Major Carroll had been educated for the bar; but, like many of the partizans of Virginia, thought it dabbling in dirty water to practice at the courts, and to touch a fee with a brief he deemed polution to his fingers. He was, however, an active sportsmen, and hospitable to an extent unusual even in that section of country; and, as his mansion was at least two miles from the main road, and seven from any town, when ever he found among his guests a genius, an original or a droll fellow, he always contrived to detain him a few weeks, and even months, to supply the lack of more elite company.

As we have said, Ralph Brown, was twenty-five when he first set foot in Major Carroll's drawing-room; and, by a tempting display of his wares—consisting of every variety of dry and fancy goods; perfumery, jewelry, &c., &c.,—and a liberal use of his tongue, he found little difficulty in disposing of some six hundred dollars worth to Madame Carroll and her only daughter, a young lady nineteen years of age. The Major, however, notwithstanding his immense estate, was frequently rather "short" of ready cash; and as such was the case then, Ralph willingly accepted his "I. O. U." in return for his goods, together with an invitation to spend the night.

And now commenced an exhibition of Ralph's wonderful acquirements, the details of which are given with much humor and great exactness by Col. Johnson. The young lady's piano was dreadfully out of repair. This he at once pulled to pieces, and having "regulated the bowels of the thing," put it together again; then, seating himself at the instrument, he played and sang with such "inspiration" that "Laura was overwhelmed in tears, while the fixed and astonished gaze of the major and his lady testified their delight!" He next undertook to "doctor the entrails" of the major's gold repeater, in which he succeeded to a charm; and, in the course of the night, was called up to visit the black overseer of the estate, who was suddenly and violently attacked with cholera, and whom he cured with "a table spoonful of pulverised rock salt, a tea spoonful of cayenne pepper, and twenty drops of laudanum."

Being persuaded to prolong his vist, in the course of the next few days, Ralph cured several negroes who were stricken down by the same dreadful disease; and shortly after, Madame Carroll was also seized by the terrible malady. The major thought, that although "the blacks might be turned over to the pedlar, it would not do to try his nostrums on the family; so the nearest doctors were sent for, and despite calomel, opium, and camphor, the patient was in a state of collapse before morning. The pedler, however, bore no malice for this lack of faith in his skill; and as the dying lady desired prayers and spiritual consolation in the trying hour, and as there was no clergyman within seven miles, Ralph, who was at home a leader in a Sunday school, and an elder in the congregational church, "put up a devout and solemn petition at her bedside."

Miss Laura was the next shining mark aimed at by the king of terrors; but at the urgent solicitation of Ralph, her cure was confided to his hands, which he accomplished with the same medicines administered to poor Sambo; "and his kind and considerate attentions had their due effect upon the sensitive and sincere heart of Miss Carrol!"—of course.

All this occurred in 1834; and while the scourge was sweeping over the plantation in its fury, the pedlar remained and performed miracles with his salt and pepper. But the time at length arrived when Ralph Brown would stay no longer—whereat "Laura's cheeks were suffused, and her long eye lashes wet with tears!" and when "she reached out her pale slim hand, all tremulous from a heart in emotion, to bid him farewell, Ralph felt the gentle tremor like electricity through his frame!" As he jumped upon his wagon, however, in the goodness of his heart he pressed into the hand of the major—in anticipation of the possible failure of the tobacco crop, and the consequent necessities of the planter's wants—a check upon the Richmond bank for $2,000 and then drove off up the avenue.

But the following year Ralph Brown again made his appearance at the major's mansion, and was warmly welcomed by both father and daughter. The annual races were to come off the following day at Charlotteville, which the two gentlemen were to attend in company; and as the cream of the story is contained in what follows, we give it in Col. Johnsons own words;

The next morning the host and guest were on their way to the races, mounted on two fleet steeds taken fresh from the major's stables. When about half way, the major turned round, surveying the road they had come, and exclaimed—

"What, in heavens name, is that behind us? Is it an ass, or a young camel! A queerer sprite in the shape of a horse I never saw wrapped up in skin."

"Lord, major," answered Ralph, "you're jokin'. This is my wagon-boy—slept with your niggers last night. He is on my Naraganset mare, that trailed the wagon up to your door."

The sportsman soon stopped at an inn to breathe their horses. As the boy and mare came up—

"Well," said the major, "that is a queer animal. She is as slim as a weasel and guant as a greyhound; and yet to keep up at our rapid pace is a wonderment!"

"Frank," cried Ralph, "leave the mare, and saunter along the road; the major and I want to measure her figurehead."

The boy slunk away like a sprite, while the major and his guest stood by the side of Naraganset.

"Now, major," said Brown, "a meanin' word in your ear. I calkilate you are but spoonies down here south; you're not up to human natur' and soft sawder. I can stick the leek into the best of ye, and no mistake. That there mare, major, will devour the ground like a wild cat. She will scale over Virginia soil like a swallow. Now, do you bet on that there mare te day, or I'll for ever blot your name out of the books of the elect."

"Why, Mr. Brown, you are mad," replied the major. "Sweepsteaks, Sir Charles, and Eclipse will all be there—the high-fliers of Virginia—and think you that weasel can cope with them? Why look, sir, how her hips slant off, like the roof of a Dutchman's house; her tail sweeps tne ground; neither her mane, foretop, nor fetter locks have ever been trimmed."

"Major, I say, none of your bother now. I war'nt born a fool, I tell ye, by a tarnal sight. Look at the cords and sinners of this here hind leg; see how the gambel joints are bent for runnin'; jest bring your calkilations to bear upon this here eye, and see how the white of it bungs out, like a peeled inion. That there little chap, kicking up the dust there in the road, can put the devil in this here mare, major; and if you dare bet agin her it will be a caution to you for life."

The major was taciturn, but at length said—I cannot bet to-day on any thing. My purse is empty."

"Hush, hush, mister," cried the pedler, "here is the speltre Major, I never bet, nor swear, nor drink, as teetotaller and ruling elder down east; but if you don't go the figure to day, I'll blot your name from the elect." as the pedler said this, he handed the major a large packet, adding—"Go it, major, don't be afeared; cover the whole posse of 'em. I'll be your purser."

Too Willing by Half.

A Boarding-House Sketch.

BY THE YOUNG 'UNS.

Many of our readers will recognize the point of the following joke, which we heard related "long time ago," but which we never saw in print. It is a "good 'un," and will bear re-telling.

While General Jackson was President of the United States, he was tormented day after day by importunate visitors, (as most Chief Magistrates of this "great county" are,) whom he did not care to see—and in consequence, he gave strict directions to the messenger at his door to admit only certain persons on a particular day when he was busier with State affairs than usual.

In spite of this peremptory order, however, the attendant bolted into his apartment, during the forenoon, and informed the general that a person was outside whom he could not control, and who claimed to see him—orders or no orders.

"By the Eternal!" exclaimed the old man, nervously, "I won't submit to this annoyance. Who is it?"

"Don't know, sir."

"Don't know?. What's his name?"

"His name? Beg pardon, Sir—it's a woman."

"A woman! Show her in, James; show her in said the President, wiping his face; and the next moment there entered the General's apartment, a neatly clad female of past the "middle age," who advanced courteously towards the old man, and accepted the chair proffered her.

"Be seated, Madam," he said.

"Thank you," responded the lady, throwing aside her veil, and revealing a handsome face to her entertainer.

"My mission hither, to-day, General, "continued the fair speaker, "is a novel one, and you cannot aid me, perhaps."

"Madam," said the General, "command me."

"You are very kind, Sir. I am a poor woman, General——"

"Poverty is no crime, Madam."

"No, Sir. But I have a little family to care for—I am a widow, Sir; and a clerk employed in one of the departments of your administration, is indebted to me for board, to a considerable amount, which I cannot collect I need the money, sadly, and come to ask if a portion of his pay cannot be stopped, from time to time, until the claim of mine—an honest one, General, of which he had full value—shall be cancelled."

"I, really—Madam—that is I have no controll, in that way—how much is the bill?"

"Seventy dollars, Sir; here it is."

Exactly; I see. And his salary?"

"It is said to be $1,200 a year."

"And not pay his board bill?"

"As you see, Sir, this has been standing 5 months, unpaid. Three days hence, he will draw his monthly pay; and I thought, Sir, if you would be kind enough to——"

"Yes, I have it. Go to him again, and get his note, to-day, at thirty days."

"His note, Sir! It wouldn't be worth the paper on which it was written; he pays no one a dollar, voluntarily."

"But he will give you his note—will he not, Madam?"

"Oh, yes he would be glad to have a respite in that way, for a month, no doubt."

"That's right then. Go to him to obtain his note at thirty days from to day, give him a receipt in full, and come to me this evening."

The lady departed, called upon the young clerk, dunned him for the amount—at which he only smiled—and finally, asked him to give her his note for it."

"To be sure," said he, "give a note—sartin—and may it do you much good, mum."

"You'll pay it when it falls due, won't you, Sir—thirty days hence?"

"Oh, yes—sart'n, of course I will; I always pay my notes, mum, I do!" and as the lady departed, the knowing young gent believed he had accomplished a very neat trick once more.

"I wonder what the deuce she'll do with that note? Gad! I'd like to settle some o' the other accounts in the same way. Hope she'll have a good time getting the money on that bit of paper. John Smith is too well known for that!" And he turned with a chuckle to his books agin.

The poor boarding house keeper called again upon the General a few hours afterward.

"Did you get the note, Madam?"

"Yes, Sir—here it is."

The President quickly turned it over, with a dash of his pen, wrote the name of Andrew Jackson upon the back of it!

"Take this to the Bank to-morrow morning, Madam, and you can get the money for it," he said hurriedly.

The lady acted accordingly and found no difficulty in obtaining the cash for it, at sight.

A week before that month's termination, Mr. John smith received a note to the following effect:

BANK OF WASHINGTON,——1832.

SIR:—Your note for seventy dollars, is due on the 27th inst., at this Bank, and yon are requested to call and pay the same.

————Cashier.

"Ha, ha!" screamed John, upon reading this brief note. "A capital joke, that. Can't come it, mum—can't, no how! Scare crow—left for collection—I un'stand—won't do—no go!" and John very soon forgot it.

But "pay day" came round again—and John took his monthly stipend once more, $100, from the the cashier of the Department, as usual. As he passed down the Avenue, the unpaid board bill suddenly entered his head.

"Who the deuce now, has been fool enough to help the old 'ooman in this business, I wonder?" said John, to himself. "Gad! I'll go and see. It's all a hum, I know; but I'd like to know if she has really fooled any body with that bit o' paper; and, entering the Bank, he asked for the note, left there for collection against him.

"It was discounted," said the Teller.

"Discounted; why who in the world will discount my note?" asked John, amazed.

"Anybody, with such a backer as you've got on this."

"Backer! Me—backer, who?"

"Here's the note; you can see," said the Teller, handing him the document—on which John instantly recognized the bold signature of the then President of the United States.

"Sold—by Moses!" exclaimed John, drawing forth the money, with a hysteric gasp—for he saw through the management at a glance.

The note was paid, of course, and justice was awarded to the spendthrift, at once.

On the next morning, he found upon his desk a note which contained the following entertaining bit of personal intelligence.

TO JOHN SMITH ESQ

SIR—A change having been made in your office. I am directed by the President to inform you that your services will no longer be needed by this Department.

Yours, ————, Secretary.

John Smith retired to private life, at once, and thenceforward found it convenient to live on a much smaller allowance than twelve dundred a year!

A Yankee and a Frenchman owned a pig in copartnership. When killing time came, they wished to divide the meat. The yankee was very anxious to divide so that he would get both hind quarters, and pursuaded the Frenchmen that the proper way to divide was to cut it across the back. The French*man agreed* to it on condition that he would turn his back and take choice of the pieses after it was cut in two. The Yankee turned his back, and the Frenchman asked him—

"Vich piece will you have—ze piece wid ze tail to him, or ze piece vot ain't no tail?"

"I take the piece with the tail," replied the Yankee.

"Den you can take him, and I take ze oder one.', said the Frenchman.

Upon turning round the Yankee found that the Frenchman had cut off the tail, and stuck it in the pig's mouth.

Scientific Memoranda.

WATER AND DEW.—The transformations of water are truly wonderful. A solid body falls from the sky in the shape of a hailstone, which, while it is held for examination in the hand, changes into a transparent fluid, and then again changes into a vapor, and vanishes in the air. If the weather is cold, it soon disappears and gently falls in liquid drops of dew, and, instead of a hailstone, they appear as soft and beauteous pearls.

WATER AND LIME.—Place some water under a bell glass, with thrice its weight of lime, it will gradually disappear, and instead of three parts of lime we have four, and yet the earth appears dry. Of a plaster of Paris statue, weighing five pounds, one pound of it is solidified water.

WATER IN THE HUMAN BODY.—A man weighing 140 pounds, if squeezed under a hydraulic press, 105 pounds of water would run out of him, and only 35 pounds of solid dry matter would remain. A beefsteak pressed between blotting paper, under a press gives out four-fifths of its weight in water. Water, therefore is the first necessary of life, and this accounts for the healthiness of those districts where good water is supplied to the inhabitants.

The water of the ocean absorbs two per cent of air.

The Fewgative Bill.

HORNBY, OCTOBER 14, 1850.

Gentleman—I shall spile! I know I shall, I feel it coming on! Hewman nature! what times we live in! Arter the battles of Montyzeummy had bin fort, it did seem as though this country had ris to its highest climb-axe, but the ways of providence, an the progress of dimocracy is in screw-table. The passage of a Fewgative Slave Bill is the knee plus ultry of the significant endewrance of free principles. Father, Kernel Peabody and others here who used to rave so again Daniel Webster, callin him a blewlite federal aberlishunist, naow shaout hozaners to his name—magnyfyin him above cherrybims, saraphims, gibralters an neaw-jerewsalims.

The fact is—this here bill takes in Hornby—wal, it does. Nothing but deddycation, inderpendent day, cattle show and gineral trainin ever went ahead ont. A meetin has bin hold, at which it was resolved to present Mr. Webster with tew bushels best she sanghers, one ditto dates, one barril syder and the liberty of the town, as a sort of half-penny token of the respectability we feels for him. Parson Spuggins—aour new minister, made about the most feelinist speech at the meetin, I ever seed. He said that niggers was the abomernashum of desserlashun spoken of in Pauls Epistol to Pentyteuk, an had no more business a breathin the free onmittygated air of liberty, than the divil has in pandymongia or any other good place. He said that now this bill was fully passed, vetowed and become a law of the land it was the bounden dewty, of every good cityzen to catch as many niggers as he could, more especially, as government offered a reward of forty-tew dollars a head. This here, said he is something like; says he, whats the crow-bill an the bounty on bears or premiums at cattle shows—to this, Verily continered the reverend gentleman, this here is a bringin about of Scriptur, which says the hethin shall be given to the lect for a inherrytane forever. Amen, seoler!

The meetin broke up with three cheers for the constitushion, Gineral Jackson and Daniel Webster.

Next mornin, afore it was cleverly light, father and I, who'd lad our plans over night, started arter a nigger who'd lived jest over the taown line. He was a clever old critter mor'n half a doctor an a first rate nuss. He'd ollers turn aout at any time a night, in any weather, if anybody was sick and wanted services—every body liked him, speshally our folks, Many's the time he's come clear over through the deep snow, and watched with me while I had the rebillious fever. An when father had that great sore on his leg, caused by bein bit by the old sow when he got drunk at Kernell peabody's treat an fell into the hog-pen—then the old nigger tended and nussed him as though he'd bin his own son. He made all sorts of mintjewlips and intments an like to have got drowned over in cedar swamp—where he went arter red willer bark to make arb drink for him. But, as father said, what was all this to the Constitution and the glorious perladium of free instertushuns? Tho Gineral Court said that niggers was unsurcumsized pagins as didn't belong nowhere's and then lastly but not leastly, the forty tew dollars! We'd have catched him if he'd bin our grandfather and grandmother tew.

When we got to the old man's house, the sun was jest a risin over Bethel hill, and the nigger was diggin taters. I went up one side of him an father on tother, as still as a mice. When close to him father shouted—hooray! and lit on him like a june bug, while I grabbed him by the wool—roarin out—don't you strike you cussed nigger! Every blow you strikes us hits the constitushun and waounds the stur-spangled perladium of hewman rights—says I, a pullin away till the old critter yelled like an injine.

We tied him up like a bundle of skrewd hay, brought him hum, and shot him up in the tater arch. But now we've got him, we dont exactly know what to do with him, or where to carry him to get the baounty. Some says we shall have to wait till the legislator sets, others that we can get it aout of the custom haouse post orfiis or any other public institushun. Some says that we shall have to carry the nigger on with us, again others say we only need carry his skulp! Will yew—squire Gould—or squire Elwell, jest inquire into this an let me know at onct, because we wants the mony paowerful bad?

Every body envies father's and my luck in killin' tew birds with one stoan—sarvin the government, and airnin the baouuty. Every body is existed too, and niger huntin is the great staple commodity in Hornby. Eenjest the hull tole of the Horby Falanks" *is aout on dewty. Theyve started up a mer*lattow man and his wife' who've lived in aour town better than twenty years—an at the last accaounts, had drov them intew a swamp, which the falanks had surraounded an mean to starve the ongodly hethin aout. Cap'n Wiggin—who commands, swears that if patriotism, grog an valler kin dew it, he's baound to have the varmints ded or alive, and that he'll stand by Webster an the Constitushion as long as the supplies hold aout. Jim Kyer and Ephe Lindby brout in a prisoner yesterday which they tuk arter a hard battle, in which Ephe lost the better part of his nose, and Jim tew of his teeth. He was a queer lookin nigger. He was black enough but his hair was straight as a paound of candles. Nevertheless they was offered thirty dollars for him by deachon Wiggin, on speculation, but would not take it. Afore night, however they was sorry they didn't, for the nigger turned aout to be deacon Whiggins' own son! He'd been burning a coal pit, and was black as the ass of spades, as shakespier says. Everything is in kermotion! I havn't time to rite more. So "ipsy dickest, vale addious" as the Spanyards say, and which means 'more bime bye."

ETHAN SPIKE.

P. S.—Aour nigger is varmoused! The door of the tater arch was pad-locked, but the hinges was lether, the cuss cut em off, an streaked, cheatin father an I aout of forty-tew dollars we worked hard for. Dew send the paper you puts this in write on to Daniel, prehaps he'll consider aour case is hard and make up part of the loss. Tell him ever so little wont come amiss, father's gettin old, and there's not another nigger in these parts to kitch.

This speaks loudly in favor of the undertaking, and the Committee certainly deserve the thanks of the community for their industry and perseverence for introducing and completing, in so short a time, so desirable a reform.

Head Rest for Railroad Car Seats.

Mr. Alonzo Isbell, of Norwalk, Con., has invented and taken measures to secure a patent for a new improvement on car seats, which will be very useful and convenient to all who use it. The improvement consists in a movable pad for the head to rest upon, which is made to be carried by any person, and can be attached to the back of any railroad car seat, &c. and raised or lowered to the proper height for the head, either to recline for ease or to take a comfortable nap when travelling, or otherwise. The rest is a pad, which slides in a sheath (folded up) and having a ratchet cut on its rod, is held by a spring at any desirable height. It can also be permanently attached, but its convenient qualities lie in being portable, wereby it clasps on to the back of any car seat, for the benefit of all whom it may concern.

Later from Europe.

Boston, Dec. 30th.

The steamship Baltic has put into Provincetown short of coal. She brings 7 days later news from Europe. George W. Kendall, of the New Orleans Picayune, and other passengers have arrived in this city. Cotton during the week was steady at an advance of 1-8 a 1-4c. on American descriptions, in the sales of 41,180 bales.

Other descriptions of cotton were unchanged. Bread stuffs, owing to increased arrivals, were heavy, with a downward tendency.

The Money Market was firm, and the demand for English securities good. American stocks were unchanged.

The politicial news is of but little importance.

In Congress Monday,

In the Senate a petition from Mr. Wise, the balloon man, asking a pecuniary aid, to try experiments in Ærial Traveling, was referred to the Naval Committe. Mr. Benton brought in a Land Bill, and made a speech in explanation. The correspondence between the Austrian Charge and the Secretary of War, was read and refferred. The joint resolution from the house authorizing the sale of transfers of Bounty Land Warrants was referred, notwithstanding the objections of Senator Walker, urged on grounds of Land Reform.

In the House the Joint Resolution thus acted on in the senate, was passed by a majority, Mr. Vinton of Ohio being foremost in opposition.

—This resolution, when passed by the Senate, as it seems likely to be, and approved by the President, will have the effect to fling at once into market the immense amount of Land Warrants authorized by the Bounty Law.

The House debated bills granting Public Lands in Louisiana, Mississippi, Indiana, Illinois and Ohio, for railroad purposes, but with no action thereon.

☞ Wm. M'Grorty, 136 William-st., has on hand a very extensive assortment of carpeting and various other articles, of that order, at his spacious and well known carpet establishment, which for cash can be purchased at a very low price. Those who are in want should pay him a visit before selecting elsewhere. We can highly reccommend him to city and country customers.

Twenty-five Dollars for a Homestead.—By reference to our advertising columns it will be seen that there is now a chance offered by which any person, although of very limited means, can secure a home for himself at a mere nominal price, and within a very short distance of this city. By the laws of this State. Such a home is forever exempt from the rapacity of ruthless creditors, and the poor man can find there an asylum from which nothing but the hand of death can disposess him. As the drawing for the lots soon takes place, we would advise our readers to make early application at the office, 117 John street.—N. Y. Paper.

Re-Vaccination and Small Pox.

Messrs. Editors.—Medical men are very often asked if one vaccinnation is sufficient to protect the system, through life, from Small Pox—or how often it is necessary to have the operation performed. The late Dr. Fisher, of Boston, for a long time gave attention to this subject, and in January last published, with others, the following propositions, which are supported by numerous statistical facts, and are fully replied upon by the profession:—

"That one single and perfect vaccination does not, for all time in all cases, deprive the system of its susceptibility of variolous disease.

That one or more re-vaccination do; and that, consequently, a physician should recommend re-vaccination, when questioned as to its necessity.

The system is protected from varilous contagion when it is no longer susceptible of vaccine influence, as tested by re-vaccination."

That vaccination will not fully prevent people from taking the small pox, is a fact beyond all dispute, for I was vaccinated, and the pox, I am told was good—excellent in every respect; yet when twenty years of age, I was smitten with small pox, and covered from head to foot with the "boils of that loathsome disease." My case was peculiar—I had no knowledge of coming in contact with any person who was infected, and was not in any house where the disease had been. I well remember the evening when I felt the first symtoms; it was in 1834, on Christmas Eve, and I lost a fine social feast by it In no case, however, does the small pox affect those who are vaccinated as severely as those who are not; I have not a mark on my face, nor was my sickness ever considered dangerous to myself, and I was up and at my business in four weeks from the time I took it. Some would lead us to believe that after a certain time after vaccination, the whole of its effects disappear from the human system, and the individual who had undergone the process, is as liable to the dangers of smallpox, as those who have not been vaccinated. This is not true. Of five persons who were smitten with small pox, by contact with me in some way, one died who had not been vaccinated, and the other four (one as old as myself) were but slightly affected in comparison to what I was, for I was literally covered. The nature of vaccination is beyond the ken of doctors—it is altogether a matter of experience—and it was by practical observation, not reasoning, that Jenner discovered the virtues of the kine pox. This discovery has been a wonderful blessing to our race, I have heard my grandfather say that, in his young days, you could scarcely see a Europene who was not terribly disfigured with the small pox. It was the terror of the beautiful and gay. The wonder now is to see people disfigused with this disease.

I have heard an opinion expressed that vaccination was of little benefit to a child before it was weaned. I do not believe this; the four persons of whom I have spoken, were all vaccinated before they were three months old. Many recommend re-vacination as the only sure means to prevent varioloid, or the mild type of small pox. I believe that it should be practiced; but, while I believe this, I also think that if every person born was vaccinated in early life, the small pox would soon be unknown.

New York, 1850. R.

A Comical Scene—A Foundling.

As Mrs. Esther Stansbury, (residing in a Court running from Race street below Sixth,) was about to bring a bucket of water from the hydrant last night—she found an old basket suspended from the knob of her front door. Putting her hand into the basket, she felt something alive aud kicking—but so enveloped in rags that no further discovery could be made without unwrapping the object. A piece of paper folded like a letter, lay by the side of the bundle. Mrs. Stansbury immediately returned to the house, and by the light of the lamp examined the billet. It was addressed to her husband. She tremuously broke the seal and read as follows;—

"To Joe Stansbury.

"Sir:—I send you the baby, which you will please to take good care of and bring up right so that it may turn out to be a better man than its daddy.—Oh! Joseph!—what a sly old rake you are!—who would think that such a staid, sober, old spindle-shanks could be such a tearing-down sinner? The child is yours. You may swear to that. Look at it;—it is Joe Stansbury all over. You deceived me shamefully, Joseph—letting on to be a widower—but do a father's part by the young one and I will forgive you. Your heart-broken Nancy.

"P. S.—Don't let that sharp-nosed wife of yours see this letter. Gammon her with some kind of a story about the baby. N."

Mr Stansbury was in the basement kitchen quietly eating his supper, and little imagining what a storm was brewing over his head. The door of the kitchen staircase was violently thrown open, and Mrs. S.'s voice yelled out, "Stansbury, come up here, you villian; here's a mess for you!" The astonished Stansbury hastily wiped his mouth and obeyed the summons.

"Dont you want to see Nancy—the heart-broken Nancy?" cried Mrs. Stansbury, when her guilty husband had hobbled up into the room.

"Nancy?—what Nancy's that?" said the sly old rogue in well-feigned perplexity.

"Why, Nancy, the mother of the baby that's been hung up at your door, Mr. Stansbury. Oh! you look mighty innocent; but just read that letter and then look in that basket. Don't be afraid, it won't bite—it's got no teeth, poor thing!—you'll know it for, as your hussy says, it is just like you all over. Please goodness, I'll expose you before every body."

And in less than five minutes, Mrs Stansbury had collected a room full of spectators, (half the inhabitants of the Court) to witness the unwrapping of the baby. Anxious expectation sat on every countenance, as the jealous lady tore away rag after rag from the body of the foundling, the vigorous movements of which astonished every body. "It is full of the devil already," said Mrs. S,—"that shows it is his you'll soon see that it is like him in every thing," At last all the swaddling clothes being removed, out jumped the baby and made his escape through the open door.

It was a big tom-cat! The Stansburys had been victimized by a practical joke, the contrivance of which was traced to a female neighbor. Mrs. S, who has no taste for fun of that kind, made her complaint against the suspected party, but as the trick appeared to be without malice, no binding over took place. Philadelphia Pensylvania.

☞ Sam was asked what he thought of the effects of hot drinks on the system? "Hot drinks, sir," said he, "are decidedly bad. Tea and coffee, sir, are hurtful. And even hot punch, when it is very hot—very hot indeed—and taken often, and in large quantities, I suppose is slightly deleterious."

Why is a clock the most humble thing in existence? Because it always holds its hands before its face and however good its works may be its always running itself down.—N. Haven Reg.

☞ The road of the Newark Plank Road and Ferry Co., we understand, has been located; and the whole is to be put under contract by the 10th of next month, the line of course being subject to slight variations as circumstances may require. The route as surveyed by Mr. Edward Carter, Esq., the engineer of the road, commencing at East Market street, running to Bowery street, thence to Richards Lane, and into the Old Ferry road, through which it runs for about 60 rods; thence directly on the north side of the Old Ferry road to the edge of the salt meadows, and crossing the Passaic on the north side of the Morris Canal, it follows that to the Hackensack river; thence in a south-east direction, crossing Bergen ridge about 40 rods north of the point where the Old Ferry Road opens upon the ridge; crossing in its way the farms of Messrs. Ackerman, Allen, C. Garrabrant, and north of the house of Nichs. Vreeland, where it intersects the Communipaw road, and follows the same direction until it strikes the Bergen Point Plank Road 1 1-2 miles from Jersey City, the whole distance to which is 7 1-5 miles. As now located, there is no grade over 5 feet to 100 in steepness, and the general profile of the country is very favorable for the location of such a road.—Newark Advertiser.

More Gas!

From the Scientific American.

Application has been made for letters patent, both for the United States and England, for the protection of a cheap and brilliant gas, produced upon a new and scientific principle, which can be obtained at a cost less than one cent per 1000 feet. It will early be submitted to the public patronage. The process will far surpass, and entirely supersede every other means of produping gas, extant; neither will the material, (like every other, past and in present use,) raise in value on account of an increased demand; during which process a far more valuable article is produced than the gas—by which process not a particle of wood, coal, water, or vegetable matter is required, and the material can be obtained in any clime or place, however remote from civilization—a process far less indirect and precarious than the present absurd and enormous destruction of coal; without any process of combustion,—comparatively speaking a self-acting and self-creating gas—called into action by an impulse of nature, without any expense of working and transportation of fuel—from whence there it derived a new motive power, new light, and heat, called into existence from the foundation of Nature—from whence there is a resource which is eternal, inexhaustible, and omnipresent.

NEW VILLAGE OF HERMANVILLE.

ONLY $25 for a HOMESTEAD — 22 Farms woth over $8,500, and 6,400 LOTS, to be distributed among 800 subscribers. Each subscriber is entitled to 8 lots, 25 by 100 feet lying together, or a PRIZE FARM of from 4 to 20 acres. The shares are limited at $25—payable—$5 when subscribed for, $5 on day of distribution, and balance in monthly installments of $3. About 700 shares are now subscribed.

The Lots are situated in the village of HERMANVILLE, one mile east of Lake Road Station, on the Long Island Railroad, County of Suffolk, and 50 miles from the city of New-York. It is one of the healthiest places in the United States, within one mile of Ronkonkoma Lake, which is about three miles in circumference, of singular transparency and of great depth, with an abundance of fish. The village is but 4 miles distant from the greet South Bay which is 5 miles wide and 40 miles long, abundantly supplied with oysters, clams, and fish of various kinds.

These lands will produce as much per acre, with the same cultivation, as any land within fifty miles of New-York. The Suffolk County Agricultural Society, at a meeting on 24th September, 1850 awarded premiums for the production of these lands as may be seen by the following letter:

(Copy)

LAKE ROAD, Oct. 23th, 1850.

I certify that I have raised during the past season the very best of Corn and Potatoes 150 bushels per acre; Egg Plants, and a variety of garden vegetables, on land near the Long Island Railroad at Lake Road from which I received a premium at the Suffolk County Agricultural Fair, held September 24. 1850.

Also, Peas, Beans, Onions, Squashes, Pumpkins, Beets and Tomatoes. Your's,

(Signed) IRA L'HOMMEDIEU.

To CHARLES WOOD, 117 John-st N. Y.

Hermanville is located on the borders of the Long Island Railroad, where cars run several times a day to Brooklyn and New-York. The surface of the land is smooth and level, and the surrounding country is perfectly healthy, and within a few miles of this place, highly cultivated and valuable, having been settled for more than 150 years, and where similar lands sell from $50. to $200 per acre.

The distribution will take place in a few days by a Committee to be selected by the Subscribers from among their number. The person having the first choice will be entitled, for $25 only, to a 20 acre Farm worth $1,000; the second to an 18 acre Farm, worth $900; the third, a 16 acre Farm, worth $800; the 4th, a 14 acre Farm, worth 700; the 5th, a 12 acre Farm, worth $600; the 6th a 10 acre Farm, worth $500; the 7th and 8th, each an 8 acre farm, worth $400; the 9th, 10th and 11th, each a 6 acre Farm, worth 300; the 12th, 13th, 14th, and 15th each a 5 acre Farm, worth $250; the 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th, and 20th, each a 4 acre Farm, worth $200; and all the others will be entitled to 8 Village Lots, each 25 by 100 feet lying together. There are no blanks—this is not a lottery—every person gets for $25 a handsome Lot of Ground equal to 8 city lots.

Manner of Distribution of Hermanville Lots and Prize Farms—The manner of distribution will be as follows: All the numbers on the Map, from 1 to 800, will be put into a wheel, and the first number drawn from the wheel, will be entitled to the first Prize, and, if the first number so drawn or taken out of the wheel happens to be 250 or 275, then the person on the subscription list, who holds or owns the subscription number of 250 or 275, or whatever the corresponding number may be, will be entitled to the first Prize Farm, and so proceeding until all the numbers are drawn out.

The lands are as good as represented, and as good as any land on the Island, and when cultivated, will produce in the highest degree.

The land was once heavily timbered; some portions are now covered with a thrifty growth of young wood, oak and pine. Wood is plenty and generally cheap in that part of the Island. Fire-wood is cheap, that which is suitable to be cut into cord-wood, for the New-York market, is of uniform price, and has for a great many years been always considered a cash article on the Island.

There is material on the land for common fencing—good chestnut rails can be had within a few miles of these lands in abundance. All building materials can be had at the depots of Brooklyn and Greenport, and at many intermediate places, at the usual market prices. There are numerous streams of water rising in these new lands, and running into the Great South Bay, which are remarkable for their purity, and never fail; indeed, dry weather makes very little change in them; they are unfailing, and wells are of various depths, probably over these new lands in the middle region of the Island, the average depth will be about 25 feet, at Hermanville as the ground is higher they are deeper.

There are now churches and schools within two or three miles of the village, and within four miles, mills, factories, stores and villages. All the privileges of an old settled country are to be had here, and the people of Suffolk County pride themselves on being a highly moral, orderly and religious people. All of my subscribers are persons of respectability.

The land can be very easily cleared, and the cost of settlement will depend almost entirely upon the settler, he can lay out as much or as little as he chooses. I do not know of any objections to the place or to the land for a settlement, and the same labor and industry which make successful and prosperous settlement in other parts of the country, bestowed upon these lands cannot fail to produce favorable results.

The climate is in every particular healthy and pleasant—the roads are good and always passable, at all seasons of the year—the Winters are short and mild, compared to the Winters on the main, to the north of the Highlands—there is seldom sleighing more than two or three weeks on the Island.

What is remarkable, a crop is seldom injured by drouth—there is no part of the country where there is so little injury from drouth as on Long Island, nor is there any injury from wet—there is no wet or cold land on the island. All the land along the margin of the streams can be made highly valuable at a small cost, for there is no such thing as a flood or freshet, as in the interior part of the country, by which often very great damage is done—such an event as the carrying off a bridge, or the breaking of a mill dam, with great damage is almost unheard of on Long Island. The streams and bays abound in fish and wild fowl in great abundance, and every variety.

☞ In consequence of the great number of letters from all parts of the country, desiring information of these lands, it has been found necessary to answer them in this form.

☞ Apply to THOS. WOOD, Stationer, 117 JOHN-STREET, near Pearl, or CHARLES WOOD, at the same place, either of whom will receive remittances and forward receipts therefor by return of mail. They will gratuitously furnish maps and pamphlets of the property, and cheerfully give such other information as may be desired.

TRY ONE—YES, TRY BOTH.

SOMETHING NEW!

THE Subscriber would say to his friends and customers that he has the sole agency for the sale of Crane's Patent Compound Wash Mixture, for Plainfield, also for the North American Electric Washing Fluid, both great labor saving articles in washing, warranted not to injure clothing, and fully to answer the purpose represented. Money will be refunded to those using this fluid and finding it not to answer the purpose intended. All that is needed to recommend the above article is a trial; those who have tested them approve them much. Trying—yes, try both.

Just as I finished writing the above and raised my eyes, I see lying on my shelves and counters, some new and elegant plain and figured DeLaines, Silk and worsted and Silk and Cotton Poplins, of various shades, and some splendid Wool Shawls, to which the attention of the ladies is most respectfully requested. THE NEW JERSEY

HORSE POWER

Manufacturing Company.

HAVING improved, strengthened and perfected A. D. CRANE'S Patent Horse Power, are now prepared to furnish the same to all who may want.

This Power consists of an endless floor running over a series of pulleys, connected by cranks, without a rack or cog wheel about it: none being required from the fact, that the weight of the horse on the floor or platform causes sufficient adhesion between it and the pulleys to transmit all the power he is able to give. Also by this arrangement the chain is freed from the draught or strain (which cannot be avoided in any other Stall Power,) except, what is reqired to pass the floor around. The requisite speed is obtained direct from the machine thereby avoiding a great amount of friction and wear, and lessening the liability to get out of order. They run so easily as to require less than an inch elevation to the foot. A self acting brake is attached by which the motion is kept regular and uniform even when the work is unsteady and irregular.

From the above description it is evident that this is the most simple and efficient Power known.

They are highly recommended by those who have used them, for driving Circular Saws, Lathes, Drilling Machines, Threshers, Grist Mills, Pumps, &c.

The Company have certificates to prove the above and also to show that the Two Horse Power will grind 40 bushels of Corn to Meal (with Platt's Patent Mill,) in a day of ten hours, making it an invaluable Power for the Southern planter as well as others.

It has taken Silver Medals at the different Fairs where exhibited, and the only one given to Horse Powers by the American Institute last fall.

They also furnish Threshers of the most approved construction.

Price of Single Power with Belt, $75; Double do. with Belt, $110: Thresher and Separator, $35.

HERNIA.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.—This disorder, of very frequennt occurrence, may be considered as arising through weakness of the abdominal walls, inducing an enlargement in the natural openings formed therein for the transmission of blood and other vessels; such openings being enlarged, permit the escape of bowels or other viscera of the abdomen, devolving hernial swellings or rupture, which most generally occur outwardly, as at the navel, groins and thighs.

The complaint is likely to happen at birth, and therefore should be carefully looked for by those having the charge of children, that it may be arrested and cured promptly. It also occurs at any period of life, to either sex, without regard to the condition or mode of living, and when found, should be attended to without delay—the final penalty being death, and that may be induced through strangulation at any momennt.

RUPTURES, are always to be treated with the surgical instruments known as Trusses and Supporters, and these require to be skillfully applied. With this view, the HULL'S TRUSS OFFICE, now established some thirty years, has under the various managers, presented to the public both male and female attendants to apply its instruments directly to the persons, which is preferable in all cases, and has also made improvement at different times, showing that advancement which study and practice only yield toward the relief of this malady.

With much pleasure the fact is now published, that recent improvements BUTLER'S TRUSS PADS have been made, and sufficiently tested upon numerous cases to warrant, through the cures already affected, their submission to the public, as being in adaptation and efficiency superior to any heretofore made known.

These improvements, recently patented, are now being applied at this office, 4 Vesey street, in cases of rupture, gravitation of the bowels, prolapsus uteri, prolapsus ani and piles.

The public may rely upon that care being made in their application, which will most likely tend to the final cure of the several complaints.

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

The annals of medical science, affording as they do ample proof of the power and value of many medicinal agents, have furnished no examples to compare with the sultary effects produced by 'AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL."

The remarkable cures of diseases of the Lungs which have been realized by its use, attested as they are by many prominent professors and physicians in this and foreign lands, should encourage the afflicted to persevere with the strong assurance that the use of the "CHERRY PECTORAL" will relieve and ultimately cure them.

We present to the public unsolicited tsteimonials from some of the first men in our country, upon whose judgment and experience implicit confidence may be placed.

NORWICH April 26, 1846

DR. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Agreeable to the request of your agent, we will cheerfully state what we have known of the effects of your CHERRY PECTORAL, and they have been astonishing indeed. Mrs. Betsy Streeter had been afflicted with a severe and relentless cough, which reduced her very low; so low that little hope could be entertained of her recovery. Numerous remedies had been tried without effect before the CHERRY PECTORAL And that has cured her. George Watkinson Esq., had to our knowledge ben afflicted with Asthma, for eleven years, and grown yearly worse, until the CHERRY PECTORAL has now removed the disease and he is as free from any of its symptons as we are. The Rev. Mark Dane had been so severely attacked with the Bronchitis, as to disable him from his duties, and nothing had afforded him relief until I (Mr. Thorning) carried him a bottle of your PECTORAL, which cured him at once, and he now officiates as usual in his place.

These are three of the cases in which we have known it succesful, but never to fail. We have great pleasure in certifying to these facts; and are, respected sir, yonr humble servants.

REV. DAVID THORRING.
HON. JOSEPH BATTLES.

Among the distinguished authorities who have given their names to recommend CHERRY PECTORAL, as the best remedy that is known for the Affections of the Lungs, are "The Loudon Lancet," "Canadian Journal of Medical Science," "Boston Medical and Surgical Journal," "Charleston (S. C.) Medical Review," "New Jersey Medical Reporter," Prof. WEBSTER. Harvard College, Prof. BARTLETT, Transylvania University of Medicine, President PERKINS, Vermont Medical College, Dr. VALENTINE MOTT, New York City, PARKER CLEVELAND, Bowdoin College, Prof. BUTTERFIELD, Willoughby College, Ohio, Prof. BRAITHWAITE, Leeds (Eng.) Medical School, Sir RICHARD KANE, Queen's College, Ireland, Prof. Rosenbaum, Leipsic

The public have but to know the virtues and astonishing success of the "CHERRY PECTORAL," in curing diseases of the Lungs, when they will feel secure from these dangers, whenever this remedy can be obtained.

MECHANICAL MEDICINE.

Dr. Banning, formerly of this city, asks to announce that he has returned to 341 Broadway; for consultation and management of weakneses of the vocal, pulmonary, digestive, nervous, spinal and female systems; and also of the drooping, languor and physical deformities, which are so destructive of both health and beauty at the present day.

As these and kindred maladies are usually the result of a violation of the laws of physical organization, he will treat them chiefly by those exercises, mechanical appliances and reformatory habits of body, in conjunction with hydropathy galvanism and other discoveries of the day, which, united with the cooperative efforts of the subject, are calculated to relieve and restore the energies of the suffering and neglected organs.

Having spent several years in traveling for investigation and practical experiment on the subject, he has, at length, greatly improved and multiplied his surgical and mechanical appliances for the purpose. In addition to his new supports for female and spinal weaknesses, are some combining the properties of a universal hernial truss and an effective general support, with which he challenges cases of general debility, constipation, piles and prolapsus, ani, leucorrhea, prolapsus utori and every variety of hernia.

The distinctive peculiarity of these devices is, that they do not weaken or restrain the motions or growth of the suffering parts, but act imitatively and concordantly with the mathematical genius of the body's forces. Hence, by a most comfortable and gentle pressure, they at once give great support and render the oppressed system eligible to its own restoration.

Feeble invalids coming from a distance will command prompt and faithful attention.

For more definite information, see his revised edition of "Animal Mechanics," and also his circular, which will be sent gratuitously when requested.

His improved body-braces, spinal supports and supporter trusses applied at his office (341 Broadway) and to be had wholesale and retail. City and country physicians and druggists are invited to call and examine Office hours from 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. [121.

DOCTOR YOURSELF! FOR 25 CENTS!!!

BY MEANS OF THE POCKET ESCULAPIUS, or, Every one his own Physician! Thirtieth edition, with upwards of a hundred engravings, showing private diseases in every shape and form, and malformations of the generative system,

BY WM. YOUNG, M, D.

The time has now arrived, that persons suffering from secret diseases, need no more become the victim of quackery as by the prescript ons contained in this book any one may cure himself, without hindrance to business, or the knowledge of the most intimate friend, and with one tenth the usual expense. In addition to the general routine of private disease, it fully explains the cause of manhood's early decline, with observations on marriage—besides many other derangements which it would not be proper to enumerate in the public prints.

☞ Any person sending TWENTY-FIFE CENTS enclosed in a letter, will receive one copy of this book, by mail, or five copies will be sent for one dollar. Address, "DR. W. YOUNG, No. 152 SPRUCE Street, PHILADELPHIA." Post-paid.

MARRIAGE:

WHY SO OFTEN UNHAPPY.

THE CAUSES AND THE REMEDY!

MANY and many a wife endures years of bodily suffering and of mental anguish, prostrate and helpless, embittering her life, that of her husband, and hazarding the future welfare of her children, arising from causes which, if known, would have spared the suffering, the anguish to the wife, and to the husband embarrassments and pecuniary difficulties having their origin in the mind being weighed down and harassed in consequence of the sickness of the companion of his bosom.

How important that the causes should be known to every wife, to every husband, that the dreadful and harrowing consequences to the health and happiness of both may be avoided! Life is too short and health too precious to admit any portion of the one to be spent without the full enjoyment of the other. The timely possession of a little work entitled as follows has been the means of saving the health and the life of thousands, as over copies have been sold since the first edition was issued.

The author has been induced to advertise it by the urgent and pressing request of those who have been indebted to its publication for all they hold dear (that all may have an opportunity of obtaining it), and who have favored him with thousands of letters of encomium, some of which are annexed to the advertisement.

THE MARRIED WOMAN'S Private Medical Companion.

BY DR. A. M. MAURICEAU,

PROFESSOR OF DISEASES OF WOMEN.

Twentieth Edition. 18*mo., pp.* 250. Price, $1.00.

THIS WORK IS INTENDED ESPECIALLY FOR THE MARRIED, or those contemplating marriage, as it discloses important secrets which should be known to them particularly.

Here, every female—the wife, the mother—the one either budding into womanhood, or the one in the decline of years, in whom nature contemplates an important change—can discover the causes, symptoms, and the most efficient remedies and most certain mode of cure, in every complaint to which her sex is subject.

The revelations contained in its pages have proved a blessing to thousands, as the innumerable letters received by the author (which he is permitted by the writers to publish) will attest.

SICKLY AND UNHAPPY WIVES.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in Dayton, O.

"DAYTON, May 1, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU—My Dear Sir: 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion,' for which I enclosed one dollar to your address, came safely to hand. I would not have troubled you with these few lines, but that I am impelled by a sense of gratitude, for myself and wife, to give utterance to our sincere and heartfelt emotions.

"My wife has been perceptibly sinking for some three years or more, in consequence of her great anguish and suffering some months before and during confinement; every successive one more and more debilitated and prostrated her, putting her life in imminent danger, and which was, on the last occasion, despaired of. I supposed that this state of things was inevitable, and resigned myself to meet the worst. At this time (now about two months) I heard your book highly spoken of, as containing some matters reaching my case. On its receipt and perusal, I can not express to you the relief it afforded my distressed mind and the joy its pages imparted to my wife, on learning that the great discovery of M. M. Desomeaux provided a remedy. It opened a prospect to me which I little conceived was possible. No pecuniary consideration can ever repay the obligations I am under to you for having been the means of imparting to us the matters contained in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' But for this, ere another year would have passed over my head, in all human probability my wife would have been in her grave, and my children left motherless."

Extract from a Letter.

"LANCASTER, PA., Oct. 24, 1847.

"MY DEAR SIR: I know you will have the kindness to bear with me in encroaching upon your time, while I acknowledge (in behalf of myself and wife) the obligations we feel ourselves under to you in having made known certain matters, contained in your most invaluable 'Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' It has been worth its weight in gold to me. If I express myself rather warmly, you will see that I can not do so too warmly, when I inform you of the extent to which I have, through it, been benefited. I will state my situation when I obtained your book through the merest curiosity I look upon it as one of the most fortunate events of my life. I had been married some ten years, and was the father of seven children. I was long struggling unceasingly, to the end that I might gain a moderate competency, but the results of my utmost exertions at the end left me about where I was at the beginning of each year; and that only, with the most stinted economy, sufficing with barely the necessaries of life. Finally, this constant effort was beginning to have its effect upon my health: I felt less capable to endure its continuance, while I felt the necessity of perseverance.

"This constant, unceasing struggle on my part was imperative, in consequence of the prostrated condition of my wife (with occasional intermission) for six years, much of the time confined to her bed, and of course incapable of taking the charge and management of household affairs. Her condition arose from causes of which I was ignorant. Oh! what would I have given had I the six years to live over again! What would my wife have given to have been spared the long days and still longer nights prostrate on a bed of sickness!—all of which would have been avoided, had I then seen a copy of 'THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION.'"

DANGEROUS DELIVERIES,

OBSTRUCTIONS, IRREGULARITIES, &C.

How many are suffering from obstruction or irregularities peculiar to the female system, which undermine their health, the effects of which they are ignorant, and for which their delicacy forbids seeking medical advice! How many suffer from prolapsus uteri (falling of the womb), or from fluor-albus (weakness, debility, &c., &c)! How many are in constant agony for many months preceding confinement! How many have difficult if not dangerous deliveries, and whose lives are jeoparded during such time, will find in its pages the means of prevention, amelioration, and relief!

Extract from a Letter.

To those just Married.—"Had I known!"

"PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU: Had I known of the important matters treated of in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion' some years ago, how much misery I might have escaped! I have suffered years from causes which you point out in your book, without knowing what to do. I obtained a copy, and found my case treated of. I trust every female will avail herself of the information contained in its pages."

Letters are daily received of this character, unnecessary to present.

To those yet unmarried, but contemplating marriage, or perhaps hesitating as to the propriety of incurring the responsibilities attendant upon it, the importance of being possessed of the revelations contained in these pages, so intimately involving their future happiness, can not be appreciated.

It is, of course, impracticable to convey more fully the various subjects treated of, as they are of a nature strictly intended for the married, or those contemplating marriage; neither is it necessary, since it is every one's duty to become possessed of knowledge whereby the sufferings to which a wife, a mother, or a sister, may be subject, can be obviated.

☞ Copies will be sent by Mail free of Postage to the Purchaser.

☞ On the receipt of One Dollar, "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION" is sent (mailed free) to any part of the United States. All letters must be post-paid (except those containing a remittance), and addressed to Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Box 1224, New York City. Publishing Office, No. 129 Liberty st., New York.

Over 20,000 Copies have been sent by MAIL within three months with perfect safety and certainty.

Booksellers and agents engaged in its sale, are making handsome competencies from the ready and extraordinary demand for it, and the extremely liberal terms afforded them.

Active local or travelling Agents, throughout the United States and Canadas, will be supplied on the same terms. Communications are required to be POST-PAID and addressed as above.

☞ CAUTION.—The public are cautioned against various catch-penies intended to be palmed off upon them initiating the title of the work as "The Married LADIES' Medical Companion," and various other titles. The title of the work is "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," BY Dr. A. M. Mauriceau. [105

FOR FEMALES AND MALES

Dr. Lazetti's Juno Cordial, or Protective Elixir.

This is the only actual remedy ever discovered for impetency, Genital Debility, Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases occasioned by certain secret habits; and many of the nostrums recently recommended for the same complaints are worthless imitations which its unrivalled excellence, fame and popularity have brought into the market. The Medical Faculty of Europe and the United States are unanimous in their recommendations of the Juno Cordial and have not given their sanction in a single instance that has been authenticated, to any compound for the same purposes. The nature of the maladies relieved by the Juno Cordial are generally such as to leave the publication of certificates of cures out of the question, or the proprietor could produce a host of the most conclusive testimony to show that the great reputation that it enjoys was not accidentally obtained, but is firmly based upon its positive, and apparently miraculous virtues. In all directions are to be found the happy parents of healthy offspring, who would not have been so, but for this extraordinary preparption. And it is equally potent in the many diseases for which it is recommended. Objection has been naturally made to the price of the Juno Cordial, because the trash that has been thrown into the market in opposition to it is sold cheaper; but the fact is, the Cordial cannot be afforded for less, and ought to be much dearer, as many of the ingredients which compose it are among the costliest things in nature; whereas the others are made up of cheap drugs, worth but little in money, and less in merit. We assure the reader that the utmost reliance may be placed on the Juno Cordial in the cure of the maladies mentioned above, and also those that follow, viz: Loss of Muscular Energy, Physical Lassitude and General Prostration, Irritability, and all Nervous Affections, Indigestion, Sluggishness of the Liver, Gleet, Lucorrhoea or Whites, and Flour Albus and every disease in any way connected with the disorder of the Procreative Functions—in all of which it will afford almost immediate relief, and, if used as directed, is almost certain to produce a positive and permanent cure. Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness or disability of a certain nature, should take this Cordial, as it will infallibly restore health and vigor in a brief period, and where want of offspring is a cause of regret, if recourse be had to it the most beneficial results may be anticipated with confidence. It is of priceless value to those without offspring. It has taken the precedence in Italy, and will in all other countries where it may become known.

To spread wide the blessings of this medicine, I have appointed Messrs. Judson & Co, of the City of New York, in the United States of America, my sole Agents for its sale; and none can be genuine unless it comes through them, and their signature is on the weapper.

The Yankee Pedler;

OR, A SKETCH FROM LIFE IN VIRGINIA.

Concluded.

On arriving at the race ground, it was learned that four mile heats, and the best in three were the order of the day; and true enough, Sweepstakes, Sir Charles, and Eclipse were on the ground. The judges at the goal had already entered the three famous horses, for the prime purse of one thousand dollars. Besides this the side bets, the sly bets, and the dormant bets, were very considerable on the respective horses just as they happened to be favorites with the pratician dons present. The pedler at once entered Naragansett, as a competitor for the purse, under the name of "the Mare." When the horses appeared upon the turf, Eclipse required four men to hold him, before he could be mounted, so eager was he to devour the ground. Sweepstakes was rearing and flirting in a fearful manner. Sir Charles champed his bit in proud disdain, measuring his steps by inches, as he seemed to feel his superiority as master of the Eclipse. Off to the left stood Naragansett, in sheep like quiesence; and while the other jockies wore gilt caps, carried gilt whips, the dark eyed boy on the mare was hatless, and ne'er a sprig in his hand. But when the dons came to scan the beast, and beheld her drooping tail, lama-like, quiet, and long hair covering her eyes and feet, they shouted outright in a most obstreporous laugh — They thought it a joke—a burlesque on their sport, practised by some wag. They cried out, "who bets on the mare?"

"One hundred dollars, for luck sake," replied the major. It was covered in a moment. Other bets were tendered against her—two to one, five to one, and ten to one. The major covered them all as offerred; and was astonished that it made so little impression on his packet. Twenty dollar notes, fifty dollar, and one hundred dollar notes turned up; and he saw that he held in his hand enough to match all the money brought on the ground by the dons. They, too, were astonished that the major should be in funds; and much more so, that he should bet so wantonly on the scare-crow mare.

And now, it was one, two, three, and off. Every horse on the turf took the lead of the mare to the first quarter post. At the two miles' point Sweepstakes and Eclipse had fallen behind; and to the astonishment of the spectators, Sir Charles and the mare were neck and neck. As they swept along in fine style, the mare just secured her distance, and came in at the goal half a neck ahead, as declared by the judges. The other two horses drew off the course.

"Look there!" exclaimed many voices, "the mare is blown—she holds her head and tail, and Sir Charles will take the other two heats without effort"

"Oh! yes, yes, she is blown" cried the dons; and they cracked up ten to one for Sir Charles, the best in three. The major put faith in his neighbors

He saw the mare's head was down—he thought her tail trembled. He feared for Ralph's money he had so liberally planked, and dared not venture more. The challenges, ten to one, were clamorous against him. He hesitated—ay, even trembled in his shoes. Brown, who had kept aloof from the contest, now crossed the path of the major. He whispered in the ear of the latter as he passed—

"Go it major—don't be afeard—stick the leek into 'em, with a tarnation reef. I'll back ye. If you cow out, major, I'll blot your name from the elect. as I told ye."

Thus reassured, the major stood his hand. Stacks of bank notes were piled up before the judges; and most astonishing, as well to the major, as to his neighbors, his packet held out like the widows oil.

And now Sir Charles and Naregansett are again displaying wonders—the mountains skip like rams, and the little hills like lambs, on either side. Sir Charles was a fine young horse, the pride of Virginia; and when he eclipsed Eclipse the year previous, he was crowned with gold and covered with scarlet, He was the idol of the State. And now the fate of Virginia hung in equal poise It hung so for two-thirds of the second heat, when the boy on the mare, touched his thumb to the neck of his beast and she cleared the goal, leaving Sir Charles three lengths in the rear.

Not a shout was issued from all that immense multitude. The dons were chap fallen, dumb-founded; they even doubted if this were not the fantasy of a fitful dream. At length a low murmur was raised disputing the first heat, Many said the horses came in neck and neck, and they must run again to decide the contest. The judges, however, decided differently; they said the mare had won the stakes. But still the discontents were getting noisy, and cried out, "Who is the owner of this mare? Let him say whether she may run again."

"I own the critter!,' replied Ralph Brown; "and though I never bet, nor swear, nor drink, yet just for amusement, gentleman, she may whip around agin; and if the hoss beats her, I'll return the stakes and pay the shot."

All were delighted with this, and gave a shout—"Well done the Yankee pedlar! he's a man after all." But the major now in his turn winked to the pedlar, and said—"Dont play the fool; you fairly won the money; and the mare is certainly fagged, and the knowing ones see it."

"Keep cool, major," said Ralph; "I didn't cross the Potomac for nothin'. I was born ag'in before these here squires had their eye-teeth cut. They think they are cute, like; but I'll let the illumination into them."

Saying this, the pedlar dropped a word in the ear of his curly-pated boy, not heard by those around. The horses started again, and for half the course kept neck and neck as before; when young curly head rammed his thumb into the mare's flank, blowing out a whistle at the same time, so clear and piercing, could be heard a mile off. The mare sprang into the air as if she had been a wild sprite of the winds! She seemed to fly rather than run; and even poor Sir Charles gazed on with terror and wonderment, as he ploughed his way through the clouds of dust, far in the wake of the flying witch! Virginia was never so taken by surprise; and when the mare reached the goal, her competitor was fifty yards behind. The dons had too much chivalry to let this pass in silence, They raised a shout of triumph for the winner, relinquished their claims to the stakes, and gathered around the weasel mare in admiration of her parts. True enough, by this time the animal had got her spirits roused. Her head and tail were up; she spitefully champed her bit; her fiery nostrils were widely distended; and the white of her eyes was terribble round about."

"This mare shall never go from Virginia," said one capitalist, "if money can detain her."

"No, never," said another; and they all gathered round the pedler, denmanding his price.

"The critter is not on sale," replied Ralph; "my wagon would stick fast in the mud, I reckon, but for this catamount."

"Wagon?" said the dons, disdainfully, "This flying dragon never saw a wagon."

"Good rhyme, gentlemen; good rhyme. I'll set it to music, and sing it to the critter as we jog on our journey together."

The gentlemen, however, became in earnest, and made him several sly bids for the mare—tempting enough.

"Well, I tell you what, gentlemen, fair play's a jewel; if I must part with this screamer, it's to be done by way of auction." Thus saying, the pedler mounted the platform erected for the judges, and raising his rattan cried—"who bids? I put up this here critter for sale—the flying witch of Naragansett. Shs's a raal buster, gentlemen—and immortal sprite wrapped up in a mare's skin. D'ye see the white of her eye as I call her name? Once, twice; who bids?—a thousand dollars, say I for myself — Just a going—gone! And so Iv'e knocked her down to myself at half-price."

"Ah, that's not fair," cried many voices; "we've not had a chance."

"Quick is my word, gentlemen—can't humour your slow motions, If you want the critter, bid away in earnest Now, she's up ag'in. Who bids? Once, twice—jest a going"

"Twelve hundred and fifty dollars!"

"Thank ye. This critter's sire was a catamount, and her dam the witch of Endor! Twelve hundred and fifty dollars! Jest a-going. once, twice, th-r-e-e—"

"Fifteen hundred dollars!"

"Thank ye. Ay, gentlemen, ye jest begin to sense the vartues of this here buster. Fifteen hundred once, fifteen hundred twice,,—

"Two thousand dollars!"

"Thank ye, thank ye. Can't dally; two thousand once, two thousand twice; going, going, t-h-r-e-e times! Gone at two thousand dollars—as cheap as pusley. Now, mister, stump the speltre, and the mare is yourn."

The bank notes were paid over to the pedler, and the pockets of the major were crammed with the winnings; and both together were on their way home before dinner.

Seated at the tea-table in the evening, the mass of bank notes were disgorged from the major's ample pockets. On counting them, they amounted to thousands more than I dare state, for fear of gaining no credit with those ignorant of the deep gaming in Virginia. The amount was so great, that even Laura looked on with astonishment, never having seen so much money in the manshion before. The amount was ascertained: and the major placed the huge pile before the pedler, saying—

"I congratulate you, Mr. Brown, on winning more money to-day than was ever won in Virginia at a horse-race before,"

Ralph opened both eyes and mouth in astonishment, exclaiming—"I win! did ye say, m'ster! Not a rap. I never made a bet in my life."

"All the same," replied the major; "the money is yours, every farthing of it. I had not a shilling in my purse to hazard. The risk is yours, and yours the good fortune."

"Away with your nonsense, major!" cried Ralph: Don't poke fun at me. Iv'e a conscience ag'inst bets. You know, too, major, that besides other sorts of business, I do a little in the religious way down east: and the mothers in Israel, of Varmount State and New Hampshire, would be shocked to know I'de so fallen from grace, as to step upon a race-ground, much more to hear I'd pocketed the speltre. No, no, major, not I. Now, I'll jest tell ye, squire, the kink of this matter. I've known that ere Naragansett mare from colthood up. I've seen her caperin' over the paster of an old Rhode Island farmer for four summers past When I seed her last May I thought of you, major, and the loss of the 'backer last year, and said to myself—"Now I'll jest give a friend a lift and grease the wheels of my wagon a little in the same spec'. I bought the mare for seventy-five dollars, and put her to school for education on Long Island, They knew a thing or two, major, on Long Island about horse-flesh. When they'd tried her, they wanted to coax me out of her for five hundred dollars. I told 'em she was for a friend of mine down south, and couldn't be traded That there curl-pated joker you seed thumming the critter, is a very devil with a hoss, major. Have you ever heard of him?—'tis Frank Durfy, that, beats all the riders in creation. He can make that mare jump straight out of her skin. Now, I only made believes about the wagon, major. The mare came in short stages from Long Island tied to my cart-tail, while old Roan I left three miles from here drew the wagon and luggage. I only jest put her in that morn'n' I came here; and three miles slow drivin' didn't stiffen her."

At length the major returned the packet of notes lent to him in the morning for his bets, squared the account of two thousand and six hundred dollars the pedler had against him, and placed the balance of the money—a huge lot—in his bureau.

It will perhaps afford gratification to some of our readers to know, that within six weeks of this event, Laura Caroll was Laura caroll no more; and that Ralph Brown having taken into his hands the management of the major's vast estate, it exhibits to this day, practical evidences of the universal evidences of the universal genius of THE YANKEE PEDLAR.

Dr. Johnson's Pudding.

Last summer I made an excursion to Scotland, with a view of completing my seres of views, and went over the same grounds described by the learned tourists, Dr. Johnson and Boswell. I am in the habit of taking very long walks on these occasions, and perceiving a storm threaten, I made the best of my way to a small building. I arrived in time at a neat little inn, and was received by a respectable looking man and his wife, who did all in their power to make me comfortable. After eating some excellent fried mutton chops, and drinking a quart of ale, I asked the landlord to sit down and partake of a bowl of whiskey punch. I found him as the Scotch generally are, very intelligent, and full of anecdote, of which the following may serve as a specimen:—

"Sir," said the landlord, "this inn was formerly kept by Andrew McGregor, a relation of mine; and these hard bottomed chairs in which we are now sitting, were years ago filled by the great tourists, Dr. Johnson and Boswell, travelling like the lion and jackall. Boswell generally preceded the doctor in search of food. Being much pleased with the cooks of the house, followed his nose into the larder, where he saw a fine leg of mutton, he ordered it to be roasted with the utmost expedition, and gave particular orders for a nice pudding. 'Now,' said he, 'make the best of pudding.' Elated with his good luck, he immediately went out in search of his friend, and saw the giant of learning slowly advancing on a pony.

"'My dear sir,' said Boswell, out of breath with joy and good news, 'I have just bespoke, in a comfortable and clean inn here, a delicious leg of mutton; it is now getting ready, and I flatter myself we shall make an excellent meal.'

"Johnson looked pleased—'and I hope,' said he, 'you have bespoke a pudding.'

"'Sir you have your favorite pudding, said the other.

"Johnson got off the pony; the poor animal, relieved of the giant, smelt his way into the stable. Boswell ushered the Doctor into the house, and left him to prepare for a delicious treat. Johnson felt his coat rather damp from the mists of the mountains, went into the kitchen and threw his upper garment on a chair before the fire. He sat on a hob near a little boy, who was very busy attending to the meat. Johnson occasionally peeped from behind his coat, while the boy kept basting the mutton, Johnson, moreover, did not like in the least the appearance of his head when he shifted the basting ladle from one hand, and the other was never idle, and the Doctor thought at the same time he saw something fall on the meat, upon which he determined to eat no mutton on that day. The dinner being announced, Boswell exclaimed—

"'My dear Doctor, here comes the mutton—what a picture—done to a turn, and looks so beautifully brown.'

"The Doctor tittered. After a short grace, Boswell said—

"'I suppose I have to carve as usual. What part shall I help you to?'

"The Doctor replied—'My dear boy, I did not like to tell you before, but I am determined to abstain from meat to-day.'

"'O dear, this is a great disappointment,' said Bozzy.

"'Say no more, I shall make myself ample amends with the pudding.'

"Boswell commenced the attack, and made the first cut at the mutton.. 'How the gravy runs; what fine flavored fat, so nice and brown, too; ah! sir, you would have relished this prime piece of mutton.'

"The meat being removed, in came the long wished for pudding. The Doctor looked joyous; fell eagerly to, and in a few moments nearly finished all the pudding. And Mr. Boswell said—

"'Doctor, while I was carving the mutton, you seemed inclined to laugh; pray tell me what tickled your fancy.'

"The doctor then literally told him all that had passed at the kitchen fire, about the boy and the basting. Bosswell turned as pale as a parsnip, and sick of himself and the company, darted out of the room. Somewhat relieved, on returning, he insisted on seeing the dirty little rascally boy, whom he severely reprimanded before Johnson. The poor boy cried—the Doctor laughed.

"'You little filthy, snivelling hound,' Said Boswell, 'when you basted the meat why did you not put on the cap I saw you in this morning.

"'I couldn't sir,' said the boy.

"'Why couldn't you,' said Boswell

"Because my mammy took it from me to boil the pudding in.

"The Doctor gathered up his herculean frame—stood erect—touched the ceiling with his wig—squinted—indeed, looked any way but the right way. At last, with mouth wide open, and none of the smallest, and stomach heaving, he, with some difficulty, recovered his breath, and looking at Boswell with dignified contempt, he roared out—

"'Mr. Boswell, sir, leave off laughing, and under pain of my eternal displeasure, never utter a single syllable of this abominable adventure to any man living while you breathe.'"

A Quaker Woman's Sermon.

Dear Friends—There are three things I very much wonder at. The first is, that children should be so foolish as to throw up stones, clubs, and brickbats, into fruit trees to knock down fruit; if they would let it alone it would fall itself. The second is, that men should be so foolish, and even so wicked, as to go to war and kill each other when if let alone they would die themselves. And the third and last thing which I wonder at is, that young men should be so unwise as to go after the young women; if they would stay at home the young women would come after them."

A culprit being asked what he had to say why sentence of death should not be pronounced upon him, replied that he had nothing to say, as there had been quite too much said about it already.

An English jury, in a criminal case, is said to have brought in the following verdict: "Guilty, with some little doubts as to whether he is the man."

IF a jewel be genuine, care not who says it is not.

The Plum Pudding.

The following is told of a Yankee captain and his mate:

When there was a plum pudding made by the captains order, all the plums were put into one end of it, and the end placed next the captain, who, after helping himself, passed it to the mate who never found any plums in his part of it. Well, after this game had been played for some time, the mate prevailed upon the steward to place the end which had no plums in it next to the captain. The captain no sooner saw the pudding than he discovered that he had the wrong end of it. Pickin up the dish, as if to examine the china, he said:

"This dish cost me two shillings in Liverpool," and put it down again, as though, without design, with the plums next to himself.

"Is it possible!" said the mate, taking up the dish, "I should suppose it is not worth more than one," and, as if in perfect innocence, he put down the dish with the plum end next to himself.

The captain looked at the mate, and the mate looked at the captain laughed.

"I tell you what, young one," said the captain, "you've found me out—so we'll just cut the pudding lengthwise this time, and have the plums fairly distributed."

BREAKING THE NEWS.—Cuff had been out with the cart and oxen, and, returning, his master asked him what was the trouble?

"Why, massa; de wheel is broke."

"Is that all, Cuff?"

"No, massa, de tounge broke too."

"What, did the oxen run away?"

"Yes, massa, and kill de nigh ox."

"Is it possible, Cuff?"

"And the off ox, too, massa."

"So, you black rascal, you have made a perfect smash up, and that's the reason why you came back; why did'nt you tell me so?"

"Why, massa, said Cuff, scratching his wool, I spose one wheel broke be 'ficient of itself individooly, widout proceeding into de entire argument of de cart and oxum."

"A few Sabbaths since," writes a correspondent from Rondout on the Hudson, "our minister was impressing upon his hearers the duty of a greater regard for the services of the day of Thanksgiving, set apart by the Governor, and was informing them that on that day he would preach a sermon at that place, and he wished them all to attend, to render, in a proper manner, acknowledgements for the many benefits of the past year; for a season of health, and bountiful harvests, etc. Here a little wiry man, in a blue coat, with metal buttons, and a very elevated collar, popped up from his seat, and squeaked out: "Dominie, I wish you'd jest give the 'Tater Rot a leetle tech in that sarmon o'your'n. It's been dreadful bad with us!"

It is seldem we fall on so many truths in brief as are contained in the following lines from a philosophic correspondent. They are a short sermon, which we commend to all who are o'ervaulting in their ambition:

Our ingress in life, is naked and bare,
Our progress through life is trouble and care,
Our egress out of it is we know not where,
But doing well here, we shall do well there,
I could not tell more by preaching a year.

Happy the man who owes not a pound,
But lays up his fifty each year that comes round;
He fears neither constable, sheriff nor dun,
To bank or to justice he has never to run,
His cellar well filled, and his pantry well stor'd
He lives far more blessed than a prince or a lord;
Then take my advice, if a fortune you'd get,
Pay off what you owe and keep out of debt.

A SOFT ANSWER TURNETH AWAY WRATH.—The horse of a pious man in Massachusetts happening to stray into the road, a neighbor of the man who owned the horse put him in the pound. Meeting the owner soon after, he told him what he had done, and added, "If I ever catch him in the road hereafter, I'll do so again" "Neighbor," replied the other, "not long since I looked out of my window in the night and saw your cattle in my mowing grounds. I drove them out and shut them in your yard: I'll do it again!" Struck with the reply, the man liberated the horse from the pound, and paid the charges.

RELIGION is like the firmament; the more one searches it the more stars are seen; it is like the sea; the more one views it the more boundless it appears.

To learn is to practise, to think is the deed, knowledge is the means, and wisdom the end.

RATHER choose to chastise thy desires than to be chastised on account of them.

A SHIP should not be made to depend on one anchor, nor life on one hope.

NEVER condemn a friend unheard, or without letting him know his accuser, or his crime.

LET thy discourse about God be renewed each day rather than thy meals.

THE wrath of an ape and the threat of a flatterer should be regarded alike.

WE should stretch neither our legs nor hopes beyond possibilities.

THE more a man knows, the less he is apt to talk—discretion allays his heat, and makes him coolly deliberate what and where it is fit to speak.

GET justly, use soberly, distribute cheerfully, and live contentedly.

THE aim of education should be to teach us rather how to think, than, what to think; rather to improve our minds, so as to enable us to think for ourselves, than to lead the memory with the thoughts of other men.

CATO said, "The best way to keep good acts in memory, is to refresh them with new."

It is said that some American wool, recently sent from New York to England, proved to be so exquisitely fine as to make it impossible to card it with the present machinery. It was fine enough to have imitated the cashmere.

The Judiciary &c.

☞ The Elizabethtown Journal credits us with a paragraph—inadvertently perhaps—upon the subject of "New Counties," which we care not to rob our neighbors of, and more especially as it does not express our sentiments on the subject. For our opinion on this and others intimately connected therewith, we would refer the Journal, and others interested, to the following appropriate and just remarks on the subject from the New Brunswick Times.

Gov. Fort will be called upon to nominate a Chancellor, Chief Justice, and several Associate Justices, during his official career, He will also have to nominate several Judges of the Court of Errors and Appeals. In fact there will be almost an entire change of the Judiciary during the next three years.

The Governor's position is one of great responsibility, and will require great prudence and decision. There will be many applicants for the offices which are about to be vacated, and each of the applicants will be backed, we suppose, by hosts of friends. It is our hope and confident belief that Governor Fort will make such nominations as will be creditable to the State and at the same time popular with the people. We hope that personal interests will give way to public good, and that the character and efficiency of the Judiciary of New Jersey will be preserved.

Some of the whig papers take it for granted that the character of our Courts will be greatly injured by the changes that will be made under the new State administration. They seem to think that the democratic party has not the material necessary for the offices refered to, and that the appointments will therefore reflect no credit on the State. Our opponents always had the hard hood to claim "all the decency," and all the "intelligence of the country." They profess to look upon the democracy with contempt, and some of their leaders have ridiculed the idea of choosing farmers and mechanics with "hugh paws," to be law makers. We are not surprised therefore that they should at this time pretend to believe that the democratic party of New Jersey cannot furnish the right kind of men to fill the Judges seats in the different Courts.

We beg leave to differ with the whigs in reference to the qualifications of members of the democratic party. We may not have as many lawyers, doctors or other professional characters, in our party as the whigs have; we have not as many of the "ruffled shirt gentry," and perhaps not so many millionares, but we have as much real talent, as much common sense among us as our opponents have, and we think Gov. Fort will have no difficulty in finding men enough of the right kind in the democratic party to fill all the offices, if he deems in necessary to fill them from this source exclusively.

Since the late election some of our whig friends pretend to be really horror stricken at the idea of a political judiciary. They are alarmed at the danger that must ensue from Courts composed exclusively of democrats. We have heard the hope expressed that some of the whig judges will be continued in office—that such a movement would be generous on the part of the democrats, and would tend to the good of the State. Singular enough is it, that our whig friends have waked up to the importance of these things. When they had the power, every democrat was turned out of office; every two penny appointment was filled by a whig, and our opponents seemed to act as though they were the only persons whose interests were to be consulted in the matter. Now that the democrats are in power the whigs are singing a new song. Now some respect ought to be paid to the minority. Now it is very dangerous to pack the Courts with men belonging to the democratic party!

If Gov, Fort refuses to appoint any but democrats as judges, &c, he will follow the example our opponents have set for him. If every whig is turned out of office, surely the ousted ones can find no fault. They have taken the sword and must perish by the sword.

In referring to the sayings of the whigs, and in showing their inconsistency we must not be understood to favor an entire change of the judiciary. We think that it would be much better for both political parties to keep good judges in office, and under some circumstances, we should now be in favor of only making enough in the Courts to make the representation equal from both parties. We really wish this could be done. But we would ask, on what principle can the democratic party be called on to confer office on our opponents? What right has a whig to expect favor? The reply is perhaps, "The majority should always respect the minority.' Well then, we ask, why did not our opponents discover an act upon this principle when they had the power? But two wrongs cannot make one right—If our opponents have done wrong it is no reason why we should do wrong, and we therefore repeat the remark made above, that under some circumstances we should favor the re-appointment of some of the whig judges to office. But we will insist on some things from them.

1st. They must acknowledge their sins in making the Judiciary of New Jersey a political machine, and must promise never to do such again.

2d. They must consent to such an alteration of the Congressional Districts as to give the democrats at least an equal chance with themselves in securing a majority of Congressmen.

3d. They must consent to such an alteration in regard to the Counties, or representation in the legislature as will give us equal rights with themselves.

Is there anything unfair in these requirements?

Our opponents by unfair legislation have made it almost impossible for us to carrry more than one Congressional District out of five.

By the formation of new Counties it is almost impossible, under ordinary circumstances, for the democrats to carry more than six out of twenty counties. We may have a largr majority of the voters of the State with us and yet year after year we shall find ourselves in a minority in the Legislature. Last fall with a majority of nearly six thousand in the State, we succeeded in electing only two more members than the whigs. Is there any justice in this?

If our whig friends want fair play they can have it but we shall never consent to give them an inch until they give us our rights in the State. If generosity is to be exercised let it be by both sides; if the interest of the State are to be consulted, independent of party prejudices, let those who now ask for these things show their sincerity by setting a proper example.

Population of Essex County.—The returns of the assistant Marshals show the following as the population of this County, as compared with that of 1840:

☞ The Paterson Guardian hitherto one of the best printed papers in the State—comes to us in an entire new and beautiful dress, indicating we trust a just appreciation of its merits by the people of that enterprising place. Indeed, what can be of more value to, or show so unequivocally, the enterprise and prosperity of a city or town than a neatly printed and ably conducted newspaper? The answer, your answer reader, if you appreciate liberty, intelligence and virtue, without a moments hesitation, must be that there is none; there can be none.—Show your appreciation then, your consistency, by subscribing and paying for your own local paper; thereby will you increase your own and also add to the general prosperity.

May the Guardian, and all others that support true democratic republican principle be thus appreciated and supported by the people. For, through no other source than Free Schools and Newspapers can they so efficiently sustain their liberties and protect their rights.

☞ Our readers wil perceive by a reference to another column, that they are respectfully invited to call at the corner of Second and Cherry streets and examine a new and fresh stock of Dry Goods and Groceries, just opened for their special accommodation, by J V Arrowsmith & Co. Every family being directly interested, of course will consult that interest by giving them a call.

☞ "The Evening of Life: or Light and Comfort amid the shadows of declining years" by Jeremiah Chaplin. Published by Lewis Colby, 122 Nassau-st N. Y.

This is a neatly bound and beautifully printed volume of 223 pages, with a beautiful and appropriate Frontispiece, containing, in addition to the author's, selections from the writings of the most eminent persons of the past and present age: It is specially designed for the benefit of the aged; forming, therefore, a most appropriate gift from a son or daughter to parents who have but just passed the noon tide of life, as it shows how that evening season, within whose shadows they must soon enter, may be made bright and peaceful. We may add, after examination, what is expressly stated in the preface, that this volume has been so prepared that it may be hailed as a friend in the family of any Christian denomination.

☞ According to the statistics published in the Sussex Herald there are in that County 23,068 inhabitants; 1694 Farms; $95,900 in Church property; 135 Schools,; 7,271 pupils, for whose benefit $3,050 school money was raised by tax and $4,335 received from public funds There are 4 365 Horses; 1,424 Working Oxen; 8.201 Sheep 30,061 Swine; 16,903 Milch Cows, which made during the year 1,733,030 lbs. of Butter. There was 69,695 bushels of Wheat; 220,335 Rye; 472,257 of Corn; 180,413 of Buckwheat; 146,831 of Oats; 107,712 of Potatoes raised. Value of animals Slaughtered during the year $230,738. Value of live stock $1.016,751. Value of farming implements 212,408- Value of manufactured articles. $613,777. Whole value of Real Estate $8,978,916.

"The International Magazine for January, 1851." This popular Miscellany for January, surpasses in the beauty of its execution and the richness of its contents, all the preceding numbers. It is intended by the publishers, and we believe generally conceded by the the Press to be one of the very best Magazines published. The contents of the present number are of an interesting character, on a great variety of subjects, by the most eminent writers. A better fire-side companion can hardly be selected. Published by Stringer & Townsend, 222 Broadway N. Y.

☞ The Baptist church in Piscataway was destroyed by fire yesterday, New Years day. There was an insurance of $2000 on the premises. The use of the Baptist Church of this city on Sabbath afternoons was kindly offered to the Piscataway Baptist—N. B. Union.

Later from California.

The steamship Georgia arrived at New York Monday morning, from Chagres via Havana, with the California Mails, to Dec. 1st, and 555 passengers. She left Chagres on the 26th, with 925 passengers, 410 of whom were transferred at Havana to the Pacific, for New Orleans. The Crescent City was at Chagres with 430 passengers, waiting for the gold dust which had not yet arrived from Panama, where the steamers Oregon and Republic had arrived from San Francisco, the former with 276 passengers and $2,000,000 in gold, on freight, and about $1,000,000 in private hands. The Republic had 450 passengers and $200,000 on freight, and over $1,000,000 in passengers hands.

The news is two weeks later than former advices, but nothing remarkable appears to have occurred, except the disappearance of the cholera, which was making fearful ravages a month before.

Over two hundred thousand dollars in gold dust was stolen from Howland & Aspinwall's specie train, while crossing the Isthmus. The Empire City was delayed in consequence, in hopes that the money would be recovered.

The dry season was setting in at Chagres, and the place becoming more healthy.

The Georgia has encountered heavy weather ever since leaving Havana. The following persons died on the passage—James Fleming, residence unknown; W. L. Blanchard, Bangor, Me.; L. H. Hunter, Missouri.

Orrin Bailey, (Whig) formerly of this State) was elected Justice of the Peace in the 2nd San Francisco District, on the 30th Nov. Among the deaths reported by this arrival we notice the following:

Of consumption, at the camp of J. S. Darcy, on the Yuba river, Nov. 15th James Forman, of New Brunswick, N. J., aged 32 years.

Nov 27th, at Sacramento, Rev. A. P. Anderson aged 35, of typhoid fever.

Still Later.

The Crescent City arrived at New York on Tuesday morning. She brings 400 passengers and $1,500,000 gold dust on freight. Also a large amount in the hands of the passengers.

The specie train for the Crescent City was attacked by a party of 16 men. Five mules were led into the woods and $100,000 taken from them, but it was all recovered except $6,000. Two of the robbers were taken, one badly wounded. They were not Americans.

The Cherokee, January 6th, lat. 35°, lon 7°, saw a vessel burnt to the water's edge. She was about 230 tons—an American and Eastern built.

☞ The "New Jersey Journal," Elizabethtown, we perceive by its last number, enters upon the seventy-fourth year of its existence; with a better prospect, says its editor, of long continued usefulness and with a more generous patronage than it has ever before enjoyed. It is certainly worthy of an extensive patronage, it being one of the few Whig journals in the State posessed of sufficient democracy and independence to keep pace with the spirit of light and knowledge and consequent progress of liberty and the march of improvement, having advocated with signal ability, a reform of the abuses which the party to which it nominally belongs has fastened upon the state. We wish it success; we trust also that its Editor, now that he is about to enter upon his new duties, as the people's representative, that he will practically carry out those democratic principles he so boldly and so ably advocated. If this should be the result we shall consider him a democrat indeed, and fully entitled, by merit, to the prefix of honorable to his name. We shall then, in behalf of the people of New Jersey, wish the New Jersey Journal, and the Hon. Wm. M. Whitehead, its able editor, most abundant success.

☞ The friends of a Rail Road from the New York state line through Sussex and Warren to the Deleware Water Gap, are still agitating the subject. An engineer and his party are now making explorations in Warren County in order to carry out the project.

Bounty Land Law.—The Secretary of the Interior has overruled an important decision of the late Commissioner of Pensions, and declared that the substitute who served in the war, and not the person enlisted, is to be the recipient of favor under the Bounty Land Law. Thirty thousand applications have been made under the late Bounty Land Law, and two hundred more are expected soon to follow, according to a statement of the new Commissioner.

☞ A distressing accident occurred at Reynoldsville, Jefferson Co the other day during quarterly meeting. An invitation was given for persons to come forward for prayer; a large number presented themselves, and the congregation pressed forward to see the proceedings, when the joists under the floor gave way, and about one hundred and fifty persons, men, women and children, were precipitated in the cellar, in a heap, with a glowing stove in the center. Several were injured more or less—four being badly burned. One has since died.—Jersey City Advertiser, Jan 4

☞ Those who are about selecting a Magazine for family reading for the year 1851, would do well to consult the prospectus of "Harper's New Monthly," to be found in another column. There is, in our estimation, no better Magazine published—none so well calculated for a fire side companion.

☞ The N. J. Society of Teachers and Friends of Education, will hold its annual Convention at Trenton on the 23d inst. at 11 o'clock A. M. All shool officers in the State and friends of educaton generally, are invited to attend.

New-Jersey Industrial Legislature—Delegates are being chosen to the first session of the Industrial Legislature, which commences at Trenton on Tuesday the 31st of January, and continues for seven days or more. The Monmouth Co. Reformers are the first in the field. J. M. Freeland is one of the Delegates from Hudson Co.

☞ The first and greatest place for an extensive assortment of Carpeting, mats, oil cloths, and the like, that can be found in this city, is at McGroty's establishment, 133 William-street. His resources for importation being so great he can afford to supply any order with a saving of one third from the regular cash price. He invites the public to call and see for themselves.

MARRIED.

In this place, First month 1st, 1851, by their own ceremony, James H. Mann, of Morristown, to Isabella Annetta, daughter of J. L. Brotherton, of Plainfield.

At Rahway Dec. 31st by Rev. L. H. Lee, Mr. J. W. S Martin, to Miss Sarah E. Clawson.

WASHINGTON!

From Stuart's most celebrated Painting.

THIS LARGE AND MAGNIFCENT PORTRAIT OF WASHINGTON, from the burin of an American artist, is considered by all who have seen it to be one of the most beautiful specimens of art ever published, and a Correct Likeness of Washington. The size of the plate is eighteen by twenty-eight inches, which will make a handsome Picture for the Parlor, and should be in the hands of every American citizen.

It is a correct copy from Stuart's celebrated original Painting, now at the State House, Hartford, Conn.

It is finely engraved, and printed on superior plate paper That it may be within the means of all the publisher has reduced the price to ONE DOLLAR!

All persons remitting the amount may rely upon receiving a perfect copy by return of mail to any part of the United States, carefully put up on rollers made for the puspose, free of postage

Address all orders, post-paid, to the publisher,

NEW VILLAGE OF HERMANVILLE.

ONLY $25 for a HOMESTEAD — 22 Farms woth over $8,500, and 6,400 LOTS, to be distributed among 800 subscribers. Each subscriber is entitled to 8 lots, 25 by 100 feet lying together, or a PRIZE FARM of from 4 to 20 acres. The shares are limited at $25—payable—$5 when subscribed for, $5 on day of distribution, and balance in monthly installments of $3. About 700 shares are now subscribed.

The Lots are situated in the village of HERMANVILLE, one mile east of Lake Road Station, on the Long Island Railroad, County of Suffolk, and 50 miles from the city of New-York. It is one of the healthiest places in the United States, within one mile of Ronkonkoma Lake, which is about three miles in circumference, of singular transparency and of great depth, with an abundance of fish. The village is but 4 miles distant from the greet South Bay which is 5 miles wide and 40 miles long, abundantly supplied with oysters, clams, and fish of various kinds.

These lands will produce as much per acre, with the same cultivation, as any land within fifty miles of New-York. The Suffolk County Agricultural Society, at a meeting on 24th September, 1850 awarded premiums for the production of these lands as may be seen by the following letter:

(Copy)

LAKE ROAD, Oct. 23th, 1850.

I certify that I have raised during the past season the very best of Corn and Potatoes 150 bushels per acre; Egg Plants, and a variety of garden vegetables, on land near the Long Island Railroad at Lake Road from which I received a premium at the Suffolk County Agricultural Fair, held September 24 1850

Also, Peas, Beans, Onions, Squashes, Pumpkins, Beets and Tomatoes. Your's,

(Signed) IRA L'HOMMEDIEU.

To CHARLES WOOD, 117 John-st N. Y.

Hermanville is located on the borders of the Long Island Railroad, where cars run several times a day to Brooklyn and New-York The surface of the land is smooth and level, and the surrounding country is perfectly healthy, and within a few miles of this place, highly cultivated and valuable, having been settled for more than 150 years, and where similar lands sell from $50. to $200 per acre

The distribution will take place in a few days by a Committee to be selected by the Subscribers from among their number. The person having the first choice will be entitled, for $25 only, to a 20 acre Farm worth $1,000; the second to an 18 acre Farm, worth $900; the third, a 16 acre Farm, worth $800; the 4th, a 14 acre Farm, worth 700; the 5th, a 12 acre Farm, worth $600; the 6th a 10 acre Farm, worth $500; the 7th and 8th, each an 8 acre farm, worth $400; the 9th, 10th and 11th, each a 6 acre Farm, worth 300; the 12th, 13th, 14th, and 15th each a 5 acre Farm, worth $250; the 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th, and 20th, each a 4 acre Farm, worth $200; and all the others will be entitled to 8 Village Lots, each 25 by 100 feet lying together. There are no blanks—this is not a lottery—every person gets for $25 a hadsome Lot of Ground equal to 8 city lots

Manner of Distribution of Hermanville Lots and Prize Farms—The manner of distribution will be as follows: All the numbers on the Map, from 1 to 800, will be put into a wheel, and the first number drawn from the wheel, will be entitled to the first Prize, and, if the first number so drawn or taken out of the wheel happens to be 250 or 275, then the person on the subscription list, who holds or owns the subscription number of 250 or 275, or whatever the corresponding number may be, will be entitled to the first Prize Farm, and so proceeding until all the numbers are drawn out

The lands are as good as represented, and as good as any land on the Island, and when cultivated, will produce in the highest degree.

The land was once heavily timbered; some portions are now covered with a thrifty growth of young wood, oak and pine Wood is plenty and generally cheap in that part of the Island Fire-wood is cheap, that which is suitable to be cut into cord-wood, for the New-York market, is of uniform price, and has for a great many years been always considered a cash article on the Island.

There is material on the land for common fencing—good chestnut rails can be had within a few miles of these lands in abundance. All building materials can be had at the depots of Brooklyn and Greenport, and at many intermediate places, at the usual market prices. There are numerous streams of water rising in these new lands, and running into the Great South Bay, which are remarkable for their purity, and never fail; indeed, dry weather makes very little change in them; they are unfailing, and wells are of various depths, probably over these new lands in the middle region of the Island, the average depth will be about 25 feet, at Hermanville as the ground is higher they are deeper

There are now churches and schools within two or three miles of the village, and within four miles, mills, factories, stores and villages All the privileges of an old settled country are to be had here, and the people of Suffolk County pride themselves on being a highly moral, orderly and religious people. All of my subscribers are persons of respectability.

The land can be very easily cleared, and the cost of settlement will depend almost entirely upon the settler, he can lay out as much or as little as he chooses. I do not know of any objections to the place or to the land for a settlement, and the same labor and industry which make successful and prosperous settlement in other parts of the country, bestowed upon these lands cannot fail to produce favorable results

The climate is in every particular healthy and pleasant—the roads are good and always passable, at all seasons of the year—the Winters are short and mild, compared to the Winters on the main, to the north of the Highlands—there is seldom sleighing more than two or three weeks on the Island

What is remarkable, a crop is seldom injured by drouth—there is no part of the country where there is so little injury from drouth as on Long Island, nor is there any injury from wet—there is no wet or cold land on the island All the land along the margin of the streams can be made highly valuable at a small cost, for there is no such thing as a flood or freshet, as in the interior part of the country, by which often very great damage is done—such an event as the carrying off a bridge, or the breaking of a mill dam, with great damage is almost unheard of on Long Island The streams and bays abound in fish and wild fowl in great abundance, and every variety.

☞ In consequence of the great number of letters from all parts of the country, desiring information of these lands, it has been found necessary to answer them in this form.

☞ Apply to THOS. WOOD Stationer, 117 John-street, near Pearl, or CHARLES WOOD, at the same place, either of whom will receive remittances and forward receipts therefor by return of mail They will gratuitously furnish maps and pamphlets of the property, and cheerfully give such other information as may be desired

THE NEW JERSEY

HORSE POWER

Manufacturing Company.

HAVING improved, strengthened and perfected A D. CRANE'S Patent Horse Power, are now prepared to furnish the same to all who may want.

This Power consists of an endless floor running over a series of pulleys, connected by cranks, without a rack or cog wheel about it; none being required from the fact, that the weight of the horse on the floor or platform causes sufficient adhesion between it and the pulleys to transmit all the power he is able to give. Also by this arrangement the chain is freed from the draught or strain (which cannot be avoided in any other Stall Power) except, what is reqired to pass the floor around. The requisite speed is obtained direct from the machine thereby avoiding a great amount of friction and wear, and lessening the liability to get out of order. They run so easily as to require less than an inch elevation to the foot. A selfacting brake is attached by which the motion is kept regular and uniform even when the work is unsteady and irregular.

From the above description it is evident that this is the most simple and efficient Power known.

They are highly recommended by those who have used them, for driving Circular Saws, Lathes, Drilling Machines, Threshers, Grist Mills, Pumps, &c.

The Company have certificates to prove the above and also to show that the Two Horse Power will grind 40 bushels of Corn to Meal (with Platt's Patent Mill,) in a day of ten hours, making it an invaluable Power for the Southern planter as well as others.

It has taken Silver Medals at the different Fairs where exhibited, and the only one given to Horse Powers by the American Institute last fall.

They also furnish Threshers of the most approved construction.

Price of Single Power with Belt, $75; Double do. with Belt, $110: Thresher and Separator, $35.

HERNIA.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.—This disorder, of very frequennt occurrence, may be considered as arising through weakness of the abdominal walls, inducing an enlargement in the natural openings formed therein for the transmission of blood and other vessels; such openings being enlarged, permit the escape of bowels or other viscera of the abdomen, devolving hernial swellings or rupture, which most generally occur outwardly, as at the navel, groins and thighs.

The complaint is likely to happen at birth, and therefore should be carefully looked for by those having the charge of children, that it may be arrested and cured promptly. It also occurs at any period of life, to either sex, without regard to the condition or mode of living, and when found, should be attended to without delay—the final penalty being death, and that may be induced through strangulation at any momennt.

RUPTURES, are always to be treated with the surgical instruments known as Trusses and Supporters, and these require to be skillfully applied. With this view, the HULL'S TRUSS OFFICE, now established some thirty years, has under the various managers, presented to the public both male and female attendants to apply its instruments directly to the persons, which is preferable in all cases, and has also made improvement at different times, showing that advancement which study and practice only yield toward the relief of this malady.

With much pleasure the fact is now published, that recent improvements BUTLER'S TRUSS PADS have been made, and sufficiently tested upon numerous cases to warrant, through the cures already affected, their submission to the public, as being in adaptation and efficiency superior to any heretofore made known.

These improvements, recently patented, are now being applied at this office, 4 Vesey street, in cases of rupture, gravitation of the bowels, prolapsus uteri, prolapsus ani and piles.

The public may rely upon that care being made in their application, which will most likely tend to the final cure of the several complaints.

Hull's Truss Office, 4 Vesey street, Astor House, opposite St. Paul's Church, New-York.

FREDK M BUTLER, Proprietor.

N. B—The ladies' department is attended by a female qualified to fit the instruments, having so attended this office for many years.

Children trussed when only two weeks old, and invariably cured. [145s.

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

The annals of medical science, affording as they do ample proof of the power and value of many medicinal agents, have furnished no examples to compare with the sultary effects produced by 'AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL."

The remarkable cures of diseases of the Lungs which have been realized by its use, attested as they are by many prominent professors and physicians in this and foreign lands, should encourage the afflicted to persevere with the strong assurance that the use of the "CHERRY PECTORAL" will relieve and ultimately cure them.

We present to the public unsolicited testeimonials from some of the first men in our country, upon whose judgment and experience implicit confidence may be placed.

NORWICH April 26, 1846

DR. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Agreeable to the request of your agent, we will cheerfully state what we have known of the effects of your CHERRY PECTORAL, and they have been astonishing indeed. Mrs. Betsy Streeter had been afflicted with a severe and relentless cough, which reduced her very low; so low that little hope could be entertained of her recovery. Numerous remedies had been tried without effect before the CHERRY PECTORAL And that has cured her. George Watkinson Esq, had to our knowledge ben afflicted with Asthma, for eleven years, and grown yearly worse, until the CHERRY PECTORAL has now removed the disease and he is as free from any of its symptons as we are. The Rev. Mark Dane had been so severely attacked with the Bronchitis, as to disable him from his duties, and nothing had afforded him relief until I (Mr. Thorning) carried him a bottle of your PECTORAL, which cured him at once, and he now officiates as usual in his place.

These are three of the cases in which we have known it succesful, but never to fail. We have great pleasure in cert fying to these facts; and are, respected sir, your humble servants

REV. DAVID THORRING.
HON. JOSEPH BATTLES.

Among the distinguished authorities who have given their names to recommend CHERRY PECTORAL, as the best remedy that is known for the Affections of the Lungs, are "The Loudon Lancet," "Canadian Journal of Medical Science," "Boston Medical and Surgical Journal," "Charleston (S. C) Medical Review," "New Jersey Medical Reporter," Prof. WEBSTER, Harvard College, Prof. BARTLETT, Transylvania University of Medicine, President PERKINS, Vermont Medical College, Dr VALENTINE MOTT, New York City, PARKER CLEVELAND, Bowdoin College, Prof BUTTERFIELD, Willoughby College, Ohio, Prof BRAITHWAITE, Leeds (Eng) Medical School, Sir RICHARD KANE, Queen's College, Ireland, Prof Rosenbaum, Leipsic

The public have but to know the virtues and astonishing success of the "CHERRY PECTORAL," in curing diseases of the Lungs, when they will feel secure from these dangers, whenever this remedy can be obtained.

MECHANICAL MEDICINE.

Dr. Banning, formerly of this city, asks to announce that he has returned to 341 Broadway; for consultation and management of weakneses of the vocal, pulmonary, digestive, nervous, spinal and female systems; and also of the drooping, languor and physical deformities, which are so destructive of both health and beauty at the present day.

As these and kindred maladies are usually the result of a violation of the laws of physical organization, he will treat them chiefly by those exercises, mechanical appliances and reformatory habits of body, in conjunction with hydropathy galvanism and other discoveries of the day, which, united with the cooperative efforts of the subject, are calculated to relieve and restore the energies of the suffering and neglected organs.

Having spent several years in traveling for investigation and practical experiment on the subject, he has, at length, greatly improved and multiplied his surgical and mechanical appliances for the purpose. In addition to his new supports for female and spinal weaknesses, are some combining the properties of a universal hernial truss and an effective general support, with which he challenges cases of general debility, constipation, piles and prolapsus, ani, leucorrhea, prolapsus uteri and every variety of hernia

The distinctive peculiarity of these devices is, that they do not weaken or restrain the motions or growth *of the suffering parts, but act imitatively and con*concordantly with the mathematical genius of the body's forces. Hence, by a most comfortable and gentle pressure, they at once give great support and render the oppressed system eligible to its own restoration.

Feeble invalids coming from a distance will command prompt and faithful attention.

For more definite information, see his revised edition of "Animal Mechanics," and also his circular, which will be sent gratuitously when requested.

His improved body-braces, spinal supports and supporter trusses applied at his office (341 Broadway) and to be had wholesale and retail- City and country physicians and druggists are invited to call and examine Office hours from 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. [121.

FOR FEMALES AND MALES

Dr. Lazzetti's Juno Cordial, or Protective Elixir.

This is the only actual remedy ever discovered for impotency, Genital Debility, Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases occasioned by certain secret habits; and many of the nostrums recently recommended for the same complaints are worthless imitations which its unrivalled excellence, fame and popularity have brought into the market. The Medical Faculty of Europe and the United States are unanimous in their recommendations of the Juno Cordial and have not given their sanction in a single instance that has been authenticated, to any compound for the same purposes The nature of the maladies relieved by the Juno Cordial are generally such as to leave the publication of certificates of cures out of the question, or the proprietor could produce a host of the most conclusive testimony to show that the great reputation that it enjoys was not accidentally obtained, but is firmly based upon its positive, and apparently miraculous virtues. In all directions are to be found the happy parents of healthy offspring, who would not have been so, but for this extraordinary preparption. And it is equally potent in the many diseases for which it is recommended. Objection has been naturally made to the price of the Juno Cordial, because the trash that has been thrown into the market in opposition to it is sold cheaper; but the fact is, the Cordial cannot be afforded for less, and ought to be much dearer, as many of the ingredients which compose it are among the costliest things in nature; whereas the others are made up of cheap drugs, worth but little in money, and less in merit. We assure the reader that the utmost reliance may be placed on the Juno Cordial in the cure of the maladies mentioned above, and also those that follow, viz: Loss of Muscular Energy, Physical Lassitude and General Prostration, Irritability, and all Nervous Affections, Indigestion, Sluggishness of the Liver, Gleet, Lucorrhoea or Whites, and Flour Albus and every disease in any way connected with the disorder of the Procreative Functions—in all of which it will afford almost immediate relief, and, if used as directed, is almost certain to produce a positive and permanent cure. Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness or disability of a certain nature, should take this Cordial, as it will infallibly restore health and vigor in a brief period, and where want of offspring is a cause of regret, if recourse be had to it the most beneficial results may be anticipated with confidence It is of priceless value to those without offspring. It has taken the precedence in Italy and will in all other countries where it may become known.

To spread wide the blessings of this medicine, I have appointed Messrs Judson & Co, of the City of New York, in the United States of America, my sole Agents for its sale; and none can be genuine unless it comes through them, and their signature is on the weapper

NEW VILLAGE OF HERMANVILLE.

ONLY $25 for a HOMESTEAD—22 Farms woth over $8,500, and 6,400 LOTS, to be distributed among 800 subscribers. Each subscriber is entitled to 8 lots, 25 by 100 feet lying together, or a PRIZE FARM of from 4 to 20 acres. The shares are limited at $25—payable—$5 when subscribed for, $5 on day of distribution, and balance in monthly installments of $3. About 700 shares are now subscribed

The Lots are situated in the village of HERMANVILLE, one mile east of Lake Road Station, on the Long Island Railroad, County of Suffolk, and 50 miles from the city of New-York. It is one of the healthiest places in the United States, within one mile of Ronkonkoma Lake, which is about three miles in circumference, of singular transparency and of great depth, with an abundance of fish. The village is but 4 miles distant from the greet South Bay which is 5 miles wide and 40 miles long, abundantly supplied with oysters, clams, and fish of various kinds.

These lands will produce as much per acre, with the same cultivation, as any land within fifty miles of New-York. The Suffolk County Agricultural Society, at a meeting on 24th September, 1850 awarded premiums for the production of these lands as may be seen by the following letter:

(Copy.)
LAKE ROAD, Oct. 23th, 1850.

I certify that I have raised during the past season the very best of Corn and Potatoes 150 bushels per acre; Egg Plants, and a variety of garden vegetables, on land near the Long Island Railroad at Lake Road from which I received a premium at the Suffolk County Agricultural Fair, held September 24, 1850.

Also, Peas, Beans, Onions, Squashes, Pumpkins, Beets and Tomatoes. Your's,
(Signed) IRA L'HOMMEDIEU.

To CHARLES WOOD, 117 John-st N. Y.

Hermanville is located on the borders of the Long Island Railroad, where cars run several times a day to Brooklyn and New-York. The surface of the land is smooth and level, and the surrounding country is perfectly healthy, and within a few miles of this place, highly cultivated and valuable, having been settled for more than 150 years, and where similar lands sell from $50, to $200 per acre.

The distribution will take place in a few days by a Committee to be selected by the Subscribers from among their number. The person having the first choice will be entitled, for $25 only, to a 20 acre Farm worth $1,000; the second to an 18 acre Farm, worth $900; the third, a 16 acre Farm, worth $800; the 4th, a 14 acre Farm, worth 700; the 5th, a 12 acre Farm, worth $600; the 6th a 10 acre Farm, worth $500; the 7th and 8th, each an 8 acre farm, worth $400; the 9th, 10th and 11th, each a 6 acre Farm, worth 300; the 12th, 13th, 14th, and 15th each a 5 acre Farm, worth $250; the 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th, and 20th, each a 4 acre Farm, worth $200; and all the others will be entitled to 8 Village Lots, each 25 by 100 feet lying together. There are no blanks—this is not a lottery—every person gets for $25 a handsome Lot of Ground equal to 8 city lots

Manner of Distribution of Hermanville Lots and Prize Farms.—The manner of distribution will be as follows: All the numbers on the Map, from 1 to 800, will be put into a wheel, and the first number drawn from the wheel, will be entitled to the first Prize, and, if the first number so drawn or taken out of the wheel happens to be 250 or 275, then the person on the subscription list, who holds or owns the subscription number of 250 or 275, or whatever the corresponding number may be, will be entitled to the first Prize Farm, and so proceeding until all the numbers are drawn out.

The lands are as good as represented, and as good as any land on the Island, and when cultivated, will produce in the highest degree.

The land was once heavily timbered: some portions are now covered with a thrifty growth of young wood, oak and pine. Wood is plenty and generally cheap in that part of the Island. Fire-wood is cheap, that which is suitable to be cut into cord-wood, for the New-York market, is of uniform price, and has for a great many years been always considered a cash article on the Island.

There is material on the land for common fencing—good chestnut rails can be had within a few miles of these lands in abundance. All building materials can be had at the depots of Brooklyn and Greenport, and at many intermediate places, at the usual market prices. There are numerous streams of water rising in these new lands, and running into the Great South Bay, which are remarkable for their purity, and never fail: indeed, dry weather makes very little change in them; they are unfailing, and wells are of various depths, probably over these new lands in the middle region of the Island, the average depth will be about 25 feet, at Hermanville as the ground is higher, they are deeper.

There are now churches and schools within two or three miles of the village, and within four miles, mills, factories, stores and villages. All the privileges of an old settled country are to be had here, and the people of Suffolk County pride themselves on being a highly moral, orderly and religious people. All of my subscribers are persons of respectability.

The land can be very easily cleared, and the cost of settlement will depend almost entirely upon the settler, he can lay out as much or as little as he chooses. I do not know of any objections to the place or to the land for a settlement, and the same labor and industry which make successful and prosperous settlement in other parts of the country, bestowed upon these lands cannot fail to produce favorable results.

The climate is in every particular healthy and pleasant—the roads are good and always passable, at all seasons of the year—the Winters are short and mild, compared to the Winters on the main, to the north of the Highlands—there is seldom sleighing more than two or three weeks on the Island.

What is remarkable, a crop is seldom injured by drouth—there is no part of the country where there is so little injury from drouth as on Long Island, nor is there any injury from wet—there is no wet or cold land on the island. All the land along the margin of the streams can be made highly valuable at a small cost, for there is no such thing as a flood or freshet, as in the interior part of the country, by which often very great damage is done—such an event as the carrying off a bridge, or the breaking of a mill dam, with great damage is almost unheard of on Long Island. The streams and bays abound in fish and wild fowl in great abundance, and every variety.

☞ In consequence of the great number of letters from all parts of the country, desiring information of these lands, it has been found necessary to answer them in this form.

The Oppressed Seamstress---A True Tale.

BY MRS. E. WELLMONT.

Some people seem to have an idea that they pay too much for everything, and it is a positive duty to employ those who will work the cheapest.

Mrs Ellsworth lived very sumptuously and her daughters dressed very elegantly—We wont call them extravagant, because people who have plenty of money are not obliged to give an account to their neighbors of their expenditures. They were, however discussing this very subject themselves upon the damask lounges, when the servant man entered and presented the seamrtress's bill,—Such a nicely folded papers always attracted the family's attention, and having looked at the bottom and the amount, and exclaimed "dear me, how high," they proceeded to examine the contents of the bundle which accompanied the bill.

"The work is done beautifully," said Miss Henrietta: "how superbly this lace is set on. How splendidly this is hemstiched. I declare, mother, I never mean to do any work myself, again, it is so much better than I can make it look."

"But you forget," said the mother, "it costs a great deal to hire all our sewing for a large family, if it be done ever so cheap;" yet she felt herself that it was very pleasant to have garments made.

"I wonder, said Sophia, a tall, graceful girl of sixteen to the little waiting seamstress in the entry, "what you would charge to make papa ten shirts? I have engaged to have them done by the first day of May, and it is long a job, and so vexatious, I wish I could transfer them to you to finish."

The child was sent home to inquire of her mother what she would charge to make ten shirts with full bosoms, hemstitched each side, and ruffled, of the nicest fabrick, and workmanship to correspond.

The little girl returned and artlessly replied:

"Mother says how she shall charge a dollar: but if the young folks said they would'nt give it, rather than lose the job, she would say seventy five cents a piece!"

Amused with the simplicity which ought to have excited sympathy rather than merriment, Sophia pretended that seventy-five cents was all she expect to give; she had hoped to get them done for fifty cents. Mrs. Fuller gave only that; but she did not add Mrs. F's shirts were unbleached, and very common work was put in them. After some hesitency she brought them down, and doing up a large bundle despatched it to the Seamstress, adding:

"Now my poor head and my eyes are relieved"

But let us see to whom this burden was transferred. The same seamstres once had a husband who was a prosperous merchant, but he speculated unwisely, died suddenly and left a widow with two small children to grapple with the hard fate of poverty and remembrance of "better days." They occupied but one room, and as her only employment was sewing, it was difficult to make both ends meet with the most untiring industry.

"Don't you think, mother," said the little Ellen, who brought home the work, "the young lady thought she ought to get the shirts made for fifty cents apiece. But, mother, she surely could not have known what a slow process it is to gather, and hemstitch, and ruffle, and do all the sewing just for a half week's rent or she never would have said so."

The mother brushed a tear away. "No child she never sewed for a living!"

"And, mother, she told her sister that she was so glad to get rid of the tiring work, and she said that her father would never know but she did it all, and she should have fifty cents clear, on every shirt; what could she mean?"

Mrs. A. had heard of such deception before, but she cared not to inform her daughter that the young lady was probably to receive one dollar and a quarter for each shirt. She felt her business was only to finish the whole number as soon as possible. She immediately set about the task of cutting them by the pattern, assorting them into piles and getting the plainer parts ready for Ellen to hem, as she was very nice in needle work as far as she had learned the art. But it was always near "school time," and the poor child but little relieved her mother.

It was at the season, too, when storms succeeded each other rapidly, and the heavens are often overcast, and as the tenement of the widow was badly lighted, it began to make sad havoc with her vision. Her eyes were weary from continued use, and when the long job was patiently accomplished, who could tell the aches and pains by which it was all the way attended? Miss Landon, speaking of such poor said:

"We little think how wearily
The aching head lies down."

Long before the promised time Ellen carried home the pondrous bundle of ten shirts. Miss Sophia severely scrutinized them, pulling the ruffles, next looked at the gathers, then the stitching, and finally tossing them in a heap, added:

"Tell your mother they are worth no more than fifty cents, and I will give her that if she will receipt the bill."

The child returned with a heavy heart and imparted the information.

The seamstress wept—she looked every now and then upon the portrait upon the wall.

"If he were but alive," said she, "I should have some protector from wrong usage." She could not but exclaim, 'how my head does ache!' as she untied another budget of work; 'five dollars for ten shirts! I ought,' thought she, 'to better vindicate my rights—but they who oppress the poor have the worst of it—Here, Ellen dear, take this bill for making the shirts, and bring me back just what Sophia pleases to give, but say, mother has toiled very hard, early and late, upon them.'

Ellen did so, and Sophia took her five dollars from her purse adding:

'This is a great deal of money for poor people to spend—it will buy you a number of calico dresses.'

'But mother's rent is due,' said the child.

'Pho—rent is nothing—make your landlord trust you!' and so saying, she darted from the room.

The seamstress never closed her eyes that night, Think you no unseen eye will vindicate her true claim?

'Sophia Ellsworth,' said 'Grace Eaton, where did you get that splendid fan? It is really elegant?"

'I saved it,' replied Sophia, from money father gave me to make his shirts—but I hired them done at half price, and he never knows it to this day!'

Poor girl! Your fan should be used as a screen to hide the hard spot in your heart.—Prosperity never long follows in the footsteps of oppression.

YOUNG LAWYERS.—A young lawyer being asked if he practised speech-making much, replied:

"I am at it every morning. Immediately on leaping out of my bed, I convert my chamber into the court. I stick that old portrait of father's before the glass, and there's the judge staring me full in the face. On my right I established a row of boots—those are the gentlemen of the jury; on my left is the cupboard, or witness-box while on the chairs before me are seated a lot of my learned friends.

"Well, I conceive the case opened. It's an action for anything—say for breach of promise—and then I begin. If I'm for the plaintiff, of course I pile up the pathetic; if for the defendant I reduce the thing to a mere bagatelle. For the plaintiff, I describe in tones and strains which bring tears into the eyes of the row of boots—I mean the intelligent gentlemen of the jury—how fondly, how passionately she loved the recreant, base and black-hearted defendant. If for him, I transfer her affection to his pocket, and undertake to show that she never loved him at all. And I'm as likely to be right in the one case as the other, for how can I tell whether she loved him or not.

"In a case of this kind however, give me the plaintiff. I see a tear starting in every eye; I hear the ladies sighing and sobbing all around me; while the intelligent men of the jury are blowing their noses with unexampled violence lest it should be thought that they could shed a tear, I behold the judge working his facial muscles up his mouth into all sorts of shapes, as if from the depths of his emotion he would say, "I'll tell you what it is I can't stand this much longer."

A Letter From John Brown, the Ferryman.

JERSEY, CITY, Dec. 27.

Webster has been on to dine with the N. England Society, and I perceive, by your paper, has been making one of his evengelical speeches again. The moment I read the report of it, I knew the old sinner had been cutting up; for it is his way, whenever he has been giving his propensities an airing, to go somewhere and make a pious speech. In the short extract which you give from his exordium, of about twenty lines, I find the name of God used six times, and the last time in the follwing connection:—"Would to God," said he, "possessed, and I hope we do possess, the resolution which they possessed, [referring to the Pilgrims in 1620,] stronger than bars of brasss or iron, and above all, that faith, that original faith which, with its eye fast fixed on heaven, tramples all things earthly beneath its triumphant feet."

I was curious to know what the old man had been doing that made it neeassary for him to go as your reporter says, twenty-seven hours without sleep, in order to evangelize the members of the New England Society just at this time. I asked every one that crossed the ferry, from Washington, but I could hear nothing till last night, when * *, who came on to New York with Webster, told me all about it.

It seemed, from the story, that Webster, was present at Jenny Lind's last concert in Washington. While she was singing one of her popular pieces—my informant could not tell me the name—Webster began to accompany her with his voice, keeping time with his head. Mrs. Webster checked him several times, having observed that his music and motions were attracting the attention of his neighbors, but he would not stay checked. He was soon observed by Jenny, who seemed to be flattered at having such distinguished assistance at her concert, and recognized her obligations by a bow, as she supposed, in response to the bows of the Secretary. The Secretary did not observe her obeisance, however, at first, but kept on singing louder, and louder, and marking the time by bowing lower and lower, while the Nightingale, oppressed by the Secretary's condescension, bowed and bowed again. Thus they went on bobbing their heads towards each other, like two Mandarins in a grocery window, till the Secretary discovered that he was the object of Jenny's complimentary notice, when he rose from his seat with all the promptitude which the circumstances of the case admitted of, stepped out into the aisle, and made her three most profound bows. The occasion of this most extraordinary exhibition was not known until some one remarked that she had dined that day with Webster, at Bodisco's. The whole thing was then intelligible, for the distinguished champion of the Bible and the Union, has never yet been known to dine with the Russian Minister without going home tight. This, I believe, though, it was his first appearance as a public singer, and the inevitable inference is, that he must have been more exilerated, either by the Russ's wine or the Swede's music, than he had ever been before on any public occasson.

Jenny left next day, highly elated with her triumph, little dreaming that the glory of it was to be shared with Mr. Bodisco's Burgundy.

When Mr. Webster awoke next day, and learned from his wife what an exhibitton he had been making of himself the night before, the old man ruminated a few moments, and then said that if Cass would move to terminate all diplomatic relations with Russia, he would be delighted, and would make it an administration measure, for as long as Bodisco was in Washington, he found it impossible to maintain his virtue, unless, like Cato he warmed it frequently with wine. "However," continued he, "this will be all over Washington in a few days so I must go some where and make an evangelical speech, or the people in the country may get hold of it and believe it." Such, I learn, to have been the exigency which drove the Secretary to New York to undergo his purgation before the N. England Society.

JOHN BROWN, Ferryman.

Hints in Slices.

Farmers, Permit me to offer you a few hints in regard to matters which ought not to go neglected; and be sure to take your slice, at least, for you know that you will need it, or you are more of a model farmer than most of your neighbors.

In the first place, now that you have your summer's work done, endeavor to find a place for everything, and put everything in its place. What looks worse than to see farming implements scattered about the premises; for instance, a harrow reared up against the fence in the field, a plough dragged to the barn and left to lay, a wagon standing out in the weather, and a shovel here, and a hoe there? Besides, they are—by being exposed to the weather—fast becoming rotten, and very likely will get broken before they are again used. Such a proceeding, too, is a palpable characteristic of a slovenly farmer, and such a one need not expect to succeed in the ennobling art of agriculture.

Perhaps some of your implements are broken, if so, now is the time to repair them, and it should be done before stowing them away, so that you will not be detained with your work in the Spring.

Always keep a set of mechaical tools about for you will often want to use them.

Cellars, sheep-sheds, hog-cotes, &c., should now receive a coat of whitewashing, as well as all other buildings. A little glue added to the whitewash will prove of great benefit—adding, as it does, to its adhesive qualities. Some boiled rice and mix with whitewash, in which a little salt and white lead have been previously mixed, as, it is said, it greatly promotes durability.

If your hands are idle, see if you have all your corn shelled, or whether the wheat, rye, barley, straw &c., has gone through the straw cutter.

Let everything be done to enhance the comfort of your cattle, &c., through the winter.

Look to your barn-yards and see that your manure heaps are in a likely way to be enlarged as much as possible.

There are only a few of the items which might and ought to be attended to in the fall or winter, for in the spring there will be enough to do.—Look about, you, and I dare say you will find enough to occupy your time profitably, and after you get through with all this, I know nothing better for you to do than to subscribe for one or more good papers to read during the long winter evenings.

Census of the United States.

In 1790 the Union consisted of seventeen States, with a population of 5,929,527, and 451,424 square miles of land, or 9 persons to a square mile.

In 1800 there were twenty States with a population of 5,305,040, and an area of 572,024 square miles, or 8 persons to a square mile.

In 1810 there were twenty-four States, with a population of 7,238,414: and an area of 782,544 square miles, or 10 persons to a square mile.

In 1830 there were twenty-seven States with a population of 12,866,020, with an area of 849,314 square miles, or 13 persons to a square mile.

In 1840 there were twenty-nine States with a population of 17,068,666, with an area of 1,107,344 square miles, or 14 persons to a square mile.

We have now 31 States, containing a population (we estimate) of 21,686,000, and an area of 1,918,125 square miles, or 12 persons to the square mile.

STATISTICS OF NEW YORK CITY FOR 1850.—There arrived in the port at New York from foreign ports during the year 1850, three thousand four hundred and eighty nine vessels. Of this number, 2,026 were American, 961 British, 96 Breman, 59 Swedish, 70 Norwegian, 34 Hamburg, 45 Prussian, 27 French, 12 Austrian, and 18 Russian.

The whole number of deaths in this city during the past year, was 16,860, which is a reduction of 6,913, as compared with last year. Of the deceased, 9,139 were males, and 7,731 females.

During the year 1850, there arrived at this port 212,796 emigrants, in 1,534 vessels. In 1849, the number that arrived was 220,603, brought in 2,000 vessels, showing a decrease during the year just closed, compared with 1849, of 8,567 emigrants. Of the whole number, 116,552, or more than one-half, were from Ireland, 45,402 from Germany, 28,123 from England, and 6,771 from Scotland.

There occurred in this city during the year 1850, 228 fires, and 202 false fire alarms. The aggregate loss of property resulting therefrom, is estimated at something more than $1,500,000.

The aggregate number of new buildings erected in New York during the first nine months of the past year, was 1,912. In the 18th Ward, there were erected 526; in the 16th, 473; in the 9th, 145, in the 145, and in 17th, 137.

Of licences in 1850 for the real sale of spiritous liquors, the retail sale of spiritous liquors, the whole number given in the city was 4,514, for which $43,150 revenue were received.—Jour. of Com.

☞ The Albany Knickerbocker states that the ladies of Troy have adopted at their fairs the plan of selling their confectionary (kisses) to the gentlemen for one and two shillings each; and that one pretty girl realized sixty-two dollars from her "transactions" in this line. This is undoutedly one of Knick's slanders against the Trojans.

☞ The modest young lady who refused to go into a rifle manufactory because some of the guns had no breeches, is spending a few days at Nahant.

TAKING IT EASY.—Mr. Lawrence, of Pawtucket, Mass, was stopped on the road between Pawtucket and this city, by a scamp who demanded his money. Mr. L. told him he was very sorry he was out of loose change just then, but would give his note for any resonable amount. The man was completely nonplussed, and vamoosed at once.—Providence Mirror.

TO PREVENT OXEN FROM HAULING OR CROWDING.—It is only necessary to lengthen the yoke to break oxen of this vicious habit. In some teams on the road, we have been obliged to make yokes 12 to 18 inches longer than these ordinarily worn.

PLAINFIELD GAZETTE.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Thursday; January 16, 1851.

☞ Mr Albert D. Drake is our authorised agent to receive subscriptions and advertisments.

☞ Mr. E. W. Carr, Third street, Philadelphia, opposite the Exchange, is our authorised agent for that city.

☞ The New Jersey Legislature commenced its annual session on Tuesday. Among the applications to be made, are eight for railroads, four for new banks, and ten for plank roads. Also one for a steamboat Company, to run boats between New York and New Brunswick, one between New York and Barnegat, and for a ferry between the Township of Elizabeth and New York. A U. S. Senator is to be chosen, in place of Judge Dayton, Whig, whose term expires with the present session of Congress. The Newark Advertiser of Tuesday has the following rumor:

The Caucuses have just agreed upon the following officers, who will be elected at the opening of the Legislature at 3 o'clock:—

Senate—President—Silas D. Canfield, of Passaic.
Secretary—John Rogers, Burlington.
Engrossing Clerk—John J. Halsted Trenton
Sergt-at-Arms—S. B. Scattergood, Mercer.

House—Speaker—John H. Phillips, of Mercer.
Clerk—David Naar, Essex.
Engrossing Clerk—Isaac W Mickle, Camden
Door Keeper—Peter Souder, Cape May.

The above are all "Democrats," except the Secretary, and Engrossing Clerk of the Senate.

☞ Fire.—We are informed that the barn of Mr. Jeremiah Force, near Dumplingtown, Middlesex Co., with its contents, including four horses, together with two barracks of hay and a stack of cornstalks, were consumed by fire on Monday evening last.

☞ A pleasant and desirable home can be secured on the most advantageous terms if applied for soon. Those who have a small capital and wish to secure and increase it will rarely meet with a better opportunity. See advertisment in another column headed Economy is Wealth.

☞ In inviting attention to the advertisment of the Grand Gift Concert in another column, we think it not amiss to state for the information of our readers that we are assured by gentlemen, in whose judgment we place great confidence, that the Gifts offered are set down at their real cash value. The articles are all of the first class, and the public may rely upon everything being exactly as represented in the advertisement. Those who intend purchasing tickets should do so immediately as they are being rapidly disposed of.

Population of Pennsylvania.—Returns of the population of Pensylvania have been received from the entire State with the exception of three Counties, viz: Northamaton, Cumberland and Chester, showing the following result:

	Population in 1850.	Do in 1340
Eastern Pennsylvania	995,680	778,260
Western do	1,098,011	833,858
Total	2,093,691	1,612,119

The three Counties to come in will add, it is supposed, about 170,000 to the above making the aggregate about 2,260,000. Pensylvania will probably lose one member of the House of Representatives by the next apportionment.

Massachusetts.—The polls, population, and valuation for the last four decenary terms are as follows:—

	Polls.	Population.	Valuation.
1820	122,715	523,287	153,644,267
1830	150,591	610,408	208,908,107
1840	185,908	718,592	299,878,328
1850	245,142	793,715	597,936,995

The remarkable feature in the property of Massachusetts, is the value of her dwelling houses. The whole number is 134,038, and the total value $163,368,482, making an average of $1,211,36. The number in Boston is 13,173, possessing an estimated value of $67,865,007, which is an average of $5,000 Except the county of Suffolk, the whole number is 119,748, value $95,376,815; average $788.

Population of the Principal Cities of the United States.—The leading cities of the United States rate thus, under the new census, as to population:—

	1850	1840
New York,	517,000	312,000
Philadelphia,	409,000	258,000
Baltimore,	169,000	102,000
New Orleans,	145,000	102,000
Boston,	135,000	93,000
Cincinnatti,	116,000	46,000
Brooklyn,	96,000	36,000
Pittsburg,	83,000	40,000
St. Louis	81,000	16,000

Louisville, Buffalo and washington are about 42,000 each.

☞ The Elizabethtown Journal has the following estimate of the number of Members each County will be entitled to in the Legislature under the new apportionment, presuming that the number shall be sixty.

Atlantic	1	Middlesex	3
Bergen	2	Monmouth	4
Burlington	5	Ocean	1
Cape May	1	Morris	4
Camden	3	Passaic	3
Cumberland	2	Salem	2
Essex	9	Somerset	2
Gloucester	2	Sussex	3
Hudson	3	Warren	3
Hunterdon	4		—
Mercer	3	Total	60

The two counties most affected in proportion by this table are Mercer and Middlesex, but on the whole there can be we think no fairer division.

Death of Hughes, the Boston Slave Catcher.—We learn from the Central Georgian, published at Saundersville, that Willis H. Hughes of Macon, was killed in that place on Sunday night last, by a Mr. Knight a brother of the individual who was in Boston with him last Summer, in search of William and Ellen Crafts, as fugitive slaves. Hughes was killed in a street fight, growing out of political differences with Knight.

Mortality of New York City.—The number of deaths in New York city, in the past five years, is as follows:

1845	10,851	1847	15,499	1849	23,775
1846	11,076	1848	15,919	1850	16,954

From the Tribune.

In Congress.—Friday.

In the Senate several engrossed bills were passed and several new bills reported. Quite an animated debate occurred on a bill granting 50,000 acres of the Public Lands to Wisconsin, for purposes of Internal Improvements. The bill was finally ordered to be engrossed. The report of the Secretary of the Navy on the subject of the Abolition of flogging, was received, and the Senate adjourned to Monday

In the House, Mr Evans of Ohio, introduceda bill granting Treasury Scrip instead of Land to those persons entitled to Bounty Land under the act of September last, which was referred to the Committee on Public Lands. Several bills were introduced with a view of disposing of the Public Domain, among which was one by Mr Bennett, of New-York, granting to State Public Lands for School and Railroad purposes equal in proportion to those already granted to Illinois. The New-Hampshire Contested Election case was decided in favor of the sitting member, and the House adjourned.

Saturday.—The Senate did not sit, but devoted the day to the duty of recovering from the tremendous fatigues from its labors in the earlier part of the week.

The House heard two or three speeches on Cheap Postage, and then adjourned to reflect on them.

Monday.—In the Senate Mr. Felch made a speech against the Bill to give the Public Lands to the States in which they are situated.

The House referred a resolution as to the expediency of reducing the value of our silver coins, refused to suspend the Rules, for sundry purposes, heard Mr. Potter's closing speech in favor of the Cheap Postage Bill, and then adjourned.

Tuesday.—In Senate, various petitions were presented and referred.

The House, after the usual opening business went into Committee of the whole on the Cheap Postage Bill.

The question pending was a motion of Mr. Fowler to strike out 5 and insert 2 cents prepaid on letters, instead of the amendment of Mr. Carter to make uniform rates of 5 cents prepaid.

Several other amendments were offered but rejected.

Statistics of New York.

The total number of vessels at present on the stocks or launched during the year, was 77, whose aggregate tonnage is 89,741; of this amount, 62,225 tons have been launched, and 27,216 tons remain to be launched. Nineteen of these vessels are steamships, 24 steamboats, 3 propellers, 28 ships, 4 schooners, and 9 ferry boats.

The number of new buildings erected during the year 1850 was 1,912.

The deaths including still-born, were 16,954, a ratio of 1 to 32 50.

The arrival of emigrants for the year was 234,620 of which 220,788 were aliens, and 13,932 citizens from foreign ports.

There were 2,705 convicted of various crimes.

There are 4,741 persons in various offices.

The African Exploring Expedition.

We have received intelligence from the Saharan African Expedition up to the 29th of August last.

The expedition had literally fought its way up to Selonfeet in Aheer, near to the territory of the Kailouee Prince, En-Nour, to whom it is recommended.

Mr. Richardson had been obliged to ransom his life and those of his fellow travellers twice. The whole of the population of the Northern districts of Aheer had been raised against the expedition, joined by all the bandits and robbers who infest that region of the Sahara.

The travellers are now in comparative security. It has been a tremendous undertaking for them to force their way among tribes who had never seen the face of a Christian, and who look upon Christians as the declared enemies of God.

The great Soudan route, from Ghat to Aheer, is now explored.—London Times.

Destruction of a Church at Utica by Fire.

Utica, Jan. 13.

The First Presbyterian Church in this city was destroyed by fire last night. The Church was built about 20 years ago at a cost of $25,000, and was the largest structure in this city. The organ was put up eight years since at a cost of $4,000. The insurance on the Church amounts to $8,000, and on the Organ $2,000, and the loss falls on the Ætna and Protection Insurance Cos.

The valuable Communion Service was destroyed; the only things saved being a number of books in the basement

The steeple fell upon a small wooden building, which was also destroyed.

The fire is supposed to be the work of incendiaries, and the loss amounts to $30,000.

Post Office Statistics.

We are indebted to W. V Brady, Esq., P. M., for the accompanying Post Office statistics for the quarter ending Dec. 31st, 1850:—

California Letters received,	123,912
Foreign do. do.	340,402
California do. sent,	127,048
Foreign do. do.	353,454
Total, ...	944,816

To this add the daily average of domestic correspondence, of say 50,000 letters, and the amount of letters received and sent by transient vessels, and it will give 6,037,000 letters that have passed through this office in the last quarter.

The number of Foreign Newspapers for the quarter is as follows:—Received 169,233 and sent 316,068 amounting to 495,301.

The amount of letters advertised in the quarter, was 27,942, one-third of which have been called for and delivered to the rightful owners.

From the statement our readers can form some idea of the vast amount of busines done regularly through the New York Post Office.—Sci. American.

Agriculture in California.—It is stated by Mr. Doane, a gentleman of veracity, lately returned from California, that farming there is a much better business than gold-digging He saw one man who had planted two acres of potatoes late in June, simply turning over the sward, dropping the seed in every fourth furrow, and never touching the ground afterward; and, though there had been no rain since planting, and no live thing but the Potatoes had started in the field, yet the owner laughed at an offer of $1,200 for the crop just as it was. Mr. D. thinks the soil in the valleys abundently moist without irrigation.

A Temperance Lecture will be given in this place on Monday evening, Jan, 20th by Rev. T. Sovereign, of Newark.—Union.

Missouri.—By the last accounts, sixteen ballotings for U. S. Senator had taken place, all with the same result, as follows: Mr. Benton 57, Mr. Green, Democrat 36, and Mr. Geyer, the Whig candidate, 35.

Chronicles of the latter Days.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Unholy Law,

1. It came to pass that after King Zachary was gathered to his fathers, Millard whose surname is Fillmore reigned in his stead.

2. And there were in those days three millions of Ethiopian bondmen, in the south country, whose fathers had been stolen from Ethiopia, and brought chained in ships across the water, to do the work of those who were too lazy to work and too proud to beg.

3. Howbeit many of these bondem were cruelly treated, by task-masters who were placed over them to scourge them with whips, and who often compelled them to toil beyond their strength.

4. And there were in those days, many who raised bondmen and bond women to be sold in the market like beast of burden, so that the families of the bondmen were often broken up.

5. Yea, their husbands and sons were sold like cattle, and their wives and daughters were sold for prostitutes, and there was no law in all the land to protect them from the insults and injuries of their owners and the task-masters who were over them.

6. And it came to pass that many of the bondmen escaped to the north country, being guided by the stars by night, and lying in concealment among the brutes of the forest by day.

7. And when the owners of the bondmen saw that their goods and chattles were taking to themselves legs and departing in haste, they trained dogs to follow their tracks and they pursued them with guns.

8. And many of them were wounded by guns, some were shot dead, and some were torn and mangled by the dogs, while some escaped unharmed, and others were taken captive and carried back, and sold into greater bondage to be more severely treated than before.

9. Yet, notwithstanding all this, the bondmen continued to flee to the north country, because it was said that there they would have a right to their own bodies, and to the labors of their own hands and none could molest nor make them afraid.

10. For howbeit, they had been told that the people of the North country were a holy people who feared God and wrought righteousness, doing unto others as they would have others do unto them.

11. And when the people of the South country saw that neither dogs nor guns would prevent the bondmen from escaping, they said one to another, Behold we must have a law by which we may pursue them to the North country, and capture and return them; for, said they, when our bondmen know that we can pursue them to the ends of the earth, they will no more attempt to escape, and we shall be permitted to revel in peace, on the fruit of their hands

12 So they petitioned to the rulers of the people for a new law; but howbeit, the petitions caused a great uproar in the councils of the natien, so that some cried one thing and some another.

13. For howbeit the rulers were not such as rule in the fear of God, doing justly, loving mercy and walking humbly; but the more part were libertines wineb bbers, whoremongers and adulters who had corrupted their way upon the earth and had climed up into office to obtain the means to gratify their lusts.

14. So there was great uproar and confusion, which lasted many weeks, with hard speeches and they were often nare coming to blows.

15. And when the debate waxed warm, there stood up one Daniel, a notorious reprobate, a winebibber and adulterer, who had afore time been a mighty man in council; and he made a speech to the rulers which bewitched them, so that they became in his hands, like unto dough in the hands of the baker, which may be moulded into any form or fashion as semeth meet unto the baker.

16. So a bill was passed, giving those who steal the bodies of men and women power to pursue them to the North county, and return them to bondage at the expense of the nation.

17. And behold the bill offereth a bribe to injustice, inasmuch as it giveth the commissioner ten pieces of silver when he delivereth up a man or a woman to the dealers in human cattle, and only five pieces when he declareth the captive was never a bondman, and so permitteth him to go free!

18. The bill also calleth on all good citizens to obey man rather than God, and aid in hunting down and returning the fugitive to bondage. So the king signed the bill and it became a law, and Daniel, the rebrobate, having his conscience seared as with a hot iron, being forsaken of God on account of his iniquities, was rewarded by the rulers with a seat at the king's right hand.

20 Now it came to pass that when the law was proclaimed throughout the North country there was a great outcry among the people, for howbeit there were seven thousand servants of God scattered up and down among the mountains of America, who had not bowed the knee to Baal, and refused to obey the unrighteous commands of the king.

21 And then, again, there were others in the North country who did much business upon the great waters, sending many ships and men down to the South country; by this craft they had their wealth and they feared that if the law was not obeyed their craft would be in danger.

22. So they cried, great is the king! Great is Daniel who siteth at his right hand, and great is the law which the king hath signed.

23. And they made a great feast for Daniel, and when they had made merry with wine, they fed him on soft soap and daubed him with untempered mortar, and so bewiched him that he went up and down in the land crying, behold me a second Daniel wiser and more honourable than Daniel the first; who ever saw so great a man as I?

24. For behold, Daniel was beside himself, and fancied that he was some great one, when in truth, he was less than nothing in the eyes of all the wise and good.

25. And it came to pass that the people who feared God and those who loved humanity met together to take counsel one with another; and they all declared with one voice, that the new law was unholy, unjust, unmerciful, and in direct opposition to the law of God

26. And therefore they resolved to obey God rather than man; so they declared that they would shelter, and feed and clothe the fugitive, and bid him God speed to the dominions of Victoria where bondmen become free, and have a right to their own bodies, and to their wives and children and whatever they may earn by the honest labor of their own hands.

27. But the merchants of Babylon who trade in ships, with the people of the South country were exceeding wroth, for their craft was in danger.

28. So they called meetings in the cities, and when they came together they shouted, Great is Daniel! Great is the King! Wise are our laws! And they threatened the faithful with prison, and sword, for behold their god is a fighting god, their priests are the priests of Baal and their temples are the synagogues of Satan.—Portland Pleasure Boat.

Niagara Suspension Bridge.

The Trenton Gazette states that John A. Roebling, Esq., of that place, has been appointed by the Niagara Suspension Bridge Company to enlarge and improve the Suspension Bridge in such a manner as to render it fit and proper for the passage of Railroad cars. Mr. R. will commence the work in the coming spring, and complete it within the year.—The undertaking is in connection with the Rochester, Lockport, and Niagara Falls Railroad, the construction of which is to commence without loss of time.

☞ In the Vice Chancellor's Court at London an application was lately made before Lord Cranworth for the discharge of a prisoner who had been in custody for contempt upwards of 15 years. In the year 1836 an order had been made discharging the prisoner, except as to the costs. The costs had been subsequently paid, but the defendant had, notwithstanding, remained in prison. The Application was refused, notice not having been duly given to the other party. His lordship characterised the applicant as "a party who had obstinately remained in prison for so long a time to the scandal of the court!"

☞ As another evidence of Yankee superiority the coast of England is likely to be furnished with Francis' Metallick Life Surf-boats, as all the English Life-boats have failed.—The first boats are now building, by orders from England, for this use, and will be exactly the same as adopted on our coast by order of Congress.

The present population of Michigan, as shown by the census just taken is 400,000. Increase since 1840. 187,733.

☞ We would earnestly recommend Wholesale and retail purchasers, arriving in the city this fall, to pay a visit to the large show rooms of William McGrorty, 136 William street, New York His stock of goods will be found to embrace the newest styles, patterns, shades and colors, that have for many years been presented for public examination and sale in New York, and we are assured will be sold at the lowest prices The high character of this establishment, would justify the belief that it is well worthy of the most extensive patronage.

REVERIES OF A BACHELOR.

Third Thousand—In morocco, full guilt, $2 50; in muslin, full gilt, $1 75. The Third Edition, plain copies, will be ready on Saturday morning.

"With a rare faculty of expression, obtained by dallying with every form of phrase that can be constructed out of the English vocabulary, and a beautiful freedom of spirit that makes him not ashamed to unfold the depths of his better nature, Mr. Ik Marvel has opened a new vein of gold in the literature of his country"—Harpers New Monthly.

"It clears the head, warms the heart, revivifies the soul. A sweet delirium excites the senses and makes one imagine himself in other spheres. One is young again. One joys, grieves and feels anew. It penetrates the system and pervades every sense."—Newark Advertiser.

"The first dip into the pages has been like bathing the heart in the flooding memories of other days. the book is worth more than its weight in gold, for the heart language which breathes and glows to the end—no wonder that some have doubted the Bachelorism of the author. De the real truth as it may, the history of the heart was never so faitfully written"—Auburn Journal.

"A more sweet and tearful product of the heart can scarcely be found in English literature since the days of Mackenzie."—Arthur's Home Gazette.

"It is certainly one of the finest productions of the literary genius of this country and will be universally read with pleasure and admiration."—Courier and Enquirer.

"If some parts of this book is not poetry—real poetry—equal to anything attached to rythm, we have yet to learn what real poetry is."—Springfield Republican.

"Quotations give but a faint idea of the depth of feeling, the beautifal and winning frankness, the elastic vigor of the soul and the singular fidelity of expression which characterizes this remarkable volume. Its quaint ingenuity of arrangement is wholly lost in extracts, and in order to enjoy the delicious adaptation of form to sentiment in which it would be hard to name its equal, it must be read as a consummate artistic gem-like whold."—N. Y. Tribune.

The popularity of this Magazine continues to increase, steadily and rapidly, with the publication of every successive Number. Every month adds over Five Thousans Copies to its regular sales The Press, from one end of the Union to the other, and without exception, has expressed the warmest approbation of the plan of the work and of the manner in which it has thus far been carried out

The Publishers would express their cordial thanks to the public for the extraordinary degree of favor with which their efforts have been received. They assure the readers of the Magazine that nothing which expense, labor, and incessant care can do, to make its merit keep pace with its success, shall be left undone. The Pictorial Illustrations, which have secured so much admiration, shall be still further multiplied, diversified, and improved. Renewed care will be exercised in the selection of literary matter for its pages. The Monthly Record of Current Events, which is designed to be a regular synopsis of all events of interests in every department of activity, and in every part of the world, will be enlarged, and made more comprehensive and systematic: and all possible exertions will be made to render the Magazine, in all respects, superior to any similar work ever published in any part of the world.

Articles from Punch, and other well known humorous publications, will be from time to time presented, with Pictorial embellishments: care will be taken in this department, as in every other, to admit nothing in the slightest degree offensive to morality or good taste, and to combine interest and instruction with entertainment

Each number of the Magazine will contain 144 pages octavo, in double columns The volumes of a single year, therefore, will present nearly two thousand pages of the choicest of the Miscellaneous Literature of the age A carefully prepared Fashion Plate, and other pictorial illustrations, will accompany each number.

Terms.—Three Dollars a year or Twenty-five Cents a Number. The First Volume, containing Six Numbers, is ready, neatly bound in Muslin, at Two Dollars The Work may be obtained of Booksellers and Periodical Agents, and of the Publishers

WASHINGTON!

From Stuart's most celebrated Painting.

THIS LARGE AND MAGNIFCENT PORTRAIT OF WASHINGTON, from the burin of an American artist, is considered by all who have seen it to be one of the most beautiful specimens of art ever published, and a Correct Likeness of Washington. The size of the plate is eighteen by twenty-eight inches, which will make a handsome Picture for the Parlor, and should be in the hands of every American citizen.

It is a correct copy from Stuart's celebrated original Painting, now at the State House, Hartford, Conn.

It is finely engraved, and printed on superior plate paper That it may be within the means of all the publisher has reduced the price to ONE DOLLAR!

All persons remitting the amount may rely upon receiving a perfect copy by return of mail to any part of the United States, carefully put up on rollers made for the puspose, free of postage.

TRY ONE—YES, TRY BOTH.

SOMETHING NEW!

THE Subscriber would say to his friends and customers that he has the sole agency for the sale of Crane's Patent Compound Wash Mixture, for Plainfield, also for the North American Electric Washing Fluid, both great labor saving articles in washing, warranted not to injure clothing, and fully to answer the purpose represented. Money will be refunded to those using this fluid and finding it not to answer the purpose intended. All that is needed to recommend the above article is a trial; those who have tested them approve them much. Try one—yes, try both.

Just as I finished writing the above and raised my eyes, I see lying on my shelves and counters, some new and elegant plain and figured DeLaines, Silk and worsted and Silk and Cotton Poplins, of various shades, and some splendid Wool Shawls, to which the attention of the ladies is most respectfully requested. THE NEW JERSEY

HORSE POWER

Manufacturing Company.

HAVING improved, strengthened and perfected A. D. CRANE'S Patent Horse Power, are now prepared to furnish the same to all who may want.

This Power consists of an endless floor running over a series of pulleys, connected by cranks, without a rack or cog wheel about it: none being required from the fact, that the weight of the horse on the floor or platform causes sufficient adhesion between it and the pulleys to transmit all the power he is able to give. Also by this arrangement the chain is freed from the draught or strain (which cannot be avoided in any other Stall Power.) except, what is reqired to pass the floor around. The requisite speed is obtained direct from the machine thereby avoiding a great amount of friction and wear, and lessening the liab lity to get out of order. They run so easily as to require less than an inch elevation to the foot. A self acting brake is attached by which the motion is kept regular and uniform even when the work is unsteady and irregular.

From the above description it is evident that this is the most simple and efficient Power known.

They are highly recommended by those who have used them, for driving Circular Saws, Lathes, Drilling Machines, Threshers, Grist Mills, Pumps, &c.

The Company have certificates to prove the above and also to show that the Two Horse Power will grind 40 bushels of Corn to Meal (with Platt's Patent Mill,) in a day of ten hours, making it an invaluable Power for the Southern planter as well as others.

It has taken Silver Medals at the different Fairs where exhibited, and the only one given to Horse Powers by the American Institute last fall.

They also furnish Threshers of the most approved construction.

Price of Single Power with Belt, $75; Double do. with Belt, $110; Thresher and Separator, $35.

HERNIA.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.—This disorder, of very frequennt occurrence, may be considered as arising through weakness of the abdominal walls, inducing an enlargement in the natural openings formed therein for the transmission of blood and other vessels; such openings being enlarged, permit the escape of bowels or other viscera of the abdomen, devolving hernial swellings or rupture, which most generally occur outwardly, as at the navel, groins and thighs.

The complaint is likely to happen at birth, and therefore should be carefully looked for by those having the charge of children, that it may be arrested and cured promptly. It also occurs at any period of life, to either sex, without regard to the condition or mode of living, and when found, should be attended to without delay—the final penalty being death, and that may be induced through strangulation at any momennt.

RUPTURES, are always to be treated with the surgical instruments known as Trusses and Supporters, and these require to be skillfully applied. With this view, the HULL'S TRUSS OFFICE, now established some thirty years, has under the various managers, presented to the public both male and female attendants to apply its instruments directly to the persons, which is preferable in all cases, and has also made improvement at different t mes, showing that advancement which study and practice only yield toward the relief of this malady.

With much pleasure the fact is now published, that recent improvements BUTLER'S TRUSS PADS have been made, and sufficiently tested upon numerous cases to warrant, through the cures already affected, their subm ssion to the public, as being in adaptation and efficiency superior to any heretofore made known.

These improvements, recently patented, are now being applied at this office, 4 Vesey street, in cases of rupture, gravitation of the bowels, prolapsus uteri, prolapsus ani and piles.

The public may rely upon that care being made in their application, which will most likely tend to the final cure of the several complaints.

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

The annals of medical science, affording as they do ample proof of the power and value of many medicinal agents, have furnished no examples to compare with the sultary effects produced by 'AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL."

The remarkable cures of diseases of the Lungs which have been realized by its use, attested as they are by many prominent professors and physicians in this and foreign lands, should encourage the afflicted to persevere with the strong assurance that the use of the "CHERRY PECTORAL" will relieve and ultimately cure them.

We present to the public unsolicited tsteimonials from some of the first men in our country, upon whose judgment and experience implicit confidence may be placed.

NORWICH April 26, 1846

DR. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Agreeable to the request of your agent, we will cheerfully state what we have known of the effects of your CHERRY PECTORAL, and they have been astonishing indeed. Mrs. Betsy Streeter had been afflicted with a severe and relentless cough, which reduced her very low; so low that little hope could be entertained of her recovery. Numerous remedies had been tried without effect before the CHERRY PECTORAL And that has cured her. George Watkinson Esq., had to our knowledge ben afflicted with Asthma, for eleven years, and grown yearly worse, until the CHERRY PECTORAL has now removed the disease and he is as free from any of its symptons as we are. The Rev. Mark Dane had been so severely attacked with the Bronchitis, as to disable him from his duties, and nothing had afforded him relief until I (Mr. Thorning) carried him a bottle of your PECTORAL, which cured him at once, and he now officiates as usual in his place.

These are three of the cases in which we have known it succesful, but never to fail. We have great pleasure in certifying to these facts; and are, respected sir, your humble servants

REV. DAVID THORRING.

HON. JOSEPH BATTLES.

Among the distinguished authorities who have given their names to recommend CHERRY PECTORAL, as the best remedy that is known for the Affections of the Lungs, are "The Loudon Lancet," "Canadian Journal of Medical Science," "Boston Medical and Surgical Journal," "Charleston (S. C) Medical Review," "New Jersey Medical Reporter," Prof. WEBSTER, Harvard College, Prof. BARTLETT, Transylvania University of Medicine, President PERKINS, Vermont Medical College, Dr VALENTINE MOTT, New York City, PARKER CLEVELAND, Bowdoin College, Prof BUTTERFIELD, Willoughby College, Ohio, Prof BRAITHWAITE, Leeds (Eng) Medical School, Sir RICHARD KANE, Queen's College, Ireland, Prof. Rosenbaum, Leipsic

The public have but to know the virtues and astonishing success of the "CHERRY PECTORAL," in curing diseases of the Lungs, when they will feel secure from these dangers, whenever this remedy can be obtained.

MECHANICAL MEDICINE.

Dr. Banning, formerly of this city, asks to announce that he has returned to 341 Broadway; for consultation and management of weaknesses of the vocal, pulmonary, digestive, nervous, spinal and female systems; and also of the drooping, languor and physical deformities, which are so destructive of both health and beauty at the present day.

As these and kindred maladies are usually the result of a violation of the laws of physical organization, he will treat them chiefly by those exercises, mechanical appliances and reformatory habits of body, in conjunction with hydropathy galvanism and other discoveries of the day, which, united with the cooperative efforts of the subject, are calculated to relieve and restore the energies of the suffering and neglected organs.

Having spent several years in traveling for investigation and practical experiment on the subject, he has, at length, greatly improved and multiplied his surgical and mechanical appliances for the purpose. In addition to his new supports for female and spinal weaknesses, are some combining the properties of a universal hernial truss and an effective general support, with which he challenges cases of general debility, constipation, piles and prolapsus, ani, leucorrhea, prolapsus uteri and every variety of hernia

The distinctive peculiarity of these devices is, that they do not weaken or restrain the motions or growth of the suffering parts, but act imitatively and concordantly with the mathematical genius of the body's forces. Hence, by a most comfortable and gentle pressure, they at once give great support and render the oppressed system eligible to its own restoration.

Feeble invalids coming from a distance will command prompt and faithful attention.

For more definite information, see his revised edition of "Animal Mechanics," and also his circular, which will be sent gratuitously when requested.

His improved body-braces, spinal supports and supporter trusses applied at his office (341 Broadway) and to be had wholesale and retail. City and country physicians and druggists are invited to call and examine Office hours from 9 A. M to 1 P M. [121.

FOR FEMALES AND MALES

Dr. Lazzetti's Juno Cordial, or Protective Elixir.

This is the only actual remedy ever discovered for impetency, Genital Debility, Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases occasioned by certain secret habits; and many of the nostrums recently recommended for the same complaints are worthless imitations which its unrivalled excellence, fame and popularity have brought into the market. The Medical Faculty of Europe and the United States are unanimous in their recommendations of the Juno Cordial and have not given their sanction in a single instance that has been authenticated, to any compound for the same purposes The nature of the maladies relieved by the Juno Cordial are generally such as to leave the publication of certificates of cures out of the question, or the proprietor could produce a host of the most conclusive testimony to show that the great reputation that it enjoys was not accidentally obtained, but is firmly based upon its positive, and apparently miraculous virtues. In all directions are to be found the happy parents of healthy offspring, who would not have been so, but for this extraordinary preparption. And it is equally potent in the many diseases for which it is recommended. Objection has been naturally made to the price of the Juno Cordial, because the trash that has been thrown into the market in opposition to it is sold cheaper; but the fact is, the Cerdial cannot be afforded for less, and ought to be much dearer, as many of the ingredients which compose it are among the costliest things in nature; whereas the others are made up of cheap drugs, worth but little in money, and less in merit. We assure the reader that the utmost reliance may be placed on the Juno Cordial in the cure of the maladies mentioned above, and also those that follow, viz: Loss of Muscular Energy, Physical Lassitude and General Prostration, Irritability, and all Nervous Affections, Indigestion, Sluggishness of the Liver, Gleet, Lucorrhoea or Whites, and Flour Albus and every disease in any way connected with the disorder of the Procreative Functions—in all of which it will afford almost immediate relief, and, if used as directed, is almost certain to produce a positive and permanent cure. Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness or disability of a certain nature, should take this Cordial, as it will infallibly restore health and vigor in a brief period, and where want of offspring is a cause of regret, if recourse be had to it the most beneficial results may be anticipated with confidence It is of priceless value to those without off-spring. It has taken the precedence in Italy and will in all other countries where it may become known

To spread wide the blessings of this medicine, I have appointed Messrs Judson & Co. of the City of New York, in the United States of America, my sole Agents for its sale; and none can be genuine unless it comes through them, and their signature is on the weapper

NEW VILLAGE OF HERMANVILLE.

ONLY $25 for a HOMESTEAD—22 Farms woth over $8,500, and 6,400 LOTS, to be distributed among 800 subscribers. Each subscriber is entitled to 8 lots, 25 by 100 feet lying together, or a PRIZE FARM of from 4 to 20 acres. The shares are limited at $25—payable—$5 when subscribed for, $5 on day of distribution, and balance in monthly installments of $3. About 700 shares are now subscribed

The Lots are situated in the village of HERMANVILLE, one mile east of Lake Road Station, on the Long Island Railroad, County of Suffolk, and 50 miles from the city of New York. It is one of the healthiest places in the United States, within one mile of Ronkonkoma Lake, which is about three miles in circumference, of singular transparency and of great depth, with an abundance of fish The village is but 4 miles distant from the greet South Bay which is 5 miles wide and 40 miles long, abundantly supplied with oysters, clams, and fish of various kinds

These lands will produce as much per acre, with the same cultivation, as any land within fifty miles of New-York. The Suffolk County Agricultural Society, at a meeting on 24th September, 1850 awarded premiums for the production of these lands as may be seen by the following letter:

(Copy)
LAKE ROAD, Oct. 23th, 1850.

I certify that I have raised during the past season the very best of Corn and Potatoes 150 bushels per acre; Egg Plants, and a variety of garden vegetables, on land near the Long Island Railroad at Lake Road from which I received a premium at the Suffolk County Agricultural Fair, held September 24 1850

Also, Peas, Beans, Onions, Squashes, Pumpkins, Beets and Tomatoes. Your's,
(Signed) IRA L'HOMMEDIEU.

TO CHARLES WOOD, 117 John-st N. Y

Hermanville is located on the borders of the Long Island Railroad, where cars run several times a day to Brooklyn and New-York. The surface of the land is smooth and level, and the surrounding country is perfectly healthy, and within a few miles of this place, highly cultivated and valuable, having been settled for more than 150 years, and where similar lands sell from $50. to $200 per acre

The distribution will take place in a few days by a Committee to be selected by the Subscribers from among their number The person having the first choice will be entitled, for $25 only, to a 20 acre Farm worth $1,000; the second to an 18 acre Farm, worth $900; the third, a 16 acre Farm, worth $800; the 4th, a 14 acre Farm, worth 700; the 5th, a 12 acre Farm, worth $600; the 6th a 10 acre Farm, worth $500; the 7th and 8th, each an 8 acre farm, worth $400; the 9th, 10th and 11th, each a 6 acre Farm, worth 300; the 12th, 13th, 14th, and 15th each a 5 acre Farm, worth $250; the 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th, and 20th, each a 4 acre Farm, worth $200; and all the others will be entitled to 8 Village Lots, each 25 by 100 feet lying together There are no blanks—this is not a lottery—every person gets for $25 a hadsome Lot of Ground equal to 8 city lots

Manner of Distribution of Hermanville Lots and Prize Farms—The manner of distribution will be as follows: All the numbers on the Map, from 1 to 800, will be put into a wheel, and the first number drawn from the wheel, will be entitled to the first Prize, and, if the first number so drawn or taken out of the wheel happens to be 250 or 275, then the person on the subscription list, who holds or owns the subscription number of 250 or 275, or whatever the corresponding unmber may be, will be entitled to the first Prize Farm, and so proceeding until all the numbers are drawn out.

The lands are as good as represented, and as good as any land on the Island, and when cultivated, will produce in the highest degree

The land was once heavily timbered; some portions are now covered with a thrifty growth of young wood, oak and pine Wood is plenty and generally cheap in that part of the Island Fire-wood is cheap, that which is suitable to be cut into cord-wood, for the New-York market, is of uniform price, and has for a great many years been always considered a cash article on the Island.

There is material on the land for common fencing—good chestnut rails can be had within a few miles of these lands in abundance. All building materials can be had at the depots of Brooklyn and Greenport, and at many intermediate places, at the usual market prices. There are numerous streams of water rising in these new lands, and running into the Great South Bay, which are remarkable for their purity, and never fail: indeed, dry weather makes very little change in them; they are unfailing, and wells are of various depths, probably over these new lands in the middle region of the Island, the average depth will be about 25 feet, at Hermanville as the ground is higher they are deeper.

There are now churches and schools within two or three miles of the village, and within four miles, mills, factories, stores and villages All the privileges of an old settled country are to be had here, and the people of Suffolk County pride themselves on being a highly moral, orderly and religious people. All of my subscribers are persons of respectability

The land can be very easily cleared, and the cost of settlement will depend almost entirely upon the settler, he can lay out as much or as little as he chooses. I do not know of any objections to the place or to the land for a settlement, and the same labor and industry which make successful and prosperous settlement in other parts of the country, bestowed upon these lands cannot fail to produce favorable results

The climate is in every particular healthy and pleasant—the roads are good and always passable, at all seasons of the year—the Winters are short and mild, compared to the Winters on the main, to the north of the Highlands—there is seldom sleighing more than two or three weeks on the Island

What is remarkable, a crop is seldom injured by drouth—there is no part of the country where there is so little injury from drouth as on Long Island, nor is there any injury from wet—there is no wet or cold land on the island All the land along the margin of the streams can be made highly valuable at a small cost, for there is no such thing as a flood or freshet, as in the interior part of the country, by which often very great damage is done—such an event as the carrying off a bridge, or the breaking of a mill dam, with great damage is almost unheard of on Long Island The streams and bays abound in fish and wild fowl in great abundance, and every variety

"O, no, it is only to find out how many souls there are in the union."

"Well, thin, ax me the questions, and if they are dacent, it's meself as will answer."

"Begin with the eldest, and inform me their names and occupations"

"First, there is Teddy—and a fine broth of a boy is he—he is forty-five years, and is an elevator and dischinder be thrade."

"A what, Madam? I do not understand."

"It's Inglish I'm spaking; pure Malasian Inglish"

"I do not apprehend you."

"Apprehend me, is it, ye dirty loon? It's more nor the likes of ye can do, that same, for two pays I'd skin ye as I would a pratie."

"Don't get into a passion; you misconcieve me. I merely wish to say I do not understand your husband's trade."

"Why don't ye spake Inglish, thin? Teddy carries up bricks for new houses and bring them down from ould ones."

"I perceive that he is a laborer?"

"Jist the same, vulgarly spaking."

"In what county was he born?"

"Balinale, County, County Longford, in ould Ireland, and may the divil burn the spalpeens that druv us from its grane sod. Didn't we have a nice little mud hut, and—"

"Never mind Madam, I would willingly hear your grievances, but my time is precious. I have but six months to complete my returns. Now, your name next, if you please."

"Me name's Biddy. Be the same token as I was blest be the Praste be the name of Bridget."

Now your age?"

"The devil roast ye, and is a lady's age ye would be axin to her own face?"

"Madam, it is not my intention to insult you; but these questions must be asked, and there is a heavy penalty incurred by those who refuse to answer, which canbe recovered at law."

"Is it the law ye would be after threatening me wid, and me son Pat one uv the Polace, too? Do ye think it's his blissid murther he'd be sain in limbo, when it's only a word he'd have to spake to the Mare to git her out?"

"Am I to understand, then, you refuse to give your age?"

"Jist that same, and I defy ye to find it out,"

"It is not very material, so I shall put you down at fifty years,"

"Murther! and a l'e is it ye would be after sinding to the President? when he can say that I am only forty-two, iv he but tuk the trouble to ixamine the parish register, in Roscommon, where—"

"Thank you, Madam, and now we will proceed with the rest."

"But ye hav'nt axed all the questions about meself, yit.'

"I have your name, age, and place of birth."

"True for ye, so ye have, ye cunning divil; and don't ye want to know me thrade?"

"Not at all! I have your husband's,"

"But it's meself that thinks ye ought to put it down. I'm a char, and iv yourself or any iv eer friends have any job in me line, going out to days work or the likes, ye can jist spake a good word for a dacent body."

"I shall certainly, always remember you!—Now for the next oldest"

"That's Pat, and he is twenty-three, barin a few months."

"I think he is a Policeman?"

"Yes, sure, but cant ye put him down a Public Funkshunary, as he calls himself? it sounds more ilegant, and should me ould country iver happen to see the books ye are writing, it's proud they will be"

"Who comes next?"

"The nixt will be Dennis. He is twenty one,"

"What is his occupation?"

"Divil a trade he's got. Isn't he waiting for a vakincy in some of the departments? and he wil git it, too, for he has a mighty influence at the powls. He runs wid the Fire Ingines, when they will let him pull the rope; and when they won't, why he jist haves stones at thim, Indepindint is Dennis—mighty indipindint."

"Who next? Please give them in rotation."

"Nixt comes Maggy, she's nineteen. Thin Tim, Mike, and Miles, they are sivinteen nixt lady's day."

"All three of them seventeen?"

"Yis, shure, they were all thray uv thim born twins; and then there's Kate, she's fourten; and Biddy, she's twelve; and Dan O' Connnel, he's ten; then comes Sukey, she's eight: and Luke, he's four; then Jim, he's two; and—that's all at prisint."

"Why, Madam, you have a large family, and are fortunate so to have them all living, for, I presume, you have had no death in your family, circle"

"And is it the graif of me heart ye would now be raking up about me children that is dead, waked and buried in ould Ireland?—Hav'nt I lost four as swate babes as iver was born?"

"Excuse me, but in enumerating your family, I forgot to ask you how many were born in this country?"

"J'st none at all! Didn't we all come over the deep say jist a twelvemonth last Easter!"

"Indeed! How comes it then that your son is a public officer?"

"Why, didn't he fight and vote at the powls the last election, and what for should'nt he be rewarded for his patriotism?"

"Are there any who cannot read and write?"

"And why should we do that same whin the blissid Prasta can do it for us? No, divil a one barrin Pat, and he has learned to write his name jst to be able to sign the dociments."

"Well, Madam, that is all. I believe you have no more in your family, you say?"

"Not at prisint; but there will be another before your six months are up, and I would like you to put it into your book, for it will be a genuine native, and there's no knowing what the country may do for it hereafter."

"I can't do that; besides I do not know what gender it may be."

"Arrah, now, can't ye jist lave a place to put it down in? and ye can jist call at the time ye finish, and be that time the blissid creature will say the light!"

"Well, Madam, I will bear you in mind. Good day."

"Good day, and if ye don't come and put in the baby, then the divil a questson I'll answer ye for the nixt ten years,"

The Drowning Child.

A family, the father, mother, and three children, the youngest between two and three years old, had been making a visit, and were returning to the city of New York by one of the Williamsburg ferry-boats towards evening on the fourth of July. They were evidently in humble life, and had a rare treat in the pleasure of a holiday, dressed in their best, and flor'd with the enjoymen of health.

They were sitting in the stern of the boat near the railing: the younger children playing with their parents frollicksome as kittens. It was a picture pleasing to look on, and it made one's very heart glad and grateful to see a group so joyful in each other, and evidently as blest among themselves as if they had been born to wealth.

It was a very pleasant day, and a pleasant hour of the day. A few minutes more would bring them home, and the children, with the day's play, would be asleep Suddenly the youngest frolicking on the floor, rolled under the railing, and in an instant was overboard! Many were looking on, but it was so sudden and unexpected that no one could arrest it. A shout was raised for the boat to be stopped, but before that could be done the father leaped over into the deep, and struck off manfully in search of his drowning child. The mother had shrieked with agony as her child had gone, and now that her husband was also overboard her anguish was terrible to behold. A lady strove to console her, and bade her trust in God and hope for the best. The father proved to be an excellent swimmer but the water was so agitated by the motion of the boat that he could see nothing of his child, and for some minutes he beat about to no purpose.

Small boats put out from the shore and one of them picked him up when he was nearly exhausted, and he was brought to the steamer and lifted on board. Here was a fresh scene of distress, when the father and mother met again. He had returned from a watery grave himself, but their child their pet lamb was lost. As he was raised on deck, the mother cried "The child, the child, where is in? He looked at her, and with a thoughtfulness and beauty not to be expected in such a moment, answered gently, "Mary, God has it."

The boat still lingered, and the passengers were straining their eyes into the distance, hoping that one of the boats might yet rescue the child. It had now been half an hour in the water—Presently a shout went up, and the word was passed along that the child was found. It was picked up by one of the many in search, and a solitary oarsman rowed on with his precious charge. As he came alongside, the hardy old tar, with a tenderness of feeling that did him honor, covered the face of the child. He could not bear to shock the parents with the sudden sight of their dead child! Yes, it was dead.

In was taken on board, and the gentle lady who had sought to comfort the mother in her aguish took the little one and opened its dress, and laid her hand on its heart, but it was still. All the means that could be applied were of no avail to restore the spirit that had fled.

What a change was here! The boat has reached its wharf, and the family a mourning, wretched family, went off with their dead child to their dreary home. The papers next morning mentioned, under the head of accidents, that a child was drowned from one of the ferry boaes yesterday; but how little of the sorrow of that disaster is told in such a line!—How much sorrow there is in this world that we know nothing of;

How the Eye is Swept and Washed.

For us to be able to see objects clearly and distinctly, it was necessary that the eye should be kept moist and clean. For this purpose it is furnished with a little gland, from which flows a watery fluid (tears), which is spread over the eye by the lid, and is afterwards swept off by it, and runs through a hole in the bone to the inner surface of the nose, where the warm air, passing over it while breathing, evaporates it It's remarkable that no such gland can be found in the eyes of fish, as the element in which they live answers the same purpose. If the eye had not been furnished with a liquid to wash it, and a lid to sweep it off, things would appear as they do when we look through a dusty glass. Along the edges of the eyelid there are a great number of little tubes or glands, from which flows an oily substance, which spreads over the surface of the skin, and thus prevents the edges from becoming sore or irritated, and it also helps to keep the tears within the lid—There are also six little muscles attached to the eye, which enables us to move the eye in every direction; and when we consider the different motions they are capable of giving to the eyes, we cannot but admire the goodness of Him that formed them, and has thus saved us the trouble of turning our heads every time we wish to view an object. Although the eyes of some animals are incapable of motion, as the fly, the beetle, and several other insects, yet the Creator has shown His wisdom and goodness in furnishing their eyes with thousands of little globes, and by placing their eyes in front of their heads, so that these little insects can see almost all around them without turning their heads. A gentlemam who has examined the eyes of a fly, says that the two eyes of a common one are composed of 8000 little globes, through every one of which it is capable of forming an image of an object! Having prepared the eye of the fly for the purpose, and placed it before his microscope, and then looked through both, in the manner of the telescope, at a steeple which was 299 feet high and 730 feet distant, and he says he could plainly see through every little hemisphere, the whole steeple inverted or turned upside down.—Boston Museum.

MEN OF THE REVOLUTION.—Among the remarkable men whose names will forever stand part and parcel of the declaration of Independencce," John Hancock, whose bold signature first strikes the eye, was perhaps oneof the most remarkable. He inherited the busines and fortune of a millionare uncle, and was the abbott Lawrence of his day. When he was first elected to the Provincial Legislature, Adams said to a friend, "Boston has done a wise thing to-day—she's made the young man's fortune her own;" for he devoted it all to public use.

The contrast between him and adams was very great; Adams was poor, and held in great contempt the style and show of fortune. Hancock kept a magnificent equigage, such as is not known in America. His apparel was embroidered with gold and silver; he rode with six beautiful bays—he was fond of dancing, music, routes, parties, rich wine, diners, and all that kind of thing, called elegant pleasures

How he estimated the goods of fortunne and its concomitants, in compar son with the cause of liberty, is illustrated by the following anecdote:

During the seige of Boston, Gen. Washington consulted Congress as to the propriety of bombarding the town,. Hancock was president, and after the reading of Washington's letter, a motion was made to go into Committee of the whole to enable Mr Hancock to give his opinion, as he was deeply interested—all his property being in houses and real estate. He left the chair and addressed the chairman as follows:—"It is true, sir, that nearly all I have in the world is in the town of Boston; but if the expulsion of the British tropps and the liberty of my country demand they be burned to ashes, issue the order, and let the cannons blaze away.

These men were made for the times; cool, steady and deliberate principles show in them all; they were ready to take the "spoiling of their goods," to insure us a better inheritance.

THE THREE FRIENDS—A man had three friends. Two of them he loved exceedingly; to the third he was indifferent, though he was the most sincere.—One day he was summoned before a justice for a matter of which he was innocent. Who among you (said he) will go with me and witness for me?" The first of his friends excused himself immediately, on pretence of other business. The second accompanied him to the door of the tribunal, but there he turned and went back, for fear of the judge.—The third, upon whom he had least depended, went in, spoke for him, and witnessed his innocence so cheerfully, that the judge released him, and made him a present besides. Man has three friends in this world. How do they behave in the hour of death, when God summons him before the judgment seat? Gold, his best friend, leaves him first. His relations and friends accompany him to the brink of the grave, and return again to their houses. His good deeds alone accompany him to the throne of the Judge; they go before, speak for him, and find mercy and favor.—Eliza Cock's Journal.

HOW THE LAWYER GOT THE SAINT.—"And now, because I am spaking of pettifoggers, give me leave," saith "Notes and Queries," "to tell you a short story I met with when I lived in Rome. Going with a Roman to see some antiquites, he showed me a chapel, dedicated to St. Evonn, a lawyer in Brittania, who, he said, came to Rome, to entreat the Pope to give the lawyers of Brittannia a patron to which the Pope replied, that he knew of no saint but what was disposed of to other professions. At which Evonn was very sad, and earnestly begged the Pope to think of one for him. At last the Pope proposed to St. Evonn that he should go around the church of St John de Lateas, blindfolded, and after he had said so many Avo Marias, that the first saint he laid hold of should be his patron; which the good old lawyer willingly undertook; and at the end of his Ave Marias, he stopped at St. Michael's altar, when he laid hold of his Satanic Majesty, under St. Michael's feet' and cried out this is our saint, let him be our patron. So being unblinded, and seeing what a patron he had chosen, he went to his lodgings so dejected that he died in a few months."

☞ Never neglect to read the advertising department of a newspaper, if you would know where to lay out your money to the best advantage. Competition is at its height, and those who have anything worth buying at good bargains, always advertise. They know it is a sure way to do a brisk and profitable business, and by selling quickly they are enabled to sell cheaply. Keep the run of the advertisements. Sometimes the price of a whole year's subscription is saved by looking closely over the advertisements.—Exchange paper.

AN EARTHQUAKE DOWN EAST—The Bangor papers confirm the report of indications of an earthquake being felt in that vicinity last Friday night. Many describe the noise produced as a roaring sound such as is occasioned by fire, and in consequence were greatly alarmed and got up to see if their dwelling were on fire. A gentleman of South Levant states that a portion of the stone wall under his house was thrown down by the jar. The sound was distinctly heard in Frankfort, Hamden, Hermon and Levant.

WHO COMMANDED AT BUNKER HILL?—It has long been a matter of dispute whether Gen. Putnam or Gen. Warren commanded the Americans at bunker Hill. An Engraving of the portrait of Gen. Putnam has been discovered at Salem Mass. with an inscription which seems to throw some light on the matter. That inscription is as follows: "J. Wilkinson Pinxt. Israel Putnam, Esq Major General of the Connetieut Forces and commander-in-Chief at the engagement on Bunker's-Hill, near Boston, 17 June 1775. Published as the Act directs, by C. Shepherd 9 Sept'r, 1775."

Our Government—why Established.

That man might enjoy life, pursue happiness and be disenthralled in mind as well as to be free in body, did the Pilgrim Fathers" abjure country and home;—they spurned with contempt a government that held the bodies or minds of men in bondage; Liberty, liberty of conscience and of speech as well as of person they esteemed to be theirs by the laws of common sense—by the laws of God. For these privileges they sought Liberty in this Western world.

Therefore, after suffering innumerable indignities and degradations—beneath the dignity of men, of freemen—their children and the children of others that had been and were likewise oppresed determined no longer to submit to such degradation and tyranny; they therefore repudiated "the powers that be," declaring them to be an assumption of power which none but tyrants claimed or upheld.

To show, to prove, that 'the powers that be" are only an assumption of the priests and kings of the earth, for their own aggrandisement, our forefathers appealed to the common sense of mankind; they emphatically declared and proclaimed to the world as a self-evident proposition—and it is acknowledged by every true hearted republican—that AlmightyGod created and inalienably endowed ALL men with equal rights. They moreover declared and enumerated, and this was—and still is by republicans—held to be self-evident. that among these rights are Life, and Liberty, and the freedom to pursue happiness. And it is likewise declared, and held it to be a self-evident proposition that governments are specially and solely designed and instituted among men to protect them in the enjoyment of these rights. It is also specially declared that it derives its powers from the consent of the governed,-hence was their action and their rights—and that therefore, whenever any government refuses or neglects to provide such protection—to ALL—it contravenes these principles and subverts the sole objects and ends of its creation; and that therefore it is not only man's right,but a duty which he owes to God,his fellow man, his chidren and their posterity, to alter or abolish it.

For this end alone, to protect man, all men, in the enjoyment of these privileges, according to the solemn asservations of our forefathers, of those by the might of whose arms, by the courage of whose hearts and by the indomitable perseverence of whose minds, through heat and through cold, through storm and sunshine, through privations innumerable and sufferings intense, by night and by day, against and over every and all obstacles did they contend for and triumphantly mantain these to be man's inalienable and God endowed rights. Solemnly, in the sight of heaven, before God and man, in the hearing of the whole world did they proclaim their sacred character and invoke God's blesing on their prosperity; declaring the denial of these principles and the privileges pertaining thereto the sole and just cause of their seperation from "the powers that be"—the powers and tyranny of the king and priests of Great Britain.

Thus by the simple assertion of these principles did they they justify themselves in the sight of God and man; it being an intuitive and self evident proposition that ALL men are thus inalienably endowed with equal rights by their Creator.

That our forefathers,that we,that all men under its jurisdiction might enjoy their inalienable rights where withGodhas endowed him was this government established. For this and for no other purpose was the "divine rights of kings" repudiated, and the only legitimate"powers that be,"founded on the natural rights of man were made the fundamental basis of this government in their stead; from hence and for no other purpose than their protection has it power. If this be so, if the divine right of kings—the privilege and power to degrade and enslave mankind—is not inherent in our government, then is it time, and high time too that its real object and true principles were being carried into effect.

For, notwithstanding these principles were made the fundamental basis upon which this government was established: notwithstanding the sincere and solemn asservations which our forefathers uttered and the blessings of God which they invoked on its prosperity, there are yet millions of souls under its care consigned by its power to a cruel, unrelenting, degrading and ignominious bondage! Men, women and childrdn as susceptible to the enjoyments of Liberty, and with hearts as alive to the sympathies of our nature; the teader ties of husband and wife, parents and children, brothers and sisters, are of the same endearing nature as our own; yet they are consigned by the same arbitrary power, the same "divine right,"—'the powers that be"—upon the same pretexts that our forefathers repudiated, by a government professing to be republican—having made man's inalienable rights its basis—professing to be christian, to be guided by those principles of love which constitutes its essence, love to God and love to man, which its author and founder taught rather by practice than precept—to a degrading, a cruel, a hopeless bondage! compelled not only to supply the comforts and luxuries of life for their masters and to satisfy their cupidity but in many cases to gratify his base passions, and foul lusts.

Such, alas! are the claims of our government, of ourselves, to republican principles; by such acts do we teach the principles of Christ! By the present unholy law does the government of these United States proclaim to the world its iniquity and hypocracy, bringing shame and disgrace not only on republican principles but upon those brave patriots who willingly perilled property and life and were willing to sacrifice all save honor to establish man's rights. Although loudly applauding with our lips, the actions of our hearts proclaim our hypocracy; ere the glad tidings had reached the ears of the oppressed, with malignant hate in our hearts and bitter curses on our lips do we denounce the name and subvert the principles of liberty; declaring that "the powers that be" are of God; and that therefore whatever they ordain—however unjust, unholy, or tyranical it may be it is our duty to obey and be subject unto them!

By such arguments have tyrants ever held men in bondage; by such arguments have kings and priests lived in luxury and idleness upon the labors of others and committed with impunity every known and unknown crime; blasphemously claiming to be the special favorites and vicegerents of God! By such arguments do tyrants now, aided by their ancient allies the priests, subject men to bondage and endeavor to maintain that opsression, injustice and all manner of iniquity even that chattel Slavery is ordained of God!

This doctrine has been repeatedly declared obsolete; it was repudiated by Daniel,—not the expounder but the prophet—Shadrach, Meshac and Abednego; Christ and his disciples, their follwers and all the martyrs under the Roman Empire repudiated it. It was repudiated by the Pilgrims who landed on Plymouth rock—they abjured it when refusing to support a State Church Establishment Their descendants, our forefathers, abjured and repudiated it July 4th 1776—they declared it a blasphemous assumption—the Declaration of Independence makes it so or there is no meaning in language.

Notwithstanding all these things, notwithstanding the blood and treasuse expended and the privations of those by whom they were sought and thought to be established, the selfishness, hypocracy and puny ambition of tyrants have prevented its accomplishment; we are not only fast becoming but are now a by-word and a reproach among the nations of the earth. While addressing with our lips the God of heaven and invoking his blessing on the privileges we enjoy, and while declaring he has endowed all me men therewith, the government, our government, its agents, our agents, are employed hunting down with the malignity of demons the poor wretches who have the audacity to claim their birthright; the birthright which the government under which they first drew breath declares their God endowed them with!

What a humiliating spectacle do we present to the eyes of the world; although our people express sympathy for the down trodden and oppressed of other nations and affirm their right to freedom; although Liberty is constantly on our lips and on every return of our nation's natal day we declaim against oppression and declare our country the land of the free and the home of the brave, the assylum of the oppressed, yet what are our real claims to these honors? Do we inherit them because our our government has interposed its strong arm to establish and perpetuate Slavery? Is it indeed because we are about the only Christian government on earth under which man can claim a property in his fellow man? If for these our acts we lay claim to the distinction then indeed are there none others so well entitled or so worthy to enjoy the honors!

We not only claim to be republicans in principle, which our acts so clearly prove us entitled to but we also claim to be christians; we have or profess to have a religion whose fundamental principles it is declared are love to God and love to man; that by our acts of kindness and our charity to our fellow man alone can we show our love to God—by feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, ministering to the sick and letting the captives go free:—"Verily, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my bretheren ye have done it unto me."

—Yet notwithstanding we have or profess to have such a religion, notwithstanding the people of this nation profess to be guided by its dictates—building churches all over the land to proclaim the "glad tidings of great joy which shall be to all people"; notwithstanding sea and land are compassed to make proselytes; notwithstanding that the sole errand of its author, founder and teacher was mercy justice and truth yet how many, even its teachers, through pride and self interrest teach the commandments of men, thus denying its doctrines and subverting its principles—quoting scripture to justify those who make merchandise of their fellow man; "The powers that be" say they are ordained of God,and therefore Slavery, and every other species of iniquity are justified of God!

What do its advocates suppose will be the result of such teaching? While satisfying one person that Slavery, oppression and wrong are justifiable by the words of God; while making one convert thereto by such expositions will they not make ten infidels? Who in this enlightened age, when steam presses, electric telegraphs and ocean steamers are diffusing throughout the world the leaven of civil and religious liberty as it is founded on man's inalienable and God endowed rights will ever believe that God ordained oppression and Slavery! Do they suppose by such declamation that they can stay its progress? Idle infatuation; God rules the whirlwind and the storm; the same immutable laws that govern them govern also the progress of Liberty and truth throughout the world. The cobwebs of superstition are fast passing away, never we trust to return. The "powers that be" cannot much longer enact their fantastic tricks before high heaven but will be banished to that outer darkness from whence they originated. May God speed the day of man's enfranchisement from ignorance, error, misery and sin.

☞ The Somerset Whig appears to be very sensitive to a few "choice phrases" when applied to the elucidation of its principles, but nevertheless uses them with a very liberal hand whenever it has anything to say of its opponents. The trouble with the Whig however is that the article to which it refers was so justly applicable to the course hitherto pursued by the whigs, and feeling more guilty than its coadjutors—being a strong advocate of the measures pursued—that it could not hold still under the rebuke. The article to which we presume the Whig alludes was copied from the New-Brunswick Times, and so stated at its commencement; it was likewise upon the same subject and in effect precisely the same as that copied by the Whig from the Paterson Guardian, which it very justly commends.and which we too should have copied but for their coincidence

The objectionable "phrases" as we took their meaning were merely explanatory, being used by the Times in no other sense. We have ever endeavored in our "leader" to advance argument, we would recommend a similar course to the Whig.

INAUGURATION OF GOV. FORT.

TRENTON, Jan 21st, 1851.

The ceremonies attending the inauguration of Geo. F Fort as Governor of New Jersey, which took place this noon were quite imposing. The excitement commenced at an early hour, and the ceremonies proceeded accordding to the programme published yesterday.

The procession was about a quarter of a mile in length, and formed an imposing display of the military, among whom were conspicuously placed, Colonel Brown and Staff, of the 1st Regiment N J Cavalry, Gen. James Miller and Staff, with the officers of the Essex Brigade; the Jefferson Rifles of the 3d Brigade, and various other uniform companies from Trenton and Newark, including the Lafayette Guard.

They escorted Gov. Fort from Kay's Hotel to the State House, which was entirely filled with spectators. The Senate Chamber and Gallery were crowded with ladies.and some 400 more were on the floor. There was, also, much confusion among the throng outside.

The ceremonies commenced with an invocation of the Divine blessing, by the Rev. Dr. Hall, of the Presbyterian Church, when the usual office was administered to the Governor elect, by Hon. Silas D. Canfield, the President of the Senate.

The great Seal of the State was then presented to him by Governor Haines, whose term ofoffice thereupon expired, During these procedings, salutes were constantly fired outsside the State House

At a quarter before 12 o'clock, Gov. Fort commenced reading his address, of which the following digest comprises the leading points.

The Governor's Address.

Chosen by the free suffrages of the people, I have appeared and taken the official oath It is a time succeeding a great crisis in our national history. The present is a new era, in our State affairs; public opinion has been tending in a particular direction; laws should be equal in their operation upon all: our State is at present prosperous; the cause of EDUCATION occupies a prominent place: education should be universal and free schools are necessary: the revenue from public works should be applied to this object, and a tax should be raised to supply the deficiency.

The promotion of Agriculture depends on the diffusion of knowledge.

A matter next in importance in the Equalization of Taxes, which urgently claims our attention. Our present sytsem is unjust. I reccommend abolition of property qualifications.

Monoply privileges should be replaced by general laws.

I entertain a conviction of the expediency of the personal liability of stockholders of banks. An act of homestead exemption would dedicated by a sound policy and due regard for the happiness of man. I reccommend the passage of a statute limiting the hours of labor to ten.

Retrenchment in public expenditure is reccommended, and he says, "I shall exercise the veto power when necessary." I believe that steps should be taken to restore the election of Judges by the people

The passage of the Compromize Laws was conducive to fraternal feeling between the North and the South. The Fugitive Law is binding; resistence is rebellion. New Jersey ever was and ever should be in favor of supporting the Union.

Duties should be laid for revenues, and he believes the tariff of 1846 correct, and better than any preceding, but it should be somewhat modified on iron.

Speculation in the public lands should be prohibited.

In furtherance of these views, he says, in conclusion, I solicit your cooperation and the blessing of God.

After a benediction by the Rev. Mr. Morrell, Gov. Fort was escorted back to his lodgings.

CONGRESS.—The House after a great deal of nonsensical twaddle has passed the Cheap Postage Bill.

Although granting something to be thankful for it is nevertheless a disgrace to that body, containing as it does so many arbitrary and absurd provisions.

It reduces the rate of Letter Postage to three cents.and newspapers are free within thirty miles of the place of the place of publication, to actual subscribers; it also prepares for the coinage of a three cent piece It makes no distinction between prepaid and unpaid letters, neither is the abominable imposition of the franking psivilege curtailed. It contains about as much nonsense, abating the reduction and the coinage, as could possibly be crowded into the same space. We trust the Senate will lop off its absurdities and make it what the country have a right to expect—a judicious Reform Postage Law.

MONDAY.—In the Senate, Mr. Clay submitted a Resolution instructing the Committee on Commerce to inquire into the expediancy of adopting more effectual means to prevent American vessels and seamen from engaging in the African Slave Trade—The correspondence with the American Minister at Brazil in regard to the Slave Trade was received and refered to the Commitee on Commerce The House Postage Bill was received and referred to the Post Office Committee. The French Spoilation Bill wds taken up and Mr. Hunter made a speech against it.

The House refused to suspend the rules to introduce a bill giving land to the landless. The bill to secure the prompt execution of the Bounty Land Law of the last Session was taken up and discussed till the adjournment.

Sale of Long the Fugitive.

RICHMOND, Jan'y. 19th.

Henry Long, the fugitive slave, was sold at auction yesterday for the sum of seven hundred and fifty dollars. He was bought by a Georgia trader, and will be taken South. A large concourse of persons were present, including members of the Legislature and Convention. There was great applause at the conclusion of the sale.

[The above is an apt illustration of our article in the first column, and conclusive proof of the truth and justness of our remarks.—ED.]

☞ We very much regret to learn that Frederick Vermule, oldest son of Mr. Theodore Vermule, of this place, was drowned on Saturday last, above the upper bridge—He was sliding on the ice entirely alone, and broke through The fact was not knwn until the next morning, when his body was recovered. He was about 7 years old.

☞ Nearly all the newspapers of New Jersey that have spoken on the subject, have come out against the appointment of a State agricultural lecturer.—N. B. Union.

MISTAKE CORRECTED.—The story which has been widely circulated of a workman at the Mount Holly iron works, New Jersey, chopping off the limbs of the body of his deceased child, to get it in the coffin, we are authorised by the proprietor of the works to say, it is not correct. Nothing of the kind occured at those works.—Camden Democrat.

The Governor's Message.

The Legislature of New Jersey was organized on Tuesday the 14th inst. by the choice of the following officers:

Senate—President—Silas D. Canfield, of Passaic.
Secretary—John Rogers, Burlington.
Engrossing Clerk—John J. Halsted Trenton
Sergt-at-Arms-S. B. Scattergood, Mercer.

House—Speaker—John H. Phillips, of Mercer.
Clerk—David Naar, Essex.
Engrossing Clerk-Isaac W. Mickle, Camden
Door Keeper—Peter Souder, Cape May.

The above are all "Democrats," except the Secretary, and Engrossing Clerk of the Senate.

The Message of Governor Haines is a brief and well written document, and but for its commendation of the Fugitive law meets our hearty approval. The Newark Advertiser furnishes the following abstract of its reccommendations.

The receipts for the last year ending 31 Dec 1850 were $123,583; cash on hand Jan. 1st, 1850, $9,961, making the available funds $138.544; disbursements, $15,452; balance in Treasury, $13,001.

After deductions for payments due to School fund and paying special loan previous to 1847, there will remain from the available resources of the State, as estimated on the 1st Jan. 1851, (?) $51,125.

It appears that the balance of the State Fund vested in various stocks and bonds, including surplus revenue loaned to the several Counties, paying no interest, deducting amount due School Fund and the special loan prior to 1847, is $933.848.25 and its income will justify an appropriation of $40,000 for Common Schools.

The cause of education advances and the public is looking for further legislative aid to Common Schools. The Governor reccommends the passage of a law authorizing the inhabitantants of towships and cities to determine by a voice of two-thirds of the persons present entitled to vote, whether they will establish free schools in their townships and cities and support them.

The Lunatic Asylum is advacing in the favor of the community. He proceeds to give details, but is not in favor of making an enlargement of the building at this time.

Owing to a want of such an organization of the militia, as would enable the Adjutant General to report the number of militia, the quota of arms drawn from the General Government has not increaased for the last twenty years.

Attention is invited to the subject of taxation No tax is now levied for State expenses; but still there may be, and are at this time, taxes are levied for township county and educational purposes, which ought to be made as equal as possible; and the passage of a law to produce that equality is earnestly reccommended. Partial laws and special privileges should not be enacted or conferred, but on the most urgent necessity and expediency.

He, therefore reccommends the passage of an act authorizing the formation of railroad companies, with suitable restriction.

The Banking law of the last session proves to be impracticable, and an inquiry into the causes of objection to it is suggested.

He reccommends the repeal of acts making a property qualification requisite to the holding of any office, and the performance of any duty. An exemption of property from execution and distress sufficient to save a debtor and his family from penury and want, is reccommended.

Attention is called to the propriety of defining more specifically the duties of the Attorney General, and adjusting his salary to them.

The question is submitted, whether the Judges of the Court of Errors should not be more adequately compensated.

By the Constitution of the State, a new apportionment must be made by the present Legislature of the members of the General Assembly.

Pursuant to the resolutions of the Legislature the Governor has ready for delivery a block of stone for Washington Monument. It is a donation from Wm. H. Harris, of Newark, and is of the finest light brown free stone, four feet in length, by two feet in width, from his quarry at Little Falls, whence the stone for Trinity Church, New York, was taken The design furnished by John G. Hall, of Newark, and executed in bas relief under the direction of Amos Wilcox, consists simply of the arms of New Jersey beneath a semicircle of laurels, raised upon a band; on the corners above, are shields resting on military trophies; on which are inscribed the words "Trenton, Dec. 26. 1776," "Monmouth, June 28, 1778," commemorative of the principal battles in this State, in which Washington was present. Beneath is the name of the State in capitals above 1776.

Mr Vattemere with his valedictory address transmitted a letter with the information that had presented the State several additional volumes of rare and valuable books for the use of the students of Rutgers College, and other articles for the use of the Historical Society.

The Governor believes, that New Jersey will firmly stand by and mantain the Comprnmise measures of the last session of Congress, regarding them as wise, patriotic, and essential to the Union, Prosperity,peace and progress of the confederacy.

NEW-JERSEY INDUSTRIAL LEGISLATURE.—Postponement.—At the request of the Delegates, the meeting of the New-Jersey Industrial Legislature at Trenton, is postponed till Tuesday the 11th day of February next, to give opportunity for more efficient organization.

☞ Public attention is directed to Professor Barry's Tricopharous advertised in another column. The most respectable testimony given of the benefits resulting from its use. Those similarly afflicted would do well to give ie a trial.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan 18th, 1851.

The most destructive fire that has visited us since the destruction of Robb's Banking House, the Picayune office and other buildings, commenced yesterday morning and continued to burn during the entire day, the telegraph office being partly destroyed delaying the sending of this despatch. Among the property destroyed is the beautiful St. Charles Hotel. The first Congregational Church adjoining, the Methodist Church on Poydras Street, and about twelve other buildings, all of which are a heap of ruins. The loss is estimated at One Million of dollars a considerable portion of which is insured.

NEW FUEL.—A Locomotive Engine is being built at a shop near this City, which is to be something of a novelty. Nothing but Alcohol is to be used for heating the boiler It is constructed upon a principle heretofore untried, but it is expected to be entirely successful in its opperation. It is built for the Erie Railroad, and it will be tested on that road next week. We hope it may succeed, for we have never heard of a more suitable way of using up the fluid designed to be used.—N. Y. Tribune.

From the Newark Mercury.

Essex County Prison.

MR. EDITOR—A few days since I was induced to visit our Prison for the purpose of witnessing the improvements now going on, and I was greatly surprised at what I saw. The Board of Free Holders have caused to be erected an entire new wing containing 18 cells, which is designed to be used excluclusively for the Females. The interior of the Prison has been entirely taken out and constructed anew on a much improved plan. There are four tier of cells, each tier consisting of 14 cells, making in all 56 cells in the old Prison, and in the entire Prison, 74 cells. Each cell is to be furnished as follows:—An iron bedstead; a straw matrass; three blankets; one spoon, knife and fork; salt and pepper boxes, and a small chest, (which also answers the purpose of a bench,) together with a Bible and Hymn-book. Each cell is 6 feet high, 5 feet wide and 8 feet deep, and the space in front of the cells, which is to be used as a work shop, is 86 feet long and 30 wide, with a ceiling 30 feet high. The windows, which give light to the work-shop as well as the cells, are 20 feet high and 5 feet wide, making altogether one of the most imposing to be found in the County. The cost of the improvement will exceed eight thousand dollars, and will require at least two months to finish the entire buildings, which when finished will be a model for the entire State.

To much praise cannot be awarded to the Committee who have been especially charged with the superintending the erection and altering of the buildings. They are Z. Webster, of Plainfield; W. Garthwaite, and S Gould, of this city. Of the new code of discipline and the objects proposed to be attained by this large outlay of expenditure may make the subject for a future communication, if you should think this worthy of a place in your paper.

CIVIS.

☞ Several petitions to the Legislature, asking for the establishment of a Ferry from "Port Mayo" (which is the name now given to the Gibbons property on the sound) to New York, and authorizing a drawbridge across the creek to connect with the site of the proposed wharf, have been placed in our hands for presentation. We shall of course do so without delay and we shall take the same course with remonsstrances if any are transmitted to us for that purpose. We have not yet seen the bill which will be introduced, but as we have already announced we shall endeavor to publish the material portions of it before any final action is had upon it. We are utterly opposed to what are technically termed "snap Judgments" and we intend so far as our exertions can effect it, to give the people whom we represent a full and fair opportunity to express their opinions and wishes upon all matters in which they are concerned. At the same time we are ready to express our own personal opinion upon the applications made to us, and our townsmen have a right to know what are our intentions in regard to the one now spoken of We say then, frankly, that another line of water communication with New York is imperously demanded by a large majority of our citzens, and that if no effort is to be made for legislative aid in opening the end of Water street for public use, (which we regard as a project far preferable to that now proposed) and if no remonstrances, nearly equal in numbers and character to the petitions, are presented; we shall feel it to be our solemn duty to use our best efforts to procure the passage of the act incorporating the new company.

On Friday last we gave notice of our intentien to introduce a bill incorporating the "Elizabethport and Staten Island Ferry Company," but no petitions in its favor have yet been received, and if none are offered, we stall not feel instructed to proceed any further in the matter. We hold ourselves in readiness to obey the mandate of our constituents, but as our imagination has never been highly cultivated, we dare not venture to proceed in important matters upon mere guesses in regard to what measures are desired by those whose servant we are.

NEW JERSEY PILOTS.—The Report of the commissioners of Pilotage show that the New Jersey pilots, during the past two years, brought 695 vessels into port, and carried out 523. There are 21 branch pilots and 5 deputies The number of the boats is five, of which one was added during the year.

REVERIES OF A BACHELOR.

THIRD THOUSAND—In morocco, full guilt, $2 50; in muslin, full gilt, $1 75. The Third Edition, plain copies, will be ready on Saturday morning.

"With a rare faculty of expression, obtained by dallying with every form of phrase that can be constructed out of the English vocabulary, and a beautiful freedom of spirit that makes him not ashamed to unfold the depths of his better nature, Mr. Ik Marvel has opened a new vein of gold in the literature of his country"—Harpers New Monthly.

"It clears the head, warms the heart, revivifies the soul. A sweet delirium excites the senses and makes one imagine himself in other spheres. One is young again. One joys, grieves and feels anew. It penetrates the system and pervades every sense."—Newark Advertiser.

"The first dip into the pages has been like bathing the heart in the flooding memories of other days. the book is worth more than its weight in gold, for the heart language which breathes and glows to the end—no wonder that some have doubted the Bachelorism of the author. Be the real truth as it may, the history of the heart was never so faitfully written"—Auburn Journal.

"A more sweet and tearful product of the heart can scarcely be found in English literature since the days of Mackenzie."—Arthur's Home Gazette.

"It is certainly one of the finest productions of the literary genius of this country and will be universally read with pleasure and admiration"—Courier and Enquirer.

"If some parts of this book is not poetry—real poetry—equal to anything attached to rythm, we have yet to learn what real poetry is."—Springfeld Republican.

"Quotations give but a faint idea of the depth of feeling, the beautifal and winning frankness, the elastic vigor of the soul and the singular fidelity of expression which characterizes this remarkable volume. Its quaint ingenuity of arrangement is wholly lost in extracts,and in order to enjoy the delicious adaptation of form to sentiment in which it would be hard to name its equal, it must be read as a consummate artistic gem-like whold."—*N. THE COMPLMENTS OF THE EAST. The following extracts of a letter senr to the proprietor of Cherry Pectoral, from EL HASSAN the ruling Pasha of Trebizond, Ezeroum, shows the peculiarities of Oriental courtesy:

To DR. J. C. AYER: the Chemist of rare learning. at Lowell, in Massachusetts and the United States.

GOD IS GREAT FOREVER:

I have received your letter of affectionate love, with the present of choice Essence in Bottles, by which your excellent skill teaches to cure the the afflictions of my children.

As the life of one of my people is more to me than camels and gold, we shall pray for you in our heart when they are raised up from the tent of sorrow by this product of your deep learning and beautiful wisdom.

For this Gift of Love to your friend, so distant over many Seas and for this rare invention of your skill, may you be placed in such seats of honor and dignity among the great in knowledge, as we should offer to you in our dominions.

Given in this Central City of our Power, by express command of NESCHID EL HASSAN PASHA.

EZROUM, Jamad Awah 1265.

The citizens of Lowell have promptly responded to the Pasha advice by electing him mayor of the city.

PROFESSOR A. C. BARRY'S TRICOPHEROUS, or Medicated Compound.

FOR RESTORING, PRESERVING, AND beautifying hair eradicating scurf and dandruff, and curing diseases of the skin, glands and muscles, stings, cuts, bruises, sprains, &c., &c. It has been ascertained by experiment that has produced the same effect in curing disease of the skin, &c., of the Horse and all the animal kingdom.

The following testimonials, selected from hundreds of similar import, will serve to show the value of the preparation, and the estimation in which it is held by those who have given it a trial:

NEW-YORK, Sept 22. 1850.

Prof. Barry—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted with a cutaneous eruption of the scalp of a most aggravated character for the last sixteen years, and during that period I have had the advice of some of the most eminent physicians, and have tried all the preparations for the hair and skin now known, without the least benefit. I was advised by a friend to try your Tricopherous. I did so, as a last resort, and, to my surprise and gratification, found myself cured in about two months. Such was the violence of the disorder that at times I was partially blind.

Respectfully yours,
G. V. M. RAPELYE, 143 Columbia-st. Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Oct 23d. 1850.

Prof. Barry—My Dear Sir: About two years ago my hair came out a great deal, and my head was much affected with dandruff. I was told by a friend to try your Tricopherous, and I did so, and to my astonishment my hair was firmly rooted, and all the dandruff disappeared, as the head now shews for itself.

With respect I am your obedient servant,
J. S. TREADWELL, 683 Broadway.

[From the Military & Naval Argus, Nov. 9th.]

There is no remedy for the permanent cure of baldness and diseases of the cranium generally, that has reached the popularity enjoyed by the article known as Professor Barry's Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound. It is extensively used by the upper classes of the community; in almost every nursery in the land it is used in preference to other articles of the kind. It imparts vigor to the roots of the hair, and thus promotes its growth to a remarkable degree. It destroys dandruff and scurf, and yields the hair fine and glossy. It will cure all diseases of the scalp such as scald head, dew worm, and other obnoxious disorderders of the skin: in cheapness, as well as efficacy, it stands unrivaled. It is sold in large bottles, price 25 cents at No 137 Broadway, and at the druggists' generally throughout the United States and Canadas. [123 s.

THE NEW JERSEY

HORSE POWER

Manufacturing Company.

HAVING improved, strengthened and perfected A. D. CRANE'S Patent Horse Power, are now prepared to furnish the same to all who may want.

This Power consists of an endless floor running over a series of pulleys, connected by cranks, without a rack or cog wheel about it: none being required from the fact, that the weight of the horse on the floor or platform causes sufficient adhesion between it and the pulleys to transmit all the power he is able to give. Also by this arrangement the chain is freed from the draught or strain (which cannot be avoided in any other Stall Power) except, what is reqired to pass the floor around. The requisite speed is obtained direct from the machine thereby avoiding a great amount of friction and wear, and lessening the liability to get out of order. They run so easily as to require less than an inch elevation to the foot. A self acting brake is attached by which the motion is kept regular and uniform even when the work is unsteady and irregular.

From the above description it is evident that this is the most simple and efficient Power known.

They are highly recommended by those who have used them, for driving Circular Saws, Lathes, Drilling Machines, Threshers, Grist Mills, Pumps, &c.

The Company have certificates to prove the above and also to show that the Two Horse Power will grind 40 bushels of Corn to Meal (with Platt's Patent Mill.) in a day of ten hours, making it an invaluable Power for the Southern planter as well as others.

It has taken Silver Medals at the different Fairs where exhibited, and the only one given to Horse Powers by the American Institute last fall.

They also furnish Threshers of the most approved construction.

Price of Single Power with Belt, $75: Double do, with Belt, $110: Thresher and Separator, $35.

HERNIA.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.—This disorder, of very frequent occurrence, may be considered as arising through weakness of the abdominal walls, inducing an enlargement in the natural openings formed therein for the transmission of blood and other vessels: such openings being enlarged, permit the escape of bowels or other viscera of the abdomen, devolving hernial swellings or rupture, which most generally occur outwardly, as at the navel, groins and thighs.

The complaint is likely to happen at birth, and therefore should be carefully looked for by those having the charge of children, that it may be arrested and cured promptly. It also occurs at any period of life, to either sex, without regard to the condition or mode of living, and when found, should be attended to without delay—the final penalty being death, and that may be induced through strangulation at any moment.

RUPTURES, are always to be treated with the surgical instruments known as Trusses and Supporters, and these require to be skillfully applied. With this view, the HULL'S TRUSS OFFICE, now established some thirty years, has under the various managers, presented to the public both male and female attendants to apply its instruments directly to the persons, which is preferable in all cases, and has also made improvement at different times, showing that advancement which study and practice only yield toward the relief of this malady.

With much pleasure the fact is now published, that recent improvements BUTLER'S TRUSS PADS have been made, and sufficiently tested upon numerous cases to warrant, through the cures already affected, their submission to the public, as being in adaptation and efficiency superior to any heretofore made known.

These improvements, recently patented, are now being applied at this office, 4 Vesey street, in cases of rupture, gravitation of the bowels, prolapsus uteri, prolapsus ani and piles.

The public may rely upon that care being made in their application, which will most likely tend to the final cure of the several complaints.

Hull's Truss Office, 4 Vesey street, Astor House, opposite St. Paul's Church, New-York.

FREDK M. BUTLER, Proprietor.

N. B.—The ladies' department is attended by a female qualified to fit the instruments, having so attended this office for many years.

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

The annals of medical science, affording as they do ample proof of the power and value of many medicinal agents, have furnished no examples to compare with the salutary effects produced by 'AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL."

The remarkable cures of diseases of the Lungs which have been realized by its use, attested as they are by many prominent professors and physicians in this and foreign lands, should encourage the afflicted to persevere with the strong assurance that the use of the "CHERRY PECTORAL" will relieve and ultimately cure them.

We present to the public unsolicited tsteimonials from some of the first men in our country, upon whose judgment and experience implicit confidence may be placed.

NORWICH April 26, 1846

DR. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Agreeable to the request of your agent, we will cheerfully state what we have known of the effects of your CHERRY PECTORAL, and they have been astonishing indeed. Mrs. Betsy Streeter had been afflicted with a severe and relentless cough, which reduced her very low; so low that little hope could be entertained of her recovery. Numerous remedies had been tried without effect before the CHERRY PECTORAL And that has cured her. George Watkinson Esq, had to our knowledge ben afflicted with Asthma, for eleven years, and grown yearly worse, until the CHERRY PECTORAL has now removed the disease and he is as free from any of its symptons as we are. The Rev. Mark Dane had been so severely attacked with the Bronchitis, as to disable him from his duties, and nothing had afforded him relief until I (Mr Thorning) carried him a bottle of your PECTORAL, which cured him at once, and he now officiates as usual in his place

These are three of the cases in which we have known it succesful, but never to fail. We have great pleasure in certifying to these facts; and are, respected sir, your humble servants

REV. DAVID THORRING.
HON JOSEPH BATTLES

Among the distinguished authorities who have given their names to recommend CHERRY PECTORAL, as the best remedy that is known for the Affections of the Lungs, are "The London Lancet," "Canadian Journal of Medical Science," "Boston Medical and Surgical Journal," "Charleston (S C) Medical Review," "New Jersey Medical Reporter," Prof WEBSTER, Harvard College, Prof BARTLETT, Transylvania University of Medicine, President PERKINS, Vermont Medical College, Dr VALENTINE MOTT, New York City, PARKER CLEVELAND, Bowdoin College, Prof BUTTERFIELD, Woodbury College, Ohio, Prof BRAITHWAITE, Leeds (Eng) Medical School, Sir RICHARD KANE, Queen's College, Ireland, Prof Rosenbaum, Leipsic

The public have but to know the virtues and astonishing success of the "CHERRY PECTORAL," in curing diseases of the Lungs, when they will feel secure from these dangers, whenever this remedy can be obtained.

MECHANICAL MEDICINE.

Dr. Banning, formerly of this city, asks to announce that he has returned to 341 Broadway; for consultation and management of weakneses of the vocal, pulmonary, digestive, nervous, spinal and female systems; and also of the drooping, languor and physical deformities, which are so destructive of both health and beauty at the present day.

As these and kindred maladies are usually the result of a violation of the laws of physical organization, he will treat them chiefly by those exercises, mechanical appliances and reformatory habits of body, in conjunction with hydropathy galvanism and other discoveries of the day, which, united with the cooperative efforts of the subject, are calculated to relieve and restore the energies of the suffering and neglected organs.

Having spent several years in traveling for investigation and practical experiment on the subject, he has, at length, greatly improved and multiplied his surgical and mechanical appliances for the purpose. In addition to his new supports for female and spinal weaknesses, are some combining the properties of a universal hernial truss and an effective general support, with which he challenges cases of general debility, constipation, piles and prolapsus, ani, leucorrhea, prolapsus uteri and every variety of hernia

The distinctive peculiarity of these devices is, that they do not weaken or restrain the motions or growth of the suffering parts, but act imitatively and concordantly with the mathematical genius of the body's forces. Hence, by a most comfortable and gentle pressure, they at once give great support and render the oppressed system eligible to its own restoration.

Feeble invalids coming from a distance will command prompt and faithful attention.

For more definite information, see his revised edition of "Animal Mechanics," and also his circular, which will be sent gratuitously when requested.

His improved body-braces, spinal supports and supporter trusses applied at his office (341 Broadway) and to be had wholesale and retail- City and country physicians and druggists are invited to call and examine Office hours from 9 A. M to 1 P M [121.

FOR FEMALES AND MALES

Dr. Lazzetti's Juno Cordial, or Protective Elixir.

This is the only actual remedy ever discovered for impetency, Genital Debility, Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases occasioned by certain secret habits; and many of the nostrums recently recommended for the same complaints are worthless imitations which its unrivalled excellence, fame and popularity have brought into the market. The Medical Faculty of Europe and the United States are unanimous in their recommendations of the Juno Cordial and have not given their sanction in a single instance that has been authenticated, to any compound for the same purposes The nature of the maladies relieved by the Juno Cordial are generally such as to leave the publication of certificates of cures out of the question, or the proprietor could produce a host of the most conclusive testimony to show that the great reputation that it enjoys was not accidentally obtained, but is firmly based upon its positive, and apparently miraculous virtues In all directions are to be found the happy parents of healthy offspring, who would not have been so, but for this extraordinary preparption. And it is equally potent in the many diseases for which it is recommended Objection has been naturally made to the price of the Juno Cordial, because the trash that has been thrown into the market in opposition to it is sold cheaper; but the facts, the Cordial cannot be afforded for less, and ought to be much dearer, as many of the ingrecients which compose it are among the costliest things in nature; whereas the others are made up of cheap things, worth but little in money, and less in merit. We assure the reader that the utmost reliance may be placed on the Juno Cordial in the cure of the maladies mentioned above, and also those that follow, viz: Loss of Muscular Energy, Physical Lassitude and General Prostration, Irritability, and all Nervous Affections, Indigestion, Sluggishness of the Liver, Gleet, Leucorrhoea or Whites, and Flour Albus and every disease in any way connected with the disorder of the Procreative Functions—in all of which it will afford almost immediate relief, and, if used as directed, is almost certain to produce a positive and permanent cure Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness or disability of a certain nature, should take this Cordial, as it will infallibly restore health and vigor in a brief period, and where want of offspring is a cause of regret, if recourse be had to it the most beneficial results may be anticipated with confidence It is of priceless value to those without off-spring It has taken the precedence in Italy and will in all other countries where it may become known

It also possesses the unrivalled qualities of curing incipient Consumption, and I have administered it with great success to patients who have sought our delightful climate for the restoration of their health and the result is that a medicine has been added to the catalogue for the cure of insipient consumption.

To spread wide the blessings of this medicine, I have appointed Messrs Judson & Co, of the City of New York, in the United States of America, my sole Agents for its sale; and none can be genuine unless it comes through them, and their signature is on the weapper

HERMANVILLE.

ONLY $25 for a HOMESTEAD — 22 Farms woth over $8,500, and 6,400 LOTS, to be distribnted among 800 subscribers. Each subscriber is entitled to 8 lots, 25 by 100 feet lying together, or a PRIZE FARM of from 4 to 20 acres. The shares are limited at $25—payable—$5 when subscribed for, $5 on day of distribution, and balance in monthly installments of $3. About 700 shares are now subscribed.

The Lots are situated in the village of HERMANVILLE, one mile east of Lake Road Station, on the Long Island Railroad, County of Suffolk, and 50 miles from the city of New-York. It is one of the healthiest places in the United States, within one mile of Ronkonkoma Lake, which is about three miles in circumference, of singular transparency and of great depth, with an abundance of fish. The village is but 4 miles distant from the great South Bay which is 5 miles wide and 40 miles long, abundantly supplied with oysters, clams, and fish of various kinds.

These lands will produce as much per acre, with the same cultivation, as any land within fifty miles of New-York. The Suffolk County Agricultural Society, at a meeting on 24th September, 1850 awarded premiums for the production of these lands as may be seen by the following letter:

(Copy)
LAKE ROAD, Oct. 23th, 1850.

I certify that I have raised during the past season the very best of Corn and Potatoes 150 bushels per acre; Egg Plants, and a variety of garden vegetables, on land near the Long Island Railroad at Lake Road from which I received a premium at the Suffolk County Agricultural Fair, held September 24 1850.

Also, Peas, Beans, Onions, Squashes, Pumpkins, Beets and Tomatoes. Your's,
(Signed) IRA L'HOMMEDIEU.
To CHARLES WOOD, 117 John-st N. Y.

Hermanville is located on the borders of the Long Island Railroad, where cars run several times a day to Brooklyn and New-York. The surface of the land is smooth and level, and the surrounding country is perfectly healthy, and within a few miles of this place, highly cultivated and valuable, having been settled for more than 150 years, and where similar lands sell from $50. to $200 per acre.

The distribution will take place in a few days by a Committee to be selected by the Subscribers from among their number. The person having the first choice will be entitled, for $25 only, to a 20 acre Farm worth $1,000; the second to an 18 acre Farm, worth $900; the third, a 16 acre Farm, worth $800; the 4th, a 14 acre Farm, worth 700; the 5th, a 12 acre Farm, worth $600; the 6th a 10 acre Farm, worth $500; the 7th and 8th, each an 8 acre farm, worth $400; the 9th, 10th and 11th, each a 6 acre Farm, worth 300; the 12th, 13th, 14th, and 15th each a 5 acre Farm, worth $250; the 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th, and 20th, each a 4 acre Farm, worth $200; and all the others will be entitled to 8 Village Lots, each 25 by 100 feet lying together. There are no blanks—this is not a lottery—every person gets for $25 a hadsome Lot of Ground equal to 8 city lots.

Manner of Distribution of Hermanville Lots and Prize Farms.—The manner of distribution will be as follows: All the numbers on the Map, from 1 to 800, will be put into a wheel, and the first number drawn from the wheel, will be entitled to the first Prize, and, if the first number so drawn or taken out of the wheel happens to be 250 or 275, then the person on the subscription list, who holds or owns the subscription number of 250 or 275, or whatever the corresponding number may be, will be entitled to the first Prize Farm, and so proceeding until all the numbers are drawn out.

The lands are as good as represented, and as good as any land on the Island, and when cultivated, will produce in the highest degree.

The land was once heavily timbered; some portions are now covered with a thrifty growth of young wood, oak and pine. Wood is plenty and generally cheap in that part of the Island. Fire-wood is cheap, that which is suitable to be cut into cord-wood, for the New-York market, is of uniform price, and has for a great many years been always considered a cash article on the Island.

There is material on the land for common fencing—good chestnut rails can be had within a few miles of these lands in abundance. All building materials can be had at the depots of Brooklyn and Greenport, and at many intermediate places, at the usual market prices. There are numerous streams of water rising in these new lands, and running into the Great South Bay, which are remarkable for their purity, and never fail; indeed, dry weather makes very little change in them; they are unfailing, and wells are of various depths, probably over these new lands in the middle region of the Island, the average depth will be about 25 feet, at Hermanville as the ground is higher they are deeper.

There are now churches and schools within two or three miles of the village, and within four miles, mills, factories, stores and villages. All the privileges of an old settled country are to be had here, and the people of Suffolk County pride themselves on being a highly moral, orderly and religious people. All of my subscribers are persons of respectability.

The land can be very easily cleared, and the cost of settlement will depend almost entirely upon the settler, he can lay out as much or as little as he chooses. I do not know of any objections to the place or to the land for a settlement, and the same labor and industry which make successful and prosperous settlement in other parts of the country, bestowed upon these lands cannot fail to produce favorable results.

The climate is in every particular healthy and pleasant—the roads are good and always passable, at all seasons of the year—the Winters are short and mild, compared to the Winters on the main, to the north of the Highlands—there is seldom sleighing more than two or three weeks on the Island.

What is remarkable, a crop is seldom injured by drouth—there is no part of the country where there is so little injury from drouth as on Long Island, nor is there any injury from wet—there is no wet or cold land on the island. All the land along the margin of the streams can be made highly valuable at a small cost, for there is no such thing as a flood or freshet, as in the interior part of the country, by which often very great damage is done—such an event as the carrying off a bridge, or the breaking of a mill dam, with great damage is almost unheard of on Long Island. The streams and bays abound in fish and wild fowl in great abundance, and every variety.

☞ In consequence of the great number of letters from all parts of the country, desiring information of these lands, it has been found necessary to answer them in this form.

☞ Apply to THOS. WOOD, Stationer, 117 JOHN-STREET, near Pearl, or CHARLES WOOD, at the same place, either of whom will receive remittances and forward receipts therefor by return of mail. They will gratuitously furnish maps and pamphlets of the property, and cheerfully give such other information as may be desired.

Inaugural Address of

GOVERNOR FORT.

Gentlemen of the Senate and General Assembly:

Chosen by the free and voluntary suffrages of the people to exercise the functions of Chief Magistrate of the state, I have appeared in your presence to-day and taken the solemn obligations prescribed by law, preliminary to the due performance of my official duties.

Under ordinary circumstances, the position I occupy requires knowledge to appreciate, discretion to discharge, and assiduity to fulfil its importance and responsible duties. These qualifications are in a higher degree essential in the present state of the country, which has but recently recovered from an agitation unparalelled in our history; to calm it, the wisdom and patriotism of our most eminent legislators and citizens have been required. It is to be fervently desired that the crisis has passed, yet the murmurs of discontent are still heard, and will claim the active energies of official incumbents, both state and national, to repress.

In addition, to questions of a national aspect, the present period may be considered as the commencement of a new era in our state affairs. A variety of movements in the current of public opinion has been for some time tending in a direction to give force, effect and permanency to certain measures, which will demand attention during the present session of your respective Houses.

Deeply sensible, therefore, of the responsibilities of my position, and of the elevated character of the duties I shall be called upon to discharge, in assuming them, I can only promise my utmost efforts, aided by the blessing of God, to enable me to execute the trust which the people of the state have so generously confided to me.

It may not be deemed inappropriate, if, in conformity to established usage, my own sense of duty, and the just expectations of my constituents, I avail myself of the opportunity presented to make known my sentiments in a general manner, on such questions of state and national policy, as are of primary interest.

We live under a state constitution, the obvious design of which, in its main provisions, is to secure and perpetuate those rights and privileges naturally belonging to man in his individual character. The institutions of government should be provided alone by the people, either in their collective or representative capacity, for their own benefit, and be subject to alteration or improvement, according to the will of the political body. Among the essential rights of which no citizen can, or ought to be deprived, are—religious liberty—freedom in the expression of opinions—impartial justice, and personal liberty, and security, when not infringing upon the rights of others.

Citizenship and certain privileges should be regulated by wise laws; but provisions of law should not exist inhibiting one class of citizens of prileges possessed by another class—or imposing unequal burdens in support of the common weal—or vesting power for selfish purposes in one or more citizens, while the same is denied to others, or releasing from liabilities and obligations a class of citizens and associations, while upon others they are imposed in full force.

These are fundamental principles, a departure from which is detrimental to the best interests of the people. Let us avoid a course of policy which tends to favor classes and enact such laws as will be equal and beneficial in their operation.

Our beloved state, to which we feel so strongly attached, for whose interest and advancement we would perform so much, though small in territory and population in comparison with many others, is possessed of influence and power, which may be exerted for good, or for evil, in affecting the future destiny of our country.

With an immunity from debt, and abundant resources; with the various branches of industry, in the main, in a flourshing condition—our agriculture constantly improving, and the increasing fertility of our soil affording an amount of products beyond our immediate necessity—our manufacturing establishments, mining operations, the mechanic arts, and other industrial pursuits yielding an adequate reward,—a condition of things is presented which constitute a sufficient guaranty that our abilities are equal to our wants, and that we may with safety embark in enterprises promotive of the happiness of the people and the prosperity of the State.

Among the measures to wich your attenion is particularly invited, the cause of education occupies the most prominent place. It is a subject upon which a variety of opinions has been advanced, prompted by motives which operate more or less strongly upon the human mind, and tending to divided action and consequent imperfection in our present educational plan.

We are deeply impressed with the sentiment, that virtue and intelligence are the main support of our free institutions. The diffusion of knowledge among the people tends to their stability and permanence, and being so essential to the welfare of the community, measures should be adopted by which its acquisition may be free.

Knowledge, put into active operation by a well-trained mind, exerts a powerful influence on human destiny. To this we are indebted for the great improvements of the age. We must look to it for developments yet more astounding. Who shall set bounds to its achievements? Who shall fathom its depths? Who shall scan its heights? Who shall estimate its capacity? "Mind is power." How important, then, to instruct it, that it may take a right direction—to give it nutriment, that it may grow and thrive and produce wholesome and abundant fruit.

That education should be universal, and its blessings and advantages so extended as to be attainable by children of every condition in life, is a proposition which we suppose none will venture to controvert. To reach this object it is necessary that we should establish a thorough and permanent system of FREE SCHOOLS. The measure is due to the wants of a hundred thousand children in our state, many of whom lack the means of education. It is due to the safety and perpetuity of our institutions—to the peace and prosperity of the common wealth—to our character as a state, and especially to the wishes of the people, which have been so decidedly expressed in its favor.

Such a system should be simple, yet certain; devoid of complexity and unnecessary details—a sure outline for the people to fill up, perfect and finish. It should effectually provide that common school instruction shall henceforth be free.

Though the establishment of free schools may operate onerously upon some individuals for a temporary period, they with the whole community, must feel the benefit, eventually, in the decrease of crime and vagrancy, the improvement of public morals, and the general increase of industrious habits among the people.

Our present school funds now amounting to about four hundred thousand dollars, is the gradual accumulation of some thirty years. It has been derived from the moneys of this state, invested in the public stock of the United States, in banks, and other corporations; with stated increments from taxes imposed upon their capital stock, and from miscellaneous sources. It is worthy of being noted that by "the act to create a fund for the support of free schools," passed the 12th day of February, 1817, it was provided, that "one-tenth part of all moneys hereafter to be raised by tax for the use of the state, shall be appropriated for the purpose of creating a fund for the support of free schools." It will thus be perceived that the principle of imposing a tax for educational purposes was early introduced into our state legislation.

The Legislature of that day anticipated the gradual augmentation of the school fund, until it attained an amount sufficient for universal education.—The State has now the ability to realize those proper anticipations, by diverting the chief portion of the revenue annually derivable from our public works to such purposes. If to this be added the present annual distribution, together with the interest accruing from the surplus revenue of the United States, which is distributed among the several townships, they would make a sum sufficient, when united with the amount which the townships are, or should be required by law to raise, to enable the trustees of each school district to keep open a school throughout the year. Or if deemed preferable, the trustees may be authorized to make a just and equitable assessment on the inhabitants of their respective districts, for the purpose of supplying any deficiency in the provisions made by the State.

It may be contended, that the revenue derived from our public works should constitute a sinking fund for their ultimate redemption. Should such a fund be created, and by the accumulations of fifteen years amount to a sum sufficient to induce the Legislature to propose the purchase to the people, who can predict their verdict? Should it be adverse to the purchase, the State would hold a fund hoarded through a series of years, while the rising generation are growing up without due provision for their instruction, and destitute of that intelligence which would enable them properly to decide the important question then to be submitted to them in reference to these works. Let us rather employ the means at our disposal to qualify their minds to discharge the responsible duties which shortly devolve upon them, than to suffer them to grow up in ignorance, while accumulating a fund, subject to all the contingencies of waste, loss and mismanagement, and thereby prolong the period when education shall be freely and universally extended.

There is a necessary dependence between free schools and an elevated state of agriculture. The matter next in importance to the due training of the mind, would seem to be the cultivation and improvement of the soil.

That the latter will result from a proper attention to the former, we may infer. It is a subject which has occupied the best minds of the country. The recent application of chemical science to the elucidation of the best methods by which soils may be redeemed and improved, has imparted an impetus to agricultural operations in some states, and led to the adoption of various means for their advancement. The institution of some judicious plan for the dissemination of knowledge among the farmers of this State, of such character as to excite them to an efficient application of their time and energies to promote an increase in amount and value of the products of the soil, is recommended as worthy of careful consideration.

The object of taxation is the support of government. That is necessary to public and personal security, the maintenance of good order and the advancement of society. To the attainment of such objects no citizen can justly complain, if he is called upon to contribute his fair quota in proportion to his means. If unfairly imposed, taxation becoms oppression, and he may properly demand redress of the grievance.

There is no subject which more urgently claims your faithful concern than the Equalization of Taxes. It has for some years engaged the public attention. That our present system of taxation is unequal in its operation, and imposes burdens on landholders and others from which the man of wealth and the capitalist are exempt, is indisputable.

In a country llke ours, where the blessings and advantages of government are equally enjoyed by all—ware persons and property are equally protected, it is just and equitable that each member of the community should contribute to its support, in proportion to the amount of his estate, whether it be real or personal. This principle of imposing taxes has been adopted by many states, and is imperatively demanded by every consideration of justice and equality. It would be a fit prelude to the institution of measuses for the advancement of popular education.

Let me earnestly commend to your favorable consideration the total abolition of property qualifications. There is no just reason why the possessor of land should enjoy privileges of which his fellow citizen—his equal—perhaps his superior in all other respects, is deprived. The non-freeholder is ineligible to the honors and emoluments of many important offices which should be equally open to all. Neither can he sit upon a jury in any case, even where the right to real property is not involved in the issue. Statutes which sanction these odious distinctions among freemen should be speedily abrogated. The progressive spirit of the age demands that they should be placed in the same category with those obsolete laws which have long since been repudiated by an enlightened public sentiment.

All applications for special privileges and monopolies should be discarded. General Laws, judiciously framed, embracing subjects of the same class should be enacted, so as to enable all citizens under proper restrictions and guaranties, to avail themselves of the benefits they may confer.

When a member of the convention which formed the constitution of this State, I had the honor of voting in a minority upon a proposition asserting the principle of personal liability of stockholders in banks and other chartered companies. I still entertain a strong conviction of the justice, expediency and necessity of enactments establishing that principle. In the ordinary transactions of life, each individual is bound by law and honor, to discharge his just debts. In the relations of partnership it is a general rule, that as well the individual as the firm, is bound by the engagements of any one partner, acting with referece to the joint business. No considerations, promotive of the public good, require that chartered corporations should be exempted from the like sound regulations of law.

The application of this rule seems to be especially required in regard to banking institutions. Their bills circulate freely in proportion to the confidence entertained by the public in their probable redemption, and though essentially private paper, and the accepting of them in payments optional, they are practically and virtually a legal tender. The currency of the country consists in great part, of their notes, which are taken and used by citizens of every condition in life, many of whom are unable to form any estimate of their value or genuineness, and are generally severe sufferers by the failure of banks. It therefore seems to be the duty of government to take measures to render their issues really and substantially good. It may be effected by compelling all issuers of bank notes to give ample security for their payment, under judicious regulations, which shall be applicable to all existing banks, and to such as may be organized in conformity to the provisions of a general law.

A measure of this kind would effectually prevent those frequent fluctuations in the amount and value of the currency, which lead to sudden and destructive revulsions in trade.

I would suggest whether a similar mode of securing the public against losses occasioned by the failure of certain other chartered associations, might not wisely be adopted.

The laws in relation to debtor and creditor, until within a recent period, have been harsh and inhuman. Acting in accordance with the benign spirit of the age, the framers of our present constitution, with entire unanimity, abolished that cruel relic of barbarism—imprisonment for debt. By statute, a certain amount of property had already been exempted from execution, and at the date of its enactment, was generally considered wise and salutary.

An act of Exemption, more liberal and comprehensive in its scope, which shall secure to our citizens, without molestation, a sufficient amount of real and personal estate, to maintain them in possession of homes and firesides, and relieve them of the apprehension of poverty and want, would be dictated by sound policy, and a due regard for the well-being and happiness of man. Such legislative contributions as will aim to elevate our race to the highest attainable point of comfort and civilization, are demanded by an enlarged philanthropy, positive duty, and divine precept.—"All things whatever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

In this connexion, permit me to recommend a statuary provision, which shall limit to ten, the hours of daily labor on public works, or in establishments chartered by law. Constant and unremitting toil prevents intellectual improvement, and leads to physical and moral debasement. The avoidance of it, when compatible with proper business operations, is emphatically demanded by considerations of humanity and justice.

Infant laborers in factoires, should also be protected from such exactions as are calculated to destroy their physical and mental capacity for health and usefulness. This is a notorious and acknowledged evil; especially in the manufacturing districts of Great Britain, France and some other countries of Europe. The close confinement, the severe and protracted toil to which laborers, adults, and children, are here subjected, in connection with the low rate of wages, the consequent meagreness of fare and uncomfortable condition of their homes, prostrates with sure celerity, all their powers of body and mind, and necessarily terminates in confirmed vagrancy and pauperism. It is our duty to guard against the occurrence of such evils within our jurisdiction.

Economy and retrenchment in the expenditure of public money, is earnestly recommended. Enterprises of doubtful policy shoul be avoided, and such only sanctioned as promise to make a certain return in benefits to the people.

The "veto power," as it is usulally termed, is incorporated in our State Constitution. It confers upon the Executive the privilege of returning, with his rsasons thsrefor, such bills as may have passed the two Houses of the Legislature, for their reconsideration. The same bills may be repassed by the constitutional number of votes, and become laws without the Executive sanction.

The exercise of the right may in some instances operate as a check to hasty legislation—arrest the passage of acts of an unconstitutional character, or such as encroach upon the just rights of other departments. Viewed as a means of awakening the attention of the people to the consideration of great public questions, where the Legislative and Executive Departments are at issue, its effect would promise to be highly beneficial. I shall not shrink from the duty of exercising the perogative, should the exigency arise requiring it.

I have heretofore, in a public capacity supported propositions to authorize the election of Judges by the people. All powers which the people can safely and conveniently exercise, should be retained by them. In all the departments of a free government, they should enjoy the privilege of electing their own officers. They are the safest and best appointing power, and will in all cases take the best care of their own interests. The proper functions of such agents as are now entrusted with the appointing power, are inconsistent therewith, and must be exercised under all the embarrassments created by rivalry, friendly importunity, and partizan and sectional claims.

Believing that such a measure would operate as a check to favoritism and corruption, I have no hesitation in advising, that inceptive steps be taken, to restore to the people the unrestrained use of this, their rightful franchise.

The obligation we have taken to support the Constitution of the United States, should remind us of our relations and duties to the Federal Union.

It is not the province of a State to legislate on subjects of national policy; nor can it rightly oppose the laws of the general Government. By the the provisions of the federative compact, each State is confined to its own apropriate sphere of action and duty, without any other restraint upon its rights of sovereignty, than such as have been yielded for the general advantage.

Though our State has no direct voice in the National Councils, she has the right, and it is her duty, "through the representatives here, to make known her wishes and opinions, to her representatives there," who, as her authorized agents should faithfully conform to her will.

From our earliest history as a nation, to the present time, difficulties have occasionally beset our path. They have ever yielded to the prudence, intelligence and patriotism of the people.

The passage during the first Session of the present Congress of the series of measures known as "the Compromise laws," was eminently conducive to the restoration of tranquility and fraternal feeling between the North and the South. Whatever difference of opinion may exist in regard to them, it is the duty of every citizen to sustain and carry out their enactments. They originated in the purest devotion to the spirit and provisions of our fundamental law. Emanating from an exalted love of country, worthy of the republic, they are entitled to our unfaltering support.

The doctrine of refraining from any interference with the domestic policy of our sister States we sacred entertain. Should this just principle be maintained, any attempt to agitate the subject of slavery will find no encouragement in our midst. It is our plain duty to fulfil that stipulation of the constitution which requires that "No person held to service or labor in one State, under the laws thereof, escaping into another, shall, in consequence of any law, or regulation therein, be discharged from such service or labor, but shall be delivered up, on claim of the party, to whom such service or labor may be due."

The recent act of congress in relation to the rendition of "fugitives from labor," is intended to give force and practical effect to this provision of our organic law, and is valid and binding upon us. It is in accordance with the evident intendment of the constitutional compact of these United States; the peace, stability and union of which cannot be preserved without it. Open resistance to its mandates would be rebebellion against the Government. A failure properly to support it on the part of public officers, or citizens, would be a violation of legal obligations. As a law of the land, its authority is supreme. We should suffer no sectional prejudice—no fanatical spirit—no metaphysical opinion—no false philanthropy—no misconception of public sentiment—no fear of personal consequnces, to deter us from sustaining the law, and execution of the same, by all lawful means.

Our State enactments upon the subject should be conformable to the laws of Congress, and should they in any wise conflict therewith it will be our duty to repeal them.

New Jersey has ever been loyal to the Union and stood faithfully to the Constitution and its compromises. She still occupies that exalted position, and is ready to plight her faith to the UNION now, and the UNION forever.

Unaffected by exterior influences, in a devout spirit of patriotism, let us declare our unwavering attachment to the Magna Charta of our rights, liberty and independence—our determination to preserve it as an invaluable legacy, bequeathed us by our fathers, and to transmit it unimpared to future generations.

On this sacred spot, hallowed by the memory of brilliant achievements, let us renew our pledges to the Union, and, on our part, firmly resolve: in the memorable language of an American patriot—"OUR FEDERAL UNION—IT MUST AND SHALL BE PRESERVED"

We are deeply interested in a proper adjustment of the Revenue Laws. Duties should be laid upon imposts in sufficient amount to supply the wants of the Treasury, adapted to an economical administration of the government. They should be so adjusted as to favorably affect domestic industry in its largest scope, embracing our commercial, agricultural, manufacturing, and other interest, in such manner as to aid no one interest, to the detriment of the rest.

The tariff act of 1846, in its main provisions, and the principles upon which it is based is correct.

It has not only yielded an abundant revenue, both for ordinary and extraordinary purposes, but has given greter satisfaction to the whole country, than any similar act which has proceedd it. It is believed however, that in some of its provisions, wholesome modifications may be made; especially in relation to the manufacture of iron, and some other interests the further encouragement of which without infringing the principle of the act, would be directly promotive of the prosperity of the State.

The land laws of the United States need essential alterations. Speculation in the Public Lands should be prohibited. Sales to individuals in large quantities should cease. The disposition of them should be so regulated that a limited freehold, or homestead shall be permanently secured to actual settlers, not possessed of other lands, at a nominal price.

Such regulations would largely contribute to human advancement—equalize the possession of real property—prevent the monopoly of the soil by a priviledged class, and supply our country with a bold and hardy yeomanry—her pride in peace—her defence in war.

I have thus, in a summary manner, presented my views in relation to a variety of topics of public concern. Upon most of them, my opinions were openly avowed during the canvass preceeding my election. In a representative capacity, I had evinced my position in regard to others. Chosen by the people, with a full knowledge that I entertained them, I shall not hesitate to aid in giving them effect.

If adopted, they will rectify many antiquated wrongs—restore to the people those rights and privileges of which they have been long deprived—ameliorate their condition in all the relations of life—impart a new and salutary impetus to the progessive tendencies of the age—equalize the burthens as well as the advantages of government—elevate the character and moral power of our State—and give peace and concord to our glorious Union.

The people have demanded that they should be established on a legal and permanent basis. Let us obey their high behests, reflect their clearly expressed will, and inscribe upon our Statute book our faithfulness, as it will be our truth and our honor.

In conclusion, I avail myself of the occasion to express my profound obligations and unfeigned gratitude to the people for the distinguished favor they have conferred upon me. My constant aim under all circumstances, will be to deserve it, by employing my best efforts "to promote the peace and prosperity, and maintain the lawful rights of the State.

In aid of which, I solicicit the co-operation of all good citizens, and of each department of the government.

And I do especially invoke, upon your labors and mine, the assistance and blessings of Him, whose watchful eye is over all his works—who ruleth in the Heavens and upon the earth,—in whose sight a nation, by righteousness, is exalted, and a people, by sin, is reproached—that He would vouchsafe unto us His continued favor, and enable us in wisdom, justice and truth, to discharge our every official duty.

To Doctors of the Lower Law.

A CASE OF COSCIENCE.

MESSRS. EDITORS: I have lately listened with much interest to the able and eloquent sermon of Rev. Dr. A, on obedience to the Law and the Constitution. As I am at this time in a peculiar and perplexing situation, and as the principles of that discourse may throw some light upon the path of duty, I beg leave to state my situation to that reverend gentleman, and ask his advice and direction.

About three months ago my son and daughter were on board the brig Liberty on her voyage from Boston to Smyrna. While off the coast of Tunis the vessel was wrecked in a sudden storm, and it was with great difficulty that the passengers and crew escaped to the shore with the loss of all their property. They were immediately seized and enslaved by the Bedouins. My children became the property of a wealthy Turk, who was previously the owner of more than a hundred slaves. My son, who is about twenty-two years of age, was employed as assistant gardener, and though not excessively overworked, was yet in an extremely painful situation, being poorly fed and subject to severe beatings at the caprice of a harsh master. His chief trouble and anxiety, however, were about his sister, who was three years younger than himself, and who, he was told, immediately after they had been purchased in the market and brought to their new home, would in ten days be taken into the harem of their master, and made his ninth wife. This fate seemed to him worse than death. He was told that the law, which had been in force from time immemorial, made all white persons who were shipwrecked on the coast slaves, and permitted the owner to take such females as were young and attractive to his harem.

The new residence of my children was only a mile from the sea, and the situation very naturally led my son to endeavor to contrive some way of escape. he found among his fellow slaves an American sailor who had been in that situation many years, and who had accidentally learned that their master's guns and ammunition were in a room accessible from the outside, and who knew that a sail-boat was kept in a convenient place, and was not guarded. They decided to arm themselves and try to escape at a little after midnight that night. With extreme difficulty my son contrived to see his sister, and engaged her to try to accompany them. Everything seemed to favor them until they found themselves within a few rods of the boat. They then saw they were pursued by their master and another man, who were only armed with swords and clubs. They called to them to stop, and told them that they were lawfully their slaves, and must return with them. My son, who was armed with a gun, fired at his master and killed him, when the other man, discouraged gave up the attempt to recapture them. They soon got on board the boat, and in a few hours were on board an American vessel bound for New-York.

Now I must confess that, until I heard Dr. A.'s sermon, I had not even thought that my son had done wrong in thus escaping from slavery, and rescuing his sister from a situation worse than death. But my views are changed. I now realize that my children were lawfully slaves, and were bound to "submit themselves to their masters." The reasoning of that able discourse is convincing and imperative. My poor children were guilty of resistance to law; and what I at first viewed as justifiable self-defense, I am now compelled to regard as murder. Instead of being grateful to the Captain of the vessel who took them on board and brought them home, I must now regard him an accomplice

What shall my children do? I do not see how they can make any atonement to the law they have broken, except by returning to Tunis and surrendering themselves to justice. My heart is agonized at the thought of the bastinado and the torture which by Tunisan law await my son, and the horrible fate of my pooor daughter. I therefore beg the reverend and learned Doctor to tell me what they ought to do.

CONSCIENCE.

Sound Doctrine.

The following from the Liverpool Mail, discloses an important fact, and no person can deny that this new test of willingness of debtors to pay is based upon common sense.

We were not aware until recently that the books of newspaper publishers are consulted to quite a large extent by people in business, to ascertain the peculiar standing of persons. Debts for newspapers become due once a year, and persons who pay up regularly once a year, for their papers, are considered as prompt men and worthy of confidence. We had a person come into our office, the other day, and ask—

"Do you send the paper now to Mr.—?"

We replied that we did.

"Well," said he, "he owes me £5, and I can't get it; I don't think he's good."

We looked secretly at his accout, and found him paid up. We then replied to the enquirer, "That man is good. Your debt is safe. He may have forgotten it, or something else may have prevented his paying—but he is good."

The man's eyes brightened. Said he, "I have written to several printers, and could not find where he took a paper. I thought of you, and said I would come here;" said he again, after a pause, "This is the way to find out whether people are good. We ascertain what papers they take, and contrive some way to peep into their accounts. Men who are good are sure to pay for their newspapers; and if they do not pay for these, we don't think them good." We were forcibly struck by the idea.

"Well," said he, "I will send my bill by the post."

In a few days the person come in again. Said he, "I sent my bill."

"Well, did he pay you?"

"Yes, sir," and opening his hand he showed us the draft. "There," said he, "give me a printer's book after all, to tell whether a man's good, they're a comple thermometer; we always know a man to be bad if he don't pay the printer."

When has a man a right to scold his wife about his coffee? When he has sufficient grounds.

Public Library and Reading Room.

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, a respectable number of the citizens of Plainfield met, pursuant to notice given, at the Methodist Church for the consideration of this subject. The meeting was called to order by the Rev. Mr. Perry, and organized by appointing Elston Marsh Esq., Chairman, and Alfred Berry Esq., Secretary.

After listening to an interesting address from Rev. Mr. Sheldon, showing forth the advantages to be derived therefrom, it was unanimously voted that it was expedient that such an institution should be established.

On motion of Zachariah Webster Esq. it was unanimously voted to raise $3000 by a joint stock to be devoted to this object, which could then be sustained by yearly subscriptions &c.

A committee of five were appointed to draw up a plan and draft a constitution to be submitted to a future meeting, which they are authorized to call for its consideration.

A committe of seven was appointed to ascertain the amount of stock individuals would take, as also to secure a general interest therein.

We trust that the above brief notice—all that we have room for—will not be considered as adequate to the importance of the meeting much less of the suject under consideration.

The Governor's Address.

The inaugural Address of Gov. Fort will be found on onr first page. So far as the measures recently advocated by the people of New Jersey, respecting their rights and privileges, are concerned, it is a straitforward exposition and recommendation of them; so far it is perfectly and consistently democratic and has our hearty approval. But when it denies to one class or the whole people of these United States what it claims for another class or part of the same people, as their inalienable right, declaring that no citizan can or ought to be deprived thereof, then does it repudiate democracy by claiming a "divine right." If the following doctrine therein set forth be the basis of the rights of the people of New Jersey then is it also the basis of the rights of ALL under the government, and it is our duty as the assertors and claimants of the privileges thereunto pertaining to use our utmost enedavors to protect All in the enjoyment of them. The Address says:—

"Among the essential rights of which no citizen can or ought to be deprived, are—religous liberty—freedom in the expression of opinions—impartial justice and personal liberty and security when not infrnging upon the rights of others."

—"Such legislative contributions as will aim to elevate our race to the highest attainable point of comfort and civilization, are demanded by an enlarged philanthropy, positive duty, and divine precept."—"'All things whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them.'"

Yet notwithstanding the assertion that these are the fundamental principles of true democracy and pure religion, and that they are the basis upon which this government is founded, being declared the inalienable right of ALL men as endowed by their Creator, that our allegiance is alone due to it upon its observance and protection of them; yet are they forgotten ere they are are uttered. That they are mere idle declamation, intended to gain the applause of gaping fools, who have not brains to think for themselves, is shown by its approval of a law which entirely subverts them.

It forgets that under this doctrine, which it sets forth as the basis of the rights and privileges of Jerseymen, it also sets forth the right and duty of Slaves to escape from Slavery; that it is their right and duty to use all such means as it is the right and duty of white men to use to accomplish the same object.

It forgets that it is also a duty which we owe to God, ourselves and mankind, to use all means to accomplish this end which we would use, or wish others to use to rescue us or our children from bondage. It forgets that this is "demanded by an enlarged philanthropy, positive duty, and divine precept."

We therefore look upon all such doctrine, let it come from what source it may, when so evidently advocated from selfish motives, as demagogism:—a denial to others of the privileges which we claim for ourselves and which we solemnly declare God has endowed ALL men with, is not democracy—it entirely subverts the principles of Repblican Liberty and pure Christianity, for, "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them," is set at naught. If it is so ought to be applied is it not therefore conclusive evidence that we do not possess the principles of the one or the spirit of the other? The comparison which Christ made of the religion of the Pharisees is herein shown to be strictly applicable to ourselves—"Ye are like unto whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones, and all manner of uncleanness."

THE LEGISLATURE.—We had hoped that after so much ado about special legislation that the present Legislature would have avoided all cause of complaint on this head. When the Whigs were in power the Democrats charged, and justly too, that special legislation was the order of the day; they charged that monopolies of all kinds were granted to a favored few, which constituted a priviledged class; it was also charged that the great monopoly not only controlled the Legislation but defrauded the revenue of the State; loud complaints were also heard about the monopoly of the public printing which it was said by the exorbitant charges therefor, also robbed the public Treasury. But now, when the public had a right to expect better things, what do we now see? Behold! the very resolutions offered at the last session, instructing the committee on printing to advertise and accept proposals of the lowest bidder therefor, which would give the required security for the faithful performance thereof, were promptly put down. So likewise of the Communication of Mr Carey, on the subjet of the Monopoly, although the Report of the Commissioners themselves show the State was defrauded to the amount of some $12,000, and that too without allowing Mr. Carey—the only person fully competent that was prepared to prove their falsity—the privilege of examining the books. Even the privilege of an explanation, although he had saved the State the above sum, was denied him.

Who believes in such Democracy as this? not we, not the people as it will most assuredly be shown. No candid man who has read the report of the commissioners themselves, but must arrive at the conclusion that there was fraud—if not why deny to Mr. Carey the reasonable privilege, the only one too as he stated when making the charges, upon which he relied to establish them; to examine, in the presence and under the supervision of the Commissioners, the books of the company? The only answer that can be given is that there was fraud.

We trust, if there is any virtue or honor in man, that this matter will yet undergo investigation; the last report not only shows the first to be false but it also shows that it has inferred and arrived at conclusions which its own statements does not warrant. Justice as well as courtesy to Mr. Carey, the honor of the State and of our representatives, the interests and rights of the people alike demand a different and more searching investigation than the Report of either Committee shows we have yet had.

We should like to see all special applications—their name is legion—set aside by the introduction of those bills for general laws which were so liberally promised, and which the business so far done if there were no other guide, show to be so much wanted. So long as special applications for anything and everything are received and acted on, so long will special legislation take the place of general laws. If there is a disposition to fulfil the just expectations of the people by the passage of general laws, why not pass a resolution to lay all special applications on the table until such time as Bills for general laws shall be perfected and passed, or not passed. The people await with anxious solicitude the long promised Reform.

For the Plainfield Gazette.

"Civilization."

We have read with some interest, a lecture delivered before the Catholic Institute; New-York, by Rev. J. W. Cummings, D. D.

This divine treats on moral, intellectual, and physical civilization. Italy, he gives a good name, Ireland "the most highly civilized country in Europe." Spain and Portugal is the next best. But when this honest divine comes to treat on the civilization of ("our") America, it is almost entirely out of our vocabulary: we have little, or no claim to civilization "at all at all."

We do not admit that Italy, and Ireland are "the most highly civilized country" in the world, much less Spain and Portugal, even if they are declared so by an "infalliable" who "are able to speak with authority, and whose mission is legitimate." We fear that ignorance, superstition, and bigotry, is taken for moral civilization in all Roman Catholic countrys.

We will admit that we often hear and make contrasts of our glories and advantages compared with our fathers, and the earlier generations of mankind We ridicule and make ourselves merry at their progress in the arts and sciences and in their social and civil economy. But, while we pride ourselves in our superiorities, it might be a useful reflection were we to enter upon an estimate of the superior amount of social happiness and individual comfort which we have really gained. Let us just ask the question, do they bear a fair proportion to the advantages of which we boast? Has our country generally been advanced in individual happiness in a progressive ratio with the rapid advances of what we call civilization—the arts and sciences? We think not. Talk of intellectual civilization! and in the middle of our nineteenth century, look at men, narrow minded, sectarian, bigoted, intolerant and selfish: men who go under the name of Divines; who should set an example for moral civilization, after cultivating the intellectual Divines and laity will oppose all mental—or intellectual improvement unless it is tinctured with the sectarian and narrow dogmas of their own creeds, each denomination will condemn the other "to perdition, but they will not put the brimstone under their own doses;" Roman "orthodox," English "orthodox" and American "orthodox," each has their own definition of civilization.

True civilization comes not of the Roman, or English "orthodoxy" enforced laws of Cardinals and Ministers, independent of the people's will: nor of habits and manners which they may assume, and thus become the rule of social life.

A feeling of fraternity, universally and fully realized is the genuine source of civilization, and where this feeling is recognized and cultivated, there alone will it truly exist and advance As to the arts and sciences, the progress made in them has not been made for the general good, but monopolized for the benefit of a few; and, perhaps, we might assert, that they have been converted in many instances, into a parent of misery. And wealth have become not only the world's tyrant but their master's curse.

Yes, it is a fact history has written and will write on its standing page that, side by side with the boasted refinements in the modes of human life and its observances—with the wonders and disoveries of the human mind in art and science—with the extension of bounderies and the accumulation of wealth: there exists more human ignorance, misery, and suffering, in the present age than in any of the rudest ages which history chronicles So long as intellectual civilization is neglected, the masses will never obtain to moral civilization. The cause is worthy being studied; and, we believe minds of accurate reflection will find it either existing in or connected with that selfish principle which takes the mastery of the natural and kinder feelings of brotherhood, and by bulidng up monopolies of this life's blessings and necessaries, impoverishes the masses of mankind.

We must have civilization, the offspring of the natural sympathies of the heart, and not the creature of imposed laws and customs—the discoveries of mind must be consecrated to the general, and not to any individual good, and Education must become free and distributive in its character before their natural and heaven intended blessings shall indue a happy and contented era. We hope that a general regeneration of the selfish principles will eventually be effected, and the advent of such an era consumated.

What will the present Legislature do? We will see.

J. B. TOMBS.

☞ Rumor reports that there is a pretty strong squinting toward the appintment of John R Thompson as Senator. If the party wish to commit political suicide they could not hit upon a more direct or expeditious method. Neither John R. Thomson or Capt. Stockton should be trusted to put New Jersey into their trowsers pocket again. New Jersey, we trust will be more properly represented than by the appointment of either of these men.

THE LAND OF BREAD.—The quantity of wheat which Ohio raised, in 1850, is set down at thirty millions of bushels, sufficient to supply the wants of that State, and leave a surplus of eighteen millions of bushels. The corn raised is equal to one hundred bushels to each of the two million persons in the State. The surplus of these two articles is equal in value to twenty millions of dollars.

☞ According to the report of the State Treasurer there ard now 29 banks in the State with aggregate capital of $3,754,900 00.

Circulation, Jan, 1, 1851,	$2,584,352 99
Specie,	622,885 49

Surplus account,	60,445 62
Bonds and mortgages, stocks, &c.,	183,468 09
State tax,	18,797 25

By an abstract from the report of the Superintendent of Common Schools it is stated:

That the 20 counties in the State are divided into 182 townships. Reports have been recieved from 170, leaving only 12 to be heard from. Amount appropriated during last year is $151,940 02, being an increase af $32,588 63 over preceding year. Number of children between the ages of 5 and 16 in the State, is 144,182—of these 75,245, have attended school, leaving an increase of 5,192, or 7 1-4 per cent, over the number reported the year preceding.

LIVING WITHIN MEANS.—It is remarkable that China, with a nationality of 4,000 years, and a population for 2,000 years, has never had cause to complain of the misery and distress of her people? Virtually she has no paupers—nor poor. Her infirm or unfortunate have been generally provided for by the state; while her masses have been, and are, the happiest and most independent people on earth. The reason of this lies in the habits of industry and love of peace of the Chinese. They till the earth in every available spot; they drain marshes and earth over waste places; they turn all the riches of the earth to the most practical account; and living peaceably and simply, they have comfort and plenty. No people on earth live so completely within their own means. They have never sought the trade of any country—never have interfered with any other country; but, minding their own business, have grown rich and been wise, when more boasting nations were steeped in poverty and ignorance. Surely, the nations and people of Europe and the Western Hemisphere have yet to learn the art of true living and well governing of the very people to whom they are sending missionaries.

AIDS TO THE GOVERNOR.—The Commander in Chief, Governor Fort, has appointed Garrit S. Cannon, Esq., of Burlington, William M. Force, of Morris, James M. Hannah, Esq., of Salem, and Bernard McCormick, of Essex, his Aids-de-Camp, with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

Syphons to Raise Water over Banks.

Mr. O. P. Laird, a farmer at Oneida Castle, N. Y., writing to the Genessee Farmer, states that he has a syphon in successful operation which conveys water to his house, a distance of sixty-six rods, over a ridge of land sixteen feet high, in half inch lead pipe, No. 1. It is discharged four feet lower than the surface of the water in the spring, and at the rate of eighteen gallons per hour.

Syphons will continue to work, provided they are perfectly-tight, and if there is a moderate amount of fall from the surface of the water in the well to the place of delivery. Water is raised in a syphon on the same principle that it is in the suction pump, and may be elevated to the same height, to wit, thirty-two feet. The objection to raising it very high in a syphon is that air seperates from water when thus raised, and the higher it is drawn the more. It is essential that there should be sufficient current to carry out this air as fast as it is evolved, otherwise it would accumulate and stop the water—Four feet of fall answers the purpose Everything depends on the perfect air tightness of the pipe

SUFFOLK BANK SYSTEM IN NEW YORK.—It is said that a bank with a capital of two millions, is about to be established in New York, under the General Banking Law, to oblige the country banks to redeem their circulation in that city at par. The Suffolk bank in Boston has performed that important office successfully for New England, for about twenty years. It will save many persons an enormous amount of money, now paid for discounts, and will, beside, check the excessive issue of the Banks.

Coinage in the U. S. Mint for 1851.

Gold, 2,261,079 pieces, such as double eagles, eagles, &c., amounting to $27,756,445—nearly 28 millions. Silver, 5,572,879 pieces, amounting to $28,166,045—a little over 28 millions—more silver than gold, yet. The total gold deposits were $33,150,000 of which $31,500,000, was from California. Thus our great Pacific Sister State contributed no less than $2,500,000 every month Three years ago she had not sent a single cent. This is a great country, and can't be fenced in.

BELLS.—The nearer bells are hung to the surface of the earth, other things being equal, the further they can be heard. Franklin has remarked, that many years ago the inhabitants of Philadelphia had a bell imported from England. In order to judge of the sound, it was elevated on a triangle in the great street of the city, and struck, as it happened on a market day, when the people coming to market were surprised on hearing the sound of a bell at a greater distance from the city than they had ever heard any bell before. This circumstance excited the attention of the curious; and it was discovered that the sound of the bell, when struck in the street, reached nearly double the distances it did when raised in the air.

In air sound travels at the rate of from 1,130 to 1,400 feet per second. In water, 4,708 per second. Sound's are distinct at twice the distance on water that they are on land.

TO KEEP DOGS FROM SHEEP.—Sheep will be protectedted from being killed or in any way molested by dogs by putting common sheep-bells upon them—to every 25 sheep put on two bells, which will make sufficient noise to frighten them, as all sheep dogs are cowards and will run away at the first sound.—This fact has been amply tested by many farmers around me. Some who had no bells on their sheep, had many of them killed in one night; others, myself among the number, who had bells on their flocks, were not the least disturbed.

☞ WM. M'GRORTY, 136 William-street, has on hond a very extensive assortment of Carpeting and various other articles of that order, at his spacious and well known Carpet establishment, which for cash can be purchased at a very low price. Those who are in want should pay him a visit before selecting elsewhere. We can highly reccommend him to city and country customers.

An Object of Contempt.—Judge Dick Claiborne, under the old cocked hat, and enormeus perogatives of parish judge, swayed the scepter of Northwestern Louisiana with a potentiality and vigor hardly equalled at the present day by the Czar of Russia. Among the multifarious duties and powers of par'sh judge was that of the auctioneer. He sold all the property of successions in his parish. It happened on one occasion, in selling out the propety of a deceased grocer, that an unruly parishioner disturbed the order of the proceed'ngs. The judge fined him fifty dollars, and sent h'm to jail for contempt of court. An application was made to him by an attorney to remit the fine and release the prisoner, on the ground that there was no contempt of court, as the judge, when fulfilling the duties of an auctioneer, was not a court, and therefore not an object of contempt. The judge drew himself up immediately with all his dignity and conscious power, and replied, "Sir, I'll let you know that I am judge of this parish—judge all the time—judge from the ris'ng of the sun to the go'ng down thereof—and, as such, always an object of contempt."

SEARS' PICTORIAL FAMILY PUBLICATIONS,

Are decidedly the best books that Agents can possibly employ their time in supplying to the people of the United States. They are valuable for reference and should be possessed by every family in this great Republic. There is not a city or town in these United States, even those of small importance, but contains many citizens to whom these works are indispensible. They are adapted to the literary wants of the Christian, the Patriot, the Statesman, and the Domestic Circle—got up in a superior style of art and workmanship; and are not only such books as will sell, but such as an Agent of good principles will feel free to recommend, and willing to see the purchaser again, after they have been bought.

OUR PLAN

The Plan the publisher has so successfully carried out for several years, in the obtaining responsible men as agents, who are well known in their own Counties, Towns, and have time and disposition to circulate good and instructive books among their neighbors and friends. Any person wishing to embark in the enterprise will risk little by sending to the publisher $25 or $50, for which he will receive an assortment as he may direct, at the wholesale Cash Prices.

☞ Enterprising and active men of respectability and good address, would do well to engage in the sale of the above volumes; and all Postmasters, Clergymen, Book Pedlars, and Newspaper Agents, are respectfully requested to act as our Agents. A handsome remuneration allowed to all who engage in their sale. For particulars, address, post paid

"With a rare faculty of expression, obtained by dallying with every form of phrase that can be constructed out of the English vocabulary, and a beautiful freedom of spirit that makes him not ashamed to unfold the depths of his better nature, Mr. Ik Marvel has opened a new vein of gold in the literature of his country."—Harpers New Monthly.

"It clears the head, warms the heart, revivifies the soul. A sweet delir'um excites the senses and makes one imagine himself in other spheres. One is young again. One joys, grieves and feels anew. It penetrates the system and pervades every sense."—Newark Advertiser.

"The first dip into the pages has been like bathing the heart in the flooding memories of other days. the book is worth more than its weight in gold, for the heart language which breathes and glows to the end—no wonder that some have doubted the Bachelorism of the author. Be the real truth as it may, the history of the heart was never so faitfully written."—Auburn Journal.

"A more sweet and tearful product of the heart can scarcely be found in English literature since the days of Mackenzie."—Arthur's Home Gazette.

"It is certainly one of the finest productions of the literary genius of th's country and will be universally read with pleasure and admiration."—Courier and Enquirer.

"If some parts of this book is not poetry—real poetry—equal to anything attached to rythm, we have yet to learn what real poetry is."—Springfeld Republican.

"Quotations give but a faint idea of the depth of feeling, the beautifal and winning frankness, the elastic vigor of the soul and the singular fidelity of expression which characterizes this remarkable volume. Its quaint ingenuity of arrangement is wholly lost in extracts, and in order to enjoy the delicious adaptation of form to sentiment in which it would be hard to name its equal, it must be read as a consummate artistic gem-like whold."—*N. PROFESSOR A. C. BARRY'S TRICOPHEROUS, or Medicated Compound.

For restoring, preserving, and beautifying hair eradicating scurf and dandruff, and curing diseases of the skin, glands and muscles, stings, cuts, bruises, sprains, &c., &c. It has been ascertained by experiment that has produced the same effect in curing disease of the skin, &c., of the Horse and all the animal kingdom.

The following testimonials, selected from hundreds of similar import, will serve to show the value of the preparation, and the estimation in which it is held by those who have given it a trial:

New-York, Sept 22, 1850.

Prof Barry—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted with a cutaneous eruption of the scalp of a most aggravated character for the last sixteen years, and during that period I have had the advice of some of the most eminent physicians, and have tried all the preparations for the hair and skin now known, without the least benefit. I was advised by a friend to try your Tricopherous. I did so, as a last resort, and, to my surprise and gratification, found myself cured in about two months. Such was the violence of the disorder that at times I was partially blind.

Respectfully yours,
G. V. M. RAPELYE, 148 Columbia-st
Brooklyn.

New York, Oct 23d 1850.

Prof Barry—My Dear Sir: About two years ago my hair came out a great deal, and my head was much affected with dandruff. I was told by a friend to try your Tricopherous, and I did so, and to my astonishment my hair was firmly rooted, and all the dandruff disappeared, as the head now shews for itself.

With respect I am your obedient servant,
J. S. TREADWELL, 683 Broadway.

[From the Military & Naval Argus, Nov. 9th.]

There is no remedy for the permanent cure of baldness and diseases of the cranium generally, that has reached the popularity enjoyed by the article known as Professor Barry's Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound. It is extensively used by the upper classes of the community; in almost every nursery in the land it is used in preference to other articles of the kind. It imparts vigor to the roots of the hair, and thus promotes its growth to a remarkable degree. It destroys dandruff and scurf, and yields the hair fine and glossy. It will cure all diseases of the scalp such as scald head, dew worm, and other obnoxious disorderders of the skin: in cheapness, as well as efficacy, it stands unrivaled. It is sold in large bottles, price 25 cents at No 137 Broadway, and at the druggists' generally throughout the United States and Canadas. [123's.

TRY ONE—YES, TRY BOTH.

SOMETHING NEW!

The Subscriber would say to his friends and customers that he has the sole agency for the sale of Crane's Patent Compound Wash Mixture, for Plainfield, also for the North American Electric Washing Fluid, both great labor saving articles in washing, warranted not to injure clothing, and fully to answer the purpose represented. Money will be refunded to those using this fluid and finding it not to answer the purpose intended. All that is needed to recommend the above article is a trial; those who have tested them approve them much. Try one—yes, try both.

Just as I finished writing the above and raised my eyes, I see lying on my shelves and counters, some new and elegant plain and figured DeLaines, Silk and worsted and Silk and Cotton Poplins, of various shades, and some splendid Wool Shawls, to which the attention of the ladies is most respectfully requested.

THE NEW JERSEY

HORSE POWER

Manufacturing Company.

HAVING improved, strengthened and perfected A. D. CRANE'S Patent Horse Power, are now prepared to furnish the same to all who may want.

This Power consists of an endless floor running over a series of pulleys, connected by cranks, without a rack or cog wheel about it: none being required from the fact, that the weight of the horse on the floor or platform causes sufficient adhesion between it and the pulleys to transmit all the power he is able to give. Also by this arrangement the chain is freed from the draught or strain (which cannot be avoided in any other Stall Power) except, what is reqired to pass the floor around. The requisite speed is obtained direct from the machine thereby avoiding a great amount of friction and wear, and lessening the liability to get out of order. They run so easily as to require less than an inch elevation to the foot. A self acting brake is attached by which the motion is kept regular and uniform even when the work is unsteady and irregular.

From the above description it is evident that this is the most simple and efficient Power known.

They are highly recommended by those who have used them, for driving Circular Saws, Lathes, Drilling Machines, Threshers, Grist Mills, Pumps, &c.

The Company have certificates to prove the above and also to show that the Two Horse Power will grind 40 bushels of Corn to Meal (with Platt's Patent Mill.) in a day of ten hours, making it an invaluable Power for the Southern planter as well as others.

It has taken Silver Medals at the different Fairs where exhibited, and the only one given to Horse Powers by the American Institute last fall.

They also furnish Threshers of the most approved construction.

Price of Single Power with Belt, $75; Double do. with Belt, $110; Thresher and Separator, $35.

HERNIA.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.—This disorder, of very frequent occurrence, may be considered as arising through weakness of the abdominal walls, inducing an enlargement in the natural openings formed therein for the transmission of blood and other vessels; such openings being enlarged, permit the escape of bowels or other viscera of the abdomen, devolving hernial swellings or rupture, which most generally occur outwardly, as at the navel, groins and thighs.

The complaint is likely to happen at birth, and therefore should be carefully looked for by those having the charge of children, that it may be arrested and cured promptly. It also occurs at any period of life, to either sex, without regard to the condition or mode of living, and when found, should be attended to without delay—the final penalty being death, and that may be induced through strangulation at any moment.

RUPTURES, are always to be treated with the surgical instruments known as Trusses and Supporters, and these require to be skillfully applied. With this view, the HULL'S TRUSS OFFICE, now established some thirty years, has under the various managers, presented to the public both male and female attendants to apply its instruments directly to the persons, which is preferable in all cases, and has also made improvement at different times, showing that advancement which study and practice only yield toward the relief of this malady.

With much pleasure the fact is now published, that recent improvements BUTLER'S TRUSS PADS have been made, and sufficiently tested upon numerous cases to warrant, through the cures already affected, their submission to the public, as being in adaptation and efficiency superior to any heretofore made known.

These improvements, recently patented, are now being applied at this office, 4 Vesey street, in cases of rupture, gravitation of the bowels, prolapsus uteri, prolapsus ani and piles.

The public may rely upon that care being made in their application, which will most likely tend to the final cure of the several complaints.

Hull's Truss Office, 4 Vesey street, Astor House, opposite St. Paul's Church, New-York.

FREDERICK M. BUTLER, Proprietor.

N. B.—The ladies' department is attended by a female qualified to fit the instruments, having so attended this office for many years.

Children trussed when only two weeks old, and invariably cured. [145's.

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

The annals of medical science, affording as they do ample proof of the power and value of many medicinal agents, have furnished no examples to compare with the sultary effects produced by 'AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL."

The remarkable cures of diseases of the Lungs which have been realized by its use, attested as they are by many prominent professors and physicians in this and foreign lands, should encourage the afflicted to persevere with the strong assurance that the use of the "CHERRY PECTORAL" will relieve and ultimately cure them.

We present to the public unsolicited tsteimonials from some of the first men in our country, upon whose judgment and experience implicit confidence may be placed.

NORWICH April 26, 1846

DR. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Agreeable to the request of your agent, we will cheerfully state what we have known of the effects of your CHERRY PECTORAL, and they have been astonishing indeed. Mrs. Betsy Streeter had been afflicted with a severe and relentless cough, which reduced her very low; so low that little hope could be entertained of her recovery. Numerous remedies had been tried without effect before the CHERRY PECTORAL And that has cured her. George Watkinson Esq., had to our knowledge ben afflicted with Asthma, for eleven years, and grown yearly worse, until the CHERRY PECTORAL has now removed the disease and he is as free from any of its symptons as we are. The Rev. Mark Dane had been so severely attacked with the Bronchitis, as to disable him from his duties, and nothing had afforded him relief until I (Mr Thorning) carried him a bottle of your PECTORAL, which cured him at once, and he now officiates as usual in his place.

These are three of the cases in which we have known it succesful, but never to fail. We have great pleasure in certfying to these facts; and are, respected sir, your humble servants

REV. DAVID THORRING.
HON. JOSEPH BATTLES.

Among the distinguished authorities who have given their names to recommend CHERRY PECTORAL, as the best remedy that is known for the Affections of the Lungs, are "The London Lancet," "Canadian Journal of Medical Science," "Boston Medical and Surgical Journal," "Charleston (S. C) Medical Review," "New Jersey Medical Reporter," Prof. WEBSTER, Harvard College, Prof. BARTLETT, Transylvania University of Medicine, President PERKINS, Vermont Medical College, Dr VALENTINE MOTT, New York City, PARKER CLEVELAND, Bowdoin College, Prof BUTTERFIELD, Willoughby College, Ohio, Prof BRAITHWAITE, Leeds (Eng) Medical School, Sir RICHARD KANE, Queen's College, Ireland, Prof. Rosenbaum, Leipsic

The public have but to know the virtues and astonishing success of the "CHERRY PECTORAL," in curing diseases of the Lungs, when they will feel secure from these dangers, whenever this remedy can be obtained.

MECHANICAL MEDICINE.

Dr. Banning, formerly of this city, asks to announce that he has returned to 341 Broadway; for consultation and management of weakneses of the vocal, pulmonary, digestive, nervous, spinal and female systems; and also of the drooping, languor and physical deformities, which are so destructive of both health and beauty at the present day.

As these and kindred maladies are usually the result of a violation of the laws of physical organization, he will treat them chiefly by those exercises, mechanical appliances and reformatory habits of body, in coujunction with hydropathy galvanism and other discoveries of the day, which, united with the cooperative efforts of the subject, are calculated to relieve and restore the energies of the suffering and neglected organs.

Having spent several years in traveling for investigation and practical experiment on the subject, he has, at length, greatly improved and multiplied his surgical and mechanical appliances for the purpose. In addition to his new supports for female and spinal weaknesses, are some combining the properties of a universal hernial truss and an effective general support, with which he challenges cases of general debility, constipation, piles and prolapsus, ani, lencorrhea, prolapsus uteri and every variety of hernia

The distinctive peculiarity of these devices is, that they do not weaken orrestrain the motions or growth of the suffering parts, but act imitatively and concordantly with the mathematical genius of the body's forces. Hence, by a most comfortable and gentle pressure, they at once give great support and render the oppressed system eligible to its own restoration.

Feeble invalids coming from a distance will command prompt and faithful attention.

For more definite information, see his revised edition of "Animal Mechanics," and also his circular, which will be sent gratuitously when requested.

His improved body-braces, spinal supports and supporter trusses applied at his office (341 Broadway) and to be had wholesale and retail. City and country physicians and druggists are invited to call and examine Office hours from 9 A. M to 1 P. M. [121.

FOR FEMALES AND MALES

Dr. Lazetti's Juno Cordial, or Protective Elixir.

This is the only actual remedy ever discovered for impotency, Genital Debility, Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases occasioned by certain secret habits; and many of the nostrums recently recommended for the same complaints are worthless imitations which its unrivalled excellence, fame and popularity have brought into the market. The Medical Faculty of Europe and the United States are unanimous in their recommendations of the Juno Cordial and have not given their sanction in a single instance that has been authenticated, to any compound for the same purposes. The nature of the maladies relieved by the Juno Cordial are generally such as to leave the publication of certificates of cures out of the question, or the proprietor could produce a host of the most conclusive testimony to show that the great reputation that it enjoys was not accidentally obtained, but is firmly based upon its positive, and apparently miraculous virtues. In all directions are to be found the happy parents of healthy offspring, who would not have been so, but for this extraordinary preparption. And it is equally potent in the many diseases for which it is recommended. Objection has been naturally made to the price of the Juno Cordial, because the trash that has been thrown into the market in opposition to it is sold cheaper; but the fact is, the Cordial cannot be afforded for less, and ought to be much dearer, as many of the ingredients which compose it are among the costliest things in nature; whereas the others are made up of cheap dangs, worth but little in money, and less in merit. We assure the reader that the utmost reliance may be placed on the Juno Cordial in the cure of the maladies mentioned above, and also those that follow, viz: Loss of Muscular Energy, Physical Lassitude and General Prostration, Irritability, and all Nervous Affections, Indigestion, Sluggishness of the Liver, Gleet, Lucorrhoea or Whites, and Flour Albus and every disease in any way connected with the disorder of the Procreative Functions—in all of which it will afford almost immediate relief, and, if used as directed, is almost certain to produce a positive and permanent cure. Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness or disability of a certain nature, should take this Cordial, as it will infallibly restore health and vigor in a brief period, and where want of offspring is a cause of regret, if recourse be had to it the most beneficial results may be anticipated with confidence It is of priceless value to those without off-spring. It has taken the precedence in Italy and will in all other countries where it may become known.

To spread wide the blessings of this medicine, I have appointed Messrs Judson & Co. of the City of New York, in the United States of America, my sole Agents for its sale: and none can be genuine unless it comes through them, and their signature is on the weapper

Establishing the Science.

De Boneyville had been electrifying Detroit by his more than galvanic effects upon the muscles of scores of his impressibles, when an enormous Wolverine, "trying the thing" himself, found he was quite equal to the professor, in setting folks to sleep and "makin' 'em cut up" afterward; and, accordingly, in the furor of his discovery, off he went to the country to lecture and diffuse the new light which had been dispensed to him. His succes was tremendous; town and village said there was something in it, until his reputation as in other cases, begat him enemies. The Wolverine Mesmerizer, after astonishing a "hall" full one evening at some very "promising town" or other, and which bade fair, shortly to be "quite a place," returned to the tavern to be arrested in the bar-room by a score of "first citizens," who had then and there congregated, "jest to test the humbug," any how!

"Good evening, Professor," said one

"Won't you take a little of the fluid?" said another, and this being an evident hit in the way of a joke, the "anti-humbugs" proceeded to more serious business.

"Professor," said the principal speaker, a giant of a fellow, before whose proportions even the huge Magnetizer looked small—"Professor," said he, biting off the end of a "plug," and turning it over in his jaws very leisurely, "a few on us here, hev just concluded to hev you try an experiment, appointin' ourselves a reg'lar constituted committe to report"

The professor begged to appoint a more proper place and hour, &, or, according to the apprehensions of "crowd," evinced the evident desire to make "a clean backout."

"Professor," resumed the big dog, "ef we understand you right, you call your mesmerism a remejil agent, which means I s'pose that it cures things?"

The disciple of science referred to several cases about town in which he had been succesful, to say nothing of the "pulling teeth" operation, which had just concluded his lecture with

"Yes," said the challenger, "you're death on teeth, we know: but ken mesmerism come remeejil over the rheumat'z?"

"Inflammatory of chronic?" demanded the professor.

"Wall, stranger, we ain't much given to doctor's bottle names, but we recon it's about the wust kind"

The mesmerizer was about to define the difference between inflammatory attacks and local affections, when he was interrupted by the inquisitor, who rather guessed that as far as the location of the disorder went, it had a pre emption right to the whole critter; and that furthermore, it was just expected of him that he should forthwith visit the case, and bid him take up his bed and walk, or he himself would be escorted out of town, astride of a rail, with the accompanying ceremonies This was a dilemma, either horn of which promised a loss to his reputation, but the crowd were solemnly in earnest. Already triumphing in his detection, they began to look wolfish at him and wise at each other, so that the Wolverine had nothing left for it but to demand boldly "to see the patient." We will give the rest of the story as it was related by the disciple of Mesmer himself:

"Up stairs I went with 'em, mad as thunder, I tell you: first at being thought a humbug, and next, that my individual share of the American Eagle, should be compelled into a measure, by thunder! I'd agin 'em a fight if it had'nt been for the science, which would a suffered, and how: so I jest said to myself, let 'em bring on their rheumatiz! I felt as if I could have mesmerized a horse, and I determined, whatever the case might be, I'd make it squeal by thunder!"

"Here he is," said they, and we all bundled into room and gathered round a bed, with me shut in among 'em, and the cursed big, unenlightened heathen that did the talking, drawing out an almighty big bowie knife at the same time, "That's your man," said he.

Wal, there lay a miserable looking critter, with his eyes sot, and his mouth open—and his jaws got wider and wider as he saw the bowie knife, I tell ye.

"That's the idee," said the old Ingin.

"Rise up in that bed," said I: and I tell you what I must a looked at him dreadful, for up he jumped, on end, as if he'd just got a streak of galvanic

"Git out on this floor," said I, with a wuss look, and I wish I may be shot if out he didn't come, lookin' wild, I tell ye.

"Now cut dirt, d—n you!" screemed I: and Jehu Ginral Jackson! if he didn't make a straight shirt-tail for the door, may I never make another pass — After him I went, and after me they cum, and perhaps there wasn't the orfullest stampede down three pair of stairs that ever occurred in Michigan. Down cut old rheumatiz, through the bar-room: out I cut after him; over went the stove in the rush after both of us. I chased him round two squares—in the snow at that—then headed him off, and chased him back to the hotel agin, where he landed in a fine sweat, begged for his life, and said he'd give up the property Wal, I wish I may be shot if he wasn't a feller they were offering a reward for in Buffalo! I made him dress himself—cured of the rheumatiz—run it right out of him: delivered him up, pocketed the reward, and established the science, by thunder —N. Y. Weekly Universe.

How to Destroy an Enemy.

Nanglee, Emperor of China, being told that his enemies had raised an insurrection in one of the distant provinces, said:

"Come, then, friends, follow me, and I promise you that we shall very quickly destroy them."

He marched forward, and the rebels submitted upon his approach. All now thought that he would take the most signal revenge, but they were surprised to see the captives treated with mildness and humanity.

"How?" cried his first minister "Is this the manner in which you fulfil your promise? Your royal word was given that your enemies should be destroyed, and behold you have pardonded all, and have caressed some."

"I promised," replied the Emperor, with a generous air, "to destroy my enemies; I have fulfilled my word, for see they are enemies no longer, I have made friends of them."

An April Fool.

BY THE DUKE.

It was on the evening of the last day of March, 1850, that two young men were seated in a comfortable apartment in the —— hotel, Boston, with a bottle of champagne before them, and segars in their mouths

"To-morrow is the first of April," spoke out Bob P., at length.

"Yes," was the reply of his companion, whose name was Bill H.

"You know old Kingsley, that old wag of a dentist on —— street?" continued Bob.

"Certainly," was the reply.

"Well, one year ago, to-morrow, he came a deuce of a game on me."

"Did he?"

"Yes;" and to-morrow, I mean to be up to him for that same trick."

"How?"

"You see this tooth here?" he replied, as he stretched open his mouth to the view of the other. "Well, it is a false one, and to-morrow I'll go to him with my face bundled up and tell him I have got a decayed tooth which I want extracted, and have him pull out this false one"

"Ha, ha, ha," burst out Bill, "that will indeed be a good joke."

So it was arranged that Bill should happen into the office of Kingsley the next morning at nine o'clock, that he might see the sport, and that Bob should arrive in a short time, ready for the operation

They then took their departure from the hotel, each taking the nearest course for his lodgings

"Good morning, Mr. Kingsley," was the salutation of Bill H. the next morning after the conversation alluded to above, as he entered that individuel's office.

"Good morning; take a seat," was the response.

"I wass passing by," continued Bill, and thought I would give you a short call"

Thus the conversation proceeded for a short time, when the door opened, and Bob made his appearance His face and neck were done up in sundry neckcloths, &c, and he gave a groan at every step. He hastily closed the door, and quickly divesting himself of the neckcloths, he threw himself into a chair and exclaimed—

"Dear doctor, for heaven's sake pull this tooth as quickly as possible, for I haven't slept half an hour throughout the night in consequence of its aching"

The doctor immediately grasped his instrument, took his position behind his chair, and inquired,

"Which tooth?"

Bob pointed to the false one.

The doctor, who was fifty years old, and wore spectacles, gave a look at the tooth, and seeing it was sound, could not at first conceive what should cause it to ache, and was about to speak, when a thought struck him. It was the first of April! He gave another look at the tooth, and immediately perceived that it was a false one, and that a trick was being practised upon him

"Now hold still and be perfectly quiet," said the doctor

"I will," was the reply, "but be as quick as possible."

The doctor took his instrument, and clapping it upon the tooth next the false one, which was a large double tooth, perfectly sound, he gave one tremendous jerk, and it was out!

"Murder! doctor, you've pulled the wrong tooth!"

"O, no," quietly replied the doctor, wiping his instruments, "the one you told me to extract I pulled out some ten months ago, and I thought you wouldn't want one tooth to go through such an exceedingly painful operation twice!"

Bob seized his hat and sloped, and from that day he has had a natural horror of Dr. Kingsley.

Spiritual Knockings!

"And do you believe in the spiritual knockings?" asked Mrs Partington, as she leaned forward over the table and bent her eyes upon the individual who had narrated some queer things he had learned in Springfield "O, I would like so to have poor Paul come back!" A gentle rapping upon an old chest in the corner attracted their attention, and the party immediately surrounded it. "If it is Paul's apprehension," said Mrs. P "I know he'll answer me Paul, is that you?" Knock. "Just like him," said she smiling, "when he was living he used to be always tapping whenever we had anything in the house to tap—didn't you Paul?" Knock "Does that mean yes, or no?" Knock. "Which does it mean?" Knock Some of the party suggested that the alphabet should be called, which was done. "Are you in want of anything?" Knock "What is it?" and the anxious spectators, through the medium of the alphabet, spelled "Sidur." It is Paul! exclaimed Mrs. Partington, "that's the way he always spelled it. Do you want me to come to you Paul?" The answer came back, "No, I'm in better company." The old lady turned away mournfully—there was a sorrow in the wavy lock of gray that struggled beneath her cap border—there was a quaver of grief in the tone that inquired for the scissors—there was a misty vapor on the spec glasses like the dew at half mast, trailed in woe over the ruin of disappointed affection. At this instant the cover of the chest opened, and the head of Ike, protruding, disclosed the secret of the knockings. "Ah, you rogue," cried she, a smile dispelling all evidence of disorder; "ah, you rogue, was it you? You'll never be a good spirit, I'm afraid, as long as you live, if you go on so. You shouldn't try to frighten people. I know'd it wasn't Paul" It seemed as if a whole basket of sunshine had been upset in that room, it was so pleasant all the rest of the evening. —Boston Pathfinder.

Playing Cards at Yale College.

You may at all times and all seasons—except vacations—be quite sure that something funny is being enacted in the dormitories of "Old Yale," one of the favorite but forbidden amusements of some of the students, is playing whist, and we hope that none of them might ever do a worse thing than to play whist. One winter a party of four were in the habit of meeting in one of the rooms to play their favorite game, and their movements excited the suspicions of a lynx eyed tutor who was quite fond of performing the functions of a police officer, —of arresting and bringing the culprits to justice He had at various times opened the door upon them with various degrees of stealthiness and suddenness, but, although the young men sat around the table in a suspicious attitude, each would be intent on a book or a paper before him, and the discomfited tutor returned from each sortie strengthened in his convictions of the parties, but unable to obtain the proofs of it.

At length the leader of the party determined to give the tutor a lesson through a practical joke devised for the occasion. He accordingly had the pockets of his box coat lined temporarily with stout sheep skin, and about the right hour, his cook filled them with hasty pudding, scalding hot Thus prepared he sat down around the table with his companions, who had purposely by certain movements, caused the tutor to suspect them. This time there were no books about the table, and when the tutor burst open the door, the youth in the box coat made a vigorous demonstration of sweeping cards from the table, and transferring them to his capacious pockets. The tutor walked up to him in a triumphant manner, and demanded—

"What have you got in your pockets, sir?"

"I have nothing in them but a hot hasty pudding, sir," quietly retorted he of the box coat.

"What do you mean by giving me such a reply? Again I ask you, what have you got in your pockets?"

"I have told you the simple truth—there is nothing in these pockets but hot hasty pudding."

The tutor was enraged. He rushed behind the young man—he plunged his hands elbow deep, in the pockets, and drew them forth, dripping with the scalding pudding! He beat a precipitate retreat, and his espionage upon that party of whist players, ceased forever.

A Gentleman.

"Be very gentle with her, my son," said Mrs Butler, as she tied on her little girl's bonnet, and sent her out to play with her elder brother.

They had not been out very long before a cry was heard, and presently Julius came in and threw down his hat saying:

"I hate playing with girls! There's no fun with them: they cry in a minute"

"What have you been doing to your sister? I see her lying there on the gravel walk; you have torn her frock and pushed her down. I am afraid you forgot my caution to be gentle"

"Gentle! Boys can't be gentle, mother; it's their nature to be rough, and hardy, and boisterous They are the staff soldiers and sailors are made of. Its very well to talk of a gentle girl; but a gentle boy —it sounds ridiculous! I should be ready to knock a fellow down for calling me so!"

"And yet, Julius, a few years hence, you would be very angry if any one were to say you were not a gentle man."

"A gentle man I had never thought of dividing the word that way before Being gentle always seems to me like being weak and womanish"

"This is so far from being the case, my son, that you will always find the bravest men are the most gentle. The spirit of chivalry that you so much admire was a spirit of the noblest courage and the utmost gentleness combined Still I dare say you would rather be called a manly than a gentle boy?"

"Yes, indeed, Mother."

"Well, then, my son, it is my great wish that you should endeavor to unite the two. Show yourself manly when you are exposed to danger or see others in peril; be manly when called on to speak the truth though the speaking of it may bring reproach upon you: be manly when you are in sickness and pain At the same time be gentle, whether you be with females or men; be gentle towards all men. By putting the two spirits together, you will deserve a name which, perhaps, you will not so greatly object to"

"I see what you mean, dear mother, and I will endeavor to be what you wish—a gentlemanly boy."

The Dandy and the Alarm Watch.

A New England Paper tells the following story of a travelling Dandy, who quartered at a tavern, not long since, on the Sabbath:

He prepared himself to attend church, but not possessing that very important chattel, a watch, and being particularly desirous to cut a dash, he applied to the landlord for the loan of one. The landlord possessing a very powerful alarm watch, readily complied with the request, but previously wound up the alarm, and set it at the hour which he supposed would be about the middle of the first prayer. The dandy repaired to the church He arose with all the grace of a finished exquisite, at the commencement of the prayer, and stood playing very gracefully with the borrowed seals, when suddenly he jumped as if he had discovered a den of rattlesnakes. The whizzing of the alarm had commenced. The people started The dandy made a furious grab at the offending watch with both hands outside of the pocket, and attempted to squeeze it into silence, but in vain; it kept up its tur-r r-r, and it seemed as if it never would stop! The sweat rolled off the poor fellow; he seized his hat, and making one effort for the door, hurried off with his watch-pocket in one hand and his hat in the other, amid the suppressed laughter of the whole congregation.

Bob and Jonas were taking a lunch, a day or two since, from cold pork and bread, making frequent requisitions on the castor for seasoning to the feast. Just as Bob had swallowed a mouthful, Jonas asked him the most horrible conundrum of the season.

"Why was that last mouthful of yours, Bob, like a Belgian army?"

Of course it was given up.

"Because," said he, preparing for a dodge, "it was mustard on the rhine!" Bob hasn't done a thing since.

Examining a Teacher.

A Northern paper tells the following story, illustrative of the manner in which they make teachers for public schools in some parts of the country:

There are often strange stories told about schools and school directors in remote rural districts. We have heard an anecdote of a young man who lately presented himself as a candidate for the office of teacher in one of our northern countries. He had no opposition to encounter, and feeling confident of his own abilities, was no doubt, from the beginning certain of success. The directors were not men of profound learning and were slow in commencing to ask questions. At length one of them, with preliminary scratch of the head, spoke out:

"Can you tell me, Mr —— what great general they used to have in France."

"No, sir," answered the young man, "I don't know much about France—never heard anything about French general."

"Well, then I'll tell you," said the director, suddenly gaining confidence in his powers as an examiner, "there was a great general produced by France, once and his name was Bonaparte. Now, can you tell me whether Gen. Bonaparte flourished before or after the commencement of the Cristian era?"

"Commencement of the Christian era" was a grand phrase, and the other directors were astonished at their companions erudition He was astonished himself, although he had caught the words in the Almanac the day before.

The young man was again puzzled. "I believe you have the upper hand of me again," said he. "I really can't say when the French general flourished, or whether he ever flourished. As I never heard of him before, you would'nt expect me to know."

"Of course not, of course not," interrupted the director "Have you any more questions to ask, gentlemen?" continued he, turning to his companions.

They had not the slightest intention of asking any questions, having depended upon him as their spokesman, and as he now found himself at the end of his string, they all retired to a corner of the room to consult. In precisely thirty seconds they returned, and the leading man addressed the candidate:

"Stranger, you've answered first rate We can't look for a man to tell us things he don't know.—Besides that, you've got the thing all to yourself as there is no one wants the place; you're appointed, stranger, and you'll get nine dollars a month, and board with the scholars. We pay here for schooling, and we want to fetch the boys and girls along right smart."

QUAKER RETALIATION.—Friend L——had a well cultivated garden, and a testy neighbor had what is called by farmers a "breechy cow," which he often suffered to go at large Instigated by a fancy for fine cabages, said cow made frequent nocturnal visits to friend L——'s premises, and become a serious annoyance to him by reason of her depredations.

The worthy old Friend one morning, for the ninety ninth time ejected "Mooley" from his premises, and drove her home to her owner's house. Friend T——," said he, "I have driven thy cow home once more, and if I find her in my garden again"——

"Suppose you do"" angrily exclaimed T.—— "what will you do?"

"Why," said Friend L——, "I'll drive her home to thee again, friend T——."

This was too much for T——. His cow was never after that found in the garden of the staid old quaker.

A COOL SPECIMEN —A lady was sitting with her three children in a coach, awaiting the return of the driver, who had left his horses unattended while he stepped for a moment into a neighboring hotel During his abscence, the horses started, wheeled the coach about, and trotted off down the street at a moderate speed The lady who, naturally enough, was somewhat alarmed at the incident, called out to a gentlemanly dressed man who was approaching the carriage from an opposite direction, that "the horses were going without a driver" "I see they are," said the fellow, with entire sang froid, and passed on The lady said she was so much amused with the impudent nonchalence of the rascal that it quite restored her equanimity till a true gentlemen, in the livery of a charcoal man, came to the rescue. Bost. Post.

An absent minded editor having courted a girl and applied to her father, the old man said:

"Well, you want my daughter—what sort of a settlement will you make? What will you give her?"

"Give her?" replied the other, looking up vacantly, "Oh, I'll give her a puff"

"Take her," replied the father.

PLAINFIELD GAZETTE.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Thursday; February 6, 1851.

☞ Mr Albert D. Drake is our authorised agent to receive subscriptions and advertisments.

☞ Mr. E. W. Carr, Third street, Philadelphia, opposite the Exchange, is our authorised agent for that city.

☞ Henry C. Carey's communication to the Legislature, relative to the Commissioner's Monopoly Report, will be found in another column. Will those papers throughout the State which so readily and so punctually published and endorsed the result the Commissioners arrived at—a result unwarranted by the statements of the Report itself—will they publish this short explanitory communication of Mr. Carey, that their readers man be able to judge of the truth or falsehood of the Report for themselves? We fear not. Those who could jump at conclusions—there were many who did so—with the Commissioners, we fear like them are too much under monpoly influence to permit their readers to know the whole truth. This is not all; too many of the members of the present as well as of the preceding legislature, as their acts plainly prove, are too much under its influence to permit an honest investigation. A representative whose sense of honor is so obtuse as to accept of a free ticket from any company, but more especially from a company wh ch it is proved has defrauded the revenue of the State, and which through bribery and corruption has not only prevented action thereon but turned the report of such fraud into an exoneration and commendation of its affairs—are also too much under its influence to permit an honest investigation of its affairs. Being possessed of no other right than any other citizen—and inasmuch as but for their pos tion they would receive no further privilege—the legislator or editor who accepts of a free ticket under such c rcumstances, is not only a disgrace to the station he occupies, but his honor is too obtuse to permit him to honestly fulfil and discharge, in either capacity, the duties pertaining thereto.

☞ Senator.—We are glad to perceive there was sufficient independence among some of the democratic members at their joint meeting on Friday last, to prevent the election of John R. Thompson to the Senatorship. We yet trust to see New Jersey represented by a person worthy her name—by some one who has other qualifications than those of ruling the State through a mammoth corporation The people of New Jersey anticipate and have a right to expect that the person appointed to this exalted station shall not only represent her interest, but her honor and dignity. A nominee that will purchase this honor will not properly represent the one or the other. We trust therefore that those members who bolted this nomination will hold fast their integrity; the people expect this of them. We trust we shall have to chronicle their honor not their shame. We shall see.

Public Library &c.

We trust that the citizens of Plainfield will give this subject the consideration its importance demands. Being intended to promote the social comfort and well being of all, all should alike feel interested in its success. Let every person therefore be prepared at the proper time to give it that encouragement their influence and means will permit. Of a seed thus sown who can calculate the benefits?—Of the good fruit thus to be brought forth and enjoyed who can foresee the end? Therefore while enjoying in peace and security the comfort and independence which a high business prosperity has confered, let us provide the means that shall secure, extend and perpetuate these and greater blessings by enlightening and regenerating the mind and heart. Thus shall we become not only a prosperous, independent and free, but a wise, a good, and therefore a happy community.

Later from Europe.

The Royal Mail steamship Canada arrived at 12 o'clock on Monday, bringing one week's later intelligence from all parts of Europe. She brings no tidings of the Atlantic.

The Baltimore ship Franconia was wrecked off Holyhead on the 11th ult. Her cargo of tobacco, Captain, ch ef mate, and 11 hands, were lost.

The English general news is of trifling interest, and the papers are chiefly filled with expectations relative to the exciting topics likely to engage the early attention of Parliament. It is confidently asserted that the Chancellor will have a surplus of no less than four millions sterling for the year.

Public expectation is strongly in favor of a large reduction in taxation; and among the most prominent articles named for a reduction of tax, are the window and paper duties.

Louis Napoleon appears to have gained for the time being, a complete mastery over Gen Changarnier and the National Assembly. The Committee of Public Safety have reported a resolution in regard to the late measures of the Government, and an exciting debate relative thereto was going on in the Assembly at the latest dates, the National Assembly acknowledging the right of the Executive power to dispose of military commands; blames the use it made of that right, and declares that the General is Chief of the Army of Paris, and preserves the title to the confidence which the National Assembly testified to him in the sitting of the 3d inst., and passed to the order of the day. An unquiet feeling pervaded all classes in Paris on Thursday, and the Assembly was crowded to excess. An amendment has been proposed, and would probably pass, stating that the Assembly had no confidence in the Ministry. At the conclusion of the latest telegraphic dispatches, Lamartine was making an able address in defense of the President.

☞ Harper's New Monthly Magazine.—In the whole range of Magazine Literature there is none, in our estimation, at all comparable to Harper's New Monthly. The neat style in which it is got up, its interesting and valuable illustrations, but more than all, its contents commend it to the public as the very best family magazine published. A list of the contents, etc., of the February number will be found in another column.

☞ House keepers who contemplate purchasing new Carpets, will acknowledge themselves under obligations to this notice by calling on Smith & Lounsberry, 448 Pearl-st New York, before making their purchases. They have every variety of style and pattern. ordered expressly for the spring trade, which they are determined to sell as low as they can be purchased elsewhere. Special Legislation.

As we anticipated, there is a great number of applications to the legislature for special laws, Railroad charters—bank charters—charters for manufacturing companies—for bridge companies—steamboat companies, ferries, turnpikes, and a great multitude of other things "too tedious to mention." The ostensible objects sought to be accomplished by most of those applications are useful ones, and we would be pleased to see them accomplished; but we can see no reason for making a special legislative act in each case; while, on the contrary, there are numerous aud weighty reasons against it. The very fact that a spec al act, instead of a general one, is asked for is strong presumptive evidence that some advantage is sought to be attained, or responsibility escaped which could not be done by a general law. In short the object of all such applications is to give an undue advantage to a few

Thus, for instance, we were shown a copy of a charter of a Railroad with a capital of $1,000,000 which is now before the legislature, and which some interested persons are asking to have passed; it contains a clause exempting the property of the company from taxation, for any purpose whatever until the nett profits of the company shall amount to seven per cent on the cost of the road its works, &c. The object of asking a special charter in that instance, among other things, is to screen property to the tmount of $1,000,000, or more, owned by rich people entirely, from taxation. Suppose we make that principle one of general application—let the legislature pass a law that no property in the state shall be taxed until the nett profits arising from its use amount to seven per cent on its cost who will pay any tax? Where and how w ll the money, to defray the expenses of the state, the counties and townships be raised? Not one farmer in five hundred realizes a net profit of seven per cent on the cost of his farm, stock and utensils. If railroad companies are to be exempt from taxation, until their clear profits amount to more than legal interest on the investments, why should not the same exemption be extended to every citizen? If our legislatue cannot see their way clear for extending such exemption to all, we trust they will not allow it to a few. We have only refered to this case as a sample of the iniquity which lies at the bottom of all special legislation. Every application for a special law has some undue advantage as the motive for it, and they have succeeded so often that no equality of rights privileges, benefits, or burdens any longer exists. With such things we have long been disgusted and out of patience. If our legislators cannot pass good, just and wholesome general laws let them adjourn and go home. If they can do us no good, we pray them not to curse us with any more special legislation.—Morristown Banner.

Equal Taxation.

The principle of equal taxation is so far as property is concerned, to impose upon each individual a tax in proportion to the amount of property he has protected and secured by our laws. By not attending and adhering to this principle the grossest wrongs and inequalities have been perpetrated and exist.

Take for instance, the Morris and Essex Railroad Company. That coporat on owns property worth say one million of dollars, more or less. Our state and counties are annually put to great expense in protecting and enforcing the rights it claims. It enjoys, by the grant of the state, most lucrative franchises, and yet, for all that property and these privileges, not one cent of tax has ever been paid. If any reason can be assigned why the property of that rich corporation, should be entirely exempt from taxation, while every poor citizen is loaded with taxes for every rag or fragment he owns, we would like to see or hear it.

It is true their charter provides "that as soon as the nett proceeds of the said Railroad shall amount to seven per cent upon its cost, the said corporation shall pay to the treasurer of this state a tax of one half of one per centum on the cost of said road, to be paid annually thereafter, on the first Monday of January of each year: Provided that no other tax or impost shall be levied or assessed upon the said Company,' but as the 'statement of the proceeds of said road' is to be made by the company itself, it is not strange that 'the nett proceeds' have never appeared to be seven per cent, nor is it to be expected that they ever will reach that figure, if taxation can be avoided by keeping them below it.

This clause of the charter of that company (and it is similar to other charters,) granted by this state, is another striking illustration of the evils of special legislation. We hope the legislature will reform the charter of that company, and of all others having a similar exemption clause, so that its property will be taxed like that of the farmer for state, county and township purposes.

The legislature can make this reformation without any pretence that they will thereby be violating a contract The original charter passed 29th January, 1835, reserved to the legislature the right to alter amend, or repeal whenever it thought proper—a supplement to the charter 2d March 1836, modifies the right of alteration, amendment or repeal so as to be exercisable 'whenever the public good may require it.' 'The public good and common justic now require that the charter should be alterered and amended so that the property of the company may be taxed like other property. Let us have equal taxation—equal justice, and if anything is exempted let it be the property of the poor man and not, that of wealthy monopolizing corporations.—Morristown Banner.

☞ The superior quality of the Crackers and Biscuit manufactured by J. H. Schoonmaker, 219 Fulton-st. New York, has become pretty extens vely known to consumers. We would merely remind merchants therefore that they will best consult their own interest by keeping a constant supply on hand. His advertisment will be found in another column.

Pigeons—Pigeons—Ten thousand times ten thousand and thousands of thousands of pigeons are seen wending their way from the south until they reach the Lake shore, when they would sudaenly perform a summerset, and turn back in the direction they came. The mild weather of the last few days has no doubt deceived them, and when they get in sight of the snows of Canada, they turn back It is said that millions are found dead on the snows of the Province.—Cleveland Plainder, Jan 23.

There are 24 banks, 61 bankers, 504 lawyers, 297 brokers, 162 merchants 80 insurance companies, 20 miscellaneous companies, and a great variety of others.

☞ The joint meeting of the Legislature for the appointment of Senator, &c., was adjourned to the 14th inst.

Plainfield, January 29. 1851.

Messrs Editors:—In reading an article in the Philadelphia Evening Post headed "Dishonesty," over the signature of the Rev. Henry W. Beecher, having met my own views I transcribe it for an insertion in your paper. S. R.

"A state of mind which will intend one fraud will upon occassons intend a thousand. He who npon one emergency will lie w ll be supplied with emergencies. He that will perjure himself to save a friend will do it in a desperate juncture to save himself. The highest wisdom has informed us that he that is unjust in the least is unjust also in much; circumstances may withdraw a politician from temptation to any but political dishonesty, but under temptation a dishonest politician would be a dishonest Cashier—would be dishonest anywhere—in any thing. The fury which destroys an opponents character, would stop at nothing, if barriers were thrown down. That which is true of the leaders in politics is true of the subordinates; political dishonesty in voters runs into general dishonesty as the rotten spec taints the whole apple. A community whose politics are conducted by a perpetual breach of dishonesty on both sides will be tainted by immorality throughout. Men will play the same game in their private affairs which they have learned to play in public matters. The guile, the crafty vigilance, the dishonest advantages, the cunning sharpness—the tricks and traps and sly evasions, the equivocal promises and the unequivocal neglect of them which character ze political action will equally characterize private action. The mind has no kitchen to do its dirty work in while the parlor remains clean. Dishonesty is an atmosphere, if it comes into an apartment it penetrates into every one; whoever will lie in politics will lie in personal squabbles. A professor of religion who is a dishonest politician is a dishonest Christian, his creed is a perpetual index of hypocricy.

Free Schools.

The public m nd has been much agitated for some time past upon the subject of Free Schools. The Governor in his late message reccommended their endowment, public opinion sanctions it, and the condition of our common Schools require it. In anticipation of the immediate act on of the Legislature upon the subject, it may be well to indicate the state of public opinion upon this question. That there should be a diversity of opinion as to the best mode of carrying out this object was to have been expected, and the man festation of public feeling is the index of the interest felt in this great question By Free Schools we do not understand to mean Parochial, or Sectarian Schools and Colleges, under the control and patronage of the several religious denominations of christians, for such would not be free; to every citizen of the State to educate his children in the common English branches between the ages of 5 and 15 years. In some States the Schools are called free when the public money pays one-fourth or one-eighth of the expense: in New York for example the State money pays for 4 months schooling, while the school districts pay the balance: in Connecticut the State pays for 6; in Mas achusetts for a corresponding per od; while in New York City, where the schools are absolutely free, and the very best of schosls are to be found perhaps in the United States, they are supported by a general tax levied by the city corporation. The great mistake made in N. York in organizing a free system of school for the country was in not providing for their support by a State tax, instead of leaving the balance to be made up by a tax upon the school districts; this is the error we must avoid; therefore the idea entertained by many that free schools are free to all, and without taxation for their support in some form is fallacious. The nearest approach to free schools is in the example set by Massachusetts and Conneticut, where the schools are supported by a general or state Tax In New Jersey we think there will be no difficulty in making our schools free if the surplus monies of the State are appropriated to their support, and the balance provided for by a general tax.

The first object should be to make our schools free to the poor, and to make the arrangement so economical as not to increase the taxes upon the land property of the State: This we think can be accomplished by taxing the personal property of individuals and corporations, amounting to many millions, and heretofore paying no tax, to the amount necessary to make the common schools free 6 or 8 months in the year, without taxing the districts.—To do this, however, will demand great prudence in expending and managing the State funds. In fram ng the law great pains should be taken to lop off all unnecessary excrescencies in the organization of the common school department. We think it highly important in the outset of our common school system, that all colleges, academies, and Parochial schools should be excluded from participation in the distribution of the common school fund: it should be kept sacredly in trust for that object only; if people wish higher degrees of education for their children they should not expect it at the public expense; the offices of State, County and Township Superintendents should be abolished: their services are merely nominal if not entirely useless, while their aggregate saleries amount to a considerable sum, and to that amount diminish and empover sh the Common School Fund. The quota due each township could be paid to the trustees of each school district by the County Treasurer, and after providing by some general law for regulating the payment of the monies, aud providing for the annual return of the number of children taught and the amount of time the schools are kept, leave all further management of them to the districts.

LXXVth. Legislature of N. J.

Tuesday. Jan. 21.—Senate.—The President laid before the Senate, the following communication from Henry C. Carey, esq, which was read:

To the Senate and House of Assembly of the State of New Jersey:

May it please your honourable bodies—Shortly previous to the close of the last session of the Legislature, there was made to that body a report signed by Aaron Robertson, James S. Hulme, and Alexander Wurts, Commissioners for investigating the affairs of the joint companies, and du ing the recess the same was printed and given to the public. A perusal of it having satisfied the undersigned of its extraordinarily one-s ded and partial character, he deemed it due both to the state and to himself to expose its errors and omissions in a Review thereof, copies of which he now transmits herewith, desiring to submit them to your examinat on. In so doing, he desires respectfully to invite your attention to the following facts, therein fully set forth, to wit:

1. That the sa'd Commissioners have, in th's their Report of their proceedings, suppressed all mention of the extraordinary changes in their own opinions as to both their powers and their duties, which took place at some time between the second and the sixth months of their investigation, the causes of which changes were of so private a nature as never to have been commun cated to their Secretary for record in his book of 'minutes."

2. That they have suppressed all reference to their repeated pledges to exhibit to the undersigned the books and papers of the Companies required for enabling him to substantiate his charges against the managers, as well as all references to the reasons that induce them to forfeit those pledges.

3. That they have suppressed all reference to their refusal to produce the books and papers of the Companies, for exam nation under their own inspection, notw thstanding repeated demands, both verbal and written, for their production, accompanied in all cases by pledges on the part of the undersigned that on their being produced he would enable them to satisfy themselves of the truth of the various charges against the managers; and that while totally suppressing their correspondence w th him they have carefully published the communications of the board tending to vind cate themselves from those charges.

4. That whilst publishing to the world the evidence adduced by the managers with a view to prove that each of their boats carried a manifest containing a full statement of the cargo, they have suppressed all reference to the fact, well known to them, and the perfect truth of which was offerred to be established, that those manifest were uniformly fraudulent, that they rarely contained more than one third of the cargo, and that each and every such manifest involved the swearing of two false oaths, and therefore, the crime of a double perjury.

5. That although the facts which the undersigned had brough before them in relation to the single year (1846) which he had himself investigated, had placed them in a position to render it necessary to report that no less than four hundred and thirty-one boats had passed through unreturned in that year alone, they have carefully suppressed all reference to the facts, that those boats passed directly under the eye of the very person who swore to the truth of the returns—that he himself received an important share of their earnings—that he was therefore directly interested in knowing, and had abundant means of knowing the precise number of trips that were made, and the precise quantity of merchandize that was transported—and therefore that the omission to return two fully laden boats, carrying about three hundred tons, per day, for almost every working day of the season, could not have been other than intentional--and that the object of the Commissioners in thus suppressing these important and well known facts could have been none other than that of enabling thsmselves to certify that the returns to the state were not fraudulent, but only "defective"

6. That throughout, the facts that are stated are glossed over with a view to deceive the state which had employed and trusted them, while other facts of the highest importance are suppressed, and that their object in so doing was that of rendering their Report acceptable to the managers.

The undersigned would also desire reepectfully to invite the attention of your honorable bodies to the following facts:

In January, 1849, the Governor transmitted to the Legislature a letter signed John R. Thompson, in which it was stated to be the intention of himself and his brother managers to "institute legal proceedings" against the unders gned, as the admitted author of what that person was pleased to term a "scandalous pamphlet," be ng the same in which were contained the numerous and grave charges against himself and his brother managers. From the date of this announcement of his of their intention to institute suit for libel, the undersigned has omitted nothing in his power to induce him and them to carry into effect this threat, having been at all times anxious that they should afford him an opportunity to compel the production of their books and papers, and thereby to verify each and every of his charges against themselves. Having this end always in view, he has now, as he respectfully requests your honorable bodies particularly to note, repeated and re-affirmed each and every charge, with the names of the parties principally concerned in these fraudulent transactions, and he has done so in the anxious hope that the said John R. Thompson, the President, Captain Stockton, or some other of the parties enumerated, would carry out their threat made two years since. In this hope, however, he has been disappointed, for although this Review is now about six months old, and although for all that time this re-affirmation of the charges and this enumeration of the parties charged have been before the world, no step has yet been taken towards the commencement of any prosecution for libel, because any such proceeding would necessarily place it in the power of the undersigned to compel the production of the books and papers.

The undersigned would further desire to inv te the attention of your honorable bodies to the fact that anxious to give to these managers the most instant remedy aga nst h mself, he has at all times been, and is now, ready to unite with them in the selection of honest, intelligent, and independent men, empowered to decide the question of the truth or falsehood of the charges, and also empowered to assess the damage in case of a ny failure on his part to establish their truth, and forthwith on the selection of such men, to meet before them with the managers, accompanied by the r books and papers.

In conclusion he would now most respectfully request your honorable bodies to consider whether the determination at all times manifested by these managers not to produce their books and papers before such men, and their total failure to carry out their pledge to the Legislatnre to "institute legal proceedings," or to do any other thing that might have the effect of enabling h m to compel the production of those books and papers, are not to be received as a direct admission that the charges were and are true in their fullest extent, an if it may not further be infered that they know that the production of the said books and papers would lead to the discovery of other frauds even now unsuspected.

GREAT COUGH REMEDY!

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of
COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

In offering to the community this justly celebrated remedy for disease of the throat and lungs, it is not our wish to trifle with the lives or health of the afflicted, but frankly to lay before them the opinions of distinguished men and some of the evidences of its success, from which they can judge for themselves. We sincerely pledge ourselves to make no wild assertions or false statemements of its efficacy, nor will we hold out any hope to suffering humanity which facts will not warrant.

Many proofs are here given, and we solicit an inquiry from the public into all we publish, feeling assured they will find them perfectly reliable, and the medicine worthy their best confidence and patronage.

FROM BENJ. SILLIMAN, M D, L L. D, &c,
Professor of Chemistry, Mineralogy, &c., Yale College. Member of the Lit. Hist. Med. Phil. and Scien. Societies of America and Europe.

"I deem the CHERRY PECTORAL an admirable composition from some of the best articles in the Materia Medica, and a very effective remedy for the class of diseases it is intended to cure."

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 1, 1849

Prof CLEAVELAND, of Bowdoin College, Me Writes—"I have witnessed the effects of your "CHERRY PECTORAL" in my own family and that of my friends and it gives me satifaction to state in its favor that no medicine I have ever known has proved so eminently successful in curing diseases of the throat and lungs."

REV. DR OSGOOD.
Writes—"That he considers 'CHERRY PECTORAL' the best medicine for Pulmonary Affections ever given to the public," and states that "his daughter after being obliged to keep the room four months with a severe settled cough, accompanied by raising of blood, night sweats, and the attendant symptoms of Consumption, commenced the use of the 'CHERRY PECTORAL,' and had completely recovered."

HEAR THE PATIENT.

Dr. Ayer—Dear Sir: For two years I was afflicted with a very severe cough, accompanied by spitting of blood and profuse night sweats. By the advice of my attending physician I was induced to use your CHERRY PECTORAL, and continued to do so till I considered myself cured, and ascribe the effect to your preparation.

THE REMEDY THAT CURES.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan 10, 1847.
Dr. Ayer: I have been long afflicted with Asthma which grew yearly worse until last autumn, it brought on a cough which confined me in my chamber, and began to assume the alarming symptoms of consumption—I had tried the best advice and the best medicine to no purpose, until I used your CHERRY PECTORAL, which has cured me, and you may well believe me. Gratefully yours

PROFESSOR A. C. BARRY'S TRICOPHEROUS, or Medicated Compound.

FOR RESTORING, PRESERVING, AND beautifying hair eradicating scurf and dandruff, and curing diseases of the skin, glands and muscles, stings, cuts, bruises, sprains, &c., &c. It has been ascertained by experiment that has produced the same effect in curing disease of the skin, &c., of the Horse and all the animal kingdom.

Barry's Tricopherous,

The following testimonials, selected from hundreds of similar import, will serve to show the value of the preparation, and the estimation in which it is held by those who have given it a trial:

NEW-YORK, Sept 22, 1850.

Prof Barry—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted with a cutaneous eruption of the scalp of a most aggravated character for the last sixteen years, and during that period I have had the advice of some of the most eminent physicians, and have tried all the preparations for the hair and skin now known, without the least benefit. I was advised by a friend to try your Tricopherous. I did so, as a last resort, and, to my surprise and gratification, found myself cured in about two months. Such was the violence of the disorder that at times I was partially blind.

Respectfully yours,
G. V. M. RAPELYE, 148 Columbia-st.
Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Oct 23d 1850.

Prof. Barry—My Dear Sir: About two years ago my hair came out a great deal, and my head was much affected with dandruff. I was told by a friend to try your Tricopherous, and I did so, and to my astonishment my hair was firmly rooted, and all the dandruff disappeared, as the head now shews for itself.

With respect I am your obedient servant,
J. S. TREADWELL, 633 Broadway.

[From the Military & Naval Argus, Nov. 9th.]

There is no remedy for the permanent cure of baldness and diseases of the cranium generally, that has reached the popularity enjoyed by the article known as Professor Barry's Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound. It is extensively used by the upper classes of the community; in almost every nursery in the land it is used in preference to other articles of the kind. It imparts vigor to the roots of the hair, and thus promotes its growth to a remarkable degree. It destroys dandruff and scurf, and yields the hair fine and glossy. It will cure all diseases of the scalp such as scald head, dew worm, and other obnoxious disorderders of the skin: in cheapness, as well as efficacy, it stands unrivalled. It is sold in large bottles, price 25 cents at No 137 Broadway, and at the druggists' generally throughout the United States and Canadas [123 s

TRY ONE—YES, TRY BOTH.

SOMETHING NEW!

THE Subscriber would say to his friends and customers that he has the sole agency for the sale of Crane's Patent Compound Wash Mixture, for Plainfield, also for the North American Electric Washing Fluid, both great labor saving articles in washing, warranted not to injure clothing, and fully to answer the purpose represented. Money will be refunded to those using this fluid and finding it not to answer the purpose intended. All that is needed to recommend the above article is a trial; those who have tested them approve them much. Try one—yes, try both.

Just as I finished writing the above and raised my eyes, I see lying on my shelves and counters, some new and elegant plain and figured DeLaines, Silk and worsted and Silk and Cotton Poplins, of various shades, and some splendid Wool Shawls, to which the attention of the ladies is most respectfully requested. DANIEL BULLMAN.

THE NEW JERSEY

HORSE POWER

Manufacturing Company.

HAVING improved, strengthened and perfected A. D. CRANE'S Patent Horse Power, are now prepared to furnish the same to all who may want.

This Power consists of an endless floor running over a series of pulleys, connected by cranks, without a rack or cog wheel about it: none being required from the fact, that the weight of the horse on the floor or platform causes sufficient adhesion between it and the pulleys to transmit all the power he is able to give. Also by this arrangement the chain is freed from the draught or strain (which cannot be avoided in any other Stall Power) except, what is reqired to pass the floor around. The requisite speed is obtained direct from the machine thereby avoiding a great amount of friction and wear, and lessening the liability to get out of order. They run so easily as to require less than an inch elevation to the foot. A self acting brake is attached by which the motion is kept regular and uniform even when the work is unsteady and irregular.

From the above description it is evident that this is the most simple and efficient Power known.

They are highly recommended by those who have used them, for driving Circular Saws, Lathes, Drilling Machines, Threshers, Grist Mills, Pumps, &c.

The Company have certificates to prove the above and also to show that the Two Horse Power will grind 40 bushels of Corn to Meal (with Platt's Patent Mill.) in a day of ten hours, making it an invaluable Power for the Southern planter as well as others.

It has taken Silver Medals at the different Fairs where exhibited, and the only one given to Horse Powers by the American Institute last fall.

They also furnish Threshers of the most approved construction.

Price of Single Power with Belt, $75; Double do. with Belt, $110; Thresher and Separator, $35.

HERNIA.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.—This disorder, of very frequent occurrence, may be considered as arising through weakness of the abdominal walls, inducing an enlargement in the natural openings formed therein for the transmission of blood and other vessels: such openings being enlarged, permit the escape of bowels or other viscera of the abdomen, devolving hernial swellings or rupture, which most generally occur outwardly, as at the navel, groins and thighs.

The complaint is likely to happen at birth, and therefore should be carefully looked for by those having the charge of children, that it may be arrested and cured promptly. It also occurs at any period of life, to either sex, without regard to the condition or mode of living, and when found, should be attended to without delay—the final penalty being death, and that may be induced through strangulation at any moment.

RUPTURES, are always to be treated with the surgical instruments known as Trusses and Supporters, and these require to be skillfully applied. With this view, the HULL'S TRUSS OFFICE, now established some thirty years, has under the various managers, presented to the public both male and female attendants to apply its instruments directly to the persons, which is preferable in all cases, and has also made improvement at different times, showing that advancement which study and practice only yield toward the relief of this malady.

With much pleasure the fact is now published, that recent improvements BUTLER'S TRUSS PADS have been made, and sufficiently tested upon numerous cases to warrant, through the cures already affected, their submission to the public, as being in adaptation and efficiency superior to any heretofore made known.

These improvements, recently patented, are now being applied at this office, 4 Vesey street, in cases of rupture, gravitation of the bowels, prolapsus uteri, prolapsus ani and piles.

The public may rely upon that care being made in their application, which will most likely tend to the final cure of the several complaints.

Hull's Truss Office, 4 Vesey street, Astor House, opposite St. Paul's Church, New-York.
FRED'K M. BUTLER, Proprietor.

N. B—The ladies' department is attended by a female qualified to fit the instruments, having so attended this office for many years.

NEW VILLAGE OF HERMANVILLE.

ONLY $25 for a HOMESTEAD—22 Farms woth over $8,500, and 6,400 LOTS, to be distributed among 800 subscribers. Each subscriber is entitled to 8 lots, 25 by 100 feet lying together, or a PRIZE FARM of from 4 to 20 acres. The shares are limited at $25—payable—$5 when subscribed for, $5 on day of distribution, and balance in monthly installments of $3. About 700 shares are now subscribed.

The Lots are situated in the village of HERMANVILLE, one mile east of Lake Road Station, on the Long Island Railroad, County of Suffolk, and 50 miles from the city of New-York. It is one of the healthiest places in the United States, within one mile of Ronkonkoma Lake, which is about three miles in circumference, of singular transparency and of great depth, with an abundance of fish The village is but 4 miles distant from the greet South Bay which is 5 miles wide and 40 miles long, abundantly supplied with oysters, clams, and fish of various kinds

These lands will produce as much per acre, with the same cultivation, as any land within fifty miles of New-York The Suffolk County Agricultural Society, at a meeting on 24th September, 1850 awarded premiums for the production of these lands as may be seen by the following letter:

(Copy)

LAKE ROAD, Oct. 23th, 1850

I certify that I have raised during the past season the very best of Corn and Potatoes 150 bushels per acre; Egg Plants, and a variety of garden vegetables, on land near the Long Island Railroad at Lake Road from which I received a premium at the Suffolk County Agricultural Fair, held September 24 1850

Also, Peas, Beans, Onions, Squashes, Pumpkins, Beets and Tomatoes Your's,

(Signed) IRA L'HOMMEDIEU.

To CHARLES WOOD, 117 John-st N Y

Hermanville is located on the borders of the Long Island Railroad, where cars run several times a day to Brooklyn and New-York The surface of the land is smooth and level, and the surrounding country is perfectly healthy, and within a few miles of this place, highly cultivated and valuable, having been settled for more than 150 years, and where similar lands sell from $50, to $200 per acre

The distribution will take place in a few days by a Committee to be selected by the Subscribers from among their number The person having the first choice will be entitled, for $25 only, to a 20 acre Farm worth $1,000: the second to an 18 acre Farm, worth $900; the third, a 16 acre Farm, worth $800: the 4th, a 14 acre Farm, worth 700 the 5th, a 12 acre Farm, worth $600; the 6th a 10 acre Farm, worth $500; the 7th and 8th, each an 8 acre farm, worth $400: the 9th, 10th and 11th, each a 6 acre Farm, worth 300: the 12th, 13th, 14th, and 15th each a 5 acre Farm, worth $250: the 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th, and 20th, each a 4 acre Farm, worth $200: and all the others will be entitled to 8 Village Lots, each 25 by 100 feet lying together There are no blanks—this is not a lottery—every person gets for $25 a hadsome Lot of Ground equal to 8 city lots

Manner of Distribution of Hermanville Lots and Prize Farms—The manner of distribution will be as follows: All the numbers on the Map, from 1 to 800, will be put into a wheel, and the first number drawn from the wheel, will be entitled to the first Prize, and, if the first number so drawn or taken out of the wheel happens to be 250 or 275, then the person on the subscription list, who holds or owns the subscription number of 250 or 275, or whatever the corresponding number may be, will be entitled to the first Prize Farm, and so proceeding until all the numbers are drawn out

The lands are as good as represented, and as good as any land on the Island, and when cultivated, will produce in the highest degree

The land was once heavily timbered: some portions are now covered with a thrifty growth of young wood, oak and pine Wood is plenty and generally cheap in that part of the Island. Fire-wood is cheap, that which is suitable to be cut into cord wood, for the New-York market, is of uniform price, and has for a great many years been always considered a cash article on the Island

There is material on the land for common fencing—good chestnut rails can be had within a few miles of these lands in abundance. All building materials can be had at the depots of Brooklyn and Greenport, and at many intermediate places, at the usual market prices There are numerous streams of water rising in these new lands, and running into the Great South Bay, which are remarkable for their purity, and never fail: indeed, dry weather makes very little change in them: they are unfailing, and wells are of various depths, probably over these new lands in the middle region of the Island, the average depth will be about 25 feet, at Hermanville as the ground is higher they are deeper

There are now churches and schools within two or three miles of the village, and within four miles, mills, factories, stores and villages All the privileges of a old settled country are to be had here, and the people of Suffolk County pride themselves on being a highly moral, orderly and religious people. All of my subscribers are persons of respectability

The land can be very easily cleared, and the cost of settlement will depend almost entirely upon the settler, he can lay out as much or as little as he chooses I do not know of any objections to the place or to the land for a settlement, and the same labor and industry which make successful and prosperous settlement in other parts of the country, bestowed upon these lands cannot fail to produce favorable results

The climate is in every particular healthy and pleasant—the roads are good and always passable, at all seasons of the year—the Winters are short and mild, compared to the Winters on the main, to the north of the Highlands—there is seldom sleighing more than two or three weeks on the Island

What is remarkable, a crop is seldom injured by drouth—there is no part of the country where there is so little injury from drouth as on Long Island, nor is there any injury from wet—there is no wet or cold land on the island All the land along the margin of the streams can be made highly valuable at a small cost, for there is no such thing as a flood or freshet, as in the interior part of the country, by which often very great damage is done—such an event as the carrying off a bridge, or the breaking of a mill dam, with great damage is almost unheard of on Long Island The streams and bays abound in fish and wild fowl in great abundance, and every variety

☞ In consequence of the great number of letters from all parts of the country, desiring information of these lands, it has been found necessary to answer them in this form.

☞ Apply to THOS WOOD Stationer, 117 JOHN-STREET, near Pearl, or CHARLES WOOD, at the same place, either of whom will receive remittances and forward receipts therefor by return of mail They will gratuitously furnish maps and pamphlets of the property, and cheerfully give such other information as may be desired

MECHANICAL MEDICINE.

Dr. Banning, formerly of this city, asks to announce that he has returned to 341 Broadway; for consultation and management of weaknesses of the vocal, pulmonary, digestive, nervous, spinal and female systems: and also of the drooping, languor and physical deformities, which are so destructive of both health and beauty at the present day

As these and kindred maladies are usually the result of a violation of the laws of physical organization, he will treat them chiefly by those exercises, mechanical appliances and reformatory habits of body, in conjunction with hydropathy galvanism and other discoveries of the day, which, united with the cooperative efforts of the subject, are calculated to relieve and restore the energies of the suffering and neglected organs

Having spent several years in traveling for investigation and practical experiment on the subject, he has, at length, greatly improved and multiplied his surgical and mechanical appliances for the purpose. In addition to his new supports for female and spinal weaknesses, are some combining the properties of a universal hernial truss and an effective general support, with which he challenges cases of general debility, constipation, piles and prolapsus, ani, leucorrhea, prolapsus uteri and every variety of hernia

The distinctive peculiarity of these devices is, that they do not weaken or restrain the motions or growth of the suffering parts, but act imitatively and concordantly with the mathematical genius of the body's forces. Hence, by a most comfortable and gentle pressure, they at once give great support and render the oppressed system eligible to its own restoration

Feeble invalids coming from a distance will command prompt and faithful attention

For more definite information, see his revised edition of "Animal Mechanics," and also his circular, which will be sent gratuitously when requested.

His improved body-braces, spinal supports and supporter trusses applied at his office (341 Broadway) and to be had wholesale and retail- City and country physicians and druggists are invited to call and examine Office hours from 9 A M to 1 P M [121.

FOR FEMALES AND MALES
Dr. Lazzetti's Juno Cordial, or Protective Elixir.

This is the only actual remedy ever discovered for impetency, Genital Debility, Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases occasioned by certain secret habits; and many of the nostrums recently recommended for the same complaints are worthless imitations which its unrivalled excellence, fame and popularity have brought into the market. The Medical Faculty of Europe and the United States are unanimous in their recommendations of the Juno Cordial and have not given their sanction in a single instance that has been authenticated, to any compound for the same purposes The nature of the maladies relieved by the Juno Cordial are generally such as to leave the publication of certificates of cures out of the question, or the proprietor could produce a host of the most conclusive testimony to show that the great reputation that it enjoys was not accidentally obtained, but is firmly based upon its positive, and apparently miraculous virtues In all directions are to be found the happy parents of healthy offspring, who would not have been so, but for this extraordinary preparption. And it is equally potent in the many diseases for which it is recommended Objection has been naturally made to the price of the Juno Cordial, because the trash that has been thrown into the market in opposition to it is sold cheaper; but the fact is, the Cordial cannot be afforded for less, and ought to be much dearer, as many of the ingredients which compose it are among the costliest things in nature; whereas the others are made up of cheap drugs, worth but little in money, and less in merit. We assure the reader that the utmost reliance may be placed on the Juno Cordial in the cure of the maladies mentioned above, and also those that follow, viz: Loss of Muscular Energy, Physical Lassitude and General Prostration, Irritability, and all Nervous Affections, Indigestion, Sluggishness of the Liver, Gleet, Lucorrhoea or Whites, and Flour Albus and every disease in any way connected with the disorder of the Procreative Functions—in all of which it will afford almost immediate relief, and, if used as directed, is almost certain to produce a positive and permanent cure Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness or disability of a certain nature, should take this Cordial, as it will infallibly restore health and vigor in a brief period, and where want of offspring is a cause of regret, if recourse be had to it the most beneficial results may be anticipated with confidence It is of priceless value to those without off-spring It has taken the precedence in Italy and will in all other countries where it may become known

It also possesses the unrivalled qualities of curing incipient Consumption, and I have administered it with great success to patients who have sought our delightful climate for the restoration of their health and the result is that a medicine has been added to the catalogue for the cure of insipient consumption.

To spread wide the blessings of this medicine, I have appointed Messrs Judson & Co, of the City of New York, in the United States of America, my sole Agents for its sale: and none can be genuine unless it comes through them, and their signature is on the weapper

Essay on the Broom.—No. 3.

In our two preceeding essays we treated of the proper, and legitimate, use of the Broom, with a few special hints at the many advantages arising from its discreet employment We now intend to consider its abuse, or the unnatural and illegitimate manner in which it is too often exercised at the present day.

It is a strange yet well authenticated fact, that the human mind has a constant tendency to abuse the blessingt which it is daily permitted to enjoy — How frequently do we observe the very means which God and nature have placed within our grasp and designed for a wise and useful end; prostituted from its originally legitimate purpose; and sacraficed to the insat able voracity of corrupt appetites; or made the servile tools of base and ungovernable passion

Depravity has made this a feature so universally prominent in the human character, that even those things which are most indispensable to our well being and happiness are boldly, presumptuously, and constantly perverted Is t surprising then that the Broom fails to const tute an exception to this well established rule? We should rather wonder that its noble purposes are not more frequently prostituted, when we consider how closely it has been interwoven with mans social ex stence from time immemorial, and how familiarly and indissolubly it s connected with the many and varied relations of domestic life.

It must be self evident to the reader, that man is a creature of impulse, and a perfect slave to the caprices of his own mind. His passions when once thoroughly aroused by some exciting cause, nee too often refractory, and never fail to goad him on to irrational excesses: or plunged h m almost inextricably into a sea of troubles. Our remarks have an especial reference to anger, as it is the most excitable and dangerous in its tendencies of all the conflict ng passions of the human heart. It might not unjustly be denominated the combustible constituent of our nature, which by its repeated and often causeless explosions, tears asunder the del cate strings of human mutuality, and jars the universal brotherhood of mankind.

Each individual passion wields a weapon peculiar to itself; and one most efficient in accomplishing its own particular purpose. The design of Love is reciprocity of feeling: and its weapon is a plaintive eye, a fascinating smile, or a sentimental kiss. The true object of envy is the assassination of character, and its weapon is a malicious and poisoned torgue Anger thirsts for revenge: and its weapon is some dangerous if not deadly missile, hurled at its victim, with a strength and velocity only equal to the violence of its nature.

The peculiarities of sex exert a remarkable influence over the natural disposition or tendency of the passions In man anger generally resorts to the pistol or the dagger; while in woman it almost invariably seizes the Broom stick to accomplish its object of Revenge So universally is this the case, that the Broom has for a long time been considered the most efficient and characteristic weapon in the hands of female passion; and we do not hesitate to say that it is sometimes unsparingly, severely if not dangerously used. Haud inexpertus loquor.

The female heroic is never better displayed than when her bosom heaves with the storms of anger and her heart seems lashed by the surges of passion.

Then it is that the latent fires of her soul, burn, and sparkle, and flash, to the terrors of the astonished beholder Then it is that her eyes beam a wild and hideous glare: her cheeks are crimsoned and tremulous with excitement: her locks are disheveled, and flutter frightfully in the breeze; her lips spitefully compressed; and every muscle convulsed with implacable wrath Soon the Broom stick is seen brandishing wildly in the air, and menacing summary vengance upon the defenceless heads of the trembling victim of her displeasure. Down, down it falls with the fury of a thunderbolt, while the shrieks of the sufferer, the crash of crockery, and the splinters of demolished chairs, blended, form a scene of the most terrific confusion, and as indescribable as t is difficult to conceive. What a spectacle for instructive contemplation to the cool philosophical mind! and what a graphic picture is here exhibited of affectionate and amiable woman. Can there be anything more revolting to the sensitive heart; more calculated to fill the soul with utter abhorrence; more reproachful to the female character; or a more absolute and shameless profanation, than that the Broom a perfect devotee to neatness and social order, should be polluted by the sacrilegious touch of the hand of female passion; and reluctantly forced to break the nose of some careless servant, to bruize the cheek of some peevish child, or crack the cranium of some easy good natured husband.

From the above remarks we may reasonably infer that government of the temper is one of the most essential and requisite duties of life. This will apply equally well to both the male and female sex; and far better would it be for the interest of mankind generally, were it observed with a more exact and rigid assiduity. But it is a duty far more incumbent upon the female; and one most comportable with her peculiarities of character. Placidity of temperament has always been considered a natural and especial quality of her sex She has ever been looked up to as the standard exemplification of moral worth; while her relative position and influence in society, makes it a requirement as important as it is imperitive. We seem to be imbued with the idea of female excellance almost from birth. This probably arises from the the association of our modern Ladies, with the spotless purity of our primitive mother; or perhaps the Creator has made this an innate constituent of our moral organization, for purposes best known to himself. Woman ever has been the theme best calculated to excite our admiration for the sublime and beautiful, and stir into commotion the deepest fountains of the soul — The pen of the poet, or the pencil of the painter has never grown weary in delineating the intuitive beauties of her character. Man ever delights to picture to himself a fairy female form of exquisite lovliness, whose mild expressive eye reflects her sweetness of disposition; whose lips whisper in honied accents her amiability and softness of temperament, whose fascinating gentleness of manners displays her purity and benevolence of soul; and whose virtues combined, form a constellation of excellence upon which celestial beings might gaze and admire. Would that such were the true character of woman! that the imaginative were the real; and that the daily manifestations of her disposition did not give the lie to the exagerations of enthusiastic partiality — But alas the dear ideal creature melts away before the severe scrutiny of stubborn truth—and we behold again the passionate and irritable woman of a more degenerate and defective nature. Such are the reasons which should dictate self government mere especially in the female: reasons which we think sufficiently cogent to awaken her at least to a sense of her duty: and perhaps impress her with the startling conviction that she has fallen far below the speculative estimation of her intrinsic worth. I am fully aware that self control is one of the most trying and difficult duties which the female is called upon to perform. She must war with an enemy, which is naturally a component part of her own constitution: an enemy prompt, tenaceous, and impetuous: and one which is instantly excited to action by the most trivial and silly provocation—Her bosom must be the tumultuous scene of incessant civil conflict, with repeated alternations of victory and defeat. Her energies must never flag, her vigilence never sleep; if she would rend the chains of a base vassalage; and ride triumphant over her vanquished enemy. The power of self government is not an innate qualification of the mind It is the result of patient persevering and untiring cultivation The woman who is resolved to posess the rare jewel of amiability, can only acquire it by the sacrifice of much personal ease and enjoyment She must be loyal to reason and never permit passion to usurp its throne. She must learn to appreciate and respect herself, and regard the opinions of a scrutinizing and censorious world: in a word she must study to become a practical moral philosopher: to contemn the petty vexations consequent upon man's fallen nature, and ever tranquilly float upon the ocean of life however ruffled and tempestuous Our limits will not permit the further extension of the subject, but we propose at some future period to consider the Broom in reference to the advantages of self government, as a concluding essay upon this stupendous theme. THE HERMIT.

WRONG NOT MADE RIGHT BY LAW.

I have sometimes been amazed at the talk of men who call on us to keep the Fugitive Slave Law, one of the most odious laws in a world of odious laws—a law not fit to be made or kept. I have been amazed that they should dare to tell us the law of God, writ on the heavens and on our hearts, never demanded we should disobey the laws of men! Well, suppose it were so. Then it was old Daniel's duty at Darius's command to give up his prayer; but he prayed three times a day, with his windows up Then it was John's and Peter's duty to forbear to preach of Christianity; but they said, "Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye." Then it was the duty of Amram and Jochebed to take up their new-born Moses and cast him into the Nile, for the law of King Pharoah, commanding it, was "constitutional," and "political agitation" was discountenanced as much in Goshen as in Boston. But Daniel did not obey; John and Peter did not fail to preach Christianity; and Amram and Jochebed refused "passive obedience" to the King's decree! I think it will take a strong man all this Winter to reverse the judgment which the world has passed on these three cases.—But it is "innocent" to try. However, there is another ancient case, mentioned in the Bible, in which the laws commanded one thing and Conscience just the opposite. Here is the record of the law: "Now both the chief priests and the Pharisees had given a commandment, that if any one knew where he [Jesus] were, he should show it that they might take him." Of course, it became the official and legal business of each disciple who knew where Christ was, to make it known to the authorities.—No doubt James and John could leave all and follow him, with others of the people who knew not the law of Moses, and were accursed; nay the women, Martha and Mary, could minister unto him of their substance, could wash his feet with tears, and wipe them with the hairs of their head. They did it gladly, of their own free will, and took pleasure therein, I make nodoubt. There was no merit in that—Any man can perform an agreeable duty" But there was found one disciple who could "perform a disagreeable duty." He went, perhaps "with alacrity," and betrayed his Saviour to the marshal of the district of Jerusalem, who was called a centurion Had he no affection for Jesus? No doubt, but he could conquer his prejudices, while Mary and John could not.

Judas Iscariot has rather a bad name in the Christian world: he is called the "the son of perdition," in the New Testament, and his conduct is reconed a "transgression;" nay, it is said the devil "entered into him," to cause this hideous sin. But all this it seems was a mistake; certainly, if we are to believe our "Republican" lawyers and Statesmen, Iscariot only fulfilled his "constitutional obligations." It was only "on that point," of betraying his Saviour, that the constitutional law required him to have anything to do with Jesus He took his "thirty pieces of silver"—about fifteen dollars—a Yankee is to do it for ten, having fewer prejudices to conquer—it was his legal fee, for value received. True, the Christian thought it was "the wages of iniquity," and even the Pharisees—who commonly made the commandment of God of none effect by their traditions—dared not defile the temple with this "price of blood;" but it was honest money; it was as honest a fee as any American commissioner or deputy will ever get for a similar service. How mistaken we are! Judas Iscariot is not a traitor: he was a great patriot; he conquered his "prejudices," performed "a disagreeable duty," as an office of "high morals and high principle;" he kept the "law" and the "constitution," and did all he could to save the "Union;" nay, he was a saint, "not a whit behind the very chiefest apostles" "The law of God never commands us to disobey the law of man." Sancte Iscariote ora pro nobis.

PASSIVE OBEDIENCE NOT TENABLE.

It is a little strange to hear this talk in Boston, and hear the doctrine of passive obedience to a law which sets Christianity at defiance, taught here in the face of the Adamses, Handcock, and Washington! It is amazing to hear this talk, respecting such a law, among the merchants. Do they keep the usury laws? I never heard of but one money-lender who kept them, and he has been a long time dead, and I think he left no kith nor kin! The Temperance Law,—is that kept? The Fifteen-Gallon Law,—were men so very passive in their obedience to that, that they could not even "agitate?" yet it violated no law of God—was not unchristian. When the Government interferes with the rum-sellers' property, the law must be trod under foot, but when the law insists that a man shall be made a slave, I must give up Conscience in my act of prayer, and stoop to the vile law men have made in their act of passion!

It is curious to hear men talk of law and order in Boston, when the other day one or two hundred smooth faced boys, and youths beardless as girls, could disturb a meeting of three or four thousand men, for two hours long, and the Chief of the Police, and the Mayor of the city stood and looked on, when a single word from their lips might have stilled the tumult and given honest men a hearing.

Talk of keeping the Fugitive Slave Law!—Come, come, we know better. Men in New-England know better than this. We know that we ought not to keep a wicked law, and that it must not be kept when the law of God forbids!

But the effect of a law which men cannot keep without violating Conscience is always demoralizing There are men who know no higher law than the statute of the State. When good men cannot keep a law that is base, some bad ones will say, "Let us keep no law at all,"—then where does the blame lie? On him that enacts the outrageous law.

The idea that a statute of man frees us from obligation to the law of God, is a dreadful thing — When that becomes the deliberate conviction of the great mass of the people, North or South, then I shall despair of human nature; then I shall despair of Justice, and despair of God. But it will never come.

One of the most awful spectacles I ever saw was this: A vast multitude attempting, at an orator's suggestion, to howl down the "higher law," and when he said, Will you have this to rule over you? they answered, "never!" and treated the "higher law" to a laugh and a howl! It was done in Feneuil Hall; under the eyes of the three Adamses, Hancock, and Washington; and the howl rung round the venerable arches of the hall! I could not but ask, "Why do the heathen rage, and the people imagine a vain thing," and the rulers of the earth set themselves, and kings take counsel against the Lord and say, 'Let us break his bands asunder, and cast off his yoke from us?'" Then I could not but remember that it was written, "He that sitteth in the Heavens shall laugh; the Lord shall have them in derision" He taketh up the isles as a very little thing, and the inhabitants of the earth are as grasshoppers before Him." Howl down the law of God at a magistrate's commad! Do this in Boston! Let us remember this—but with charity.

THE MARCH OF FREEDOM IRRESISTIBLE

It is not for men long to hinder the march of human freedom. I have no fear for that, ultimately,—none at all,—simply for this reason, that I believe in an infinite God You make your statutes; an appeal always lies to the higher law, and decisions adverse to that get set aside in the ages. Your statutes caonot hold him. You may gather all the dried grass and all the straw in both Continents; you may braid it into ropes to bind down the sea; while it is calm, you may laugh, and say, "Lo, I have chained the ocean!" and howl down the law of Him who holds the universe in his hand—its every ocean but a drop of dew. "How the waters suppress their agitation," you may say. But when the winds blow their trumpets, the sea rises in its strength, snaps assunder the bonds that had confined his mighty limbs, and the world is littered with the idle hay! Stop the human race in its development and march to freedom? As well might the boys of Boston, some lustrous night, mounting the steeples of this town, call on the stars to stay their course! Gently, but irrasistably, the Greater and Lesser Bear move round the pole; Orion, in his mighty mail, comes up the sky; the Bull, the Ram, the Heavenly Twins, the Crab, the Lion, the Maid, the Scales, and all that shining company, pursue their march all night, and the new day discovers the idle urchins in their lofty places, all tired, and sleepy, and ashamed. It is not possible to suppress the idea of freedom, or forever hold down its institutions. But it is possible to destroy a State; a political party with geographical bounds may easily be rent assunder. It is not impossible to shiver this American Union. But how? What clove assunder the great British Party, one nation once in America and England? Did not our fathers love their farther land? Aye. They called it home, and were loyal with abundant fealty; there was no lack of piety for home. It was the attempt to make old England injustice into New-England law! Who did it,—the British people? Never Their hand did no such sacrilege! It was the merchants of London, with the "Navigation Act;" the politicians of Westminster with the "Stamp Act;" the tories of America—who did not die without issue—who for office and its gold would keep a king's unjust commands. It was they, who drove our fathers into disunion against their will. Is here no lesson? We love law, all of us love it: but a true man loves it only as the safeguard of the Rights of Man If it destroys these Rights, he spurns it with his feet. Is here no lesson? Look further then.

Do you know how Empires find their end? Yes, the great States eat up the little. As with fish, so with nations Aye, but how do the great States come to an end? By their own injustice, and no other cause. They would make unrighteousness their law, and God wills not that it be so. Thus they fall; thus they die. Look at these ancient States, the queenliest queens of earth. There is Rome, the widow of two civilizations,—the Pagan and the Catholic They both had her, and unto both she bore daughters and fair sons. But, the Niobe of Nations, she boasted that her children were holier and more fair than all the pure ideas of Justice, Truth, and Love, the offspring of the eternal God. And now she sits there, transformed into stone, amid the ruins of her children's bones. At midnight I have heard the owl hoot in the Colliseum and the Forum, giving voice to desolation; and at midday I have seen the fox in the palace where Augustus gathered the wealth, the wit, the beauty and the wisdom of a conquered world, and the fox and the owl interpreted to me the voice of many ages, which came to tell this age, that THOUGH HAND JOIN IN HAND, THE WICKED SHALL NOT PROSPER.

Come with me, my friends, a moment more, pass over this Golgotha of human history, treading reverent as you go, for our feet are on our mother's grave, and our shoes defile our fathers' hallowed bones. Let us not talk of them; go further on, look and pass by. Come with me into the Inferno of the nations, with such poor guidance as my lamp can lend. Let us disquiet and bring up awful shadows of empires buried long ago, and learn a lesson from the tomb.

Come, old Assyria, with the Ninevitish Dove upon thy emerald crown. What laid thee low? "I fell by my own injustice. Thereby Ninevah and Babylon came, with me, also, to the ground."

Oh queenly Persia, flame of the nations, wherefore art thou so fallen, who troddest the people under thee, bridgedst the Hellespont with ships, and pourdest thy temple wasting millions on the western world? "Because I trod the people under me, and bridged the Hellespont with ships, and poured my temple-wasting millions on the western world. I fell by my own misdeeds!"

Thou muselike, Grecian queen, fairest of all thy classic sisterhood of States, enchanting yet the world with thy sweet witchery, speaking in art and most seductive song, why liest thou there with beauteous yet dishonored brow, reposing on thy broken harp! "I scorned the Law of God: banished and poisened wisest, justest men; I loved the loveliness of flesh, embalmed it in the Parian stone: I loved the loveliness of thought, and treasured that in more than Parian speech But the beauty of Justice, the loveliness of Love I trod them down to earth! Lo, therefore have I become as those Barbarian States—as one of them."

Oh manly and majestic Rome, thy seven fold moral crown, all broken at thy feet, why art thou here? Twas not injustice brought thee low; for thy Great Book of Law is prefaced with these words; Justice is the unchanging everlasting will to give each man his Right! "'Twas not the saint's ideal; it was the hypocrite's pretence! I made iniquity my law. I trod the nations under me. Their wealth gilded my palaces,—where thou mayest see the fox and hear the owl,—it fed my courtiers and my courtezans. Wicked men were my cabinet councillors,—the flatterer breathed his poison in my ear. Millions of bondmen wet the soil with tears and blood. Do you not hear it crying yet to God? Lo here have I my recompence, tormented with such downfall as you see! Go back and tell the new-born child, who sitteth on the Alleghanies, laying his either hand upon a tributary sea, a crown of thirty stars about his youthful brow—tell him that there are Rights which States must keep, or they shall suffer wrongs! Tell him there is a God who keeps the black man and the white, and hurls to earth the loftiest realm that breaks His just eternal law! Warn the young Empire that he come not down dim and dishonored to my shameful tomb! Tell him that Justice is the unchanging everlasting will to give each man his Right. I knew it, broke it, and am lost. Bid him to know it, keep it and be safe!"

☞ We never heard the anecdote of the old woman and her turkeys until yesterday. It is good. An old lady, resident of a neighboring place, kept a large family of turkeys, perhaps sixty. She, like a great many other people, thought a great deal of her turkeys, consequently valued them highly. Opposite her door was a West India good store. The man who kept it one day emptied his cask of cherries, intending to replace them with new. This old lady, being economical, thought it a great pity to have these cherries all wasted, and in order to have them saved she would just drive over her turkeys and let them eat them. In the course of the day the clever old lady thought she would look after them and see that they were in no mischief. She approached the yard, and lo! in one corner laid her turkeys in one huge pile, dead. Yes they were stone dead What was to be done? Surely the old matron could not lose the feathers She must pick them! She called her daughter and picked them, intending to have them buried in the morning. Morning came, and behold, there were her turkeys stalking about the yard featherless enough (as may be supposed) crying, Quit, quit, quit; feelling no doubt mortified that their drunken fit had been the means of losing their coats. Poor things! if they had said quit before they had begun they would not have been in this bad fix.

The Irish Soldier.

Frederick of Prussia had a mania for enlisting gigantic soldiers into the Royal Guards, and paid an enormous bounty to his recruiting officers for getting them. One day a recruiting sergeant chanced to spy a hibernian who was at least seven feet high; he accosted him in English, and proposed that he should enlist. The idea of military life and large bounty so delighted Patrick, that he at once consented.

"But said the sergeant, "unless you can speak German, the king will not give you so much."

"Oh, be jabers," said the Irishman, "sure it's I that don't know a word of German."

"But," said the sergeant, "a few words will be sufficient and these you can learn in a short time. The king knows every man in the Guards, and as quick as he sees you, he will ride up and ask you three questions: First, his majesty will ask how old you are; you will say twenty-seven—next how long you have been in the service; you must reply three weeks—finally, if you are provided with clothes and rations; you answer both."

Patrick soon learned to pronounce his answers, but never dreamed of learning the questions. In three weeks he appeared before the king in review. His majesty rode up to him. Paddy stepped forward with "present arms."

"How old are you?" said the king.

"Three weeks," said the Irishman.

"How long have hou been in the service," asked his majesty.

"Twenty-seven years."

"Am I or you a fool?" roared the king.

"Both," replied Pat, who was instantly taken to the guard-house.

PLAINFIELD GAZETTE.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Thursday; February 13, 1851.

☞ Mr Albert D. Drake is our authorised agent to receive subscriptions and advertisments.

☞ Mr. E. W Carr, Third street. Philadelphia, opposite the Exchange, is our authorised agent for that city.

☞ The Legislature, thus far, have done little else than entertain and pass special acts. We had hopes. the People had hopes that ere 40 days of the session had expired something would have been done toward the passage of those genoral laws they have so long. so ardently and so patiently been waiting for. We would therefore once more, on their behalf, remind their representatives that they were especially elected to enact general not special laws. So far as the Press is concerned, it has generally seconded the wishes of the people on this subject by endeavoring to impress their representatives with the importance of compliance therewith. Shall their voice be heard and heeded or shall it not? Our fears are, judging from what has yet been done, their voice will not be heeded Woe unto those by whom their will, loudly and warningly expressed, shall be defeated Their refusal however to obey the behests of the monopoly. in not electing its nominee Senator, inspires us with the hope that they will yet fulfill the will of their constituents. We congratulate the People therfore on the influence their voice has had. and trust yet to see it more fully heeded. On this question (the appointment of Senator) hang all their hopes: if John R. Thompson is appointed Senator then indeed does the monopoly rule New Jersey. Dare their sepresentatives defeat the will of the People. We shall see.

☞ We would commend to the attention of our readers generally, and to the editors of the Newark Advertiser and of the New York Journal of Commerce and the authors of the Thanksgiving sermons which they published, asserting that God ordained Slavery, particularly. the extracts, on the first page, from Theodore Parkman's "Discourse on the State of the Nation" This discourse, according to our understanding, not only corresponds with the Christian Scriptures on the subject, but also with that true spirit of Liberty for which our forefathers contended: and which they declared, in direct opposition to the aforesaid Advertiser & Commerce sermons, God has endowed all men with. This being their solemn declaration, the government being established by them for its protection, it becomes our most sacred duty as the heirs of this Liberty, of there rights, to use all and every means which they used, which God has given us, and as our only guarantee of these privileges for ourselves, to extend it as quickly as possible to all over whom this goverment exercises control.

What a glorious opportunity does this law, enacted by tyrants,—none but tyrants ever did enact such a law:—in direct opposition to the letter and spirit of our republican institutions, as also to the law of God, not only as written in the Christian Scriptures but as written in the heart of every man, —who thus knows it to be wrong—afford to all true hearted republicans to prove (should opportunity offer) that they possess the true spirit of their fathers: a spirit which neither asks more nor submits to less than their just and equal rights.

We trust there are thousands of men in New Jersey, should opportunity offer. we count ourselves among the number, who would as cheerfully aid the Fugitive Slave to escape from bondage as they would aid their own families to escape from a burning house or the ruthless hands of a murderer We know there are many who would aid the oppressed to obtain their inalienable rights, to obtain their Liberty, despite all the penalties that tyranny can enact.

The first man in New Jersey—a soil consecrated to freedom by the battle fields of Trenton, and Princeton, and Monmouth—who shall resist such a law will be entitled to the gratitude of his fellow man, and receive, not only the approbation of every true lover of liberty on earth, but also of the spirit of those patriots in Heaven who gave their lives a willing sacrifice to obtain it Thank God, and that spirit of Liberty which our forefathers have inspired us with, New Jersey has but few slaves:—none that are so in fact;—Jerseymen were ashamed longer to claim a property in his fellow man: he can say I own this house, that mill, the fruit of these trees are justly mine; the labor of my hands have produced them: but my fellow man was created by the God of Heaven, in his own image. He endowed him with a portion of his own attributes, with an Immortal Soul: thus is he inalienable entitled to Liberty: therefore is he not property, not my property; no, God forbid

We would to God there were more Thanksgiving sermons as worthy of the name, as worthy the commendation of a republican Press; of a republican people. We would to God there were more clergyman who believed that justice, righteousness, liberty; not injustice, oppression and Slavery, were the law of God, and had the moral courage to tell our rulers and the people so But it is not so, the clergy as a mass are still too much as they ever have been, the enemies of liberty; they still commend and uphold "the powers that be," thus falsely teaching that God ordains injustice, oppression and Slavery; thus enabling "the powers that be" to degrade, enslave and tyrannize over mankind.

This sermon (we wish we could have published the whole of it) is worthy the serious consideration of every man who professes to be a christian and a republican; it shows conclusively to our mind that Slavery is incompatible with republican institutions; that if Slavery continues to exist the Union cannot long endure. The one or the other must soon become predominant, must swallow up the other. The question then is shall Union and Liberty survive or shall Slavery and Despotism triumph?

It is said, by the Committee who have the care of the Union, or by its mouthpiece when constituted, that "the discussion of this queston must be suppressed." Thank God that is past the power of a self constituted committee; never so long as the monument of Bunker Hill stands as a memento of what Liberty is worth will it cease to be agitated; the spirit which was infused by the heroes whose memory it commemorates can never be suppressed so long at least as that monument stands; this is a witness that their descendants have raised, an altar whereby they declare in the sight of God and the people, and on their behalf, that this government was established to protect the inalienable rights of man.

It is impossible they can much longer exist under the same government. They are antagonistic in principle, therefore cannot exist together. It is time therefore that despotism, that Slavery was being abolished. Let those States therefore in which it yet exists prepare for its gradual abolition, like the States in which it has been abolished; let it be accelerated by the aid of the general government.—It is thus alone Liberty and the Union can be preserved. As long as Slavery exists, so long will it contain the seeds of its own dissolution. Abolish Slavery and oppression, and Liberty and the Union will stand until time is no more.

☞ It will be seen by a referance to another column, that the committe appointed at a former meeting to draft a Constitution, and plan of organization for a Public Library and Reading Room, to be established in this place, have called a meeting for the further consideration of the subject on Tuesday Evening next, the 18th inst. As this is a matter that every individual, whether rich or poor, is directly and equally interested in, we trust to see that they justly appreciate its value by a general attendance. Addresses will be delivered on the subject.

Publishing the Laws in Newspapers.

In Connetticut and some other States, it has been the custom for a long time, to publish the statutes of the State in all the newspapers, as soon after enactment as possible. The wisdom of such a measure is obvious to all. In this way the whole community become aware of new Laws, and are prepared to avoid infringing on their commands And, as it is a principle of Law that no man should be ignorant of it, so it should be a principle of Justice with Law makers to inform the whole community in the cheapest and best manner, what the Law is, and we believe the public newspapers the very cheapest and best mode for accomplishing this object.

In addition to the newspapers, we believe that the Laws in a pamphlet form ought to be published as at present

We would also respectfully suggest to our Legislature, the propriety of paying for an annual volume of each of the newspapers of the State, to be neatly bound and placed in the State Library; such papers would become the best Records from which to draw our State's History in 50 to 100 years hence.—Middletown Banner.

The Legislature.

We present a full abstract of the last week's proceedings. The reader will agree with us, that thus far too much attention has been bestowed upon private acts of incorporation, and legislation designed to promote individual interests rather than the general welfare of the community. What matters it, except to A or B., whether swine should be permitted to run at large in some particular locality, or whether Mr C. shall have the privilege to build a dock in front of his premises. In reference to the manner of voting at town-meetings, whether viva voce or by ballot, why not at once, through some general provisions, allow each township to determine it by a vote, instead of legislating in each particular instance. The present Legislature, like preceding ones, in besieged with applications of this and like nature, and legislation, thus far, has been almost wholly of this character. The people want General laws, as far as practicable, instead of special ones. But as long as these applications are successful just so long will they be urged. We do not yet despair that the necessary general laws will be enacted this session, but it certainly looks unfavorable when we see private applications granted from day to day, and the general bills permitted to lie untouched. There is yet time for the present legislature to redeem its pledges, and we trust the members will hasten to do it —Paterson Guardian.

☞ Last week, when the supplement to the Paterson and Hackensack Railroad, was before the House of assembly for its final passage, Mr. Bartley, one of the members from this county, opposed it and declared his determination not to vote for any application for special privileges.

With that consistent, honest and patriotic stand of Mr. Bartley, we are much pleased. We would have pursued the same course We would oppose, at every stage, and vote against every such bill, even if we stood 'solitary and alone, in our opposition. Mr. Bartley was perfectly correct in saying, on that occasion, that the people will condemn the legislature for passing special charters; and we will add, that the people of Morris county will commend and sustain Mr. Bartley in the position he has taken.

If the members are not aware of the fact, that the people will not tolerate the granting of the special acts of incorporation that are now before them, it is high time they should be apprised of that fact; and we warn them if a general law is not made, and those special acts rejected, they will stand on dangerous and unenviable ground.—Morristown Banner.

Finished Education.

Gibbon truly says that the best and most important part of man's education, is that which he gives himself.

Many of our youth of both sexes feel that education is finished when their school days are over. No idea can be more destructive to the progress of true improvement. Our education is never finished till we are in our graves. The discipline acquired in college or in school is given to us only that we may be better able afterwards to educate ourselves. We have only then crossed the threshold of a course of improvement that must last our life-time Such discipline is important; indeed is absolutely essential, to start us aright in the life toil before us; but to suppose that it completes all that must be done for our intellectual or moral welfare is absurb The best part of man's education is then to come, and upon the manner in which each one uses for himself, the arrangements made for him in his early life, will depend the character of his future. Much, too, is said about man's mind having reached maturity, and that he needs no more discipline or education — A false idea, productive of much mischief to real mental improvement. There is no period in the history of the mind, in which it is incapable of any farther progress, as long as the body retains its health. No man, who has lived to the age of sixty, in the constant employment of his mental faculties, but seer that every day he is acquiring greater powers, a greater control over what he does know, and an accumulation of new ideas It is never too late in life to learn.

☞ The Industrial Legislature wil assemble at the room under the Visitor Office, No 21 State-st., on Tuesday, Feb, 11, at Trenton, 1 o'clock, P. M., and continue in session during the week. Members of the State Legislature are invited to attend, when convenient.

MURDER AND LIFE SENTENCE.—Dr. J. M Smith, of Saco Me., was on Saturday convicted of murder, for producing an abortion on Miss Berangera Caswell, whose dead body he hid in a sluice way, and sentenced to the Penitentiary for life. It will be recollected the girl was missing for sometime; her lover was arrested, and finally divulged that he went with her to Smith's for the purpose which produced her death.

Congress.

FEB. 8.—SENATE —Mr. Seward presented petitions from New York and Pennsylvania to repeal the Fugitive Slave law—laid on the table; also, petition from Schuylkill Co, Penna, praying repeal of all laws authorizing Slavery in the Territories, and in the District sf Columbia.

Mr. Clay moved to lay it on the table.

Mr. Seward asked for the yeas and nays, which were refused, and the petition laid on the table.

Messrs Chase and Hamlin presented similar petitions—same result.

Mr Clay presented petitions to modify the Tariff.

M J Davis, from the committee on Public Buildings, made report in favor of Mills' plan for extension of the Capitol.

Mr Gwin introduced a bill to establish a Branch Mint in California.

Mr. Pierce reported a bill to distribute the annals of Congress, which was considered, and ordered to be engrossed.

Various motions to take up different bills were made and lost, after which, the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE —Mr Newell, of N. J asked but did not obtain leave to introduce a resolution instructing the committee on agriculture to inquire into the expediency of establishing an agricultural bureau; and also into the expediency of purchasing the Mount Vernon estate, for Agricultural School or Model Farm.

The House went into committe on bill to establish Board of Accounts.

Mr. McLane. of Kentucky, spoke at some length in favor of the bill and Mr Daniel against it.

The committe rose, without amending the first section, and the House adjourned.

Legislature.

Feb. 7.—ASSEMBLY.—Reports of Committees.—By Mr. Fritts, from the majority of the Committee on the House of Refuge, a lengthy report against a continuation of the work. They estimate the present contracts to amount to $42.000, and that the whole cost will not be short of $100,000 They think the county work houses preferable, and conclude by recommending that it would be much better to expend the amount for the purposes of education.—They recommend the sale of the materials by commissioners to be appointed by the Governor.

A motion was made to print 1500 copies of the report, which was afterwards withdrawn, to give the minority of the committee an opportunity to report.

The report was laid on the table.

Passed —To abolish the Freehold Qualification, 48 to 9; Port Mayo and New York Ferry Co; to incorporate Cape Island City, 50 to 0: to authorize insurances of lives for benefit of married women.

State Lunatic Asylum.

It apppears by the Report of the Managers of the State Lunatic Asylum that their expenses for the year were $27,500, of which $18,743 have been paid by patients, and $8.687 by the State; 220 patients have been in the institution, of whom 32 have been discharged as recovered, 12 improved. 4 unimproved, 10 have died and 162 remain; 292 patients have been received since the institution was opened, 105 of whom have been restored to society. The condition of the present inmates is also improving. The whole number of patients on the 1st of January, was 162, Being an increase of 52 during the year, caused by the late law requiring the counties instead of townships from which they came the pay the expense; 130 indigent patients have been treated, for whose expenses the state is responsible at 85 cents per week, amounting in all to $5.070. An appropriation is asked for this, and for $4,922 more to complete additional rooms for raving maniacs, and other improvements.

Several contributions are acknowledged, among which is one by Hon. D S. Gregory, a beautiful fountain erected at a cost of $800; a library of 400 volumes by J G King, valued at $400, and selected by Miss Dix; games for the female patients, and shrubbery from Mrs J G King. A fine toned seraphene by a lady of Princeton, and a magic lantern worth $160 by Caleb H Shipman, Esq. of Newark.

MICHIGAN.—At a meeting at Flint, Genesee Co, which was attended by C. C Haskell, (late the Cass nominee for Congress,) at which Dr. D Clarke was Chairman, the Fugitive Slave Law was strenously opposed, and these among other resolutions adopted:

Resolved, that we request our State Representatives and Senators to pass a law similar to that lately passed by the State of Vermont, securing the right of habeas corpus, and the right of trial by jury to the alleged fugitive from Slavery.

Resolved, That we will support no man for office who is not opposed to the "Fugitive Bill."

Clever Roguery.

As a certain learned judge in Mexico, some time since, walked one morning into Court, he thought he would examine whether it was in time for business; and, feeling for his repeater, found it was not in his pocket.

"As usual," said he to a friend who accompanied him, as he passed through the crowd near the door —"as usual, I have again left my watch at home under my pillow." He went on the bench, and thought no more of it. The court adjourned, and he returned home.

As soon as he was quietly seated in his parlor, he bethought himself of his time-piece: and turning to his wife, requested her to send for it to their chamber

"But, my dear judge," said she, "I sent it to you three hours ago."

"Sent it to me, my dear? Certainly not."

"Unquestionably," replied the lady, "and by the person you sent for it."

"The person I sent for it!" echoed the judge.

"Precisely, my dear, the very person you sent for it! You had not left home more than an hour, when a well-dressed man knocked at the door and asked to see me. He had one of the finest turkies I ever saw; brought it and said that on your return to court, you met an Indian with a number of fowls, and having bought this one, quite a bargain, you had given him a couple of reals to bring it home; with the request that I should have it killed, picked, and put to cool, as you intended to invite your brother judges to a dish of molle with you to-morrow And, 'O! by the way, Senorita,' said he, 'his excellency, the judge, requested me to ask you to go to your chamber and take his watch from under the pillow, where he says he left it as usual, this morning, and send it him by me.' And, of course, mi querido, I did so"

"You did?" said the judge.

"Certainly," said the lady.

"Well," replied his honor, "all I can say to you, my dear, is, that you are as great a goose as the bird is a turkey. You've been robbed, madam: the man was a thief; I have never sent for my watch; you've been imposed on; and, as a necessary consequence, the confounded watch is lost forever."

The trick was a cunning one; and, after a laugh, and the restoration of the judge's good humor by a good dinner, it was resolved actually to have the turkey for to-morrow's dinner; and his honor's brothers of the bench to enjoy so dear a meal. Accordingly, after the adjousnment of court next day, they all repaired to his dwelling, with appetites sharpened by the expectation of a rare feast

Scarcely had they entered the sala, and exchanged the ordinary salutations, when the lady broke forth with congratulations to his honor upon the recovery of the stolen watch.

"How happy am I," exclaimed she, "that the villain was apprehended"

"Apprehended!" said the judge, with surprise.

"Yes, and doubtless convicted, too, by this time," said his wife.

"You are always talking riddles," replied he: "explain yourself, my dear. I know nothing of thief, watch or conviction."

"It can't be possible that I have been deceived," quoth the lady, "but that is the story, about 1 o'clock to-day, a pale and rather interesting young gentleman, dressed in a seedy suit of black, came to the house in great haste—almost out of breath. He said that he had just come from the court: that he was one of the clerks: that the great villain who had the audacity to steal your honor's watch had just been arrested; that the evidence was nearly perfect to convict him: and that all that was required to complete it was the turkey, which must be brought into court, and for that he had been sent with a porter by your express orders.

"And you gave it to him?"

"Ofcourse I did—who could have doubted him, or resisted the orders of a judge?"

"Watch and turkey—both gone! Pray, what in the world, madam, are we to do for dinner?"

But the lady had taken care of her guests, notwithstanding her simplicity, and the party enjoyed both the joke and their viands —Meyer's Mexico.

A FIELD FOR THE BIBLE SOCIETY.—Gov. Bell, of Texas, observes in his Thanksgiving Proclamation that:

"In the beautiful and expressive language of the Bible: 'The Winter of our disontent' is gone: the rain is over and past: the time of the springing of flowers is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land."

Our Bowery boys will object to this decking the Bible in the plumes borrowed from the the very first line of their favorite soliloquy. They haven't eaten so many cords of peanuts in Mr. Hamblin's pit for nothing You might stick them on a quotation of real Scripture, but any of them would have told Gov Bell that 'the winter of our discontent' is from Booth's 'crook-back'd tyrant,' Richard Duke of Gloucester, and nothing short —Tribune.

"Mr Speaker—a word or two on that bill, for more than one-half of my constituents get their living in no other way."

A young man and a female, upon a time, stopped at a country tavern. Their awkward appearance excited the attention of one of the mebers of the family, who commenced a conversation with the female, by inquiring how far she had travelled that day.

GRAHAM'S MAGAZINE, for March, is entitled, in the publisher's notice accompanying it, "a surprise number," and it well deserves the name It makes its appearance in an equally novel garb and attractive character—without "pictures," (unless we should characterize as such a few very finely executed wood-cut illustrations,)—without even a fashion plate; these customary ornaments being, for once, substituted by literary matter—original, American, paid for literary matter (it cost, we learn, $1500) 144 pages of it, too—just as many as Harper's New Monthly and the International Magazines devote to selected matter, not paid for, from the British periodicals. The intention of the pubisher is obvious and praise-worthy—the result singular and successful. There are no less than fifty different original papers in the number, presenting a great display of names of popular American writers, and a great a variety of subjects handled. It is, in consequence, a most attractive and excellent number, superior in interest and general merit to its foreign rivals of this month, and deserving the approbation which should attach to national spirit and liberal expenditure. We are sure that the popular verdict will be in its favor; as we are equally sure that an American magazine, conducted on such a plan, is, in its beneficial influence on American literature, of more worth than all the reprints, of or from British periodicals, in the world

Mr. Graham has, we are pleased to learn, been eminently successful in his magazine since he resumed its management; and certainly, if extraordinary aptitude in accommodating the public taste—if liberal dispensation of means to accomplish well-considered ends—if the employment of the best talent, upon the only sure method, that of the best payment—if continual wachfulness to avail himself of whatever is new or striking; and, in a word, a resolute determination not to be outdone, in any way, by anybody, entitle him to success, he eminently deserves it.

The April number, will, we learn, present its former decorated appearance, and be expensively and splendidly illustrated.—United States Gazette.

The popularity of this Magazine continues to increase, steadily and rapidly, with the publication of every successive Number. Every month adds over Five Thousans Copies to its regular sales The Press, from one end of the Union to the other, and without exception, has expressed the warmest approbation of the plan of the work and of the manner in which it has thus far been carried out

The Publishers would express the cordial thanks to the public for the extraordinary degree of favor with which their efforts have been received. They assure the readers of the Magazine that nothing which expense, labor, and incessant care can do, to make its merit keep pace with its success, shall be left undone The Pictorial Illustrations, which have secured so much admiration, shall be still further multiplied, diversified, and improved. Renewed care will be exercised in the selection of literary matter for its pages The Monthly Record of Current Events, which is designed to be a regular synopsis of all events of interests in every department of activity, and in every part of the world, will be enlarged, and made more comprehensive and systematic: and all possible exertions will be made to render the Magazine, in all respects, superior to any similar work ever published in any part of the world

Articles from PUNCH, and other well known humorous publications, will be from time to time presented, with Pictorial embellishments: care will be taken in this department, as in every other, to admit nothing in the slightest degree offensive to morality or good taste, and to combine interest and instruction with entertainment

Each number of the Magazine will contain 144 pages octavo, in double columns The volumes of a single year, therefore, will present nearly two thousand pages of the choicest of the Miscellaneous Literature of the age A carefully prepared Fashion Plate, and other pictorial illustrations, will accompany each number

GREAT COUGH REMEDY!

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of
COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

In offering to the community this justly celebrated remedy for disease of the throat and lungs, it is not our wish to trifle with the lives or health of the afflicted, but frankly to lay before them the opinions of distinguished men and some of the evidences of its success, from which they can judge for themselves. We sincerely pledge ourselves to make no wild assertions or false statemements of its efficacy, nor will we hold out any hope to suffering humanity which facts will not warrant.

Many proofs are here given, and we solicit an inquiry from the public into all we publish, feeling assured they will find them perfectly reliable, and the medicine worthy their best confidence and patronage.

FROM BENJ. SILLIMAN, M D, L L D, &c,
Professor of Chemistry, Mineralogy, &c, Yale College, Member of the Lit Hist Med Phil. and Scien. Societies of America and Europe

"I deem the CHERRY PECTORAL an admirable composition from some of the best articles in the Materia Medica, and a very effective remedy for the class of diseases it is intended to cure."

New Haven, Ct, Nov 1, 1849

Prof CLEAVELAND, of Bowdoin College, Me Writes—"I have witnessed the effects of your "CHERRY PECTORAL" in my own family and that of my friends and it gives me satisfaction to state in its favor that no medicine I have ever known has proved so eminently successful in curing diseases of the throat and lungs."

REV. DR OSGOOD

Writes—"That he considers "CHERRY PECTORAL" the best medicine for Pulmonary Affections ever given to the public," and states that "his daughter after being obliged to keep the room four months with a severe settled cough, accompanied by raising of blood, night sweats, and the attendant symptoms of Consumption, commenced the use of the "CHERRY PECTORAL," and had completely recovered"

HEAR THE PATIENT.

Dr Ayer—Dear Sir: For two years I was afflicted with a very severe cough, accomanied by spitting of blood and profuse night sweats By the advice of my attending physician I was induced to use your CHERRY PECTORAL, and continued to do so till I considered myself cured, and ascribe the effect to your preparation.

THE REMEDY THAT CURES.

PORTLAND, Me, Jan 10, 1847.
Dr Ayer: I have been long afflicted with Asthma which grew yearly worse until last autumn, it brought on a cough which confined me in my chamber, and began to assume the alarming symptoms of consumption—I had tried the best advice and the best medicine to no purpose, until I used your CHERRY PECTORAL, which has cured me, and you may well believe me. Gratefully yours

PROFESSOR A. C. BARRY'S TRICOPHEROUS, or Medicated Compound.

FOR RESTORING, PRESERVING, AND beautifying hair, eradicating scurf and dandruff, and curing diseases of the skin, glands and muscles, stings, cuts, bruises, sprains, &c, &c. It has been ascertained by experiment that has produced the same effect in curing disease of the skin, &c, of the Horse and all the animal kingdom.

Barry's Tricopherous,

The following testimonials, selected from hundreds of similar import, will serve to show the value of the preparation, and the estimation in which it is held by those who have given it a trial:

NEW-YORK, Sept 22, 1850.
Prof Barry—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted with a cutaneous eruption of the scalp of a most aggravated character for the last sixteen years, and during that period I have had the advice of some of the most eminent physicians, and have tried all the preparations for the hair and skin now known, without the least benefit I was advised by a friend to try your Tricopherous I did so, as a last resort, and, to my surprise and gratification, found myself cured in about two months Such was the violence of the disorder that at times I was partially blind.

Respectfully yours,
G. V. M RAPELYE, 148 Columbia-st.
Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Oct 23d 1850.
Prof Barry—My Dear Sir: About two years ago my hair came out a great deal, and my head was much affected with dandruff I was told by a friend to try your Tricopherous, and I did so, and to my astonishment my hair was firmly rooted, and all the dandruff disappeared, as the head now shews for itself

With respect I am your obedient servant,
J. S. TREADWELL, 653 Broadway.

[From the Military & Naval Argus, Nov. 9th.]
There is no remedy for the permanent cure of baldness and diseases of the cranium generally, that has reached the popularity enjoyed by the article known as Professor Barry's Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound It is extensively used by the upper classes of the community; in almost every nursery in the land it is used in preference to other articles of the kind It imparts vigor to the roots of the hair, and thus promotes its growth to a remarkable degree It destroys dandruff and scurf, and yields the hair fine and glossy It will cure all diseases of the scalp such as scald head, dew worm, and other obnoxious disorderders of the skin in cheapness, as well as efficacy, it stands unrivaled It is sold in large bottles, price 25 cents at No 137 Broadway, and at the druggists' generally throughout the United States and Canadas [123 s

THE NEW JERSEY

HORSE POWER

Manufacturing Company.

HAVING improved, strengthened and perfected A D CRANE'S Patent Horse Power, are now prepared to furnish the same to all who may want

This Power consists of an endless floor running over a series of pulleys, connected by cranks, without a rack or cog wheel about it: none being required from the fact, that the weight of the horse on the floor or platform causes sufficient adhesion between it and the pulleys to transmit all the power he is able to give Also by this arrangement the chain is freed from the draught or strain (which cannot be avoided in any other Stall Power) except, what is reqired to pass the floor around. The requisite speed is obtained direct from the machine thereby avoiding a great amount of friction and wear, and lessening the liability to get out of order They run so easily as to require less than an inch elevation to the foot A self acting brake is attached by which the motion is kept regular and uniform even when the work is uneasy and irregular.

From the above description it is evident that this is the most simple and efficient Power known.

They are highly recommended by those who have used them, for driving Circular Saws, Lathes, Drilling Machines, Threshers, Grist Mills, Pumps, &c.

The Company have certificates to prove the above and also to show that the Two Horse Power will grind 40 bushels of Corn to Meal (with Platt's Patent Mill,) in a day of ten hours, making it an invaluable Power for the Southern planter as well as others

It has taken Silver Medals at the different Fairs where exhibited, and the only one given to Horse Powers by the American Institute last fall

They also furnish Threshers of the most approved construction.

Price of Single Power with Belt, $75: Double do. with Belt, $110: Thresher and Separator, $35.

HERNIA.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.—This disorder, of very frequemt occurrence, may be considered as arising through weakness of the abdominal walls, inducing an enlargement in the natural openings formed therein for the transmission of blood and other vessels: such openings being enlarged, permit the escape of bowels or other viscera of the abdomen, devolving hernial swellings or rupture, which most generally occur outwardly, as at the navel, groins and thighs.

The complaint is likely to happen at birth, and therefore should be carefully looked for by those having the charge of children, that it may be arrested and cured promptly. It also occurs at any period of life, to either sex, without regard to the condition or mode of living, and when found, should be attended to without delay—the final penalty being death, and that may be induced through strangulation at any moment

RUPTURES, are always to be treated with the surgical instruments known as Trusses and Supporters, and these require to be skillfully applied. With this view, the HULL'S TRUSS OFFICE, now established some thirty years, has under the various managers, presented to the public both male and female attendants to apply its instruments directly to the persons, which is preferable in all cases, and has also made improvement at different times, showing that advancement which study and practice only yield toward the relief of this malady

With much pleasure the fact is now published, that recent improvements BUTLER'S TRUSS PADS have been made, and sufficiently tested upon numerous cases to warrant, through the cures already affected, their submission to the public, as being in adaptation and efficiency superior to any heretofore made known.

These improvements, recently patented, are now being applied at this office, 4 Vesey street, in cases of rupture, gravitation of the bowels, prolapsus uteri, prolapsus ani and piles

The public may rely upon that care being made in their application, which will most likely tend to the final cure of the several complaints

Hull's Truss Office, 4 Vesey street, Astor House, opposite St. Paul's Church, New York
FREDK M BUTLER, Proprietor.

N B—The ladies' department is attended by a female qualified to fit the instruments, having so attended this office for many years

Children trussed when only two weeks old, and invariably cured. [145is.

MECHANICAL MEDICINE.

Dr. Banning, formerly of this city, asks to announce that he has returned to 341 Broadway; for consultation and management of weakneses of the vocal, pulmonary, digestive, nervous, spinal and female systems; and also of the drooping, languor and physical deformities, which are so destructive of both health and beauty at the present day.

As these and kindred maladies are usually the result of a violation of the laws of physical organization, he will treat them chiefly by those exercises, mechanical appliances and reformatory habits of body, in conjunction with hydropathy galvanism and other discoveries of the day, which, united with the cooperative efforts of the subject, are calculated to relieve and restore the energies of the suffering and neglected organs.

Having spent several years in traveling for investigation and practical experiment on the subject, he has, at length, greatly improved and multiplied his surgical and mechanical appliances for the purpose. In addition to his new supports for female and spinal weaknesses, are some combining the properties of a universal hernial truss and an effective general support, with which he challenges cases of general debility, constipation, piles and prolapsus, ani, leucorrhea, prolapsus uteri and every variety of hernia

The distinctive peculiarity of these devices is, that they do not weaken or restrain the motions or growth of the suffering parts, but act imitatively and concordantly with the mathematical genius of the body's forces. Hence, by a most comfortable and gentle pressure, they at once give great support and render the oppressed system eligible to its own restoration

Feeble invalids coming from a distance will command prompt and faithful attention.

For more definite information, see his revised edition of "Animal Mechanics," and also his circular, which will be sent gratuitously when requested.

His improved body-braces, spinal supports and supporter trusses applied at his office (341 Broadway) and to be had wholesale and retail- City and country physicians and druggists are invited to call and examine Office hours from 9 A M to 1 P M [121.

FOR FEMALES AND MALES

Dr. Lazettis Juno Cordial, or Protective Elixir.

This is the only actual remedy ever discovered for impotency, Genital Debility, Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases occasioned by certain secret habits; and many of the nostrums recently recommended for the same complaints are worthless imitations which its unrivalled excellence, fame and popularity have brought into the market. The Medical Faculty of Europe and the United States are unanimous in their recommendations of the Juno Cordial and have not given their sanction in a single instance that has been authenticated, to any compound for the same purposes The nature of the maladies relieved by the Juno Cordial are generally such as to leave the publication of certificates of cures out of the question, or the proprietor could produce a host of the most conclusive testimony to show that the great reputation that it enjoys was not accidentally obtained, but is firmly based upon its positive, and apparently miraculous virtues In all directions are to be found the happy parents of healthy offspring, who would not have been so, but for this extraordinary preparption. And it is equally potent in the many diseases for which it is recommended Objection has been naturally made to the price of the Juno Cordial, because the trash that has been thrown into the market in opposition to it is sold cheaper; but the fact is, the Cordial cannot be afforded for less, and ought to be much dearer, as many of the ingredients which compose it are among the costlest things in nature; whereas the others are made up of cheap drugs, worth but little in money, and less in merit. We assure the reader that the utmost reliance may be placed on the Juno Cordial in the cure of the maladies mentioned above, and also those that follow, viz: Loss of Muscular Energy, Physical Lassitude and General Prostration, Irritability, and all Nervous Affections, Indigestion, Sluggishness of the Liver, Gleet, Leucorrhoea or Whites, and Flour Albus and every disease in any way connected with the disorder of the Procreative Functions—in all of which it will afford almost immediate relief, and, if used as directed, is almost certain to produce a positive and permanent cure Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness or disability of a certain nature, should take this Cordial, as it will infallibly restore health and vigor in a brief period, and where want of offspring is a cause of regret, if recourse be had to it the most beneficial results may be anticipated with confidence It is of priceless value to those without offspring It has taken the precedence in Italy and will in all other countries where it may become known

It also possesses the unrivalled qualities of curing incipient Consumption, and I have administered it with great success to patients who have sought our delightful climate for the restoration of their health and the result is that a medicine has been added to the catalogue for the cure of insipient consumption.

To spread wide the blessings of this medicine, I have appointed Messrs Judson & Co, of the City of New York, in the United States of America, my sole Agents for its sale: and none can be genuine unless it comes through them, and their signature is on the wrapper

Uncle Benny:

OR

The Potency of Cloth.

'When a woman will, she will, depend on't,
And when she won't, she won't and there's the end on't'

Benjamin Greenleaf was a good, an honest, and a plain man. He lived on a nice little farm, had as loving a wife, and as dutiful daughters as any man in the whole valley of Chrisendom. His table was graced with the heaviest cheese and richest butter of any of his compeers, and his faithful wife laudably exerted herself in rendering the home of the good farmer a retreat of joy, peace and quiet.

He had toiled through sun and snow, and by industry had accumulated a goodly portion of the goods that make a man a man. His two daughters were carefully polished with the burnish of the "board ing school," and the good mother gloried in their interesting accomplishments; but Benjamin took more delight in contemplating the golden beauties of his wheat field than the gaudy paintings of his accomplished daughters; to his ear there was more music in the merry tinkling of bells among his flocks, than the most enrapturing strains of harp or guitar; and the proud neighing of his horses and lowing of his oxen were far more rapturous than the "parles! vous! vous! nous!" of half assassinated French.

The refinement of fashionable life had little attraction for the old man's eyes, and he enjoyed the calm and ease of life, while the rangers held his cribs and graneries a sacred precinct, across whose threshold they dare not vilely intrude. From this, gentle reader, fall not into the error of believing Benjamin a penurious or uncharitable man; on the contrary, the deserving poor never turned from his hospitable door unalmsed, and many were the heartfelt ejaculations of gratitude bestowed upon the good, the benevolent Benjamin Greenleaf.

Benjamin was well stricken in years, and out of respect to the silvery locks that did honor to his honest brow, he was, by universal consent, called "Uncle Benny." He was beloved by the children of the village, who used to run after him crying in childish glee:—

"Ou de do! Uncle Benny? Ou de do! Ah! ha! ha!—got fish-hooks, and Uncle Benny got none! Ah! ha! ha!"

Oftentimes they would cling to Uncle Benny's skirted coat, and wring his old fingers in perfect childish glee, and pure infant joy. Now these distinctions were well pleasing in the old man's sight, and found favor in his eyes, and many were the times that he would bestow gifts upon the children, and their gladsome thanks were more joys to him than the honors of the State.

He and his family were very, very happy; but alas! perfect bliss is not to be enjoyed in this mundane wilderness, and there was one thing that marred their peace. Benjamin, or more familiarly, "Uncle Benny," could not be constrained or prevailed upon to exchange his ancient garb for a more fashionable suit, and his stoic presistence in wearing old, patched hat, drab coat, buckles and small cloths, was a potent source of trouble and sore discomfort to his wife and fashionable daughters.

Many were the arguments set forth by his dear wife to convince him of the propriety of his making a few rapid strides in order to keep pace with fashion's gaudy car, that whirled rapidly on, but her eloquence were ideas vainly spent; for his reply ever was:

"Ah! these are just as good as new!"

True to feminine principle, Mrs Greenleaf would tell her awful troubles to her sympathising neighbors, and one evening at the the tea table of Mrs Penelope Primple, in the midst of the animated discussion of dress and fashion, she raised her aged hands in deploring agony, and declared her "old man hadn't a speck of taste; he wouldn't dress to suit her fancy, and it was no use talking for she had said, and said, and it all done no good: for he still clung to his old rough shoes, long stockings, revolutionary pants, swallowtailed coat, patched hat, and his answer to all her arguments eternally was: 'Ah! these are just as good as new!'"

What Mrs Primple's advice was, we are not permitted to say; but it renewed Mrs. Greanleaf to double diligence, and she was upon this occasion openly joined by her two daughters, who declared that they could not bear to be seen again at church with their worthy parent, unless he changed his antiquated dress for a more fashionable apparel: for on the Sabbath previous, Miss Sally Goggle, their old school-mate, had actually laughed right out when he came in the church, and declared that the "old critter" certainly must not be the Pa of the two Miss Greenleafs.

The artillery of one woman he could easily withstand, but when the three rallied with a strong determination not to be overcome, well might the aged man exclaim, after the old English ritual,—

"Good Lord, deliver us."

Verily could he add weighty evidencs to the truth of the time-worn maxim:

"When a woman will, she will, depend on't.

With commendable industry, on that very evening Mrs. Greenleaf and daughters sallied forth to the village in order to procure a new and fashionable suit for Uncle Benny, with the riches of his purse.

Mr. Bristle was called on for a pair of his finest boots, No 8; Mr. Woolcomber, for a sufficiency of his best cloth; Messrs. Gaudy & Butterfly for one of their richest vest patterns and cravats; and Messrs Goose, Scissors & Co., were to call and take the old gentleman's measure preparatory to making up which they were under promise to have complete on the Saturday evening ensuing, at four o'clock precisely.

Early next morning one of the tailors rode over to the residence of Uncle benny; and now the good old man was condemned to new troubles; he was called from the field where he was leisurely working, and finally the young knight of the tape succeeded in getting the old man to stand to his notion, while he went about measuring his aged body. After a prolonged, sullen silence, Uncle Benny, at length relieved his oppressed spirit by heaving a long drawn sigh and saying:

"I'm an old man—fought under General Green,—but never had the like of this done afore; my mother didn't measure me when she cut the pattern of this one I have on—"

"Pshaw!" said Uncle Benny, for he was ashamed of himself, and he tore his venerable body away from the astonished tailor, and hastened to his work just as he had secured the last measure he intended to take—to wit: the circumference of his snow-locked head, by which measure Messrs. Fox & Hare were to select one of the best "beavers" from their ample stock.

After exploding a small magazine of "small talk" with the ladies, he took his leave, assuring Mrs. Greenleaf that the articles should be in readiness at 4 o'clock precisely on Saturday evening next. Mrs Greenleaf followed the polite knight of the needle to the gate and said:

Queer old man—ain't he, Mr. Scissors?—my old man?"

"He's nothing else, ma'am, but a queer un," said Mr. Scissors—"call or send at four o'clock precisely, ma'am."

Day dawned, and the gloom dispelling beams of bright Phoebus shed a radiant, golden halo athwart the silenced world, on the morn of the hallowed Sabbath. The din and clamor of the village close at hand, was hushed; the sharp voice of the fretful ploughboy was still; the rumbling of busy carts was not on the highway; the quick echoes of the woodman's axe was not heard; the clamorous cowbells only tapped at protracted intervals, as the countless herds quietly gazed on the grassy hills and fields; even the gay songsters of the leafy groves sang their songs in softer and more mellow notes than was their wont, yet the forest was vocal with their melodious anthems of praise.

All was quiet, bright and happy on the pleasant morn of a Sabbath in June, that Benjamin Greenleaf reclined on his easy chair, under the shade of his porch, contemplating the riches of his coming harvest—the seas of golden grain that waved in the gentle breeze before him. The old man was grateful and happy, and he hummed a short hymn of praise to the Great Giver.

He was happy, truly happy; but he was not aware of the great trouble that the evil genius had in store for him. The old clock struck nine, and Uncle Benny told his girls to get ready, and they would go to church.

Ten o'clock was measured and heralded by the faithful time-piece, and the aged father went about preparing to go up to the house of worship. He looked on the smooth peg, where his faithful old coat was accustomed to hang from Sabbath to Sabbath, it was not there. His storm-beaten hat, of goodly age was not in the place it used to set. He looked in every conceivable place; but, alas! his faithful clothes—"which he had worn in all weathers"—did not greet his impatient eyes. The aged man waxed warm, and in a fit of impatience he cried out to his faithful wife, in a tone not mellowed by the dews of affection—

"Old 'oman, war's my clothes—say?"

The good, the affectionate Mrs Greenleaf rushed out of the room, at the same time tying the tape of her clean white apron, declaring that Mr. Greenleaf ought to have been ready to go before this late hour Spoken in a manner and at the time it was, this assertion did not calm the growing flame that was pent in his bosom; for he hastily swallowed a large drink of water, and in a stern voice said:

"Umph! The devil! You've hid my clothes!"

To this the gentle spouse made no reply, except the simple expression—

"Dear me! them gals!"

She hastened to make amends, and brought out the fine suit, made by Messrs Goose, Scissors & Co and with her eyes sparkling with delight, as she brushed a speck of dust off, she requested Uncle Benny with all possible despatch to proceed in encasing his precious self therein. The aged patriarch's spirit waxed wroth, and scratching his venerable head, he exclaimed to her:

'Didn't know the cussed things had come on the plantation."

But there was no time to be lost in discussing the merits and demerits of cloth, for the solemn toned bell was pealing forth its call to come to the house of prayer, and Uncle Benny commenced the operation of dressing, with feelings more of a condemned culprit than of pride.

His attentive helpmate lent "aid and comfort," and when he had fairly got his tight pantaloons on, he cast one furtive glance down his limbs, and the horrible idea was suggested to his mind, that those faithful limbs, which had carried his body for threescore years, had been cruelly melted and poured therein like molten lead. He took one step, and as if then satisfied, that venerable sire said:

"Drot!"

The next thing was to get his feet in those polished boots, that glistened on the floor; he sat down in no pleasing mood, and now commenced the "tug of war"—(Mr Bristle always made a snug fit) He pulled and worked while the hot perspiration stream down his aged face. His well-wishing wife stood by, advising him as to the best and proper mode of pulling on boots, while his waiting and impatient daughters actually bid him make haste. At this he stopped full a minute, partly to get breath, and partly with a silent, meaning look, to rebuke those inconsiderate children, for their want of feeling and pity for "the sorrows of a poor old man." At length the wished for point is gained; his boots were safely on, and he stamped the floor with the high round heels, and said:

"Drot!"

The fine silk vest was put on and nicely buttoned up—smoothed down by the careful wife; meantime the clamorous bell warned them of the flying moments, and the good father said:

"Dang!"

"Why, la, Benjamin," said the wife, "don't say so"

"Old 'oman," said Uncle Benny, "you'd say it too, if you was strained up like me in these cuss—Whar's my coat—my old coat, let me wear it. I'll wear that thing some other time."

But the girls said that would never do; an old-fashioned white coat and pewter buttons along with his new clothes! Preposterous!

The old man's arms were stretched out, and he was forced into a new coat—the finest in his life.

The girls said it was very neat, and Uncle Benny said as he wiped the sweat from his hot brow:

"Dang! Fit—fit? Dang if it wont give me fits! fits! Old 'oman, fits! fits!" Five minutes more to spare: and now for the lustrous cravat. The suffering parent said:

"Oh, girls, don't put that thing on my neck, there is no room for it; it is too short for it; it is too short—my neck is too short for it?"

But his argument was not listened to, and it was tied on in the most approved modern fashioned style of knotting cravats

"Good Lord deliver us!" said the sufferring father already beginning the service of the day!

The glossy "beaver" was next placed on his head and he was partly dragged before the mirror to behold his beauteous self. He toook one hasty glance, and darted on, saying:

"Oh dang the cussed flummery; let's go to meeting.,'

Uncle Benny was vexed—was mad; for he seldom used such strong language. With feelings of agony not dissimilar to the pains experienced in a certain mode of capital punishment–Benjamin Greenleaf hastened to the church with his family. Mrs. Greenleaf admired the improvement in his appearance, and she was frequently saying:

"How much better he does look."

He had not proceeded very far on his way, when he was met by some of his old friends---the little boys who had a hundred times on former occasions, run to meet him; but they gave the road, and did not touch his hand or pull his coat.

"Good morning, boys," said Uncle Benny.

"How d'ye do, Sir," was their low reply.

"I verily believe," thought the old man, "that the little brats are afraid of me!" And he passed on.

His old neghbor, Squire Conelius Cornstalk, was just coming out from his residence. He stopped at his gate and shaded his eyes to enjoy a better view—when came near enough to assure his visual perceptions that it was none other than Uncle Benny, he walked to him with an extended hand saying:

"Why, good morning, Mister Greanleaf! I am glad too see you Mister Greenleaf—I am. I hope you are well sir."

When he arrived at church, he was the "observed of all observers," and Miss Sally Goggle rose in her pew to obtain a good view, and whisper to her nearest acquaintance that he was the finest looking old gentleman she had seen in many a day.

After services were over, all were eager to press the hand of Benjamin Greenleaf, and were very solicitous as to the health of Mr. and Mrs. Greenleaf.

"Can't Mr. Greenleaf make it convenient to take dinner, and spend the evening with me to-day?" was a question that he had seldom before heard, and on this occasion was tired of giving an answer, which was always negative.

As soon as he could disengage himself from the irksome host of his new cloth made friends, he hurried home, panting and perspiring.

Dinner was soon over, and he went in the room, and one by one, he laid off the pieces of 'costly apparel," and "rigged himself in more natural sail." One by one he laid the new articles in the large walnut chest, and when he had placed the last piece safely away, the happy face of Mrs Greenleaf peered in the door, and with a very affectionate smile on her countenance, she said:

"That's rigt Benjamin; take good care of 'em."

"Old 'oman," said Uncle Benny, "if any person calls for Mr Benjamin Greenleaf, you can tell 'em that the gentleman is in—in the chest. Old 'oman, d'ye understand? Uncle Benny is going to see if the wheat is ripe; but Mr. Benjamin Greenleaf is in—in the chest—always in, old 'oman."

Phenomena of Death.

To be shot dead is one of the easiest modes of terminating life; yet, rapid as it is, the body has leisure to feel and time to reflect. On the first attempt by one of the frantic adherants of Spain to assassinate William, Prince of Orange, who took the lead in the revolt of the Netherlands the ball passed through the bones of his face and brought him to the ground. In the instant that preceded stupefaction, he was able to frame the notion that the ceiling of the room had fallen and crushed him. The cannon shot which plunged into the brain of Charles XII. did not prevent him from seizing his sword by the hilt. The idea of an attack and the necessity for defence, was impressed upon him by a blow which we should have supposed too tremendous to leave an interval for thought. But it by no means follows that the infliction of fatal violence is accompanied by a pang. From what is known of the first effect of gunshot wounds, it is probable that the impression is rather stunning than acute Unless death be immediate, the pain is varied as the natures of the injuries, and these are past counting up. But there is nothing singular in the dying sensations, though Lord Bryon remarked the physiological peculiarty, that the expression is invariably that of languor, while in death from a stab the countenance reflects the traits of natural character, of gentleness or ferocity, to the last breath. Some of these cases are of interest, to show with what slight disturbance life may go on under a mortal wound, till it suddenly comes to a final stop. A foot soldier at Waterloo pierced by a musket ball in the hip begged water from a trooper who chanced to possess a canteen of beer. The wounded man drank, returned his heartiest thanks, mentioned that his regiment was nearly exterminated, and having proceeded a dozen yards on his way to the rear, fell to the earth, and with one convulsive movement of his limbs concluded his career. Yet his voice (says the trooper, who himself tells the story) gave scarcely the smallest sign of weakness." Captain Basill Hall, who in his early youth was present at the battle of Corunna, has singled out from the confusion, which consigns to oblivion the woes and gallantry of war, another instance extremely similar, which occurred on that occasion. An old officer, who was shot in the head, arrived pale and faint at the temporary hospital, and begged the surgeon to look at his wound, which was pronounced to be mortal. "Indeed, I feared so (he responded with impeded utterance) and yet I should like very much to live a little longer, if it were possible." He had laid his sword upon a stone at his side, "as gentle (says Hall) as if its steel had been turned to glass, and almost immediately sank dead upon the turf."—Quarterly Review.

Incidents of the Revolution.

THE SURPRISE PARTY.

During the Revolutionary war, the vicinity of Bloomfield, Essex Co., was subject to frequent depredations by bands of marauders and freebooters from the British posts, and especially from from the garrisons at Bergen heights, opposite to New York. These acts of violence and plunder were not permitted to pass with-out a suitable retribution. The following well-authenticated incident illuitrates the noble daring which animated the true friends of their country in these times of trial. It was upon a cold, dark, wintry night, near the close of the war, that a party of dauntles spirits, consisting of Capt. John Kidney, Capt, Henry Jaroleman, Jacob Garlaw, and Halmach Jaroleman, left their families and their firesides in seach of adventures. A deep snow covered the earth, and the howling wind gave admonition to all to remain within; but our party were bent having prisoners that night. Having provided themselves with a pair of fleet horses, attached to a common wood sled, they left the neighborhood of the above village, and laid their course towards the heights of Bergen. They soon arrived in the vicinity of the garrison; and leaving their horses tied to the fence, they went out to reconnoitre. They returned shortly after, having ascertained that a school-house, some distance from the fort was filled with officers and soldiers rioting and dancing. Their plan of taking prisoners being matured, the company started, with Kidney at their head. Coming upon the house, Kidney commenced giving his orders to his different divisions to surround the house, while he immediately forcing himself in at the door, took good care that his guard should show themselves and their bayonets at the threshold. Those within were struck with astonishment. "Every one of you are my prisoners," cried kidney; "surrender or you die!" Having ordered them into line, he selected first a British officer, and then a refugee—passed them along to the door, where they were muffled and hurried away to the sled; Kidney taking caring to warn them that "the first one who attempted to escape was a dead man." When they reached the meadows they heard the alarm-gun fire, but they were to far for pursuit. The prisoners were secured in the Morristown jail, and our heroes returned well pleased at the night's adventure, leaving their prisoners much chargrined at the way they were taken.

Music by Steam.

Mr. Wm. Hoyt, of Dupont, Indiana, has invented the following plan for making music on a steamboat:

Place a pipe horizontally across the boilers, of such length and size as may be proper; both ends of said pipe to be stopped tight; in or near the centre, there must be a conection pipe to let the steam out of the boilers into said horizontal pipe. On top of said pipe, there must be placed seven or more small pipes, perpendicular, of such a height as may suit the operator; on top said small pipes, place whistles, of different sizes and tones, similar to those used on locomotives and steam boats. Said whistles to be so made that the top part will screw down or up, so as to regulate the sounds, while tuning them at any conveniet part of the boat; place a set of keys to operate on said whistles, to let on and off the steam by means of pressing down those keys similar to playing on a piano; or there can be a cylinder so arranged as to operate on the whistles by turning a crank similar to a hand organ.

Mr. Hoyt says, "I am satisfied that music can be made by steam on a boat or locomotive, as well as it can be played with brass instruments, and much cheaper, much louder, and without any loss of steam, as there is always a surplus whilst landing, whilst at the wharf, and when leaving. It is my candid opinion that the Western boys will hear 'Old Dan Tucker,' 'Auld Lang Syne,' &c., played on the Western waters, by steam, at a distance of ten miles."

This is going music with a rush, and when perfected will astonish Barnum and Jenny Lind.—Sci. American.

Hear Mrs Swisshelm on the subject of holding office, and see how quietly and calmly she bears the blushing honers thrust upon her:

Some folks wonder what we will say about getting three votes for the Mayorality. Why we just say we are as proud as a peacock with pretty feet. We would not take the Mayorality in exchange for our votes. Nobody in this little world would be rich enough to buy them from us; for you see, we are ahead of "that other Jenny" now. As a nightingale she may sing or even hop better than we, but we ran better than she. Jenny Lind only got two votes for Mayor of Philadelphia, and two for Governor of Massachusetts; we have had two votes for Congress, three for Mayor, and ever so many nominations for the Presidency. Our success in politics is amazing; and we are almost afraid to rub our fingers over our chin lest we should feel a pair of incipient whiskers.

☞ If a man would keep both integrity and independence free from temptatation, let him keep out of debt. Dr Franklin says, "It is hard for an empty bag to stand upright."

THE PAINTER.—"Let go the painter," said the captain of a ship, as he got into the boat, to a boy who was ignorant of the term. Instantly the boy ran aft, where one of the sailors was employed on a stage painting the stern, and let go the ropes by which it was held. The captain, surprised at the boys delay, cried out, "you lazy dog, why do you not let go the painter?" "He's gone, pots and all." said the boy.

TO MODIFY THE AIR IN A HOT ROOM.—It is said that a small piece of resin dipped in the water which is placed in a vessel on the stove, will add a peculiar property to the atmosphere of the room, which will give great relief to persons troubled with a cough. The heat of the water is sufficient to throw off the aroma of the resin, and gives the same relief as is afforded by a combustion of the resin. It is preferable to combustion, because the evaporation is more durable. The same rosin may be used for weeks.

☞ SENATORIAL ELECTION.—The Joint Meeting comes off aghin to day; (Wednesday) what the result will be we cannot of course predict. It is pretty certain however that the democratic members who on two former occasions refused to give the Monopoly any more power will still adhere to that determination. For this consistent and upright course they deserve and will receive the grateful thanks and be remembered by every true hearted republican in New Jersey. The indications are that if either of the Monopoly nominees are elected it will be by the defection of whig members; as they have been denounced however by the honest of their party we trust yet to see New Jersey represented. if at all, by and independent, competent and upright man. The crisis is certainly a most important one and we trust to see the rights and will of the People of New Jersey prevail over collusion and fraud.

☞ We trust that our readers, those who feel that they are entitled to an opinion of their own, will not find fault with us for giving place in our columns to opinions which may not be in accordance therewith. The person who delivered the discourse alluded to in another column, or any other person, will be cheerfully granted the privilege of a reply. "Truth invites full and free discussion; Error shrinks from all investigation."

☞ The Senatorial question has been the all engrossing topic of conversation and anxiety during the past week, and though an unusual amount of current business has been transacted by the Legislature, it has been almost lost sight of, in the more exciting proceeding attendant upon the preparations for and the progress of the joint meeting. The proceedings on that occasion are minutely describing in our Legislative report and occupy so much space that we are compelled to omit all remarks in regard to the present situation of affairs The most singular spectacle now presented at Trenton is the open and the undisguised advocacy of the election of Commodore Stockton by many of the oldest and most prominent Whig leaders, among whom are Messrs Joshua Brick and Daniel Reeves of Cumberland and Ralph H. Shreve, long known as a member of the State Central Committe, are conspicuous. Their arguments and reasons are not without effect, though they cannot induce any of the whigs except those who have already gone over to change their ground so long as Senator Dayton is the nominee If he should be dropped a bond will be severed which probably cannot be re-united and we fear that if any inferior man is named, the Whigs will be unable to present an undivided front.—New Jersey Journal.

☞ Through the influence and manœuvers of the monopolists and seekers for special privileges, a new field of employment has been opened for our legislators and a new branch has been added to the legislature.

A small combination of men want a charter to enable them to exercise and enjoy special privileges not possessed by their fellow citizens, by which to grow rich—their application is referred to a committee—it is opposed and then the applicants come on with their attornies, of course well paid, to urge the committee to make a favorable report. The advocates propose and discuss amendments, and drive the bill asked for into a desirable shape. Of course, counsel are heard in opposition & thus the committee on corporations have been erected into courts, to which applications are made for doling out the power and franchises of the state for the benefit of a few. The applicants and their attornies have quite as much if not more, to do with the report the committe makes as the committee themselves As a general thing a bill passes in nearly the same shape it is reported by the committee, and thus by a circuitous course, persons unauthorized by our constitution take a part in the deliberation and determination of our legislature. To us such proceedings seem wrong; but if they are not actually wrong, they are certainly degrading to our legislators.

What would be said, if the Senate, when a general bill is before them, should admit learned and eloquent gentleman, not members to the floor and allow them to spend hours in discussing the bill, proproposing and discussing amendments, &c. It strikes every one that such a course would be improper, and yet it might just as well, yea better, be done, than to allow what now takes place before comittees.

The truth is the mania for special privileges has not only robbed the people of their rights, and diverted the members from the business of their constituents, but it has degraded the legislators themselves —Morristown Banner.

☞ THE NEWS FROM EUROPE, without possessing any one fact of absorbing importance it is yet full of interest and significance. In England the abolition of the window tax is pretty certain to be accomplished. In France the President has in fact triumphed over the Assembly. Public opinion supports him in the dismissal of Changarnier, while the coolness with which it has been carried through, gives him a decided advantage over the fussy Legislature with which he had to deal He has the better of them also in the fact that no party in the whole body has a predominance over all others, and that the various monarchal cliques are so opposed to each other in their private interests that any permanent combination among them other than against Socialism is inconceivable. This Chargarnier flurry has served an excellent purpose in making them tell an unusual amount of truth concerning their places and aspirations, by which the country will profit. In Germany things are going on well The Dresden Conferences are nearly over, and their upshot will soon be officially made public. It amounts to the restoration of the old League with deteriorations. In Prussia and Saxony the press is to be furnished with new and more stringenut muzzles. A warmish free trade agitation is going on in Northern Gremany, while in Austria a violent opposition is acting against free trade even with the States of Germany alone, which the Minstry have determined on. From Italy we have a renewal of the reported desire of Pius IX to abandon the tripple crown and seek peace in the quiet of a cloister. In Spain the Narvaez Ministry have resigned, their Chief threatning to blow out his brains if the resignation was not accepted. This threat could not be resisted and the Queen parted with him. The report of Bem's death is confirmed.—N. Y. Tribune.

☞ At a regular meeting of the Plainfield Division No 33, of the Sons of Temperance, convened at their Division Room February 18. 1851., the following Preamble and Resolutions were unanimously adopted.

Whereas, All men are inalienably endowed by their Creator with certain rights, among which are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happines, and Whereas certain individuals have associated themselves together and are known as a Society by the above designation, for the promotion of their mutual benefiit and for the benefit, comfort and happiness of their fellow man in Temperance and virtue. and Whereas they have voluntarily entered into and bound themselves by certain rules and regulations for the promotion of these objects, knowing it to be for their mutual good, and as is evidenced to the world, for the benefit of society at large, and knowing also that there is nothing belonging to or transacted by the Society inconsistent with their duty to God or their fellow man, and Whereas certain rules and regulations of the Society as aforesaid, make it incumbent upon the members thereof, for the promotion of the objects as above stated, to visit the sick, and to assist the families, and superintend the funeral of a deceased Brother, and Whereas, by the dispensation of Divine Providence a much beloved Brother has recently deceased, and Whereas, in accordance with the rules and regulations it became our solumn duty to perform or to assist to perform the funeral rites pertaining thereto, and Whereas by a resolution of the Clergy of this place we were deprived of these privileges, which are everywhere else enjoyed, therefore

Resolved, That on all similar occasions hereafter we shall perform the ceremonies thereto pertaining according to the rules of our order.

Resolved, That if the Clergy of Plainfield will not officiate upon invitation and thus fulfill an act of christian kindness and duty to their fellow man, we shall invite those who possess more of brotherly kindness, and have a higher appreciation of christian charity.

Resolved, That a copy of this preamble and resolutions be sent to the Board of Ministers, and be published in the Plainfield Gazette, and Plainfield Union. JOHN HARRIS, A. W. P.

Toleration.

BY W. S. COURTNEY.

Toleration means indulgence for the opinions of others; suffering each to entertain his own belief, without molestation, or prejudice to his property, person, or reputation, provided it don't ultimate itself in acts of injury to others and to society. And may I ask, was there ever a time when men hated and persecuted each other because they did not believe alike? Yes! The history of the world, for ages past, is but the history of persecutions for opinion's sake. Creeds and doctrines were sought to be reduced to the proper standard by Inquisitions, racks, ordeals, and Procruestean, beds.

Yes! there was a time on this earth, when men were hewn in pieces for being subject to the laws of their nature. And, indeed although the apparatus that thus hurt the body for the opinions of the soul, is now somewhat out of use, yet the execration of sect by sect, the contempt and odium which each heaps on the other, and the infamy attaching to some doctrines and views, show that the toleration of even these times extends only to the body, which it excepts from wrenches, screws, and red-hot pinchers, but leaves the reputation subject to the same persecuting spirit. With one sect, the epithet "Jew," is enough to consign a fellow mortal to eternal infamy; with another, "Gentile" blackens his reputation and covers him with reproach; with another, to be called "Infidel" is the same as being a liar, thief, and robber! So the opinions and belief of men, now-a-days, are their credentials to reputation and integrity, to honor and honesty.

But the man who stops to reflect but a moment, will at once see that belief is not a matter of choice, but a stern necessity; for no honest man can believe otherwise than he is impressed by evidence, by his reason and experience, by circumstances apparently fortuitous and beyond his control, and by the peculiar conformation of his intellectual and moral structures, (all of which are the unfailing results of regular and unchangeable series of causes and effects, fixedly interwoven in the grand economy of the universe. To upraid, therefore, a fellow being with his honest convictions, and to scorn and contemn them, is to quarrel with Omnipotence in His government of the universe. The indefinite varity which we find in all other departments of creation, pervades also, necessarily, this plan, and is as indispensable to the grand unity of the whole in the single purpose of forming a grand Man out of all created things. But the halcyon and harmonic times, when men can meet in brotherly love and kindness, in temples dedicated to that purpose, and with the most universal freedom and sanctity there propound their various and peculiar views and beliefs on science, theology, religion, &c.; and after having them fairly, impartially, and effectionately discussed, embrace and kiss each other, and again depart—are fast rising upon the world—times in which the good and love of all will be in the ascendant and the pride and exclusiveness of opinion and system will wither and die.

Pittsburg, Jan. 20, 1851.

Arrest of Another Fugitive Slave—Riot and Rescue of the Fugitive.

Boston. Feb. 15—Frederick Wilkins a negro waiter, was arrested to day as a fugitive slave and carried immediately to the U. S. Court Room. The counsel for the defence asked for a postponement till Tuesday next, which was granted; in the mean time the arrest spread rapidly, and a great crowd of negroes gathered. The prisoner remained in the custody of a dozen men, as, by a law of the State, the jail cannot be used to imprison fugitive slaves. The mob rushed in, seized and knocked down the officers in keeping, and filled the Court room. The prisoner himself was frightened at their demoniac appearance and fled, with a cry of murder, to the farthest end of the room. He was, however, secured by the mob, and carried off in triumph. Some few white men were in the crowd.

Arrests in Boston.

Feb. 17. Elizur Wright one of the Editors of The Commonwealth, and Chas Davis, Esq. a member of the Suffolk bar, were arrested this forenoon by Constable John Riley upon the charge of aiding the escape of Shadrick Sims on Saturday. They were taken before U. S. Commissioner B. F. Hallett, in the U. S Court room, about 12 1-2 o'clock, where a primary examination was had, when the case was postponed for a further hearing to-morrow.

The parties were held in the sum $3.000 each. Hon. J. Thomas Steevenson, (a Whig Representative of the Legislature,) was bail for Mr. Davis, and S. E. Sewall for Mr. Wright.

To the Eeditors of the Plainfield Gazette.

GENTLEMEN:—Happening to attend the Second Baptist Church in this Village on last First day evening, Feb. 16th, I was agreeably surprised and much interested in the opening remarks of the speaker, who attempted to prove not only the existenece of God, but that the truth of the Bible and the sectarianism of the day founded thereon, were necessarily deducible therefrom. A considerable portion of the discourse was addressed to infidels, or against those who doubt or disbelieve the authenticity of the Bible.—But, although the attempt was made,—which is something to be thankful for—I must declare that that at least one infidel who heard it could not see the force of his arguments. However, I trust he will not be discouraged by one attempt, I should be pleased to have him reply to the following remarks from the "Portland (Me.) Pleasure Boat," which come more directly to the subject than clergymen generally dare venture; I have vainly endeavored to get light on the points there introduced.

According to the best information that I possess there are not less than 500 infidels within hearing of the church bells of Plainfield, and at the lowest possible estimate at least 5,000,000 in the United States—As a great proportion of these can only be reached by a discussion of the subject—and by proof from some other source than the Bible, unless that first be proved to be true,—and as your motto is "Freedom to all opinions candidly expressed" I trust you will give the article headed "Truth of the Bible," together with the remarks of the editor of the "Pleasure Boat" thereon, which form a suitable introduction, a place in your paper. M.

From the Portland Pleasure Boat.

About the Bible.

Many people who read the Bible, find many things which it is hard for them to understand or to believe; and I would ask what harm it can be for such to express their doubts, or speak of things which they do not understand, provided they are sincere and desire to come at the truth, and are fearful of embracing that which appears improbable without proof, lest they embrace error?—Surely, such should not be bound in silence nor denounced and despised for expresing their views, at least, till those of higer profession and attainments have striven to enlighten them.

A man may read in the Bible, the story of the Flood, and while he reads he may doubt the truth of the story, because he cannot understand whence came so much water nor whither it went when the flood subsided Now, if that man should write an article for the Boat or any other paper, stating his doubts of the truth of the story, and the reason of those doubts, those who understand the subject, instead of denouncing him as an infidel, should endeavor to teach him.

I believe all candid people, who are not blinded by superstition or bigotry, will admit the justice of my remarks: and now, let me introduce them to an article received several weeks since, which I have until now, been too busy to read I give place to it for several reasons,—firstly, the writer, though a stranger to me, appears to be honest, and willing to receive instruction, and I hope some one of the many Doctors of Divinity or Rev clergy will see fit to instruct him;—Secondly, every man has a right to express his own honest convictions beliefs and doubts; and thirdly, this is not the only person of like belief; the number is very great; and if they are right, what they think should become public, but if wrong their errors should be exposed; so I invite the clergy—any and all who devote their time to the study of these matters, to hear this man candidly, and then answer him candidly as they would answer their own child. Here comes the article.

Truth of the Bible.

FRIEND HACKER:—Seeing that this question is being discussed in the columns of the Pleasure Boat, I take the liberty of sending you my views thereon, which I should be pleased to have you comment on in your usual idependent manner.

Being equally interested with my fellow men in forming a correct opinion on the subject, and with no desire to wound the feelings of the most humble individul, I make the folowing remarks, hoping to elicit truth.

Truth I conceive to be eternal; yesterday to-day and forever the same, "whether found in the Bible, a newspaper or an almanac." It matters not how much infidels may scoff at or sophistry may pervert it, the eternal principles of truth and justice must prevail; therefore if the Bible be true as taught, or true at all, it has nothing to fear from investigation; but if false, or not what it is represented to be, not being correctly understood, the sooner the error is corrected the better for all mankind.

There is implanted in the mind of every man, by and in conformity with the laws of nature, which are also the laws of his being, an infalliable and allsufficient guide to judge of right or wrong, truth or falsehood. This law of nature is universal, everywhere the same, pervades all things, all things being part and parcel of it; and as it is constantly working impressions on the mind of man, it becomes his unerring guide and protector, and has ever led him aright when he pays attention to its dictates; but whenever men have forsaken this guide they have been tossed about like a ship on the ocean without compass, chart or pilot; and in attempting to make faith—"the evidence of things not seen, the substance of things hoped for,"—their guide, have been shipwrecked upon the quicksands of superstition and error.

Nature ever acts by immutable laws Man like all things animate or inanimiate, is subject to those laws; and he knows by his experience that whatever is a law of nature to-day, ever has been and ever will be. The truth of this proposition is proved by the confidence man places in them; it has thus become a universal axiom. All assertion to the contrary backed by all the testimony in the world is constantly refuted by men's acting unhesitatingly in accordance with them. Hence the certainty with which he knows, that whatever is asserted to have taken place contrary to those laws is untrue. Thus for example, he knows that the waters of the Red Sea did not divide themselves and "stand up as a wall on either side" to let the Israelites pass through, and close to drown the Egyptians. Thus he knows that Shadrach, Meschac and Abednego, were not protected by their suspension from being burned in the fiery furnace—knowing that water ever has and ever will seek a level, and that fire ever has and ever will burn. Thus he wnows that Christ could not have fed five thousand men with two small loaves and a few small fishes, and have had more left than there was before they began to eat; neither could he have made wine out of water alone; the juice of the grape or whatever was essential to make the kind of wine represented being wanted, it was only a counterfeit. Thus by the certainty of a law which is stamped upon all things, and, without which certainty, or immutability, all things as well as man himself would cease to exist—which is impossible as they are eternal—he knows that no circumstance ever yet took place in opposition to them.

Therefore every person who makes use of this evidence knows, notwithstanding the assorted credibility of the witnesses, or even though he might be present himself, that the communication said to be had with spirits at Rochester, and now at New York are all an arrant humbug; knowing by this unerring guide that knockings can only be made by a material substance.

With this guide, let us look at the Bible and the popular creed derived from it, what do they teach? It is said that the world was created by the fiat of Almighty God in six days—the earth and all therein is and the heavens also, and that He rested from his labors on the seventh day and sanctified and hallowed it. That man was a part of the creation; that woman was taken from man that they were placed in the garden of Eden—a terrestrial paradise—and told that of the fruit of every tree of the garden they might freely eat, except of the tree of knowledge—which ever since, even now it is objected that man should eat, for, "in the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." That from the eating of this forbidden fruit sin and death came into the world. It also teaches that sin and death being thus brought into the world—which God foreknew it would—that it was necessary that some plan should be devised whereby this awful calamity—this result of God's knowledge—should be averted. This we are taught was effected by the substitution of the innocent for the guilty! and that too by the most and only innocent person on earth—the only begotten son of Almighty God! Of Almighty God himself!

This is the foundation of the popular creed in religion, or the Bible. All men it is said must believe this creed or be forever tormented in a lake of fire and brimstone. This it is said to be necessary to satisfy the justice of God! It matters not that man's reason teaches him that this is an outrage on justice, that God is immutable, eternal; he must believe or be damned, that He died on a cross; the innocent for the guilty; the Infinite and Eternal for the finite and mortal; that God Almighty died to remedy that which he knew must occur! It matters not that reason teaches man that God could not die and that the man Jesus, who was executed on the cross under Pontius Pilate, if there was such a man so executed, that he could not save.

The popular creed teaches that there are prophecies of Christ in the Old Testament; I have looked and can find none; those which are refered to in the New Testament or new will of God, and which of course are the only ones worth notice, have no more reference to the Christ who was crucified than they have to many other persons who are spoken of in history, and therefore are too indefinite to satisfy an inquiring mind.

Thus does reason and the popular religion of the day constantly run counter to each other; yet no man, or but very few dare say nay. Thus does the popular creed constantly teach error, which leads to crime and misery. If any man thinks differently he is forced by the influences of this creed, either directly or indirectly brought to bear upon him, to stifle his free thoughts and become a hypocrite! Is not this the case? Are not all men in every grade of life, the high and the low—the rich and the poor all alike under its mighty influences to do evil?—as nothing but evil can come of hypocracy.

The eternal principles of truth and justice can never prevail while men dare not advocate what they believe to be such. Should we wonder then that evil prevails, that men are liars, hypocrites, theives and murderers. Should we wonder that these have the uppermost seats in synagogues and at feasts, and that they are clothed in purple and fine linen every day while thousands drag out a miserable existence in suffering and want? Need we wonder that thousands live by crime and that wrong and human bondage so extensively prevail, when man is obliged to stifle all thought, all knowledge, which is not in accordance with the popular creed.

Whatever there is in the Bible therefore, that is asserted to be true, can only be admitted to be so by the same evidence that is necessary to establish the same or a similar fact elsewhere; because if admitted on any other ground—such as miracles, martyrdom, or any similar mode of proof—all religions could be established on the same evidence.

I should like to say something of those great moral truths which the Bible contains, as I coincide with Christ, that "whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them," is all that is necessary to the fulfilling the Law or the Prophets, and is all that is essential to the happiness of man, either in this world or in any other; but as I have already exceeded the probable limits of your paper, for one subject, I must defer them until another opportunity. W. M. D.

From the Tribune.

DR. BACON ON THE FUGITIVE SLAVE LAW.—The Independent of this week contains a powerful article from the pen of this distinguished divine on the Fugitive Slave Law, dated at Rome. The attempt of the Journal of Commerce or some writer therein, to "manufacture public opinion" in regard to the views of Dr. Bacon, will be no great credit to that paper. We quote a few sentences:

"1. By the law of nature and of nations, a slave, whenever he has the opportunity of putting himself beyond the reach of the laws that enslave him, has a right to do so, and by so doing becomes legally free."

"Our own Government not only acknowledges the right of every man to impove his social condition by expatriating himself and seeking a new home under other institutions, but it incorporates that right into its laws. It naturalizes all comers who are willing to abjure the allegiance in which they were born; and having naturalized them, it undertakes to defend them against all the claims of other sovereignties and other laws. Not only so, but our Government, and even our existence as a people, is founded on that right. We have asserted and maintained that right, by arms, not only in our war for Independence, but in our second war with the foremost Empire in the world. Who will tell us that a native of Virginia has not as good a right to expatriate himself as a Hungarian or an Italian, a Russian or an Irishman? By the laws of Nature then, as understood and accepted throughout the civilized wold, and especially as acted upon by our own Government, the slave, when he escapes from the reach of the laws which enslave him, becomes free by the exercise of a natural and inalienable right.

"The Constitution does not forbid me, as a citizen of a free State, to exercise hospitality toward any man, of whatever complexion, who calls at my door and asks for food or raiment or shelter. It does not require me to presume that the poor wanderer is a fugitive from Slavery in a Southern State; or if I know that he is a fugitive, it does not require me to presume that his master has any purpose or even a wish to reclaim him; or if I know that his master is in pursuit of him, and that the hounds of oppression are close upon his track, the Constitution does not require me even then to betray the trembling outcast. Nor would I betray him, God helping me, though every human power commanded me to perpetrate the baseness, and Nebuchadnezzar's fiery furnace were the penalty."

Congress.

Thirteen days, all told, of the present Session remain, yet not a single Appropriation bill has yet been touched in either House! The postage Reduction bill has passed the House, but been reported to the Senate with several important amendments, which will pretty surely send it back; the French Spoliations bill has not been touched in the House; the Board of Claims and New-York Mint bills have been killed there; and the House saw fit on Saturday, after wasting two or three days in irrelevant and unimportant talk, to adjourn over without taking a vote on the River and Harbor bill. More must be done—many times more—in the next thirteen days than has been accomplished in the bygone eleven weeks. How can either House consent to adjourn on a single day without having disposed of one important bill during the sitting of that day?

Monday.—The Senate spent most of the day unprofitably in deprecating "agitation" on the subject of Slavery, but finally got up the Postage Reduction bill and commenced its discussion. We trust they will soon pass it in some shape.

The House were upon Rivers and Harbors, as usual, and actually finished the discussion of their "Democracy." That is something. Various amendments were then voted upon with indifferent success, and the Committee rose late last evening without coming to any result.—Tribune.

The Atlantic Safe.

About 9 o'clock on Saturday evening the firing of cannon off the Battery announced that a steamer had arrived. The rolling sound of repeated discharges was heard all over the City, Brooklyn, and Jersey City. The anxious ear of the inhabitants caught it up, and all came to the conclusion that either the Atlantic had arrived, or it was the Brittish steamer bringing news of her safety. Young and old rushed out into the streets, some ran to Canal street, believing it was the Atlantic, crowds of others rushed to the Battery, and to the Jersey City Ferry, to hear the news.

The Africa had arrived, bringing the joyful intelligence that the Atlantic encountered a fearful storm and having damaged her machinery, was compelled to put back, and arrived at Cork in Safety!

Lieut. Shufelt, first officer of the Atlantic, gives the following account of the disater that caused her to put back:

The Atlantic left Liverpool on the 28th December, in fine steaming condition, and without any apprehension on the part of her officers in regard to the voyage. It was blowing a strong gale at the time of departure, from W., S. W., so much so as to render it impossible to land her pilot. On the 29th December at 9.30 P. M., she passed Cape Clear, and fairly commenced her homeward passage by plunging at once into a heavy head sea, and stemming strong westerly gales, which continued without intermiss on for the time following up to the day of the accident.

On the 6th of Jan., at noon, she was in lat. 46 12, lon 41 W, it blowing strong gales from W. N. W. At 6 P M, the engines were stopped, as it was first supposed by the engineers, by the breaking of the eccentric strap to the starboard engine—and, on examination, it was determined to go ahead again, working that engine by hand; but another revolution of the wheels proved that the accident was of a much more serious nature—the main shaft was found broken completely through, (in a diagonal direction) the bearing of the starboard pillar block, and the additional turn after the first stoppage, caused one part of the shaft to lap over the other—thus fracturing both pillar blocks, and rendering the engines perfectly useless. The ship was at once hove to under storm canvass the wheels lashed, and all hands employed during the night, and for the following day, in sending up her square yards, and stripping her wheels of the floats—a task at once difficult and dangerous in a gale of wind, and the decks covered with ice, but fortunately accomplished without accident.

On the 7th and 8th laying to with the hope of an abatement of the gale and a change of wind, as the captain and all hands were extremely anxious to reach some port on our own coast. On the 9th, the wind hauled to the northwest, and became quite moderate. Immediately made sale, and shaped a course for Halfax, 897 miles distant, and New York 1,400. This weather continued until the meridean of the 10th, when an observation placed the ship 180 miles south and 70 miles west of her position at the time of the accident. A gale now sprung up again from the southwest, and it became necessary to heave the ship to; for even with moderate weather it was evident to all that she could do nothing by the wind under canvass.

At 8 A M, the 11th a large ship passed, bound to the eastward; but she either did not see or took no notice of our signal of distress. At 10 P. M. after taking an accurate account of stores on board, and considering the apparent impossibility of reaching home with the ship in her disabled condition, the captain determined, with the assent of his officers and passengers, to bear up for the coast of Europe—which was accordingly done. From this time to the twenty second day nothing of importance occurred. We had following gales and high seas, and the ship made an average distance of 150 miles per day, and in that interval ran 1,400 miles. At 3 P. M. of the 22d she anchored in Cork harbor, which fact alone when considering the immense size of the ship, her small spars, light canvass and heavy machinery is sufficient to prove her a splendid sea boat, and must add in no small degree, to the reputation already acquired by her commander for prudence and seamanship.

In regard to the conduct of her passengers under such trying circumstances, too much could scarcely be said. Suffice it that they bore the misfortune with becoming fortitude and cheerfulness, and testified, on leaving her at Cork, as much sympaty as those who have a more permanent interest in the good old Atlantic The Atlantic had on board 650 tons of freight, and a considerable quantity of specie, which the Cambria was chartered to bring over, and probably sailed from Cork on the 4th inst., direct to New York. Before the Africa left, arrangements were making to tow the Atlantic to Liverpool, for the purposee of being repaired.

The Africa brings her mails and passengers.

R. W. SHUFELDT, Chief Officer.

DIED.

In this place, on Friday Feb. 14th. THEODORE S. VERMULE, aged about 33 years.

The deceased was an exemplary member of the Presbyterian church, as also a much beloved Brother of the Sons of Temperance of this place. In him the Society has lost one of its most efficient and worthy members; the church a practical example of Christian character, and society an honorable and upright member. All these will deeply sympathize with the family for their mutual loss. D.

The popularity of this Magazine continues to increase, sterdily and rapidly, with the publication of every successive Number. Every month adds over Five Thousans Copies to its regular sales. The Press, from one end of the Union to the other, and without exception, has expressed the warmest approbation of the plan of the work and of the manner in which it has thus far been carried out.

The Publishers would express the cordial thanks to the public for the extraordinary degree of favor with which their efforts have been received. They assure the readers of the Magazine that nothing which expense, labor, and incessant care can do, to make its merit keep pace with its success, shall be left undone. The Pictorial Illustrations, which have secured so much admiration, shall be still further multiplied, diversified, and improved. Renewed care will be exercised in the selection of literary matter for its pages. The Monthly Record of Current Events, which is designed to be a regular synopsis of all events of interests in every department of activity, and in every part of the world, will be enlarged, and made more comprehensive and systematic: and all possible exertions will be made to render the Magazine, in all respects, superior to any similar work ever published in any part of the world.

Articles from PUNCH, and other well-known humorous publications, will be from time to time presented, with Pictorial embellishments: care will be taken in this department, as in every other, to admit nothing in the slightest degree offensive to morality or good taste, and to combine interest and instruction with entertainment.

Each number of the Magazine will contain 144 pages octavo, in double columns. The volumes of a single year, therefore, will present nearly two thousand pages of the choicest of the Miscellaneous Literature of the age. A carefully prepared Fashion Plate, and other pictorial illustrations, will accompany each number.

GREAT COUGH REMEDY!

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

In offering to the community this justly celebrated remedy for disease of the throat and lungs, it is not our wish to trifle with the lives or health of the afflicted, but frankly to lay before them the opinions of distinguished men and some of the evidences of its success, from which they can judge for themselves. We sincerely pledge ourselves to make no wild assertions or false statements of its efficacy, nor will we hold out any hope to suffering humanity which facts will not warrant.

Many proofs are here given, and we solicit an inquiry from the public into all we publish, feeling assured they will find them perfectly reliable, and the medicine worthy their best confidence and patronage.

FROM BENJ. SILLIMAN, M. D., L. L. D., &c.,
Professor of Chemistry, Mineralogy, &c., Yale College. Member of the Lit. Hist. Med. Phil. and Scien. Societies of America and Europe.

"I deem the CHERRY PECTORAL an admirable composition from some of the best articles in the Materia Medica, and a very effective remedy for the class of diseases it is intended to cure."

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 1, 1849.

Prof. CLEAVELAND, of Bowdoin College, Me. Writes—"I have witnessed the effects of your "CHERRY PECTORAL" in my own family and that of my friends and it gives me satifaction to state in its favor that no medicine I have ever known has proved so eminently successful in curing diseases of the throat and lungs."

REV. DR. OSGOOD.

Writes—"That he considers 'CHERRY PECTORAL' the best medicine for Pulmonary Affections ever given to the public," and states that "his daughter after being obliged to keep the room four months with a severe settled cough, accompanied by raising of blood, night sweats, and the attendant symptoms of Consumption, commenced the use of the 'CHERRY PECTORAL,' and had completely recovered."

HEAR THE PATIENT.

Dr. Ayer—Dear Sir: For two years I was afflicted with a very severe cough, accomanied by spitting of blood and profuse night sweats. By the advice of my attending physician I was induced to use your CHERRY PECTORAL, and continued to do so till I considered myself cured, and ascribe the effect to your preparation.

CALICO AND MUSLINS, pretty cheap and good, at I. S. DUNHAM & Cos. Cheap Dry Good Store.

GRAHAM'S MAGAZINE, for March, is entitled, in the publisher's notice accompanying it, "a surprise number," and it well deserves the name. It makes its appearance in an equally novel garb and attractive character—without "pictures," (unless we should characterize as such a few very finely executed wood-cut illustrations,)—without even a fashion plate; these customary ornaments being, for once, substituted by literary matter—original, American, paid-for literary matter (it cost, we learn, $1500) 144 pages of it, too—just as many as Harper's New Monthly and the International Magazines devote to selected matter, not paid for, from the British periodicals. The intention of the pubisher is obvious and praise-worthy—the result singular and successful. There are no less than fifty different original papers in the number, presenting a great display of names of popular American writers, and as great a variety of subjects handled. It is, in consequence, a most attractive and excellent number, superior in interest and general merit to its foreign rivals of this month, and deserving the approbation which should attach to national spirit and liberal expenditure. We are sure that the popular verdict will be in its favor; as we are equally sure that an American magazine, conducted on such a plan, is, in its beneficial influence on American literature, of more worth than all the reprints, of or from British periodicals, in the world.

Mr. Graham has, we are pleased to learn, been eminently successful in his magazine since he resumed its management; and certainly, if extraordinary aptitude in accommodating the public taste—if liberal dispensation of means to accomplish well-considered ends—if the employment of the best talent, upon the only sure method, that of the best payment—if continual wachfulness to avail himself of whatever is new or striking; and, in a word, a resolute determination not to be outdone, in any way, by anybody, entitle him to success, he eminently deserves it.

The April number, will, we learn, present its former decorated appearance, and be expensively and splendidly illustrated.—United States Gazette.

PROFESSOR A. C. BARRY'S TRICOPHEROUS,

or Medicated Compound.

FOR RESTORING, PRESERVING, AND beautifying hair eradicating scurf and dandruff, and curing diseases of the skin, glands and muscles, stings, cuts, bruises, sprains, &c., &c. It has been ascertained by experiment that has produced the same effect in curing disease of the skin, &c., of the Horse and all the animal kingdom.

Barry's Tricopherous,

The following testimonials, selected from hundreds of similar import, will serve to show the value of the preparation, and the estimation in which it is held by those who have given it a trial:

NEW-YORK, Sept 22, 1850.

Prof. Barry—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted with a cutaneous eruption of the scalp of a most aggravated character for the last sixteen years, and during that period I have had the advice of some of the most eminent physicians, and have tried all the preparations for the hair and skin now known, without the least benefit. I was advised by a friend to try your Tricopherous. I did so, as a last resort, and, to my surprise and gratification, found myself cured in about two months. Such was the violence of the disorder that at times I was partially blind.

Respectfully yours,
G. V. M. RAPELYE, 148 Columbia-st.
Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Oct 23d 1850.

Prof. Barry—My Dear Sir: About two years ago my hair came out a great deal, and my head was much affected with dandruff. I was told by a friend to try your Tricopherous, and I did so, and to my astonishment my hair was firmly rooted, and all the dandruff disappeared, as the head now shews for itself.

With respect I am your obedient servant,
J. S. TREADWELL, 633 Broadway.

[From the Military & Naval Argus, Nov. 9th.]

There is no remedy for the permanent cure of baldness and diseases of the cranium generally, that has reached the popularity enjoyed by the article known as Professor Barry's Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound. It is extensively used by the upper classes of the community; in almost every nursery in the land it is used in preference to other articles of the kind. It imparts vigor to the roots of the hair, and thus promotes its growth to a remarkable degree. It destroys dandruff and scurf, and yields the hair fine and glossy. It will cure all diseases of the scalp such as scald head, dew worm, and other obnoxious disorderders of the skin; in cheapness, as well as efficacy, it stands unrivalled. It is sold in large bottles, price 25 cents at No 137 Broadway, and at the druggists' generally throughout the United States and Canadas. [123 s.

THE NEW JERSEY

HORSE POWER

Manufacturing Company.

HAVING improved, strengthened and perfected A. D. CRANE'S Patent Horse Power, are now prepared to furnish the same to all who may want.

This Power consists of an endless floor running over a series of pulleys, connected by cranks, without a rack or cog wheel about it: none being required from the fact, that the weight of the horse on the floor or platform causes sufficient adhesion between it and the pulleys to transmit all the power he is able to give. Also by this arrangement the chain is freed from the draught or strain (which cannot be avoided in any other Stall Power.) except, what is reqired to pass the floor around. The requisite speed is obtained direct from the machine thereby avoiding a great amount of friction and wear, and lessening the liability to get out of order. They run so easily as to require less than an inch elevation to the foot. A self acting brake is attached by which the motion is kept regular and uniform even when the work is unsteady and irregular.

From the above description it is evident that this is the most simple and efficient Power known.

They are highly recommended by those who have used them, for driving Circular Saws, Lathes, Drilling Machines, Threshers, Grist Mills, Pumps, &c.

The Company have certificates to prove the above and also to show that the Two Horse Power will grind 40 bushels of Corn to Meal (with Platt's Patent Mill,) in a day of ten hours, making it an invaluable Power for the Southern planter as well as others.

It has taken Silver Medals at the different Fairs where exhibited, and the only one given to Horse Powers by the American Institute last fall.

They also furnish Threshers of the most approved construction.

Price of Single Power with Belt, $75; Double do. with Belt, $110; Thresher and Separator, $35.

HERNIA.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.—This disorder, of very frequennt occurrence, may be considered as arising through weakness of the abdominal walls, inducing an enlargement in the natural openings formed therein for the transmission of blood and other vessels; such openings being enlarged, permit the escape of bowels or other viscera of the abdomen, devolving hernial swellings or rupture, which most generally occur outwardly, as at the navel, groins and thighs.

The complaint is likely to happen at birth, and therefore should be carefully looked for by those having the charge of children, that it may be arrested and cured promptly. It also occurs at any period of life, to either sex, without regard to the condition or mode of living, and when found, should be attended to without delay—the final penalty being death, and that may be induced through strangulation at any momennt.

RUPTURES, are always to be treated with the surgical instruments known as Trusses and Supporters, and these require to be skillfully applied. With this view, the HULL'S TRUSS OFFICE, now established some thirty years, has under the various managers, presented to the public both male and female attendants to apply its instruments directly to the persons, which is preferable in all cases, and has also made improvement at different times, showing that advancement which study and practice only yield toward the relief of this malady.

With much pleasure the fact is now published, that recent improvements BUTLER'S TRUSS PADS have been made, and sufficiently tested upon numerous cases to warrant, through the cures already affected, their submission to the public, as being in adaptation and efficiency superior to any heretofore made known.

These improvements, recently patented, are now being applied at this office, 4 Vesey street, in cases of rupture, gravitation of the bowels, prolapsus uteri, prolapsus ani and piles.

The public may rely upon that care being made in their application, which will most likely tend to the final cure of the several complaints.

Hull's Truss Office, 4 Vesey street, Astor House, opposite St. Paul's Church, New-York.

FRED'K M. BUTLER, Proprietor.

N. B.—The ladies' department is attended by a female qualified to fit the instruments, having so attended this office for many years.

MECHANICAL MEDICINE.

Dr. Banning, formerly of this city, asks to announce that he has returned to 341 Broadway; for consultation and management of weaknesses of the vocal, pulmonary, digestive, nervous, spinal and female systems; and also of the drooping, languor and physical deformities, which are so destructive of both health and beauty at the present day.

As these and kindred maladies are usually the result of a violation of the laws of physical organization, he will treat them chiefly by those exercises, mechanical appliances and reformatory habits of body, in coujunction with hydropathy galvanism and other discoveries of the day, which, united with the cooperative efforts of the subject, are calculated to relieve and restore the energies of the suffering and neglected organs.

Having spent several years in traveling for investigation and practical experiment on the subject, he has, at length, greatly improved and multiplied his surgical and mechanical appliances for the purpose. In addition to his new supports for female and spinal weaknesses, are some combining the properties of a universal hernial truss and an effective general support, with which he challenges cases of general debility, constipation, piles and prolapsus, ani, leucorrhea, prolapsus uteri and every variety of hernia

The distinctive peculiarity of these devices is, that they do not weaken or restrain the motions or growth of the suffering parts, but act imitatively and concordantly with the mathematical genius of the body's forces. Hence, by a most comfortable and gentle pressure, they at once give great support and render the oppressed system eligible to its own restoration.

Feeble invalids coming from a distance will command prompt and faithful attention.

For more definite information, see his revised edition of "Animal Mechanics," and also his circular, which will be sent gratuitously when requested.

His improved body-braces, spinal supports and supporter trusses applied at his office (341 Broadway) and to be had wholesale and retail- City and country physicians and druggists are invited to call and examine Office hours from 9 A. M. to 1 P M. [121.

DOCTOR YOURSELF! FOR 25 CENTS!!!

BY MEANS OF THE POCKET ESCULAPIUS, or, Every one his own Physician! Thirtieth edition, with upwards of a hundred engravings, showing private diseases in every shape and form, and malformations of the generative system,

BY WM. YOUNG, M, D.

The time has now arrived, that persons suffering from secret diseases, need no more become the victim of quackery as by the prescript ons contained in this book any one may cure himself, without hindrance to business, or the knowledge of the most intimate friend, and with one tenth the usual expense. In addition to the general routine of private disease, it fully explains the cause of manhood's early decline, with observations on marriage—besides many other derangements which it would not be proper to enumerate in the public prints.

☞ Any person sending TWENTY-FIFE CENTS enclosed in a letter, will receive one copy of this book, by mail, or five copies will be sent for one dollar. Address, "DR. W YOUNG, No. 152 SPRUCE Street, PHILADELPHIA." Post paid

☞ DR. YOUNG can be consulted on any of the Diseases discribed in his different publications, at his Office, 152 SPRUCE Street, every day between 9 and 3 o'clock, (Sundays excepted) [151.

FOR FEMALES AND MALES

Dr. Lazzetti's Juno Cordial, or Protective Elixir.

This is the only actual remedy ever discovered for impeteney, Genital Debility, Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases occasioned by certain secret habits; and many of the nostrums recently recommended for the same complaints are worthless imitations which its unrivalled excellence, fame and popularity have brought into the market. The Medical Faculty of Europe and the United States are unanimous in their recommendations of the Juno Cordial and have not given their sanction in a single instance that has been authenticated, to any compound for the same purposes The nature of the maladies relieved by the Juno Cordial are generally such as to leave the publication of certificates of cures out of the question, or the proprietor could produce a host of the most conclusive testimony to show that the great reputation that it enjoys was not accidentally obtained, but is firmly based upon its positive, and apparently miraculous virtues. In all directions are to be found the happy parents of healthy offspring, who would not have been so, but for this extraordinary preparption. And it is equally potent in the many diseases for which it is recommended. Objection has been naturally made to the price of the Juno Cordial, because the trash that has been thrown into the market in opposition to it is sold cheaper; but the fact is, the Cerdial cannot be afforded for less, and ought to be much dearer, as many of the ingredients which compose it are among the costliest things in nature; whereas the others are made up of cheap drugs, worth but little in money, and less in merit. We assure the reader that the utmost reliance may be placed on the Juno Cordial in the cure of the maladies mentioned above, and also those that follow, viz: Loss of Muscular Energy, Physical Lassitude and General Prostration, Irritability, and all Nervous Affections, Indigestion, Sluggishness of the Liver, Gleet, Lucorrhoea or Whites, and Flour Albus and every disease in any way connected with the disorder of the Procreative Functions—in all of which it will afford almost immediate relief, and, if used as directed, is almost certain to produce a positive and permanent cure Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness or disability of a certain nature, should take this Cordial, as it will infallibly restore health and vigor in a brief period, and where want of offspring is a cause of regret, if recourse be had to it the most beneficial results may be anticipated with confidence It is of priceless value to those without offspring. It has taken the precedence in Italy and will in all other countries where it may become known

To spread wide the blessings of this medicine, I have appointed Messrs Judson & Co, of the City of New York, in the United States of America, my sole Agents for its sale; and none can be genuine unless it comes through them, and their signature is on the weapper

From Dicken's Household Words.

A December Vision.

I saw a mighty Spirit, traversing the world without any rest or pause. It was omnipresent, it was all powerful, it had no compunction, no pity, no relenting sense that any appeal from any of the race of men could reach. It was invisible to every creature born upon earth, save one to each. It turned its shaded face on whatsoever living thing, one time and straight the end of that thing was come. It passed through the forest, and the vigorous tree it looked on shrunk away; through the garden and the leaves perished and the flowers withered; through the air, and the eagles flagged upon the wing and dropped; through the seas, and the monsters of the deep floated, great wrecks, upon the waters. It met the eyes of lions in their lairs, and they were dust; its shadow darkened the faces of young children lying asleep, and they awoke no more.

It had its work appointed; it inexorably did what was appointed it to do; and neither sped nor slackened. Called to, it went on unmoved, and did not come. Besought, by some who felt that it was drawing near, to change its course, it turned its shaded face upon them, even while they cried, and they were dumb. It passsed into the midst of palace chambers, where there were lights and music, pictures, diamonds, gold, and silver, crossed the wrinkled and the gray, regardless of them; looked into the eyes of a bright bride; and vanished. It revealed itself to the baby on the old crone's knee, and left the old crone wailing by the fire. But, whether the beholder of its face were, now a King, or now a laborer, now a Queen, or now a seamstress; let the hand it palsied be on the sceptre or the plow, or yet too small and nerveless to grasp anything: the Spirit never paused in its appointed work, and, sooner or later, turned its impartial face on all.

I saw a Minister of State, sitting in his Closet: and round about him, rising from the country which he governed, up to the Eternal Heavens, was a low dull howl of Ignorance. It was a wild, inexplicable mutter, confused, but full of threatening, and it made all hearers' hearts quake within them. But, few heard. In the single city where this Minister of State was seated, I saw Thirty Thousand children, hunted, flogged, imprisoned but not taught—who might have been nurtured by a wolf or bear, so little of humanity had they, within them or without—all joining in this doleful cry. And, ever among them, as among all ranks and grades of mortals, in all parts of the globe, the Spirit, went; and ever by thousands in their brutish state, with all the gifts of God perverted in their breasts or trampled out, they died

The Minister of State, whose heart was pierced by even the little he could hear of these terrible voices, day and night rising to Heaven, went among the Priests and Teachers of all denominations, and faintly said:

"Harken to this dreadful cry! what shall we do to stay it?"

One body of respondents answered: "Teach this!"

Another said: "Teach that!"

Another said: "Teach neither this nor that, but t'other!"

Another quarreled with all the three; twenty others quarreled with all the four, and quarreled no less bitterly among themselves. The voices, not stayed by this cried out day and night; and still, among those many thousands, as among all mankind, went the Spirit who never rested from its labor; and still, in brutish sort, they died.

Then, a whisper murmured to the Minister of State:

"Correct this for thyself. Behold! Silence these voices, or virtuously lose thy power in the attempt to do it. Thou cans't not sow a grain of good seed in vain Thou knowest it well. Be bold, and do thy duty!"

The Minister shrugged his shoulders, and replied, "It is a great wrong—BUT IT WILL LAST MY TIME." And so he put it from him.

Then the whisper went among the Priests and Teachers, saying to each, "In thy soul thou knowest it is a truth, O, man, that there are good things to be taught, and stay this cry"

To which, each answered in like manner, "It is a great wrong—BUT IT WILL LAST MY TIME." And so he put it from him.

I saw a poisoned air, in which Life drooped. I saw Disease arrayed in all its store of hideous aspects and appalling shapes, triumphant in every alley, byway, court, back street, and poor abode, in every place where human beings congregated--in the proudest and most boastful places, most of all. I saw innumerable hosts, fore-doomed to darkness, dirt, pestilence, obscenity, misery, and early death. I saw, where-soever I looked, cunning preparations made for defacing the Creator's image, from the moment of its appearance here on earth, and stamping over it the image of the Devil. I saw, from those reeking and pernicious stews, the avenging consequences of such Sin issuing forth, and penetrating to the highest places. I saw the rich struck down in their strength, their darling children weakened and withered, their marriageable sons and daughters perish in their prime. I saw that not one miserable wretch breathed out his poisoned life in the deepest cellar of the most neglected town. but, from the surrounding atmosphere, some particles of his infection were bore away, charged with heavy retribution on the general guilt.

There were many attentive and alarmed persons looking on, who saw these things too. They were well clothed, and had purses in their pockets: they were educated, full of kindness, and loved mercy. They said to one another, "This is horrible, and shall not be!" and there was a stir among them to set it right. But, opposed to these, came a small multitude of noisy fools and greedy knaves, whose harvest was in such horrors; and they, with impudence and turmoil, and with scurrilous jests at misery and death, repelled the better lookers-on, who soon fell back nnd stood aloof.

Then, the whisper went among those better lookers-on, saying, "Over the bodies of those fellows to the remedy!"

But, each of them moodily shrugged his shoulders and said:

"It is wrong—BUT IT WILL LAST MY TIME!"

I saw a great library of laws, and law-proceedings, so complicated, costly, and unintelligible, that although numbers of lawyers united in a public fiction that these were wonderfully just and equal, there was scarcely an honest man among them, but who said to his friend, privately consulting him, "Better put up with fraud or other injury than grope for redress through the manifold blind turnings and strange chances of this system."

I saw a portion of the system, called (of all things) EQUITY, which was ruin to suitors, ruin to property, a shield for wrong-doers having money, a rack for right doers having none; a by-word for delay, slow agony of mind, despair, impoverishment, trickery, confusion, insupportable injustice. A main part of it, I saw prisoners wasting in jail; mad people in hospitals; suicides chronicled in the yearly records; orphans robbed of their inheritance: infants righted (perhaps) when they were grey.

Certain lawyers and laymen came together, and said to one another:

"In only one of these our Courts of Equity, there are years of this dark perspective before us at the present moment. We must change this."

Uprose, immediately, a throng of others, Secretaries, Petty Bags, Hanapers, Chaff-waxes, and what not, singing (in answer) "Rule Britannia," and "God save the Queen;" making flourishing speeches, pronouncing hard names, demanding committees commissions, commissioners, and other scarecrows, and terrifying the little band of innovators out of their five wits.

Then, the whisper went among the latter, as they shrunk back, saying:

If there is any wrong within the universal knowledge, this wrong is. Go on! Set it right!"

Whereon, each of them sorrowfully thrust his hands in his pockets, and replied:

"It is indeed a great wrong—BUT IT WILL LAST MY TIME:" and so they put it from them.

The Spirit, with its face concealed, summoned all the people who had used this phrase about their Time, into its presence. Then, it said, beginning with the Minister of State:

"Of what duration is your Time?"

The Minister of State replied:

"My ancient family has always been long lived. My father died at eighty-four; my grandmother at ninety-two. We have the gout, but bear it (like our honors) many years."

"And you," said the Spirit to the Priests and Teachers, "what may your time be?"

Some believed they were so strong, as that they should number many more years than three-score and ten; others were the sons of old incumbents who had long outlived youthful expectants. Others, for any means they had of calculating, might be long lived or short-lived—generally (they had a strong persuasion) long. So among the lawyers and laymen.

"But every man, as I understand you, one and all," said the Spirit, "has his time?"

"Yes?" they exclaimed together.

"Yes!" said the Spirit, "and it is—ETERNITY! Whosoever is a consenting party to a wrong, comforting himself with the base reflection that it will last his time, shall bear his portion of that wrong throughout ALL TIME. And, in the hour when he and I stand face to face, he shall surely know it, as my name is Death!"

It departed, turning its shaded face hither and thither as it passed along on its ceaseless work, and blighting all on whom it looked.

Then went among many trembling hearers the whisper saying:

"See, each of you, before you take your ease, O, wicked, selfish men, that what will 'last your time,' be Just enough to last forever!"

Iron of the United States.

The most valuable mine is one in Salisbury, Connecticut, which yields 3,000 tons annually. The mines in Dutchess and Columbia counties, in the State of New York, produce annually 20,000 tons of ore, Essex county, 1,500 tons; Clinton, 3,000; Franklin, 600; St. Lawrence, 2,000; amounting in all to more than $500,000. The value of iron produced in the United States in 1835 was $6,000,000, in 1837, $7,700,000.

In Ohio 1,200 square miles are underlaid with iron, A region explored in 1838 would furnish iron sixty-one miles long and sixty wide; a square mile would yeld 3,000,000 tons of pig iron; so that this district would contain 1,000 000,000 tons; by taking from this region 400,000 tons annually, (a larger quantity than England produced previous to 1826,) it would last 2,700 years, as long a distance certainly as any man looks ahead! The States of Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois, Maryland and Virginia possess inexaustible quantities of iron ore. In Tennessee 100,000 tons are annually manufactured. Notwithstanding our resources, more than one half of our cuttlery hardware, railroad iron, &c., is still imported from Great Britian. It is supposed by geologists that the weekly supply of gold from our own mines will be equal to the demand, and that our own mines will yet be equal to the mines of Brazil and Columbia.—Scientific American Desertion of Sargeant Champe.

The name of this humble individual is immortalized by its honorable connection with one of the most interesting and important events of our Revolution, John Champe was sargeant-major of a regiment of horse, known as the Partisan Legion, and commanded by Major Henry Lee. He was a native of London county, Va., and about 23 or 24 years of age; had enlisted in 1776, was rather above the common size, full of bone and muscle, with a saturine countenance; grave, thoghtful, and taciturn; of tried courage and inflexible perseverance. For these qualities of mind and body he was elected by General Washington, on the reccommendation of Major Lee to undertake an enterperprise of danger, difficulty, and importance.

The treason of Arnold had been disclosed by the arrest of Major Andre. It had produced a deep effect upon the mind of Washington, and throughout the army, heightened by accompanying suspicions that Arnold was not the only officer of high station who had listened to the temptations of the British commander. Washington was deeply troubled, in particular, by accusations which had been laid before him in writing against a major general in whom he had reposed great confidence, and he deemed it indispensable to obtain confirmation or complete disproof of the charges thus preferred. He was anxious, moreover, to save the life of Andre, which could only be done by the execution of justice upon Arnold, in itself more desirable; and it was to accomplish these three objects that he devised the mission of Seargeant Champe.

The mission was, to reach the city of New York, then in possession of the British, as a deserter, communicate with trusty friends of the American cause, who had for some time been in correspondence with Washington, and secure the person of Arnold. The difficulty and danger of the enterprise was very great; for, besides the risk of detection in the endeavor to seize Arnold, there was the more fearful hazard of arrest while making his seemig flight from the American camp. He must go as a deserter—incurring both the danger and the disgrace of falsehood to his colors and if overtaken, immediate death would probably be his portion.

Champe cared little for danger, but it was with some difficulty that he was prevailed on to encounter the temporary disgrace. His scruples, however, were, overcome, and charged by Washington with confidential letters to his correspondents in the city, and with the strictest orders not to kill Arnold in any event or under any circumstances, he set off an hour before midnight, taking with him his cloak, valise and orderly book. He had to pass numerous patrols of horse and foot that were continually passing to and from the stationary outposts, and the peril was increased by swarms of irregulars that were prowling about in search of booty, pushing their expedition as far as Pauls Hook.

The flight of Champe was dicovered in half an hour and reported to Major Lee. The latter was compelled to order immediate pursuit but he contrived to make some delay under various pretexts Nevertheless Champe had barely an hour the advantage of his pursuers, and the lattter were favored by a shower that soon fell after he left the camp softening the road and making the tracks of his horse preceptible.

The pursuing party gained sight of Champe soon after day break, at a distance of about half a mile, as they ascended an eminence a few miles north of Bergen. Champe saw them too, at the same moment, and putting spurs to his horse, a chase in view, and at topmost speed, was commenced, and continued until Champe reached the village of Bergen, where he gave up the idea of going to Paulus Hook, and resolved to seek refuge on board one of the British gallies which were kept lying a few miles west of Bergen. In this he happily succeeded, though so hotly followed that when he plunged into the water his pursuers were but little more than two hundred yards behind.

Making himself known as a deserter to the captain of the galley, he was sent immediately to New York, where he was favorably received by Sir Henry and General Arnold, respecting the situation and prospect of Andre, the feelings prevalent in the American army, the probability of disaffection among the troops and officers: and many other points of interest, as to all which he answered with a gratuity and was invited to enlist in Arnold's legion.

It is not our purpose to follow the brave sergeant through his operations in the city; they may be found narrated with sufficient minuteness in Lee's "Memoirs of the War," published in 1812. It is sufficient to say that he accepted Arnold's invitation to enlist, succeeded in placing himself in communication with the persons to whom he had letters from Washington, ascertained that there was no truth in the accusation against the suspected major-general, and arragned a plan for the abduction of Arnorld.

The importance of this last was considerably lessened by the death of Andre, which his own conduct accelerated. Gen. Washington hoped and expected that the trial would occupy so much time as would suffice for the delivery of Arnold into his hands; but Andre at once avowed all that was to be proved against him, and his conviction of course immediately followed on the second of October. Circumstances and the usage of war made it imperative that execution should be prompt; and he suffered on the 3d.

Champe's design on Arnold was frustrated by what may almost be called an accident. It was the traitor's invariable custom to walk in the garden attached to his quarters, before he retired to rest—generally about midnight. This garden adjoined a narrow alley; and Champe had taken off some of the palings from the garden fence, replacing them so loosely that they could be removed in a moment.—He designed, with the aid of an associate whom he had secured to seize Arnold in the garden, gag and blind him, and carry him to a boat which was to be held in readiness by another associate at one of the wharves on the Hudson. The night was appointed for the enterprise, and Major Lee was notified to be in post at Hoboken, with a party of dragoons and horses for Arnold and his captors.

Unfortunately, on the very day preceding the night agreed on, Arnold changed his quarters for the greater convenience of superintending the embarkation of some troops for an expedition of which he was to have command, and Champe himself with the legion he had joined, was sent on board one of the transports. Lee, therefore, had his midnight ride and watch in vain, and the traitor escaped the doom that was prepared for him—to suffer, perhaps a worse punishment in the contempt and obscurity that attended his after years in England.

Champe was taken to Virginia, and found no opportunity of rejoining the army of his country until after the junction of Lord Corn Wallis and General Phillips at Petersburgh. He was received by his former associates of the Partisan Legion with aqual surprise and displeasure, but the truth of his story was quickly known, and won for him unmingled respect and admiration. Being presented by lee to Gen. Greene, the commander gave him a horse and money for his journey and sent him to Gen. Washington, by whom he was liberally rewarded and granted an honorable discharge from the service, lest, in the vicissitudes of war, he should fall into the hands of the British and be recognized, in which event he would be sure to undergo the doom he had endeavored to secure for the traitor Arnold. He settled in London county, but removed thence, after some years, to Kentucky, and there died.

Butter.

Milk is the most natural and common food of man. Out of milk two other common articles of food are obtained, viz, cheese and butter; butter exists in the form of very small globules, and out of 100 parts of cow's milk, 3 75 parts of butter are obtained Human milk contains about one-sixth more butter than the above. Butter is indebted to a substance called "butyrine" for its fine flavor. Cascin, the cheesey matter of milk, if not well removed from the butter, by working and washing, soon putrifies, and will give the butter a bad taste. Butter does not appear to have been known to the ancients, at least so far as history reveals knowledge, but we cannot believe that butter was not known to them for all this. We read of "a land flowing with milk and honey," but no butter, still this is not conclusive against the reasonable conclusion that the old Hebrews did know what it was. The oldest hint, historically, about butter, is given by Herodotus, who ascribes the use of it to the Scythians. Hippocratus also alludes to the Schthian butter, and recomends its use externally for medicine. In the time of Galen butter was known and used, but to a very limited extent, among the Greeks and Romans; in the second century Pliny ascribes the invention of butter to the Germans, but this only shows that the Romans became acquainted with it through the Germans. It was much used as a pomatum both by the Greek and Roman Ladies. Pliny recommends it to be mixed with honey and rubbed over the gums of children to ease the pain of teething, and for ulcers in the mouth—a hint that may not be useless to us moderns. The Romans anointed the bodies of their children with butter to make them pliable, and it appears that they did not know butter as we do, in firm cakes, but only as a semi-fluid, like thick olive oil. This is not wonderful, owing to the general warmth of southern Italy. Neither the Spaniards nor Portugese know much about butter, and the inhabitants of Mexico seldom eat it. In the city of Mexico it costs one dollar per pound; the most wealthy classes do not use so much of it as the poorest among us; in fact they do not consider it an essential article of food,—we do, and could not, to use a common phrase, "live without it." It is justly believed that more butter is consumed in the northern States of America than in any other country having the same amount of population in the world. The Hollanders are distinguished for making good butter, so also are the Northern Germans, Norwegians, and Danes. The English, Irish, and Scotch make and consume a great deal of butter, especially the Scotch, who are, or at least were, almost half Jewish in their feelings towards the use of pork and lard.

The great secret of making good butter, is cleanliness and elbow grease. In some parts of Ireland, but especially in Devonshire, England, and Ayrshire, in Scotland, the butter made has a world-wide fame. The plan pursued seems to be for the dairymaids to wash their understandings and perform the same operations as the French and Portugese who dance among the grapes at the wine press By having large tubs with false bottoms, covered with clean coarse cloth, into which the butter is placed and danced upon, with water to wash it as much as is required, all the cheesy matter is pressed through the course cloth and runs off with the water of cleansing. This is a most efficient and effectual way of working butter for packing. As a general thing, the kind very common in our markets depends for its weight in having a good deal of the milk lert in it, and none of the cheesy matter pressed out—it is a profitable way of producing it for sale. Butter for foreign countries should be well tramped or beat and washed some way, and it should be packed in a dish placed in the inside of a larger one, big enough to fill around it with salt.

Rancid butter can be completely cured of its bad taste and smell, by melting it in a clean tin dish, adding some saleratus, and straining it through a clean cloth. After this it appears of a different form; it crystalizes, in soft round crystals, and has no taste like what it would have had, if made well at the first operation. All rancid butter for cooking should be treated this way; it changes the butter, takes away the bad smell, prevents it from spoiling again, however long kept, and it really has a beautiful appearance. The butter should be kept stirred after it is all dissolved for about ten minutes. One ounce of saleratus will purify four pounds of butter. A thick sediment falls to the bottom, and a very thick scum gathers on the top. Butter is one of the finest articles of human food. The farmer with his snowy white bread and beautiful golden butter for breakfast, dines richer than the monarch to whom those things are denied —Scientific American.

United States Senator.

Well, the villainy is consumated, the outrage upon the people's rights and wishes has been perpetrated; Robert F. Stockton is elected Senator in defiance of the loudly expressed will of nine-tenths of the people of New Jersey; and that too by a minority vote of the legislature! Democrats and Whigs alike repudiate the conduct of their representatives; they scorn and contemn the treachery, and will, with the certainty and speed of time, be disenthralled from the Judases who have sold them. Accordin to the Trenton papers, and other sources of information, the drinking scene which followed was an appropriate termination to the disgraceful treachery which made the monopoly lord Senator of New Jersey. Their great prototype of ancient memory, after he had received the "thirty pieces," went and hanged himself; but these Judases—traitors to the people's trust, to their own most solemn pledges—for the want of courage to hang themselves, drown their shame in their master's wine.

Another Arrest in Boston.

Feb 22—A seventh person was arrested this morning, charged with being concerned in the late mob and rescue in this city. His name we have ascertained to be J. P South, a colored man. On giving bail for his appearance next Friday at the Court House for trial, he was set at liberty.

The examination of Mr Davis has not yet been concluded.

U. S. Marshal Devens has purchased sixty revolvers and distributed them among his men. The fact, when known in town tended to excite, rather than quiet the public feeling. Pistols and bowie knives have suddenly become scarce in this market. It is considered a sign of earnestness.

Authentic information has just been received from Montreal, that Shadrach, the fugitive, arrived safe at that place last evening.

The Veto Power and Gov. If he will continue this policy and reject any of this special legislation, any charters or recharters of Banks, he will entitle himself to the good opinion of all real friends of reform. The vital operat on of these principles can thus be forced upon the legislature however unmindful they may be of their pledges.—Newark Mercury.

The Wealthiest Man in Georgia—Gen. H Tarver, of Twiggs Co is the largest slaveholder, if not the wealthiest man in that State. He owns a thousand negroes and fifty thousand acres of land, divided into ten plantations, in Twiggs, Pulaski, Houseton and Baker Counties, yielding about two thousand bales of cotton annually. At 12 cents a pound his crop will yield him $203,000. He has recently added to his estate a track of 2,350 acres, in Hinks Co. purchased at $15 75 per acre, or for $47,000.

☞ There was great sport at Commodore Stockton's wine drinking yesterday afternoon. The champagne corks cracked without intermission for several hours. Every body almost was there. We hear that Mr. J. W. Wall, who had warmly opposed the Commodore's election, made him a congratulatory speech. "Boss dean," the leader of the effigy-burning, last week, was almost a master of ceremonies. The Commodore made a speech, in the course of which he declared that he never would have surrendered in the late contest, but sooner than that, he would have been carried out of Trenton with his feet formost and been buried under the railroad.—He said that he was the choice of all good Democrats, of nine-tenths of the Whigs, of all the tavern keepers and all the women. He said he had no doubt he could get a petition from the women which would reach to Princeton. He spoke at considerabl length on the question of Monopoly—and declared that the great internal improvements with which he was connected were taken hold of by him, to put New Jersey in a prosperous condition—the word Monopoly was a term absurd and unmeaning, and used in different counties merely for political effect. He spoke a great deal of what he had accomplished in building asylums, school houses and public institutions, and in giving to the state an ample treasury, by his efforts in the internal improvements of the state. He said he had written his recent letter declining the Senatorsh p in all sincerity, and had not been ambitious of political preferment. But when he heard, while in Virginia, that neither himself, Mr. Thompson, nor any other person connected with the companies could have the office—he immedidatly packed up his clothes and started for his native state—not to fight for the office of Senator, but to battle with all his might for his birth-right against the principle, that because he perilled his all in improvements which have enriched the state, he must, therefore, with all his friends, be forever disfranchised. It was, therefore, the proudest moment of his life to meet his friends on this occasion. He was endorsed by the Democracy of the State—and in his public duties, he would endeavor always to have an eye to the interests and prosperity of his native state. He pledged himself to labor while in his office for agriculture, manufactures an commerce. Of course his remarks were remarks with all sorts of applause, in the way both of hurrahs and bumpers of wine.

At the conclusion of his speech, Col. Alexander was called for, and responded by presenting a wreath of roses to Commodore Stockton, on behalf of a lady.

The drinking and fun then went on merrily, suffering an occasional interuption by some toast, complimentary to some member of the legislature.

Mr. Mahew too, was exalted into a hero by the noisy crowd, and was vociferously cheered. The effect of wine-drinking was soon evident all over town During the evening, the streets were paraded, very frequently, by numbers of no sy and very happy folks There can be no doubt, that after the champagne had begun to flow freely, the Commodore was decidedly the choice of the people. Mon ey and champagne are the true elements of popularity.—State Gazette.

Congress,

Monday.—In the Senate, the Cheap Postage Bill was amended, according to the propositions of Mr Rusk and ordered to be engrossed, but not passed, several gentlemen feeling the need of speaking on it. The amendments provide for half-ounce letters, prepaid, three cents; unpaid, five cents; over three thousand miles, double those rates; and a graduated tariff for newspapers of so much per quarter, according to frequency of publication and distance. The Senate spent the rest of the day in talk upon the President's Fugitive Slave Message.

The House devoted the day to the Appropriation Bills, and got through with about two-thirds of the same. An attempt was made by Mr. Phenix to add to the appropriation for the Mint a provision that if within the next year, the New-York Corporation should furnish gratis to the Government the premises necessary for a Mint, the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury should be to remove the Mint from Philadelphia to this City. This was decided out of order.

Gambling.—A taste for Gambling is easily excited, but when fairly aroused, is too strong to be readily allayed Nor is it alone in dram-shops and raffling-houses, that this accursed passion is first stimulated to action. The following facts, given by a correspondent of the Western Recorder, show that customs and practices have been introduced within the vestibule of the Christian church, which are directly calculated to inspire the novice with a taste for games of hazard:

"A father, in the time of a revival, called on a minister to converse with his son, who had formerly a habit of gambling, and for whose spiritual interest they were under much concern. The pastor did so, and was treated by the young man with much courtesy, and he had hopes he had secured his object, of convincing him of the injurious course he was pursu ng, and that a reformation would be the result. When about to leave, the young man requested to be heard a moment, and addressed the pastor as follows:—"Three years ago, the H—— church held a fair and festival. Those splendidly bound books you see on the table were set up at lottery. After much persuasion on the part of a young female friend, I consented against my inclination to purchase two tickets. The prize fell to me, and I was so elated with my good success, that I embraced the first opportunity of gambling on a larger scale, and since then have lost hundreds of dollars. But for that lottery, under the patronage of a Cristian Church, I never should have become a gambler."—N. Y. Tribune.

The whole number of Public Schools in Massachusetts is 3.878 Teachers, 4,304—males, 2,117; females, 2,187. Attendance in summer 176,344; in winter. 194,403 Average wages of male teachers per month, including board, $34 98: females $14 42 The whole amount expended for public schools during the year was $958.501 23.

Advantages of Living in a Free Country!

Lyman Harris, of Dumbarton, N. H. was lately tarred and feathered in South Carolina, because in his trunk was found a printed sermon delivered by Rev John S. Parker, of Dunbarton, about 4 years since, in which something was said censuring slavery.

The March of Improvement.—At St Paul, Minesoto, but a few days ago a wilderness, it is in contemplation to erect during the coming season a large hotel, in the style of the best eastern hotels—120ft. by 90, and four stories high; a Catholic Cathedral, and an Episcopal Seminary building; and a large brick storehouse by Mr Fuller, near the upper landing: a Territorial Capital building; a Court House, and numorous private dwellings, and business houses "At th s rate," says the St. Pauls' Democrat, "St. Paul will soon rank among the most flourishing cities of the West."

New Jersey Legislature.

Feb. 21.—Senate—Mr. Rogers reported a bill to authorize owners of land upon tide waters to build wharves upon their lands; to prevent swine running at large in Carpenter's Landing.

On motion of Mr. Alexander, the senate went into executive session.

After some time spent therein, the Senate was again called to order.

(It was understood that the nominations of the Governor were la'd on the table)

Mr. Potts reported a supplement to charter of Jersey City; a bill to prevent swine running at large in Boonton, Morris co.

The Senate proceeded to the Assembly room to go into joint meeting.

When they returned the Senate Adjourned.

On motion of Mr. Alexander, the Senate went into executive session.

After some time spent therein, the Senate came to order, and

Mr. Zabriskie introduce a bill to charter City of Paterson.

The Senate then adjourned to Monday afternoon, at 3 o'clock.

House.—Petitions.—By Messrs. Fritts, VanVorst, Smock, Haywood and Hurff, a number of remonstrants aginst the bill before the Legislature proposing to give the Board of Freeholders the power to change the location of the buildings of Camden Co.

By Mr. Hoxey, one from 300 inhabitants of Salem, in favor of limiting the quantity of land held by each, to 160 acres, and other land reforms and homestead exemtions.

Mr Vanderpool presented the fourth annual report of the Newark Savings Institution. This institution has 2270 depositors, who have deposited

Mr. Brown presented a remonstrance against the Jamesburg Agricultural Railroad Bill.

Mr. Loller introduced a resolution to inform the Senate that the House is ready to go into joint meeting.

Joint Meeting.

The reading of the minutes was dispensed with.

Mr. Zabriskie moved to proceed to take up the list of county officers. Lost.

The jont meeting was then called for United States Senator.

When Mr. Hoxey's names was called, he rose and said:

Mr. Chairman:—I desire to give my reasons for the course I deem it necessary to pursue in relation to the election of Senator. We have, up to this time spent some thousands of dollars, and much of the public time in fruitless attempts to accomplish this obect. I am informed, from sources upon which I rely, that the present candidate, Mr. Stockton, to whom I am radically averse, is to be superseded by a candidate, to me at least, if possible, more obnoxious, who, I am informed, is intimately connected with the companies in various ways. I am further informed, and know, from personal intercourse, that the succeeding cand date will receive the votes of gentleman, who through an honest and commendable sense of duty, have opposed the dominant candidate. I cannot vote for the present cand date, nor for him who is to succeed him I am unwilling, after the ostracism of a gentleman by the last whig caucus, to become the allay of this party in postponing this election for another year, as a mere party matter, with which I have no sympathy. It is apparent to me that we must have a Senator in some manner and form connected with the joint companies. As an anti-monopolist, I have no, choice provided it be not accomplished by my vote In order that this election may take place without further delay and waste of the public time of the joint meeting, some steps are necessary. I owe allegiance to no party—I have, at all times and in all places, avoided party pledges and responsibilities. I am unable to vote for the present candidate I am unwilling to be the instrument of electing his successor. I therefore request the joint meeting to excuse me from further voting upon the election of Senator.

The joint meetin refused to excuse Mr. Hoxey by a vote of 38 to 38.

Mr. Hoxey then asked leave to withdraw.

This being refused, Mr. Hoxey said he would take the liberty of absenting himself, and did so.

This created quite a sensation.

The vote was then announced as follows:

FIRST BALLOT.

Whole number of votes, 76. Stockton 39, Dayton 32, Randolph 2, Ford 3.

Mayhew and Williams (Whigs) voted for Stockton.

Mesrs. Canfield, Doughty and Opdyke, (Dems) voted for Ford

Absent, Messrs, Hoxey and W. A. Whitehead, (Whigs.)

TWENTY-SECOND BALLOT.

For Robert F. Stockton.—Alexander, Bleeker, Greer, Manners, Morford, Potts, Summerill, Taylor VanBrunt, Bartley, Benner Bilderback, Chamberlain, Connolly, Conver, Danser, Decker, Doremus, Fritts, Geroe, Hineline, Hopper, Hurff, Huyler, S. W. Jones, Loller, Marlow, Mayhew, Phillips, (Speaker,) Price, Ribble, Richman, Risley Eli Rogers, Simonson, Smock, Tunsman, Williams, Young—39. (All Democrats, except Mayhew and Williams)

For William L Dayton.—Birdsall, Craig, Edmunds, Fithian, Gill, Reeves, E. Y. Rogers, Satterthwaite, A. Whitehead, Zabriskie, Ayars, Beardsley, Boice, Braddock, Brokaw, Brown, Demott, Dye, Dunn, Emley, Haywood, Johnson, A. Jones, Meeker, Moore, Pierson, Stockton, Tatem, Valentine, Vanderpool, Wade, Wetherby—32.

For Henry A. Ford—Canfield, Doughty, Opdyke—3. (Democrats)

For Joseph F. Randolph.—Crowell and Van Vorst—2 (Whigs.)

Robert F. Stockton having received a majority of all the votes cast, was declared elected United States Senator for six years, from the 4th of March next.

Mr. Hoxey then returned to his seat, and the joint meeting proceed to the election of State Treasurer.

R. M Smith, Dem) of Mercer, was elected, over Samuel Mairs, (Whig) by a vote of 41 to 36.

Mr. Hoxey voted for Smith.

For Keeper of the State Prison.

Mr. Alexander withdrew the name of F. S. Mills.

Wm. B. Vanderveer, (dem) received 41 votes.

Jacob B Gaddis, (whig) received 36 votes.

For Inspectors of State Prison.

Feb. 24—Senate.—Petitions—By Messrs Alexander, Morford, Fithian, Gill, Rogers, Potts, Greer, Whitehead, and the President, several petitions in favor of the appointment of a State Agriculturist

By Mr Alexander, for a bridge over the Delaware at Milford.

A message was received from the Governor that he had signed Sussex Zinc and Copper Mining charter; Sussex and Warren Railroad Co; to charter Haddonfield Fire Department; Chingarora Dock Co; Coleville and Carpenter's Point Turnpike Co.

The Governor also returned the charter of Burlington, with his objections. The difficulty is, that while the constitution requires a residence of five months in the country, the charter requires a residence of five months in the city.

The message was laid on the table.

Ordered 3d Reading—to authorize Wm. Rankin, and others, to convey certan lands in the city of Newark.

To authorize John Vanrenselear. and wife, to convey certain real estate.

To charter Shamrock benevolent Society, of Newark.

The bill to charter New Brunswick Gas Light Co was read, and in order to ascertain how far the charter would interfere with the rights of any other company, it was postponed for the present.

Mr. Potts gave notice of a bill to charter the Camden and Atlantic Rail Road Company.

Adjourned

House—Mr. DeMott moved a call of the House Twenty-eigh members answered.

There not being a quorum, Mr. DeMott moved an adjournment. Adopted.

Duel between Inge and Stanley.

Washington Feb. 24.

Stanly and Inge, M C., had a hostile meeting this morning at 10 o,clock, somewhere beyond the District line. After an exchange of shots, through the interference of seconds, mutual explanations were entered into, and the parties became reconciled and returned to the city. Stanly was attended by his colleague William S. Ashe and William Cost Johnson, Maryland; Inge by Gov. Brown and Jefferson Davis of Miss. The fortunate termination of this affair gives unalloyed satisfaction

Senator from Rhode Island—His Qualifications.

The Telegraph announces the election of Gen. Charles James, of Providence, R. I., to the Senate of the United States for the term of six years To the qualifications of a man of fortune, a scholar and a gentlemen, Gen. James adds those of an excellent shot, that his friends may expect for him an entire immunity from challanges. We have in our office a target made by Gen. James, at 45 rods off hand, into which he put seventy-nine balls in firing eighty-eight shots at a public shooting match. The target was of the size and shape of an ordinary turkey. This feat is recorded in the Spirit of the Times—Grand Rapids (Mich) Eagle.

☞ The Salem Gazette states that at Rev Theodore Parker's meeting, in Boston, on Sunday, the 16th inst.; that gentleman exclaimed, in the course of his services, "I thank God the fugitive has escaped!" whereupon the audience gave him three rounds of applause.

The Crystal Palace.—Some of the scientific men of London doubt the security of the Crystal Palace, and expect to see it fall some day or other. Others, however, express the most decided confidence in its strength. A very severe gale and hailstorm, at the commencement of January, passed over without even breaking a pane of glass. The pressure of the gale was about 20 lbs to the square foot

The length of the palace is 1848 feet, and the breadth 408 feet. When the tables are arranged, the visitor must walk twenty-eight miles, in order to inspect all the articles on exhibition.

When you have anything to say, say it; when you have nothing to say, say it.

A Great Microscope.—A German, named Hasert, residing in Cincinnati, has manufactured a microscope for the Worlds' Fair, which has a magnifying power of 6000. The Cincinnati Times says of its powers:

The dust, which by contact with the wings of a butterfly, adheres to the finger, was shown to be a number of feathers—on these little feathers are observed longitudinal and transverse lines, but this has been, so far, the utmost that has been seen.—This new microscope, however, shows that between each pair of longitudinal lines there are five to six rows of scales like those of a fish, and appear to have the same form in all the feathers, differing only in size. A dust particle, taken from the back of the body of a sphinx, which is the largest of these feathers known, measuring one-fifteenth of an inch in length and one two-hundredth of an inch in breadth, had 104 longitudinal lines; between each pair of lines six rows of scales were visible, making the number of these little scales, laterally, 624—the number of scales longitudinally, downwards, would be 2223—therefore, the entire number of these scales on this little feather amount to one million, four hundred thousand, which gives the number of fourteen thousnd millions to one square inch.

A very minute particle of dust from the wing of a jimea, measuring only one five-hundredth of an inch in length, and one-thousandeth of an inch in width, the number of scales is found to be 84,000, which would give the enormous sum of 42,000,000,000 to one square inch. We observed, also, large sizes of a cat and common house flea, the eye of a fly, and the wing of a small bug—the latter presenting the most brilliant colors and beautiful shawl pattern we ever beheld, with a magninficent border elaborately ornamented.

WONDERFUL CURES!

AND

CANCHALAGUA;

FOR THE COMPLETE CURE OF

Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Asthma. Bronchitis, Spitting of Blood, and all other Lung Complaints tending to CONSUMPTION.

NO OPIUM.

This syrup contains no Opium, Calomel, or any mineral whatever, but is composed entirely of those Roots, Herbs, and vegetable substances which have a specific influence upon the Lungs, and their connected organs. Its immediate effect is to allay all irritation, and gently remove the phlegm and other morbid secretions from the Throat and Air-Passages; thus relieving the Cough, by subduing the inflammation and other causes which give rise to it. It also stimulates and imparts a healthy tone to the lungs themselves, thereby enabling them more thoroughly to remove from the blood those impurities and diseased particles, which, if retained, do so much mischief in the system, and lay the foundation for incurable CONSUMPTION. It also exerts a decided action upon the skin, and assists nature in expelling, through the Exhalents, much of that morbid matter which would otherwise be thrown back upon the Lungs, thus relieving them of a part of their work, and rendering the system pure and healthy. When tubercles are forming, it checks their development and further progress; or if ulceration has taken place, it assists the Lungs in throwing off the corrupted matter, soothes the irritation, heals the ulcerated cavities, and restores them again to healthy action. This Medicine, therefore, is not a palliative merely, which only relieves for the time being, but is a thorough curative, as it strikes at the very root of the disease, and, by removing it, removes at once all its remote and attendant consequences. This is its distinguishing characteristic—a property possessed, in equal power, by no other medicine of like nature, now before the public.

CIRCULARS, &c

As no ordinary-sized advertisement can fully explain the nature and merits of this article the Proprietors have published a new Circular, giving the history of this Medicine; the description, nature &c., of its principal ingredients; the effect they are designed to have upon the Lungs and Liver, and a copious reference to the persons who have been cured by it—giving their names and residences, even to the street and the number. Those who are troubled with a Cough, or whose Lungs are in the least affected, are earnestly desired to call upon the Agents named below, and procure one of these Pamphlets. It can be had gratis, and will well repay a perusal. The "Hints on Health," and "About taking Cold," may be worth to yourself and family.

HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS,

in the shape of Doctors' Bills saved, besides being the means of prolonging many a valuable life.

WARRANTY.

Such is our confidence in its virtues, that we are willing to warrant this Medicine in every case of recent Cold, (where used according to the Directions on page 7th of the pamphlet, inside the wrapper of each bottle,) and where the person is not satisfied that he is deriving benefit from it, by returning the bottle within 24 hours' time, will be returned. ☞ See page 3d of the pamphlet inside the wrapper of each bottle.

THE MONEY

☞ Be sure to ask for Dr A Rogers' Syrup of LIVERWORT, TAR, and CANCHALAGUA, and let no other be palmed on to you.

CAUTION.—None genuine, unless there is on the buff wrapper a note of hand, signed with a Pen, by A. L. SCOVILL & CO.

FOR SALE, wholesale and retail, by A. L. SCOVILL & Co., Proprietors, at their Principal Depot, GOTHIC HALL, no 316 Broadway, New York, to whom all orders for the Medicine, and letters relating to agencies, should be addressed, post paid.

GREAT COUGH REMEDY!

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

Introducing to the community the above celebrated remedy for disease of the throat and lungs, it is not our wish to trifle with the lives or health of the afflicted, but frankly to lay before them the opinions of distinguished men and some of the evidences of its success, from which they can judge for themselves. We sincerely pledge ourselves to make no wild assertions or false statements of its efficacy, nor will we hold out any hope to suffering humanity which facts will not warrant.

Many proofs are here given, and we solicit an inquiry from the public into all we publish, feeling assured they will find them perfectly reliable, and the medicine worthy their best confidence and patronage.

FROM BENJ. SILLIMAN, M D, L L D, &c,
Professor of Chemistry, Mineralogy, &c, Yale College. Member of the Lit Hist Med Phil. and Scien. Societies of America and Europe.

"I deem the CHERRY PECTORAL an admirable composit on from some of the best articles in the Materia Medica, and a very effective remedy for the class of diseases it is intended to cure."

New Haven, Ct, Nov 1, 1849.

Prof CLEAVELAND, of Bowd in College, Me Writes—"I have witnessed the effects of your "CHERRY PECTORAL" in my own family and that of my friends and it gives me satifaction to state in its favor that no medicine I have ever known has proved so eminently successful in curing diseases of the throat and lungs."

REV. DR OSGOOD.

Writes—"That he considers "CHERRY PECTORAL' the best medicine for Pulmonary Affections ever given to the public," and states that "his daughter after being obliged to keep the room four months with a severe settled cough, accompanied by raising of blood, night sweats, and the attendant symptoms of Consumption, commenced the use of the 'CHERRY PECTORAL,' and had completely recovered."

HEAR THE PATIENT.

Dr Ayer—Dear Sir: For two years I was afflicted with a very severe cough, accomanied by spitting of blood and profuse night sweats. By the advice of my attending physician I was induced to use your CHERRY PECTORAL, and continued to do so till I considered myself cured, and ascribe the effect to your preparation.

JAMES RANDALL.

Hampden ss. SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 27 1848.

This day appeared the above named James Randal, and pronounced the above statement true in every respect.

THE REMEDY THAT CURES.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 10, 1847.

Dr Ayer: I have been long afflicted with Asthma which grew yearly worse until last autumn, it brought on a cough which confined me in my chamber, and began to assume the alarming symptoms of consumption—I had tried the best advice and the best medicine to no purpose, until I used your CHERRY PECTORAL, which has cured me, and you may well believe me. Gratefully yours

J. D. PHELPS.

If there is any value in the judgement of the wise, who speak from experience, here is a medicine worthy of the public confidence.

CALICO AND MUSLINS, pretty cheap and good, at I. S. DUNHAM & Cos. Cheap Dry Good Store.

GRAHAM'S MAGAZINE, for March, is entitled, in the publisher's notice accompanying it, "a surprise number," and it well deserves the name. It makes its appearance in an equally novel garb and attractive character—without "pictures," (unless we should characterize as such a few very finely executed wood-cut illustrations,)—without even a fashion plate; these customary ornaments being, for once, substituted by literary matter—original, American, paid-for literary matter (it cost, we learn, $1500) 144 pages of it, too—just as many as Harper's New Monthly and the International Magazines devote to selected matter, not paid for, from the British periodicals. The intention of the pubisher is obvious and praise-worthy—the result singular and successful. There are no less than fifty different original papers in the number, presenting a great display of names of popular American writers, and as great a variety of subjects handled. It is, in consequence, a most attractive and excellent number, superior in interest and general merit to its foreign rivals of this month, and deserving the approbation which should attach to national spirit and liberal expenditure. We are sure that the popular verdict will be in its favor; as we are equally sure that an American magazine, conducted on such a plan, is, in its beneficial influence on American literature, of more worth than all the reprints, of or from British periodicals, in the world.

Mr. Graham has, we are pleased to learn, been eminently successful in his magazine since he resumed its management; and certainly, if extraordinary aptitude in accommodating the public taste—if liberal dispensation of means to accomplish well-considered ends—if the employment of the best talent, upon the only sure method, that of the best payment—if continual wachfulness to avail himself of whatever is new or striking; and, in a word, a resolute determination not to be outdone, in any way, by anybody, entitle him to success, he eminently deserves it.

The April number, will, we learn, present its former decorated appearance, and be expensively and splendidly illustrated.—United States Gazette.

PROFESSOR A. C. BARRY'S TRICOPHEROUS, or Medicated Compound.

FOR RESTORING, PRESERVING, AND beautifying hair eradicating scurf and dandruff, and curing diseases of the skin, glands and muscles, stings, cuts, bruises, sprains, &c., &c. It has been ascertained by experiment that has produced the same effect in curing disease of the skin, &c., of the Horse and all the animal kingdom.

Barry's Tricopherous,

The following testimonials, selected from hundreds of similar import, will serve to show the value of the preparation, and the estimation in which it is held by those who have given it a trial:

NEW-YORK, Sept 22, 1850.

Prof Barry—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted with a cutaneous eruption of the scalp of a most aggravated character for the last sixteen years, and during that period I have had the advice of some of the most eminent physicians, and have tried all the preparations for the hair and skin now known, without the least benefit. I was advised by a friend to try your Tricopherous. I did so, as a last resort, and, to my surprise and gratification, found myself cured in about two months. Such was the violence of the disorder that at times I was partially blind.

Respectfully yours,
G. V. M. RAPELYE, 148 Columbia-st.
Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Oct 23d 1850.

Prof Barry—My Dear Sir: About two years ago my hair came out a great deal, and my head was much affected with dandruff. I was told by a friend to try your Tricopherous, and I did so, and to my astonishment my hair was firmly rooted, and all the dandruff disappeared, as the head now shews for itself.

With respect I am your obedient servant,
J. S. TREADWELL, 633 Broadway.

[From the Military & Naval Argus, Nov. 9th.]

There is no remedy for the permanent cure of baldness and diseases of the cranium generally, that has reached the popularity enjoyed by the article known as Professor Barry's Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound. It is extensively used by the upper classes of the community; in almost every nursery in the land it is used in preference to other articles of the kind. It imparts vigor to the roots of the hair, and thus promotes its growth to a remarkable degree. It destroys dandruff and scurf, and yields the hair fine and glossy. It will cure all diseases of the scalp such as scald head, dew worm, and other obnoxious disorderders of the skin: in cheapness, as well as efficacy, it stands unrivaled. It is sold in large bottles, price 25 cents at No 137 Broadway, and at the druggists' generally throughout the United States and Canadas. [123 s.

THE NEW JERSEY

HORSE POWER

Manufacturing Company.

HAVING improved, strengthened and perfected A. D. CRANE'S Patent Horse Power, are now prepared to furnish the same to all who may want.

This Power consists of an endless floor running over a series of pulleys, connected by cranks, without a rack or cog wheel about it; none being required from the fact, that the weight of the horse on the floor or platform causes sufficient adhesion between it and the pulleys to transmit all the power he is able to give. Also by this arrangement the chain is freed from the draught or strain (which cannot be avoided in any other Stall Power) except what is reqired to pass the floor around. The requisite speed is obtained direct from the machine thereby avoiding a great amount of friction and wear, and lessening the liability to get out of order. They run so easily as to require less than an inch elevation to the foot. A self acting brake is attached by which the motion is kept regular and uniform even when the work is unsteady and irregular.

From the above description it is evident that this is the most simple and efficient Power known.

They are highly recommended by those who have used them, for driving Circular Saws, Lathes, Drilling Machines, Threshers, Grist Mills, Pumps, &c.

The Company have certificates to prove the above and also to show that the Two Horse Power will grind 40 bushels of Corn to Meal (with Platt's Patent Mill,) in a day of ten hours, making it an invaluable Power for the Southern planter as well as others.

It has taken Silver Medals at the different Fairs where exhibited, and the only one given to Horse Powers by the American Institute last fall.

They also furnish Threshers of the most approved construction.

Price of Single Power with Belt, $75; Double do. with Belt, $110; Thresher and Separator, $35.

HERNIA.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.—This disorder, of very frequent occurrence, may be considered as arising through weakness of the abdominal walls, inducing an enlargement in the natural openings formed therein for the transmission of blood and other vessels: such openings being enlarged, permit the escape of bowels or other viscera of the abdomen, devolving hernial swellings or rupture, which most generally occur outwardly, as at the navel, groins and thighs.

The complaint is likely to happen at birth, and therefore should be carefully looked for by those having the charge of children, that it may be arrested and cured promptly. It also occurs at any period of life, to either sex, without regard to the condition or mode of living, and when found, should be attended to without delay—the final penalty being death, and that may be induced through strangulation at any moment.

RUPTURES, are always to be treated with the surgical instruments known as Trusses and Supporters, and these require to be skillfully applied. With this view, the HULL'S TRUSS OFFICE, now established some thirty years, has under the various managers, presented to the public both male and female attendants to apply its instruments directly to the persons, which is preferable in all cases, and has also made improvement at different times, showing that advancement which study and practice only yield toward the relief of this malady.

With much pleasure the fact is now published, that recent improvements BUTLER'S TRUSS PADS have been made, and sufficiently tested upon numerous cases to warrant, through the cures already affected, their submission to the public, as being in adaptation and efficiency superior to any heretofore made known.

These improvements, recently patented, are now being applied at this office, 4 Vesey street, in cases of rupture, gravitation of the bowels, prolapsus uteri, prolapsus ani and piles.

The public may rely upon that care being made in their application, which will most likely tend to the final cure of the several complaints.

Hull's Truss Office, 4 Vesey street, Astor House, opposite St. Paul's Church, New York.

FREDK M. BUTLER, Proprietor.

N. B.—The ladies' department is attended by a female qualified to fit the instruments, having so attended this office for many years.

MECHANICAL MEDICINE.

Dr. Banning, formerly of this city, asks to announce that he has returned to 341 Broadway; for consultation and management of weakneses of the vocal, pulmonary, digestive, nervous, spinal and female systems; and also of the drooping, languor and physical deformities, which are so destructive of both health and beauty at the present day.

As these and kindred maladies are usually the result of a violation of the laws of physical organization, he will treat them chiefly by those exercises, mechanical appliances and reformatory habits of body, in conjunction with hydropathy galvanism and other discoveries of the day, which, united with the cooperative efforts of the subject, are calculated to relieve and restore the energies of the suffering and neglected organs.

Having spent several years in traveling for investigation and practical experiment on the subject, he has, at length, greatly improved and multiplied his surgical and mechanical appliances for the purpose. In addition to his new supports for female and spinal weaknesses, are some combining the properties of a universal hernial truss and an effective general support, with which he challenges cases of general debility, constipation, piles and prolapsus, ani, lencorrhea, prolapsus uteri and every variety of hernia

The distinctive peculiarity of these devices is, that they do not weaken or restrain the motions or growth of the suffering parts, but act imitatively and concordantly with the mathematical genius of the body's forces. Hence, by a most comfortable and gentle pressure, they at once give great support and render the oppressed system eligible to its own restoration.

Feeble invalids coming from a distance will command prompt and faithful attention.

For more definite information, see his revised edition of "Animal Mechanics," and also his circular, which will be sent gratuitously when requested.

His improved body-braces, spinal supports and supporter trusses applied at his office (341 Broadway) and to be had wholesale and retail- City and country physicians and druggists are invited to call and examine Office hours from 9 A. M to 1 P M. [121.

DOCTOR YOURSELF! FOR 25 CENTS!!!

BY MEANS OF THE POCKET ESCULAPIUS, or, Every one his own Physician! Thirtieth edition, with upwards of a hundred engravings, showing private diseases in every shape and form, and malformations of the generative system,

BY WM. YOUNG, M, D.

The time has now arrived, that persons suffering from secret diseases, need no more become the victim of quackery as by the prescriptions contained in this book any one may cure himself, without hindrance to business, or the knowledge of the most intimate friend, and with one tenth the usual expense. In addition to the general routine of private disease, it fully explains the cause of manhood's early decline, with observations on marriage—besides many other derangements which it would not be proper to enumerate in the public prints.

☞ Any person sending TWENTY-FIFE CENTS enclosed in a letter, will receive one copy of this book, by mail, or five copies will be sent for one dollar. Address, "DR. W. YOUNG, No. 152 SPRUCE Street, PHILADELPHIA." Post paid.

☞ DR. YOUNG can be consulted on any of the Diseases discribed in his different publications, at his Office, 152 SPRUCE Street, every day between 9 and 3 o'clock. (Sundays excepted) [151.

FOR FEMALES AND MALES

Dr. Lazzetti's Juno Cordial, or Protective Elixir.

This is the only actual remedy ever discovered for impetency, Genital Debility, Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases occasioned by certain secret habits; and many of the nostrums recently recommended for the same complaints are worthless imitations which its unrivalled excellence, fame and popularity have brought into the market. The Medical Faculty of Europe and the United States are unanimous in their recommendations of the Juno Cordial and have not given their sanction in a single instance that has been authenticated, to any compound for the same purposes. The nature of the maladies relieved by the Juno Cordial are generally such as to leave the publication of certificates of cures out of the question, or the proprietor could produce a host of the most conclusive testimony to show that the great reputation that it enjoys was not accidentally obtained, but is firmly based upon its positive, and apparently miraculous virtues. In all directions are to be found the happy parents of healthy offspring, who would not have been so, but for this extraordinary preparption. And it is equally potent in the many diseases for which it is recommended. Objection has been naturally made to the price of the Juno Cordial, because the trash that has been thrown into the market in opposition to it is sold cheaper; but the fact is, the Cerdal cannot be afforded for less, and ought to be much dearer, as many of the ingredients which compose it are among the costliest things in nature; whereas the others are made up of cheap drugs, worth but little in money, and less in merit. We assure the reader that the utmost reliance may be placed on the Juno Cordial in the cure of the maladies mentioned above, and also those that follow, viz: Loss of Muscular Energy, Physical Lassitude and General Prostration, Irritability, and all Nervous Affections, Indigestion, Sluggishness of the Liver, Gleet, Lucorrhoea or Whites, and Flour Albus and every disease in any way connected with the disorder of the Procreative Functions—in all of which it will afford almost immediate relief, and, if used as directed, is almost certain to produce a positive and permanent cure Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness or disability of a certain nature, should take this Cordial, as it will infallibly restore health and vigor in a brief period, and where want of offspring is a cause of regret, if recourse be had to it the most beneficial results may be anticipated with confidence It is of priceless value to those without off-spring It has taken the precedence in Italy and will in all other countries where it may become known.

To spread wide the blessings of this medicine, I have appointed Messrs Judson & Co., of the City of New York, in the United States of America, my sole Agents for its sale; and none can be genuine unless it comes through them, and their signature is on the weapper

The Reclaimed.

BY MILTON FORREST.

Two neighbors there were: one rich, and the other poor—both happy and contented, as men could be, each in thier own way of course, and sharers of each others sorrows, and joys—lived in harmony, and friendship, though the rich merchant Wilson was far superior to his tenant Wells, in wealth and intellect, yet he had a kind, a sympathising heart, that taught him to respect all, to treat all with feelings of kindness. Now these two neighbors were strictly temperate Never had the cup touched their lips—never had the first flavor of wine been delicious to their taste.

A national "Jubilee" came round—the anniversary of "America's Liberties"—when a burst of unfeigned joy—a universal shout of liberty went up from the millions of America's sons. In the language of olden time, "it was a day of feasting and gladness," at least so with these two neighbors, the "rich" and the "poor."

In the evening the "one," was to entertain the rich potentates of his native city; and the "other," to call in a few friends, and have merely a social chat.

The "one" lived in a fashionable world, and the wine cup must be proffered to his guests—the "other" by way of frindly greeting, must have beer for his, though his heart throbbed with sensations of guilt, as he purchased it, but he stiffled conscience, with the thought that he would not taste it.

Evening came. Dazzling splendor, beauty, wealth and fashion, reigned in the majestic halls of Wilson's princely mansion; while a few glimering lights shone in the cottage of the poor man Wells, where were assembled a few jovial friends. The foaming beer went round, but the man Wells, manfully resisted the temptation of tasting the many times proffered glass, though bantered by all, for his silly whims.

The evening was spent. Wells began to grow sad The tempters voice whispered, "how unsocial, to offer a glass to a friend and not partake of it—how strange—how suspicious—how mean—how ungrateful to them," I will even now make amends Friends said he I see—s—see—see—

"That you have not acted the part of a man, to night," cried a son of Champagne, finishing his sentence.

"That's it," echoed another voice.

Wells bowed his head to confirm it, and said. "To prove my sincerity, I will now drink to your health and prosperity."

He drank: and ere the "monitor of time" tolled "twelve" that night, the tavern was his resort. Within its walls he lay beastly intoxicated; where we will leave him for a while.

In Wilson's palace the wine flowed freely. To him, the glass was many times proffered, but was rejected, and by some he was scorned in return. The tempters voice whispered in his ear too, how "unsocial."

The evening wore on. The scence was to close by an oration, upon a subject connected with the occasion: after this, to chant a national song; and drink to the prosperity of our nation, and the happiness of her valliant sons. Every voice mingled in that glad song; and then the cup touched every lip, save one.

"Let's drink to the prosperity of our friends temperate principles;" and forgetting their dignity, the cup was again to nearly every lip.

This allusion was ment for me thought Wilson. It was too much for wounded pride to bear. Once more we will drink to our nation's pride: echoed a voice: Then all drank—drank again and again; and that fatal night, found the man Wilson within his own house, beastly intoxicated with wine When he awoke from that debauch, he knew that he had fallen, and while toiling over his voluminous ledger accounts, he reflected upon it—grieved over it: but still the taste of that first flavor, was even then delicious upon his lips There was a still silent hankering after the cup The serpent's deadly fang had pierced its victim, and the influence was still felt

Another anniversary came—holiday—Christmas; and Wilson made preparations, for another entertainment At this festival, he consented to take one draught, as the cup went round. This kindled up the latent fires, that were pent up within his bosom He felt joyous, drank again, and again, till he was born insensible to his room. He never recovered from this fall, though from shame, and remorse, he rejected the proffered glass for a while In a month from this, he was earnestly engaged in a political campaign. His party was victorious; and at the Polls; at the solicitation of one of his party friends, he drank a glass or two. From this he became a moderate drinker.

When the man Wells awoke the next morning, he found himself on the floor of a dirty tipling house, where a little straw had been spread for his bed. "Where am I?" he inquired: "How came I here?—this is not my home—where is it? Where are my wife and children?" "Be quiet friend," said a voice behind the counter, "you shall be taken home directly; be quiet"

But how is it at home—The wife has gone in search of her husbsnd, having become alarmed at his absence. She returned, just as the light of day began to stream up the horrison, and found him, just borne to the door, his eyes glassy, and his face haggard, with marks of the last nights revelry.

Nature fainted at the sight. She had seen her father step from a path of virtue and happiness, into the pit of intemperance, and now she beheld her husband preparing to travel the same path.

She became deadly pale; and when this sight was revealed to him; he became fully conscious.

"She is dying" he cried, "O God save her, must she die and I be the cause of her death? Save her; and I swear eternal abstinance from the cup—ever will I dash it from my lips."

"Thank heaven for those words," she murmured. She soon recovered from only a momentary swoon; though poor Wells thought it was the "swoon of death" When he went again to his daily toil, he reflected upon his vow, and resolved anew to keep it; and when he returned from labor at night, and beheld happiness and content at his door; he was happy in the thought; he regretted not, that he had thrown off the serpents coils.

"Do stay at home to night—just once, and sit with me;" said a trembling voice to the rich merchant Wilson, as, (as was his custom) he wrapt his cloak of fur around him to go out; "do stay and read with me to night, I am so lonesome."

"Stay with you" said he tauntingly, "I've some-else to do besides consoling women," and away he went, little knowing of the poignant grief, felt by those he had left. He was a moderate drinker, and must have his dram. On his way to his nightly resort, he met Wells It was election day.

"How does our case go to day?" he asked.

"Indeed, I do not know;" responded wells.

"Suppose then, we go over to the polls and see."

They, went and learned, that again they had been victorious "Will you take a glass in honor of our victory," asked Wilon, stepping up to the "bar," and calling for wine.

"No. I have drank nothing for two years—not since last election."

"P'shaw, take some, it will do you good."

"No;" responded Wells firmly.

"Don't tempt him; he is a temperance man, echoed one of the by-standers scornfully."

"That's it," said several others.

"Will you take some now, Tee-toteller, eh?"

"I will take one glass, if it is harmless: to satisfy you" said Wells: trying to look composed.

He drank, and was soon insensible.

Thus he was borne to his home, and left within the hall, for even the hard-hearted rumseller, could not present him to his wife, as he was. The sad news of his fall, was told her, only as she found him lying there—his sacred vow broken, and all his manly integrity crushed. He was placed upon a couch, and when he woke from that deep delirious sleep, he saw his wife bending over him; her face; not as he had last beheld it, radient with hapiness, but haggard with fear and care.

"Why am I here?" he cried "Here it is mid-day—and I am not at my work yet. I must go," and he attempted to rise; but he had no strength.

He had been worn down by a fever for two weeks, and for four more, he lay on the very brink of death. At last he arose from the sick couch, pale and amaciated, and when, two months from this, he commenced his daily toil, it was with a heavy heart. In his sickness he had contracted many debts; and in his fall, he had lost the confidence of his friends.—With such thoughts he was haunted, and when night came, he had half a mind to drown his remorse in the cup; and as he passed to his home, he stopped for a moment, opposite the place where he last drank.

Certainly one glass can do no harm, thought he, and he glided in.

"What will you have?" asked the landlord.

"Cold night," said Wells—"bitter cold—winters fast coming on—how chilly it is."

"You want something to warm you up," said the landlord, "I understand your case perfectly; what will you have?"

"Anything, landlord—only be quick."

"Will you take Ale?"

"Anything"

He drank a glass, and went on to his home—Such, is the thraldom of appetite Love for those he had left at home, respect for his character, and even, the direful penalty, he had paid for his last dram, none could subdue his slavery of appetite.

The next night he drank again; and thus he continued, until he became a drunkard in the fullest sense of the term; and his home became the abode of misery and wretchedness. All he could earn was paid for liquor; and his property began to pass away, as if borne on the wings of the wind. Scarce anything remained except his cottage, and one note in the Bank which had not been drawn.

Wilson, after he had seen the result of his scheme in making a drunkard of Wells: for it was a scheme, which he had devised, for purposes, which ater events will reveal; went to his counting room though near midnight, to pore over his ledger He was on the eve of bankruptcy; though none knew it but himself He could not live more than a week longer, at the most, unless he could obtain assistance. Near morning he returned home, and found his wife waiting for him. In an angry tone he bade her retire.

Ah how changed that voice; how different the grating of those harsh words on her ear; from the once enchanting tones, that always spoke kindly, and with feeling. Intemperance caused this change, and she was aware of it.

The next morning, Wilson stopped on the way to his store—drank freely, and passed on, to examine again his ledger. On the previous evening, he had omitted one account, due the next day at twelve o'clock.

"I must have the money, or I am ruined," he exclaimed.

"Ah yes, I have it now; that note of Wells' will just cancel the debt If I can forge that note, and draw it without suspicion, then, I am safe for a few days at least I have a little perception left yet. I knew I should need some 'cash' soon; as long ago, as election night: and to that end, when he was fully unconscious, I got him, unwittingly, to endorse a blank paper, to which I can easily add a skeleton note, which, with his signature to it, will be just as good as the original note. This is the way I'll work him, ha, ha, ha But he will never know," and again he chuckled over his imaginary success, and his own cousumate skill.

The note was forged, and drawn without suspicion. One week from this, his shutters were closed He was a bankrupt. On the eve of the same day, he returned home, to tell the sad tale of his misfortune to his family The next day, the papers echo the news; and soon his creditors gathered around him.

Says one; "we must sell what he has left."

"And yet, get only twenty per cent," says another.

"Liquor is the cause of this," ventured another, "for surely, no merchant of our city, once stood on so firm a foundation."

"'Tis hard indeed, to suffer from one ruinous habit of his;" echoes a fourth. Yet such is the effects of intemperance. Its influence is not felt alone by the victim.

A few days after; his goods, house, and indeed nearly all he possesed, was sold under the hammer. His wife bore the trial manfully, and she did not go unrewarded. Her household ware, and furniture, was restored to her, with the use of a small, yet convenient cottage, a little way from the city. Thither her husband followed her, for he drank so freely, that he had no power to direct affairs. His forgery; no one had yet discovered; and he retired to his new home, willing to suffer the disgrace he had; could he conceal the rest. Every night found him, either in the City Hotel, or lounging in the country tavrn, near by.

One after another of his household articles were sold, for liquor: notwithstanding the efforts of his wife to retain them. Each day, witnessed the departure of some article of comfort, until scarcely anything was left, but their clothing, and the "Family Bible."

But how is it with the inmates of home? His wife sat reading her Bible one night, a short time after Wells recovery, before the hearth; where she had placed her last stick of wood. The faint glare of those embers, was her only light. Two chairs, a low bed, and a table, was the only furnilure the room afforded.

One child—once a cherub little fellow, lay upon the bed exhausted with a fever, and only his groans, as he slept, would startle the mother.

Another lay upon some straw, with scarce any covering, having wearied itself to sleep, in crying for food. Far different her situation once. Once in a palace, with a knind husband to soothe all her woes, with every luxury which wealth could bestow: but now in a hovel, without a single crust of bread, no fire but what was fast dying away before her, with nothing to give her consolation, but the "golden promises" contained in the sacred volume, she held before her.

Hark! a step is at the door—'tis her husband, returning from his nightly revelries. He came in, and in an angry insulting tone, bade her give him the Bible, to go and purchase a dram.

"Edward" she cried, "do not take away my only source of comfort."

"Give me that book. I'll teach you comfort—sit here doing nothing. Where is my supper? you lazy, indolent—good for nothing ———. Give me that book, or I'le beat your brains out."

"O Edward!" she cried, "you will" ———. But a blow from a chair laid her at his feet. She finished not the sentence. She was dead, but he knew it not.

He snatched the book—the Bible—went to the city, pawned it for liquor, and then turned his footsteps homeward again.

But we will return to Wells.

He continued much as he had done, fast spending what personal property he had remaining.

Being in want of some money one day, he took his note, went to the Bank—delivered it to the Cashier, and requested payment.

"That note has been drawn in your name sir—drawn some time since," he replied, handing back the note.

"Who drew it?"

"I dont recollect"

"By whom" cried Wells, becoming excited; "by whom I demand,"

"Can't tell. Dont recollect the number of the register."

At this moment his son came in,

"James" said he "do you know who drew this note?" handing it to him.

"Not to any certainty. I saw Edward Wilson go out from here, about a week before he broke. I heard him tell Mr Guilliot, on the day before that he could not pay his note, and I heard Guilliot say, the next day that he had paid him.

I should have thought nothing of the affair,—nothing strange I mean, had I not seen him request Mr Wells, to endorse his name on a blank paper, some time previous—election night I think. I have heard nothing to confirm the suspicion, which then flashed across my mind, until now, hence I have said nothing of it."

"It may be Wilson who drew the note," replied the Cashier. "Let me see; perhaps I can find it, if so, I can tell whether It is forged or not."

After looking awhile, he found it, and by comparing it with other papers of his; found the suspicion too true "Let us go to his house," cried the excited, and indignant Wells, "I'll have revenge."

He, with the cashier and his son, proceeded directly to his home, and found him, just returning from the city, beastly intoxicated, with the liquor he had purchased with the "Family Bible." You've ruined me," cried Wells—"wretch, you forged my note; now pay the penalty by death;" and he commenced beating him, and would have killed him, had not the Cashier, and his wife interfered. She heard her husband's threats, as he passed the house, and having a vague fear, that he was going to commit some wrong, had secretly followed him, and saved him from the odium of a murderers name—a crime he would have abhorred in his sober moments.

By this time Wilson was sensible of his situation. He knew his crime was discovered. He attempted no defence. He could make none. He only thought of escape. He was pursued, and as he entered his dwelling, a deep groan escaped his lips, and he fell insensible. As Wells and his companions steped upon the threshold, and beheld the inmates of that dwelling of woe—a father drunk, and insensible—a mother dead—one child asleep on some straw, and another dying; they paused, and staggered back—It was to much for human vision. Even poor Wells seemed to awake to consciousness, and look thoughtful.

They procured assistance, and then entered that abode of misery. By this time the child was dead. They placed its father by its side, and laid the mother beside her sleeping child. The dead were soon buried at public expense, and the living, removed to a more comfortable habitation. Wilson, now began to show unequivocal signs of "Delerium Tremens."

At times he would lay perfectly passive, and then suddenly spring from his couch, and with the fury of a madman, grasp at the phantoms of his murdered wife, and the image of his child.

He would call on God, to curse his being, and send him to perdition, and shake off those, who attempted to hold him, under the belief that they were serpents coiled around him. He imagined his companions were going to flay him alive—cut off his flesh with saws—pull off his skin in strings, and hang them upon wires.

At one moment he thought his breast was full of wild animals, and asking some one to drag them out, a horrid sensation of faintings would come over him,

In a few days he died, and now he fills a drunkard's grave. Such is the drunkards career—such his end such the final result of moderate drinking.

Ye moderate drinkers beware. This course will lead lead to ruin if persisted in. Though I am no seer, to foretell man's future destiny; yet the prophetic eye of past observation, tells this tale, in mournful numbers.

A young tree may writhe in the tempest, may feel the full power of the tornado, and though its top may bend, and touch the ground; yet; being flexible with youth, may rise again; but what have we to expect of a giant oak, that stands, isolated, and rotten with age, when the rude blast of the tempest, and the fullest power of the hurricane, sweeps, with full scope among its branches. So with the moderate drinker—then the chain, of a slavish appetite, are not fully forged, and like the young tree, he may rise if he will: but what have we to expect of one, who has withstood entreaty for years, around whom the deadly serpent has coil'd, and whose vitals have been pierced, by its poisnous fangs—one who is a habitual runkard.

Then reform ere it is too late.

Wells was at the funeral of poor Wilson. He was thoughtful stil. He had scarcely drank since his encounter with him. His wife knew this was his time to reform, and she put forth every effort to save him. She prayed over him, and entreated him, to take warning from Wilsons fate and drink no more.

Nor were her efforts in vain.

A temperance reform was soon commenced in the city. A pledge was presented to him. He staggered a moment, as if undetermined, whether to chose life or death, and then wrote his signature.

From this moment he became another man—dashed the cup from his lips, and resolved to drink no more. Nor has that resolve been broken. And now the name of Thomas Wells, holds a prominant place among the merchants of his native city.

Though not a millionare, he has enough, yet he has what wealth cannot purchase,—happiness and content—a happy home and a happy wife.

True Hospitality.

I pray you, O excellent wife, cumber not yourself and me, to get a curiously rich dinner for this man or woman who has alighted at our gates; nor a bed chamber made ready at too great a cost; these things, if they are curious in them, they can get for a few shillings in any village; but rather let the stranger see, if he will, in your looks, accents and behaviour, your heart and earnestness, your thought and will, which he cannot buy at any price in any city, and which he may well travel twenty miles, and dine sparely and sleep hardly, to behold. Let not the emphasis of hospitality lie in bed and board; but let truth and love and honor and courtesy flow in all thy deeds.—[Ralph Waldo Emerson.

A man recently wrote the following letter to his son, who was at a distant college:

MY DEAR SON: I write to send you two pair of my old breeches, that you may have a new coat made out of them; also some new socks, which your mother has just knit, by cutting down an old pair of mine; she sends you, without my knowledge, ten dollars, which you will not waste; and for fear that you will not use it wisely, I have kept back half of it, and only send you five. Your mother and I are well, except that your sister has the measles, which we think would spread amongst the other girls if Tom had not had them before, and as he is the only one left, he cannot catch it. I hope you will behave yourself, and do honor to my teachings; if you do not, then you are an ass, and your mother and myself your affectionate parents.——

Growth of Shade Trees.

A venerable octagenarian now residing in Brooklyn, when 15 years of age, planted four elms, less than 3 in. in diameter, before the dwelling of his father, in the beautiful village of Stockbridge, Mass. He has recently made enquiries respecting them; and learns from their present owner, that they measure 9 feet 10 1-2 in in circumference, 6 feet from the ground. That they spread over a circle 50 feet in diameter, and rise 68 feet in length as near as can be ascertained, affording a delightful shade, greatly increasing the value and beauty of the property, and being highly ornamental to the place. Who would not by a similar forethought and trifling labor, thus provide for their pleasure and happiness of generations yet to come. This gives a growth of over 1-2 an inch per annum in the diameter of trees, and a fact beyond dispute worth noting. W.

The Legislature.

The bill to abolish the property qualification has become a law; the bill to equalize taxes, to exempt two hundred dollars worth of goods from execution, to exempt the same goods from distress for rent, have passed the House of Assembly and are in the Senate. Thus far only has the legislature proceeded in the passage of the reform measures; the general banking law, railroad law, Educational reform, &c., have not yet been perfected, and we much fear will be among the missing; the forty days of the session have already expired, and without more despatch it will be impossible these measures can be passed. The following from the True American expresses our opinion on the subject as we doubt not it does that of our readers.

The Reforms.

"Our friends are continually asking us whether the Legislature will adjourn without passing all the Reforms. We know that they have been delayed by unforeseen circumstances, but we cannot doubt the integrity of those members who, as representatives of the Democratic party, stand pledged to do their utmost to comply with the wishes of the people relative to the Reforms.

We hope they will be enacted, even if the Legislature should be compelled to sit for a month longer. Private opinions may be entertained averse to the propriety of some of the prosed measures—but one thing is certain, the people demand them—we have promised them, and unless we redeem our promises, the people will hold us responsible, and condemn us as a party.

No member need expect to escape by a "dodge." He who is not for us is against us, and if the name of a single Democrat is not found in favor of these Reforms, it might as well be found in opposition. There is no intermediate position.

We have discussed these measures so often that it seems to us they must be too well understood to need further argument in their defence. In fact, the time for discussion has passed, now is the hour for action. They must be passed without delay, or our fate as a party is sealed. To pause is ruin. Let us then speedily have the pleasure of starring every Reform laid down in the Platform,—so that we may face our constituents with confidence

We have seen it stated in print within a week or two, that there are within the sound of our church bells, five hundred infidels. A more gross falsehood could not have been uttered. About one half of our entire population, including the village and vicinity are church members, and the other half are mostly children. We know of but two infidels in this whole section, after a residence here of 15 years. There may be two or three more, who are ashamed to avow their silly, mischievous, wicked and blasphemous principles, of whom we have not heard. So glaring and malicious a slander against our moral, healthy, beautiful and flourishing vilage as the one referred to above, we have never before met with, and hope the assertion will be regarded as a lie by all its readers.—Plainfield Union.

As the above refers to an article published in this paper it may not be improper in us to examine its statements, and to correct its inferences and conclusions. In the first place it asserts that "about one half of our entire population, including the village and vicinity are church members, and the other half are mostly children." That is, according to the Union's logic, that all the men and women are church members, the other half are mostly children! Of course, according to this demonstration, there cannot be over two infidels; this certainly is a most sage conclusion, and we should not wonder—though we won't vouch for it—is as near the truth as the statements of "M." So much for its facts! and conclusions! A few words as to its inferences and we will let it pass for its value.

It infers that infidels are ashamed to avow their opinions; and that they are silly, mischievous, wicked and blasphemous. Now this we consider an entire begging the question; the different opinions of christians, or of those professing to be such, are held by some, and even by each other, of different denominations, to be silly, wicked and blasphemous; not warranted by the scriptures; but this does not make them so: one being as sincerely attached to his opinions as another, has an equal right to enjoy them.

It is too late in the nineteenth century to coerce man's opinions; the Inquisition, the Stake, and the Bastile have forever, we trust, lost their power; their terrors have ceased; they remain only in the history of the past a sad warning to the bigotry, superstition and oppression of man. The superstition of past ages, derived from and founded in the belief of the "divine right" of kings and priests is fast giving place to the light of science; knowledge as it expands is everywhere introducing liberty; freedom of mind as well as of person; indeed the one is the precursor and only certain guarantee of the other.

As "M" has stated, (in another column) the influences of "creeds," religious and political, have been and to a certain extent still are, brought directly and indirectly to bear upon man's opinions, but their influences are insufficient to fetter the human mind; men as they receive knowledge will think. "All men," says that glorious charter of man's rights, the Delaration of Independence, "are inalienably endowed by their Creator with the right to life and Liberty;" with the right to pursue happiness and to worship God according to the dictates of their consciences, granting equal privileges to their fellow man, without any to molest or make them afraid.

This being man's right, our right, we are not "ashamed" to avow our opinions—that we are infidels—i. e. are not of the same faith, religious or political, as our, we trust, well intentioned friend of the Union. Therefore in accordance with our "text" we shall continue on all proper occasions to express, and to permit others to express their opininions on all subjects interesting to the welfare and happiness of man, through our columns, whether in accordance with men's preconceived opinions or not; specially inviting and cheerfully granting the privileges of a reply to those who hold different opinions.

Collision between Clingham and Stanly.

WASHINGTON, March 3.

Mr. Stanley was in his seat when Mr. Clingman came along and spoke to him.—Mr Stanley replied, when Mr. Clingman sprung over the desk on Stanly and crushed him to the floor.

Members instantly interfered and separated them. The House took no notice of the assault.

For the Plainfield Gazette.

Mode of Punishment.

We have written three articles which has appeared in another publication on the subject of Capital Punishment. We took our position on the principle "THOU SHALT NOT KILL." Man in his individual capacity, has no right, or portion of a right, over his own life, or the life of his fellow, neither can Man collectively delegate this right to others.

The mode of all punishment which should be inflicted, should accord with our civilization, or in others words, we can judge which country civilization abounds the most in, by the mode of punishments.

As a directory in all the duties of life, as well as a system of divine truth, the gospel of Christ must ever stand unequalled in the world. It points out the relationship of intelligent beings to the God and Father of all spirits, and the duties which all owe to him as their Father. It unfolds the divine economy in the government of moral agents; and places before them the most powerful incentives to virtue and dissuasives from vice. From its teachings we learn the true character of God, and the designs of his dealings with the children of men. Especially are we made acquainted with the purposes for which all punishment is inflicted on the disobedient; and it seems impossible that any one should imbibe the true spirit of the gospel—understand its heaven-taught principles—feel the influence of its love-inspiring power in their hearts, and at the same time justify those sanguinary laws of men which are so diametrically opposed to its pure and holy precepts. From the teachings of Jesus, and from the language of the apostles, we learn the object for which God punishes his rational offspring. He does not punish for the sake of causing pain; and although he is just in rendering to all according to their work, yet mercy directs the rod. He punishes as a faithful Father, to reclaim his wandering children from the paths of disobedience. Justice and mercy, in the divine Being, are not contrary or opposing attributes; they are only modifications of that impartial and unchanging goodness which extends to all the creatures of his power. The goodness of God leads the guilty to repentance. It beholds man in his career of guilt; and while Justice requires his reformation, mercy will not withold the punishment though it may be severe, which is necessary to reclaim him from the ways of sin. The supposition that God punishes without any view to the good of the punished, or that he inflicts any greater punishment than is necessary to accomplish his beneficent purpose, virtually denies that mercy which is "over all his work," and which "endureth forever;" and sets the infinite attributes of Deity at variance with each other. On the other hand, the supposition that God corrects in faithfulness, and punishes in mercy, harmonizes with all the teachings and examples of our Saviour, and perfectly corresponds with the language of the Psalmist, "Also unto thee, O, Lord, belongeth mercy; for thou renderest to every man according to his work."

Such being the nature and design of the gospel, how, I ask, can we reconcile with its mild and holy principles the infliction of a punishment, so frought with evil, and so destitute of all benevolence, as that of death? This punishment, we have seen, is not only not required by the divine command, but a direct violation of it,—a punishment which government has, and can have no right to inflict,*—one which can do no good to community, which cannot be accomplished by other means,—which instead of reforming and benefitting those on whom it is inflicted, precludes the possibility of their reformation, and shuts them out from all good in this world, and thus defeats the greatest object of all punishment,—how can such a punishment as that of death, be reconciled with the gospel of Christ? I wish not to be censorious; I would not rashly condemn a practice which has so long been sanctioned by "enlightened" and Christian nations; I would not, without mature and serious reflection, advocate so great and important a change in the criminal laws of some of our states. But I am fully convinced that the principle is radically wrong; and that the practice cannot be reconciled with the laws of God, the precepts of the gospel, or the inalenable rights of man.

I am also pursuaded that the time has come when this subject should engage the attention of every Christian and philanthropist and of all the citizens of our whole country. The present is truly an age of improvement; and not only of improvements, but of rapidly increasing light on all subjects connected with the true interest of mankind. The light of true civilization is shining brighter and and brighter unto the perfect day: the rights of men are becomeing more generally understood and acknowledged: and the praiseworthy exertions of enlightened philanthropists, to ameliorate the condition of mankind, are crowned with unparalleled success. I flatter myself that the time is not distant, when Christians will give to this subject that attention which its importance demands: when the punishment of death will be unknown throughout our States; when all sanguinary laws shall be expunged from our statute books; and the stain of human blood, shed by human hands, under the sanction of law, be wiped away forever from our free and happy country.

J. B. TOOMBS.

"We must not forget, either," says a distinguished Divine, "that apart from wrestling with legal wrongs and striving to harmonize the statute books with equity, the beniffcent spirit of the gospel has impelled men to the entertainment of the most generous voluntary schemes for the amelioration of the needy. Benevolence is starting up from its nest as a grace of character in the private nooks of the heart, and diffusing itself as a quickning and suggestive force through the brain of genius and the muscles of heroic energy. A new Christian chivalry has sprung up within our century, taking misery and ignorance under its protection, and wielding the "sword of the spirit," which is the principles of Christ. Want, darkness, suffering and oppression are beginning to be studied, not in the light of the "greatest happiness principles," but in the light of the law of brotherhood, the supreme good of spiritual culture, and the infinite value of the soul." "It is very hard to reach the last of the devil's mortgages upon society. And now, if the question of Isaiah were asked of a sagacious student of the times, "Watchman, what of the night?" he would probably give the whole answer recorded by the prophet, "the morning cometh, and also the night."

☞ The Grand Jury concluded their deliberations on Monday. They came into Court on Monday afternoon with several bills of indictment, and were discharged with the thanks of the Court. Previous to their discharge, they stated to the Court, that they had been much embarrassed in the execution of their duties by the neglect of magistrates to send up recognisances, and also by the fact that witnesses refused to come before them on a mere subpœna, because they alleged they were informed by magistrates that they need not attend without compulsory process. The court pointedly rebuked the latter practice as a contempt of Court, liable to all the penalties attached to that offence.

There were in all 13 persons indicted.

VERMONT.—An Anti-Fugitive Slave Law Mass State meeting has been called by the leading citizens of Vermont to meet at Bethel, March 5.

For the Plainfield Gazette.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 28th. 1851.

DEAR BROTHER:

I deeply sympathise with my brethren of the Plainfield Division in the loss of Brother THEODORE S. VERMULE, we were on terms of intimacy for many years; I feel as if I had lost in his death a sincere Friend. I send you the following lines prepared by a beloved Brother of Layfayette Division of Baltimore; he is a gentleman well known for his talents and exertions in the cause of suffering humanity.

W.

Lines

On the death of Theodore S. Vermule, by

THOMAS S. STANFORD,

Hark! whats that we hear? Tis the solemn knell,
Of deaths approach—Who comes with dread alarm:
Ah yes! behold a much loved Brother's fell;
Beneath the stroke of his resistless arm.

'Tis meet that we a solemn sadness wear,
For death is terrible in its mildest forms—
How doubly so? when he doth come to tear:
Our dearest friends from out our very arms.

We miss our Bro. friend, and companion too,
His place we cannot in a moment fill—
In our sad hearts which pay the tribute due,
Whilst the font of feeling into tears distil.

First * sad draft upon our little band—
First offering on our altar here below—
First Messenger to the spirit land
To tell them there we'er face-ward to the foe.

His was a noble fall!—In battle strife
With man's bitter foe—the greatest, first,
Firm in the cause, till he yielded up his life;
And went to mingle with the spirits of the just.

Not wholly tired of this sorrowing sphere
Nor loth yet longer to struggle with the foe
But a much loved child† torn from his bosom here,
He's gone to seek the presence of him there.

With his example in the Temperance cause,
We'll on to battle and our foes defy;
With God's approving smile, and man's applause—
Resting on us like a mantle when we die.

* Bro. Vermule was the first death in the Division.

† His son (a fine boy) was drowned a short time ago while at play.

To the Editors of the Plainfield Gazette.

GENTLEMEN:—In the introductory remarks to an article from the "Portland Pleasure Boat" published by you Feb. 20, I stated that from the best information I possessd there were not less than 500 infidels within hearing of the church bells of Plainfield; in the Plainfield Union of March 4th this is called a gross falsehood as could be uttered, and hopes that it will be regarded as a lie by all its readers. Now it was not my intention to misrepresent the matter, and notwithstanding the assertions of the Union I still believe it to be so. It was a mere statement of opinion founded on knowledge possessed; and asserted, not to slander, but for the purpose of showing the importance of convincing them of their error of opinion, if error it be, by their refutation; such was the invitation given in my remarks; such was the invitation and spirit of the article introduced. No misrepresentation of motives or denunciation of such opinions will ever convince their holders of their fallacy, and the present burst of indignation is confirmation of the statements made in the article refered to, viz; that "reason and the popular religion of the day constantly run counter to each other; yet no man, or but very few dare say nay. Thus does the popular creed constantly teach error, which leads to crime and misery. If any man thinks differently he is forced by the influences of this creed, either directly or indirectly brought to bear upon him, to stifle his free thoughts and become a hypocrite! Is this not the case?" Certainly, for this denunciation of the Union corroborates this statement; instead of replying, which any person was respetfully invited editorily to do, it denounces; which is not argument, nor will it, as before stated, convince those who hold such opinions of their error.

As all men are equally interested, infidels not excepted, in the truth or authenticity of the Bible, I would respectfully ask a candid reply to the article whose introduction elicited the Union's indignation, either by the editor of the Union or by any other person who is able to give light on the subject. As you have quoted, "Truth invites full and free discussion; error shrinks from all investigation." M.

DEDICATION OF THE ESSEX COUNTY PRISON Commenced this afternoon, according to previous announcement, the occasion being the completion of their internal arrangements and the erection of a work house, by which the prioners will be classified, and empoyed at some useful labor, at once profitable to the County and conducive to their own morals and health.

A large number of citizens and persons interested in the suject from other parts of the State, assembled at the Court House at 2 o'clock and proceeded to the Jail upon the hill, in the following order:

1. Four Constables, with their staves of office.
2. Sheriff of the County and his Deputites.
3. Directors and Board of Chosen Freeholders of this County.
4. Members of Executive Committe of the Prison Discipline Association, with invited guests.
5. Clergy.
6. Chief Justice GREEN of the Supreme Court and Chancellor HALSTED, supported on each side by two Constables.
7. Clerk and Surrogate of the county, with their clerks.
8. Prosecutor of the Pleas and members of the Bar.
9. Grand and Petit Jurors of the present Term.
10. Mayor and Common Council of the City, and citizens generally.

Upon reaching the prison, the procesion was received by the Jailor, Mr. Abm Beech, and his Deputy, Mr. C. G. Ritchie, who lead the way to the large hall of the prison, at the southern entrance of which a platform was erected for the accommodation of the officers, &c.

The assembly was called to order by Sheriff Pierson, and organized by the appointment of Zacharia Webster as Chairman, and Wm. Pierson, Esq, Secretary. The divine blessing was invoked by the Rev. Dr. Stearns of the First Presbyterian Church, when an appropriate address was delivered by N H. Morgan Esq of Hartford Connetticut; Chief Justice Green also delivered an able addres extempore. —Newark Advertiser March 3.

Further Arrests at Boston on account of the late Fugitive Case.

BOSTON, Saturday, March 1.

Robert Morris, Jr, a colored lawyer, and J. H. Coburn, clothes dealer, were arrested this morning on a charge of aiding in the late rescue, and were held for examination. The Hon. Josiah Quincy, Jr., became bail for Mr. Morris.

Capital and Labor.

The political economists and capitalist have written and printed many books to impress upon the working man the fallacy that "the gain of the capitalist is not the loss of the producer." We are told that labor cannot move one step without capital—that capital is just as necessary to production as labor itself is. The working man knows all this, for its truth is daily brought home to him; but this mutual dependency between capital and labor has nothing to do with the relative position of the capitalist and the working man; nor does it show that the former should be maintained by the latter. Capital is but so much unconsumed produce; and that which is at this moment in being, exists now independent of, and is in no way identified with, any particular individual or class. Labor is the parent of it, on the one side, and mother earth upon the other; and were every capitalist and every rich man in the United States to be annihilated in one moment, not a single particle of wealth or capital would disappear with them; nor would the nation itself be less wealthy, even to the amount of one farthing. It is the capital, and not the capitalist, that is essential to the operations of the producer; and there is as much difference between the two, as there is betwen the actual cargo and the bill of lading.

From the relation which capital and labor bear to each other, it is evident that the more caital or accumulated produce there is in a country, the greater will be the facilities for production, and the less labor will it require to obtain a given result. Thus the people of Great Britain, with the aid of their present vast accumulations of capital—their building, machinery, ships, canals, and railways—can produce more manufactured wealth in one week, than their ancestors of a thousand years since could have created in half a century. It is not their superior physical powers, but their capital which enables them to do this; for, wherever there is a deficiency of capital, production will progress slowly and laboriously, and vice versa. From these considerations, then it is apparent, that whatever is gained to CAPITAL, is likewise gained to LABOR—that every increase of the former tends to diminish the toil of the latter—and that, therefore, every loss to capital must also be a loss to labor.

The truth, though long since observed by the political economists, has never yet been fairly stated by them. They have ever identified capital with one class—of the community, and labor with another class—although the two powers have naturally, and should have artificially, no such connection. The economists always attempt to make the prosperity, if not the very existence, of the working man dependent upon the condition of maintaining the capitalist in luxury and idleness. They would not have the working man to eat a meal until he has produced two—one for himself and the other for his master—the latter receiving his portion indirectly, by unequal exchanges, to maintain the supremacy of their class over the working class: and then they infamously and blasphemously tell the latter, that this state of things has been so ordained by the Almighty!—Middletown Banner.

In Congress—Monday.

The Senate wasted the day and night in talking about the River and harbor bill According to previous arrangements the majority of the Opposition but a minority of the Senate prevented action on the bill by offering frivolous amendments, talking against time, reading Veto Messages, &c.

It will be seen that the Senate suspended the regular order for a few moments, to concur in the House amendment to the Postage Reform Bill which is now a law.

The House passed the following Bills and Resolutions, viz: The Navy Appropriation bill; the bill making appropriation to Light Houses; the Senate's bill to prevent Constructive Mileage; the bill Limiting the Liabilities of American Ship Owners, the bill to ascertain and settle Private Land Claims in California; the Senate's Joint Resolution authorising the President to send a Government ship to the Mediterranian to bring Kossuth and his companions to the United States.—The Senate's amendments to the House Resolution extending to the widows of Revolutionary Soldiers the benefit of the Acts of 1841, '43 and '44. The Senate bill providing an Asylum for aged and disabled Soldiers The Senate bill regulating the Appraisement of Imported Merchandise, and providing for the appointment of our Appraisers at large; the Joint Resolution of providing for the distribution the forthcoming Census returns among the members. The House refused to suspend the rules to take up the French Spoilation bill which had passed the Senate and passed a Resolution giving to each of the employers of that body, Doorkeepers, pages, &c. &c $250 extra pay.

—Up to the time of putting this addition to press, (4 o'clotk, A M) we have received no account of the adjournment of either branch of Congress, though the House appears to have been ready to adjourn at about 12 o'clock and so informed the Senate.—Tribune

The Tariff of 1846 still remains in force, and is not likely soon to be disturbed

The French Spoilation bill is lost, which we regret; for never was a claim more just, and many of the persons who would be relieved by the passage of the bill, are in needy circumstances. We know of one man in the poor house of a neighboring city, who, if he had his just dues, as provided by this bill, would be above want. But he must wait yet longer, and perhaps until he sinks into the grave, before the tardy justice of the government will be meeted out to him.

The Cheap Postage Bill, we are happy to say, has become a law. Except in regard to the three cent coinage, it does not go into operation until the 1st. July next. It reduces the average rate of postage both upon letters and newspapers nearly one half. All weekly papers free within the county where they are published.

The new rate on lettors not exceeding half an ounce, is three cents prepaid, or five cents if not prepaid, for all distances under three thousand miles. Over three thousand miles, double those rates.

The section authorizing the coinage of a three cent piece, is retained.—J. Commerce.

WASHINGTON, March 4th.

Appropriation Bills will all pass. No extra session will be called. The Senate convenes at noon to-day. A large number of nominations are to be acted upon.

House refused to consider Senate resolution creating the grade of Lieut. General.

All the amendments of the Senate to the General Appropriation bills were concurred in.

The Final Adjournment.

At 12 o'clock M. Mr. Thompson, of Miss., reported that the President had nothing further to communicate.

On motion of Mr. Stephens, the House adjourned. The Speaker then arose and made a farewell address, returning his thanks for the flattering manner in which his official conduct had been spoken of.

Anti-Fugitive Slave Law Meeting in Lynn, Mass.

BOSTON, Sunday, March 2.

A very large Anti-Fugitive Slave Law meeting of the citizens of Lynn, Mass. without respect of party, was held in that city last evening. Mayor HOOD presided, and made a speech, in which he said, "he considered the law unjust, inhuman, and not fit to be obeyed." He solemnly pledged himself never to lift a finger in the work of returning a fellow man to Slavery; neither would he use his official power to protect Slave-catchers

A series of strong resolutions were passed, one of which reads as follows:

Resolved, That the citizens of Lynn, being free themselves, will never assist in enslaving others.

A meeting in opposition to the law is to be holden this evening in Beverly, and another in Springfield to morrow night.—Cor. Tribune.

RECKLESSNESS IN A RAILROAD PASSENGER.—As the 4 1-2 P. M. train from New York was passing Chestnut-st. Depot. Friday afternoon, a man was seen to fall off, as was supposd. The train was immediately stopped and one of the agents went back and picked him up, while the train proceeded on. He said he lost his hat and jumped off to get it! His name is John Grear, and he lives in Plainfield. He was very much bruised in his face and side of his head, but is now doing well.—Newark Advertiser.

A New Jersey Farmer in California.

A letter in the Norwich Courier from a merchant in San Francisco, says that a few days since, Mr. John M. Horner, late of New Jersey, now of San Jose in that State, came into the store to purchase twenty one plows, which he said were for his own use. The quantity induced inquiries, and from him was obtained the result of his operations the past year, on a ranche of one hundred and fifty acres, as follows, viz:

130 acres Potatoes, yielding 35,000 bush, or 1,750,000 lbs -averaging sale, 10 cts.	$175,000
4 acres Onions—40,000 lbs —average sale at 40 cts.	$16,000
15 acres—70,000 Cabbages—marketed, 40,000 at 40 cts.	$16,000
80,000 Pumpkins, weighing fom 30 to 75 lbs., 6 cts each	4,800
	$211,800

This year he intends cultivating 400 acres with barley and 400 with potatoes. He has imported ten miles of iron fence, which cost delivered, $10,600.

☞ Peter put up at a hotel one night, which they told him was patronized by the big bugs Peter found it so, and the next morning sloped, and found another hotel, as he said he preferred to patronize a tavern where the bugs were not quite so big.

CONTRIBUTION OF CHEMISRY TO THE HEALING ART.—The fact that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is a chemical discovery, may explain why the distinguished Professors of that Science, (Silliman, Hitchcock, Webster, and Cleveland,) have given their certificates in its favor. None could better judge of its merits than these eminent men, and their names would be a sufficient guarantee of its value, if experience had not already proven to the public that it is one of the most effectual remedies for affections of the throat and lungs ever before them.—Scientific Review.

Dr. Roger's Syrup of

Liverwort, Tar, and Canchalagua.

Nothing can be more safe, congenial, or healing to the membranes of the Throat and Lungs, yet at the same time more energetic and thorough in its effects, than this great remedy for CONSUMPTION, Bronchitis, and all other diseases which have their seat in the Lungs, or their auxiliary organs. It seems to fall like palm upon their irritated surfaces. The dry cough becomes loose, expectoration removes the cause of the disease, and the tonic properties of the Canchalagua keep up the strength under the salivary discharge. Liverwort, Tar, and Canchalagua, possess in their separate substances all the elements requisite for the cure of Coughs, Colds, and Diseases of the Liver, and combined, they are irresistable. See pamphlet, and advertisement in another column.

WONDERFUL CURES!

AND

CANCHALAGUA;

FOR THE COMPLETE CURE OF

Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Asthma, Bronchitis, Spitting of Blood, and all other Lung Complaints tending to CONSUMPTION.

NO OPIUM.

This syrup contains no Opium, Calomel, or any mineral whatever, but is composed entirely of those Roots, Herbs, and vegetable substances which have a specific influence upon the Lungs, and their connected organs. Its immediate effect is to allay all irritation, and gently remove the phlegm and other morbid secretions from the Throat and Air-Passages; thus relieving the Cough, by subduing the inflammation and other causes which give rise to it. It also stimulates and imparts a healthy tone to the lungs themselves, thereby enabling them more thoroughly to remove from the blood those impurities and diseased particles, which, if retained, do so much mischief in the system, and lay the foundation for incurable CONSUMPTION. It also exerts a decided action upon the skin, and assists nature in expelling, through the Exhalents, much of that morbid matter which would otherwise be thrown back upon the Lungs, thus relieving them of a part of their work, and rendering the system pure and healthy. When tubercles are forming, it checks their development and further progress; or if ulceration has taken place, it assists the Lungs in throwing off the corrupted matter, soothes the irritation, heals the ulcerated cavities, and restores them again to healthy action. This Medicine, therefore, is not a palliative merely, which only relieves for the time being, but is a thorough curative, as it strikes at the very root of the disease, and by removing it, removes at once all its remote and attendant consequences. This is its distinguishing characteristic—a property possessed, in equal power, by no other medicine of like nature, now before the public.

CIRCULARS, &c

As no ordinary-sized advertisement can fully explain the nature and merits of this article the Proprietors have published a new Circular, giving the history of this Medicine; the description, nature &c, of its principal ingredients; the effect they are designed to have upon the Lungs and Liver, and a copious reference to the persons who have been cured by it—giving their names and residences, even to the street and the number. Those who are troubled with a Cough, or whose Lungs are in the least affected, are earnestly desired to call upon the Agents named below, and procure one of these Pamphlets. It can be had gratis, and will well repay a perusal. The "Hints on Health," and "About taking Cold," may be worth to yourself and family.

HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS,

in the the shape of Doctors' Bills saved, besides being the means of prolonging many a valuable life.

WARRANTY.

Such is our confidence in its virtues, that we are willing to warrant this Medicine in every case of recent Cold, (where used according to the Directions on page 7th of the pamphlet, inside the wrapper of each bottle,) and where the person is not satisfied that he is deriving benefit from it, by returning the bottle within 24 hours' time,

THE MONEY

will be returned. ☞ See page 3d of the pamphlet inside the wrapper of each bottle

☞ Be sure to ask for Dr A Rogers' Syrup of LIVERWORT, TAR, and CANCHALAGUA, and let no other be palmed on to you.

GRAHAM'S MAGAZINE, for March, is entitled, in the publisher's notice accompanying it, "a surprise number," and it well deserves the name. It makes its appearance in an equally novel garb and attractive character—without "pictures," (unless we should characterize as such a few very finely executed wood-cut illustrations,)—without even a fashion plate; these customary ornaments being, for once, substituted by literary matter—original, American, paid-for literary matter (it cost, we learn, $1500) 144 pages of it, too—just as many as Harper's New Monthly and the International Magazines devote to selected matter, not paid for, from the British periodicals. The intention of the pubisher is obvious and praise-worthy—the result singular and successful. There are no less than fifty different original papers in the number, presenting a great display of names of popular American writers, and as great a variety of subjects handled. It is, in consequence, a most attractive and excellent number, superior in interest and general merit to its foreign rivals of this month, and deserving the approbation which should attach to national spirit and liberal expenditure. We are sure that the popular verdict will be in its favor; as we are equally sure that an American magazine, conducted on such a plan, is, in its beneficial influence on American literature, of more worth than all the reprints, of or from British periodicals, in the world.

Mr. Graham has, we are pleased to learn, been eminently successful in his magazine since he resumed its management; and certainly, if extraordinary aptitude in accommodating the public taste—if liberal dispensation of means to accomplish well-considered ends—if the employment of the best talent, upon the only sure method, that of the best payment—if continual wachfulness to avail himself of whatever is new or striking; and, in a word, a resolute determination not to be outdone, in any way, by anybody, entitle him to success, he eminently deserves it

The April number, will, we learn, present its former decorated appearance, and be expensively and splendidly illustrated.—United States Gazette.

PROFESSOR A. C. BARRY'S TRICOPHEROUS,

or Medicated Compound.

FOR RESTORING, PRESERVING, AND beautifying hair eradicating scurf and dandruff, and curing diseases of the skin, glands and muscles, stings, cuts, bruises, sprains, &c., &c. It has been ascertained by experiment that has produced the same effect in curing disease of the skin, &c, of the Horse and all the animal kingdom.

Barry's Tricopherous,

The following testimonials, selected from hundreds of similar import, will serve to show the value of the preparation, and the estimation in which it is held by those who have given it a trial:

NEW-YORK, Sept 22. 1850.

Prof Barry—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted with a cutaneous eruption of the scalp of a most aggravated character for the last sixteen years, and during that period I have had the advice of some of the most eminent physicians, and have tried all the preparations for the hair and skin now known, without the least benefit I was advised by a friend to try your Tricopherous I did so, as a last resort, and, to my surprise and gratification, found myself cured in about two months Such was the violence of the disorder that at times I was partially blind.

Respectfully yours,
G. V. M. RAPELYE, 148 Columbia-st.
Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Oct 23d 1850.

Prof Barry—My Dear Sir: About two years ago my hair came out a great deal, and my head was much affected with dandruff I was told by a friend to try your Tricopherous, and I did so, and to my astonishment my hair was firmly rooted, and all the dandruff disappeared, as the head now shews for itself

With respect I am your obedient servant,
J. S. TREADWELL, 683 Broadway.

[From the Military & Naval Argus, Nov. 9th.]

There is no remedy for the permanent cure of baldness and diseases of the cranium generally, that has reached the popularity enjoyed by the article known as Professor Barry's Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound It is extensively used by the upper classes of the community; in almost every nursery in the land it is used in preference to other articles of the kind. It imparts vigor to the roots of the hair, and thus promotes its growth to a remarkable degree. It destroys dandruff and scurf, and yields the hair fine and glossy It will cure all diseases of the scalp such as scald head, dew worm, and other obnoxious disorderders of the skin: in cheapness, as well as efficacy, it stands unrivaled It is sold in large bottles, price 25 cents at No 137 Broadway, and at the druggists' generally throughout the United States and Canadas. THE NEW JERSEY

HORSE POWER

Manufacturing Company.

HAVING improved, strengthened and perfected A. D. CRANE'S Patent Horse Power, are now prepared to furnish the same to all who may want.

This Power consists of an endless floor running over a series of pulleys, connected by cranks, without a rack or cog wheel about it: none being required from the fact, that the weight of the horse on the floor or platform causes sufficient adhesion between it and the pulleys to transmit all the power he is able to give Also by this arrangement the chain is freed from the draught or strain (which cannot be avoided in any other Stall Power) except, what is reqired to pass the floor around. The requisite speed is obtained direct from the machine thereby avoiding a great amount of friction and wear, and lessening the liability to get out of order. They run so easily as to require less than an inch elevation to the foot A self acting brake is attached by which the motion is kept regular and uniform even when the work is unsteady and irregular.

From the above description it is evident that this is the most simple and efficient Power known.

They are highly recommended by those who have used them, for driving Circular Saws, Lathes, Drilling Machines, Threshers, Grist Mills, Pumps, &c.

The Company have certificates to prove the above and also to show that the Two Horse Power will grind 40 bushels of Corn to Meal (with Platt's Patent Mill,) in a day of ten hours, making it an invaluable Power for the Southern planter as well as others.

It has taken Silver Medals at the different Fairs where exhibited, and the only one given to Horse Powers by the American Institute last fall

They also furnish Threshers of the most approved construction.

Price of Single Power with Belt, $75; Double do: with Belt, $110; Thresher and Separator, $35.

HERNIA.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.—This disorder, of very frequennt occurrence, may be considered as arising through weakness of the abdominal walls, inducing an enlargement in the natural openings formed therein for the transmission of blood and other vessels; such openings being enlarged, permit the escape of bowels or other viscera of the abdomen, devolving hernial swellings or rupture, which most generally occur outwardly, as at the navel, groins and thighs.

The complaint is likely to happen at birth, and therefore should be carefully looked for by those having the charge of children, that it may be arrested and cured promptly. It also occurs at any period of life, to either sex, without regard to the condition or mode of living, and when found, should be attended to without delay—the final penalty being death, and that may be induced through strangulation at any momennt.

RUPTURES, are always to be treated with the surgical instruments known as Trusses and Supporters, and these require to be skillfully applied. With this view, the HULL'S TRUSS OFFICE, now established some thirty years, has under the various managers, presented to the public both male and female attendants to apply its instruments directly to the persons, which is preferable in all cases, and has also made improvement at different times, showing that advancement which study and practice only yield toward the relief of this malady

With much pleasure the fact is now published, that recent improvements BUTLER'S TRUSS PADS have been made, and sufficiently tested upon numerous cases to warrant, through the cures already affected, their submission to the public, as being in adaptation and efficiency superior to any heretofore made known.

These improvements, recently patented, are now being applied at this office, 4 Vesey street, in cases of rupture, gravitation of the bowels, prolapsus uteri, prolapsus ani and piles.

The public may rely upon that care being made in their application, which will most likely tend to the final cure of the several complaints.

GREAT COUGH REMEDY!

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

In offering to the community this preparation, we feel that a remedy for disease of the throat and lungs, it is not our wish to trifle with the lives or health of the afflicted, but frankly to lay before them the opinions of distinguished men and some of the evidence of its success, from which they can judge for themselves. We sincerely pledge ourselves to make no wild assertions or false statements of its efficacy, nor will we hold out any hope to suffering humanity which facts will not warrant.

Many proofs are here given, and we solicit an inquiry from the public into all we publish, feeling assured they will find them perfectly reliable, and the medicine worthy their best confidence and patronage.

FROM BENJ. SILLIMAN, M. D., L. L. D., &c., Professor of Chemistry, Mineralogy, &c., Yale College, Member of the Lit. Hist. Med. Phil. and Scien. Societies of America and Europe.

"I deem the CHERRY PECTORAL an admirable composition from some of the best articles in the Materia Medica, and a very effective remedy for the class of diseases it is intended to cure."

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 1, 1849.

Prof. CLEAVELAND, of Bowdoin College, Me. Writes—"I have witnessed the effects of your "CHERRY PECTORAL" in my own family and that of my friends and it gives me satisfaction to state in its favor that no medicine I have ever known has proved so eminently successful in curing diseases of the throat and lungs."

REV. DR OSGOOD.

Writes—"That he considers 'CHERRY PECTORAL' the best medicine for Pulmonary Affections ever given to the public," and states that "his daughter after being obliged to keep the room four months with a severe settled cough, accompanied by raising of blood, night sweats, and the attendant symptoms of Consumption, commenced the use of the 'CHERRY PECTORAL,' and had completely recovered."

HEAR THE PATIENT.

Dr. Ayer—Dear Sir: For two years I was afflicted with a very severe cough, accompanied by spitting of blood and profuse night sweats. By the advice of my attending physician I was induced to use your CHERRY PECTORAL, and continued to do so till I considered myself cured, and ascribe the effect to your preparation.

JAMES RANDALL.

Hampden ss. SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 27 1848.

This day appeared the above named James Randal, and pronounced the above statement true in every respect.

LORENZO NORTON, Justice.

THE REMEDY THAT CURES.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 10, 1847.

Dr Ayer: I have been long afflicted with Asthma which grew yearly worse until last autumn, it brought on a cough which confined me in my chamber, and began to assume the alarming symptoms of consumption—I had tried the best advice and the best medicine to no purpose, until I used your CHERRY PECTORAL, which has cured me, and you may well believe me. Gratefully yours

J. D. PHELPS.

If there is any value in the judgement of the wise, who speak from experience, here is a medicine worthy of the public confidence.

MECHANICAL MEDICINE.

Dr. Banning, formerly of this city, asks to announce that he has returned to 341 Broadway; for consultation and management of weaknesses of the vocal, pulmonary, digestive, nervous, spinal and female systems; and also of the drooping, languor and physical deformities, which are so destructive of both health and beauty at the present day.

As these and kindred maladies are usually the result of a violation of the laws of physical organization, he will treat them chiefly by those exercises, mechanical appliances and reformatory habits of body, in conjunction with hydropathy galvanism and other discoveries of the day, which, united with the cooperative efforts of the subject, are calculated to relieve and restore the energies of the suffering and neglected organs.

Having spent several years in traveling for investigation and practical experiment on the subject, he has, at length, greatly improved and multiplied his surgical and mechanical appliances for the purpose. In addition to his new supports for female and spinal weaknesses, are some combining the properties of a universal hernial truss and an effective general support, with which he challenges cases of general debility, constipation, piles and prolapsus, ani, leucorrhea, prolapsus uteri and every variety of hernia.

The distinctive peculiarity of these devices is, that they do not weaken or restrain the motions or growth of the suffering parts, but act imitatively and concordantly with the mathematical genius of the body's forces. Hence, by a most comfortable and gentle pressure, they at once give great support and render the oppressed system eligible to its own restoration.

Feeble invalids coming from a distance will command prompt and faithful attention.

For more definite information, see his revised edition of "Animal Mechanics," and also his circular, which will be sent gratuitously when requested.

His improved body-braces, spinal supports and supporter trusses applied at his office (341 Broadway) and to be had wholesale and retail. City and country physicians and druggists are invited to call and examine Office hours from 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. [121.

341 Broadway, New-York.

DOCTOR YOURSELF! FOR 25 CENTS!!!

BY MEANS OF THE POCKET ESCULAPIUS, or, Every one his own Physician! Thirtieth edition, with upwards of a hundred engravings, showing private diseases in every shape and form, and malformations of the generative system,

BY WM. YOUNG, M. D.

The time has now arrived, that persons suffering from secret diseases, need no more become the victim of quackery as by the prescriptions contained in this book any one may cure himself, without hindrance to business, or the knowledge of the most intimate friend, and with one tenth the usual expense. In addition to the general routine of private disease, it fully explains the cause of manhood's early decline, with observations on marriage—besides many other derangements which it would not be proper to enumerate in the public prints.

☞ Any person sending TWENTY-FIFE CENTS enclosed in a letter, will receive one copy of this book, by mail, or five copies will be sent for one dollar. Address, "DR. W. YOUNG, No. 152 SPRUCE Street, PHILADELPHIA." Post paid.

☞ DR. YOUNG can be consulted on any of the Diseases discribed in his different publications, at his Office, 152 SPRUCE Street, every day between 9 and 3 o'clock. (Sundays excepted.) [151.

FOR FEMALES AND MALES

Dr. Lazzetti's Juno Cordial, or Protective Elixir.

This is the only actual remedy ever discovered for impotency, Genital Debility, Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases occasioned by certain secret habits; and many of the nostrums recently recommended for the same complaints are worthless imitations which its unrivalled excellence, fame and popularity have brought into the market. The Medical Faculty of Europe and the United States are unanimous in their recommendations of the Juno Cordial and have not given their sanction in a single instance that has been authenticated, to any compound for the same purposes. The nature of the maladies relieved by the Juno Cordial are generally such as to leave the publication of certificates of cures out of the question, or the proprietor could produce a host of the most conclusive testimony to show that the great reputation that it enjoys was not accidentally obtained, but is firmly based upon its positive, and apparently miraculous virtues. In all directions are to be found the happy parents of healthy offspring, who would not have been so, but for this extraordinary preparption. And it is equally potent in the many diseases for which it is recommended. Objection has been naturally made to the price of the Juno Cordial, because the trash that has been thrown into the market in opposition to it is sold cheaper; but the fact is, the Cordial cannot be afforded for less, and ought to be much dearer, as many of the ingredients which compose it are among the costliest things in nature; whereas the others are made up of cheap drugs, worth but little in money, and less in merit. We assure the reader that the utmost reliance may be placed on the Juno Cordial in the cure of the maladies mentioned above, and also those that follow, viz: Loss of Muscular Energy, Physical Lassitude and General Prostration, Irritability, and all Nervous Affections, Indigestion, Sluggishness of the Liver, Gleet, Leucorrhoea or Whites, and Flour Albus and every disease in any way connected with the disorder of the Procreative Functions—in all of which it will afford almost immediate relief, and, if used as directed, is almost certain to produce a positive and permanent cure. Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness or disability of a certain nature, should take this Cordial, as it will infallibly restore health and vigor in a brief period, and where want of offspring is a cause of regret, if recourse be had to it the most beneficial results may be anticipated with confidence. It is of priceless value to those without offspring. It has taken the precedence in Italy and will in all other countries where it may become known.

It also possesses the unrivalled qualities of curing incipient Consumption, and I have administered it with great success to patients who have sought our delightful climate for the restoration of their health and the result is that a medicine has been added to the catalogue for the cure of insipient consumption.

To spread wide the blessings of this medicine, I have appointed Messrs Judson & Co., of the City of New York, in the United States of America, my sole Agents for its sale; and none can be genuine unless it comes through them, and their signature is on the weapper.

What Women Can Do.

A Domestic Story.

BY ANGELE DE V. HULL.

"What a terrible thing poverty must be!" exclaimed a young girl who was standing at the window of a luxuriously furnished room, impervious to the cold, piercing wind that was raging without. The soft Wilton carpets yielded to the foot—the heavy velvet curtains shielded the large deep windows—the cushioned chairs with open arms invited the idle and weary, and a bright coal-fire burned merily in the grate. The table was set with beautiful porcelain and richly-chased silver, and well might the fair speaker look with pity on the many that passed before her, exposed to all the horrors of cold and hunger—the hundreds that were homeless by night as well as by day. "What a terrible thing poverty must be."

"It is indeed," said Mrs. Herbert in a low voice.

Alice turned round—her mothers eyes were full of tears.

"Dear mother," said she, going up to her, "what affects you thus?"

"You little know, my child, how deeply I can feel for the poor," said Mrs. Herbert, returning her fond caress; "for although I have not suffered from that actual poverty of which you were thinking, I have been sufficiently near it in my life to understand its terrors."

"You, mother, you!" and her chiiren crowded round her. They were five in number—Wallace, a fine, spirited youth of eighteen; Alice, two years younger; Mary, Berta and Frank, a little rogue of eight summers.

"When was that, darling, best of mothers?" said Wallace, seating himself at her side. "Tell us about this sad time of which we never dreamed."

"Be silent, children—Frank, you shall sit on my knee, and Berta will stand here."

The mother smiled fondly on the little group, and passed an arm over Mary's shoulder.

"You all look so full of eager interest, my dear children, that I am afraid you will be disappointed; but my own experience may benefit you should such trials ever be your share, which God forbid! and I will relate mine and beg you to remember who cares for His own in the midst of suffering.

"Your father and myself were very young at the time of our marriage—too young, in fact, and I would not like to see my daughters leave their home at the age that I left mine. But lovers are ever sanguine, and we thougnt it impossible that any thing but an unclouded future could be in store for us. Your grandmother was in favor of our early union, she could urge her own happiness as a powerful argument, and your grandfather yielded to her entreaties and ours. A few months previous to this there came on the commercial horizon a dark spot which when we deemed ourselves comfortably settled for life, burst over our heads in spite of your father's struggles to avert it. He had been lately taken as a partner in the house to which he belonged, and all therein were crushed and ruined by the failures of thousands. Our happy home had to be given up, and I returned with one child, Wallace, to my old homestead, where I was received with open arms. My poor husband never lost his spirits or his energy, and to work he went again with a small capital advanced him by my own father, for like many others, his relatives now talked about the imprudence of our marriage, and left him to his own exertions. I never missed my comforts, for I could not feel their absence where I was, and cheerfully gave up my accustomed style of dress to wear plain bonnets and shawls. I'm sure neither of us ever breathed a sigh of regret to our lost fortune, and with our dear boy to love and care for, kindness from these around us, and a competence, we began life anew. Alas! how little human hearts foretell the storms that roll over them! My father too, was a victim to the prevailing times. He had endorsed largely for others and invested part of his fortune in stocks that proved worthless. His failure was to him a terible blow. He had no youth to spur him on—he had no strength to recommence, and he sunk under his misfortunes. Mother was very delicate—she had long been an invalid, and ere long I was left an orphan and peniless again. We were then dependent on the prosperity of your grand-parents for a salary, and never, never shall I forget my agony as I left my childhood's home to strangers. All was given up, and I must have died but for my husband's firmness under all this. He was the first to comfort and b id me smile again. He still hoped on, and busied himsef with providing us a shelter in the storm. It was a small, poor place, my children and boasted of three rooms. We furnished it as we could, and never dreamed of comfort, when it was hard to get food and raiment This was about two months before alice was born. I thought of my mother's tenderness and the constant care with which she had surrounded me at Wallace's birth! I had not even clothes now, for my little one, and set about cutting up my worn out dresses to convert them into a wardrobe for the coming stranger. It was neatly made, and I tried hard to think it pretty, but the faded calico seemed shabby enough by the side of one or two embroidered robes that had been worn by Wallace.

"It was bitter cold, my Alice, when your sweet eyes first opened to the light, and I pressed you close to my heart as my tears fell over you, wondering if God would spare you amidst so much exposure. We hired a woman to work and attend to my wants but I knew full well how unable we were to indulge in the luxury of a nurse. So in spite of your father's entreaties that I would not ovestask myself, I soon dismissed her and resumed my household duties. Little Wally could rock his baby sister, and watch the fire while I went about other things. Alfred brought me water and coal for the day, before he set off to his business, and you cannot imagine how happy I was to sit down by my two little ones after the house was in order and baby dressed. At night I had a bright fire in the dining-room, supper prepared for my weary husband, and his gown and slippers, all ready for his coming Then we met so gladly, and chatted so cheerfully together that no one would have imagined we had ever been otherwise than poor; but we knew the folly of repining, the sinfulness of murmuring, and thus kept light hearts as long as there was enough for the morrow. We never despaired of making a way in the world and having comforts once more, and you should have seen our pleasure when your father brought home some little present for Wallace or Alice. Now it was a new toy, a pretty cup or mug, that served to ornament the chimney-piece and hold the fresh flowers I gathered each day from our little parterre. Sometimes a dress for baby, whose making was as interesting to Alfred as to me. We thought her such a beauty after it was on, and Wally's corals fastened on her neck and arms!"

"And where were my father's sisters?" asked Alice, whose deep-blue eyes were filled with tears, while Wallace covered his face with his hand. "Could they not help him, mother?"

"They were worldly women, my love, and seemed to look upon our reverses as the effect of an imprudent union. They came occasionally to see us, but I learned to dread their visits and rude questions, as they glanced around our humble home and wondered how I managed to make it so comfortable. They never allowed me to suppose that they knew we were in want of anything, though Detaria once or twice sent you and Wallace a small gift that I longed to refuse, but accepted for your father's sake. They were of that fashionable set to whom poverty is as a disgrace and brought up as they were, I could not blame them that they avoided us."

"Oh, mother! mother! do not say that!" cried Alice, kissing her. "How could they let these poor hands toil so unceasingly and never offer to lighten your labors?"

"It was as well that we gould feel independent, my love, and we were all glad when we left our native place to settle here, where there seemed an opening for beginners"

"And did they bid you farewell?" said the same indignant questioner. "Did they let you leave without coming forward to your assistance?"

"We did not see them, my love—why should they have affected to care whether we leftt or not? It would have mortified them to contemplate our forlorn state, and the day we bade adieu to the scenes of our prosperity and adversity, they were preparing for a magnificent ball that was afterward mentioned in the newspapers. They could not regret our leaving, and they did not pretend to do so.

"We arrived here in good spirits and left all regret behind us. Your father had secured us board and lodging in a very respectable family, reduced like ourselves. Here I had nothing to do but to see to my children, of whom I was inordinately proud, for wherever they went people stopped to admire them. I began to long for the means of dressing them handsomely, and often have re-darned one of my own dresses that I might wear it longer and purchase some bright stuff for Wally's overall. At length your father insisted on getting a servant for me, and I was once more free to spend my time as of yore. But you will smile, my dear ones, when I tell you of one cause of sorrow to me at that time. It was an old coat of Alfred's that was entirely thread-bare, his 'Sunday-suit' as he called it laughingly. How industriously I brushed that coat every Monday, for two years, folding it carefully and laying it in a drawer, with the vest and scarf, I could not tell you. But now it seemed so old and shabby, so foxy and worn, that I could not help crying bitterly every time I put it away. Often have my tears helped to clean it as I rubbed the spots on it, or sought for the thin places to darn before it commenced to split. As you may imagine, we never went to places of amusement, but when I saw my handsome, elegant looking Alfred sally forth once a weed in this much cared-for-suit, I regularly burst out into a flood of tears that I took good care he should never see. But there came a ray of sunshine—then another, and we held up our heads. The day I saw Alfred dressed like himself once more I nearly shrieked for joy, and when I found myself housekeeping again with something of the old comfort around us, I blessed God that He had given us trials and taught us how to iive.

"In my new home my little Alfred was born, and I thought myself the happiest of mothers. We did not improve much in wealth, but we became no poorer, and to us our waw of living was quite a luxurious one compared to the past. I spent my time alone until your father returned to his meals, for we made no acquaintances, and I rejoiced at it. I preferred centering my happiness in my loved ones at home. I was too secure of it, my darling, for the year after I lost my little boy, my 'summer child!' Alas! I then found that I hrd never known sorrow before—none but a mother who has parted with her treasure can tell what I suffered—"

Mrs. Herbert paused and the tears rolled over her face. Until now she had been unvoved throughout her recital of their early misfortunes, but she could not recur to the death of her child without strong emotion. Alice pressed her hand fondly, and she went on after a pause.

"I no longer looked upon my comforts as things to gladden me, and poverty was a blessing compared to this! It is said that trials never come singly, and we were an example. Your father's health gave way under his terrible fatigues, and he was very ill for some time. His depression of mind increased his malady, and for three months he was an invalid, unable to leave the house. All that we had in the world was a small sum he had laid by in case of an emergency, and day by day I saw it lessen, concealing from Alfred as well as I could the privations I underwent to make it last. As he retired early, I put out the light as soon as he was in bed, and in the delightful spring evenings of our Southern winter, sat at the door in the moonlight. When the moon rose too late to be my lamp, I would light a candle and sew on some piece of work laid by for the next day. I eat a piece of dry bread as I gave you your supper at night, but dispensed with my own tea that the sugar might last longer. I often wept when you have begged for something better than dry bread and tea, but we could not afford more, and I had to comfort my three little ones with caresses that they loved.—My great care was to keep all this from my husband and many a time have I excused my extinguishing the light by promising to sit on your bed and tell stories. How much I had to invent! My imagination was well-nigh exhausted, but I borrowed a book of fairy tales, and read them as I nursed Mary to keep her quiet while her father slept. Without his knowing it, I had dismissed my servant. There was little enough to cook, and as I always attended to our own room he did not miss her.

"One day he turned to me with a mournful look.

"'Alice,' said he, 'your funds must be exhausted, my dear wife. Send Janet to me—I must make the trial at least.'

"'What trial my dear Alfred?' said I, trying to smile. 'I am not, indeed as poor as you think.—There is enough to last some time yet. Do let that relieve your mind, and leave Janet alone. Eat your toast, and don't wait until it is cold.'

"'Alice,' said he, looking at me fixedly, 'you are trying to conceal it from me—I know that you have no more money in the house.'

"I went to the drawer and brought him what still remained in the box I used to call my bank.

"'But you must pay Janet my love—she cannot work for nothing. And then what will be left?'

"'Janet is paid, Alfred, do compose yourself,' replied I, trembling now lest he agitate himself too much.

"'Then whom do you owe this?' asked he.

"'Neither 'butcher, baker, nor candlestick maker,' can say I am in debt to him. This is fairly ours, and it will last until you are strong again, so look cheerful dear husband, and take me for the fairy Good-Will."

"Alice!" he cried, 'then you and my children have been starving!'

"He burst into tears and sobbed bitterly. This I could not bear, and almost on my knees I went to beg him to be calm. He once more called for Janet, I asked him what he wanted with her."

"'I want to write a note to Preston—he will lend me money. That small sum cannot support us for any time. Let me do it, Alice—I must. Tell Janet to get ready to go down to the office with my letter.'

"'Put it off until I tell you I have no more, will you Alfred? You might grant me this!' And I sat down by him with a look of entreaty that he said he could not resist—so I conquered. The assurance that we were not starving, and his conviction at length that I could mete out my little sum yet awhile, strengthened him greatly. I wish you could have seen him, dear children, the day he was well enough to go out, how proudly he walked into the yard and called Janet! But no Janet came, and not wishing to disturb me, he went as far as the kitchen door. Then he found out my secret, and then he scolded and laughed by turns."

Mrs. Herbert had not seen her husband enter, he stole softly behind the little group, and looking fondly on the sharer of his early vicissitudes. As she paused at this part of her narrative he threw his arm around her. She turned her head to smile upon him, and he sat down beside her with her hand in his.

"Your mother has not told you all, my children," said he with glistening eyes. "How often she went to the door and caled Janet long after she had discharged her, pretending to take from her hands at the door whatever I had asked for. How, in the morning early she arose, and with our dear boy's help, set a box of wood and coal just within reach, that the invisible Janet might hand it in whenever I rang for it. It is singular how long I was deceived, but illness had made me inattentive, and I fear selfish, with regard to my Alice."

"Hush, Alfred! hush!" cried she, putting her hand before his mouth. "you were never selfish."

"Ah, dear one! you are ever a merciful judge, but you must be blinded by affection. She did not tell you, Wallace, how her scanty stock of rings were sold to buy shoes for you and Alice while we were so poor. The very one your mother wears with her wedding ring, I redeemed with the first sum that I dared to spare afte I grew stronger. Do not sob so, my dear child, my good Alice. We would not now give up that time of trial, when our affection was so tested—our hearts so oppressed. We look back with gratitude for it all—assured now that we have been permitted to fulfill our marriage vow to the letter. I succeeded after a few years in establishing myself in a position of much advantage. I grew wealthy, and gained many friends in consequence, who feted us, and sought our society. But through all we found one who stood by us fast and firm. He is yet our beloved and esteemed guest; as often as the week comes round, do you, my children, welcome him as we do."

"Mr. Eldon!" they cried. "Is it not Mr Eldon?"

"It is indeed, my dears, and to this day he cannot recall without emotion his absence from the city at the time of my illness. He was travelling on urgent business, and my letters never reached him. We had known him then but a short time, yet we knew him to be a friend—we would have felt it no shame to be under obligations to him. When he left us we were doing tolerably well, and he expected to return after a few weeks, but he was detained, and your parents were in actual want before this best of friends reached our poor little home. His coming was like an angel's visit of mercy. He took up his residence with us and never left until he was sure of my own certainty of success, enabling us by his generous bounty to live comfortably once more. He would never allow that we were under obligations to him, as he delicately insisted that he merely paid his board and lodging. We were much grieved when he left us long after we were on the high road to fortune, but his sister and her son were destitute and he sent for them to come and live with him, proving himself the noblest of protectors—the kindest of brothers, an the best of uncles. I dare say, Alice, that you do not like Mr Eldon the less for this, hey, girl?"

Allice blushed and hid her face on her mother's bosom. Mr. Eldon's nephew was no indifferent person it would appear, and the parents exchanged smiles as the mother's gentle hand fondly stroked the shining hair that floated over her arm.

"I thought, dear mother, that I could not love you more than I have hitherto," said Wallace, kissing her tenderly; "but my affection must be twofold after to-day. The aim of our lives shall be to make ourselves worthy of such a devoted, self-sacrificing mother."

"I honor you for such sentiments, my fine fellow," said Mr. Eldon, entering familiary, and holding out his hand. "I am sure we must all be proud of my friend Herbert's wife and children."

"And we, dear sir, of your friendship," said Wallace, as they gathered around the kind old gentleman "We did not know until to-day how much we owed you, dearly as we love and respect you. Mother has been telling us—"

"Pshaw! pshaw, my dears!" interrupted he, with glistening eyes, and smiling merily, "don't believe her! don't believe her! She makes it bigger every time she tells it, and I'm going to forbid the story's being told again."

"Ah! but you could not forbid our gratitude, Mr. Eldon," said little Mary, nestling up to him; "you can't do that, sir."

He stopped her mouth with kisses, and seating her on his knee, took a letter out of his pocket, and handed it to Mr. Herbert. "I took this out of the office for you, as Calvert told me you were not down yet."

A visible change came over Mr. Herbert's face as he read it, but a smile followed the change. He looked up at his wife as he finished it, and placed it before her.

"Read that aloud, my love, it concerns us all. The offer is a singular one, and the condescension rather equivocal. It is a letter from my sister, Mrs. Blunt."

An exclamation of astonishment escaped each one; but Mrs. Herbert was allowed to read it uninterrupted.

"DEAR BROTHER,—It must be seven or eight years since we have heard any thing of you, and I am almost afraid that you have left the place you preferred to this one. As your circumstances were very poor, and you must have now a large family of children, I write to say that you can send one of them to me—one of the girls—and I will adopt her as my own—for I have none, and Mr. Blunt's great wealth will allow me to bring her up and provide handsomely for her. Let her be sent on as soon as possible—you needn't mind giving her clothes, as I will save you that expense.

"If your wife is still living, you will remember me to her. She must be looking very old after working so hard. If you have any boys, Mr. Blunt might do a little to advance them—his business connections are very extensive and high. Your other sisters are well and advantagously married. I expect an immdiate reply.

"Your affectionate sister,
"OCTAVIA BLUNT."

The indignation with which this tender epistle was received was indiscribable, and Allice was chosen to answer it by the entire assembly. So on the following morning she presented her father with her reply.

"DEAR AUNT—, Since you last heard of my father, he has been assailed by ill health and extreme poverty. From these two evils he was rescued by the affectionate care and wise economy of the best of wives, who, I thand God, is not only well but looking as youthful as a woman of twenty-five. They have found, too, a friend, who helped them kindly through their misfortunes, and still clings fondly to us all. I am the eldest girl—Mary and Berta come next. My brother, Wallace, is two years my senior, and Frank is the youngest of all. Within my recollection we have always lived in the most affectionate manner. We now manage to get on as decently as people can who have only eight thousand a year, and beg to decline your obliging offer of adoping any of us. We are the happiest family in the world, and pride ourselves upon the patience and firmness with which our parents bore their youthful trials.

"Very respectfully, &c.
"ALICE HERBERT."

"This will do, my love," said her father, placing the letter in its envelope. "In a few days we shall certainly have an answer, and I predict a very different style from the first, or Blunt has altered wonderfully since I knew him. He worships the almighty dollar devoutly."

A few days after Mr. Herbert brought home the following epistle, over which Alice's beautiful lip curled involuntarily.

"MY DEAR HERBERT,—Octavia was much affected by your dear girl's communication. We were all so glad to hear from you at last—for we had often thought of, and feared you might be in distress. I cannot tell you how glad we are to find how succesful you have been. It has relieved our hearts of a load indeed. (Here Mr. Eldon gave a kind of groan, and tossed Frank over his shoulder. Mr. Herbert smiled sadly, but continued to read.) Your sisters are very anxious to see you and your lovely family, so you may look for Octavia and mysely about the beginning of next month. With kindest love to Mrs. Herbert and your children, I bid you adieu.

"Very sincerely, yours,
"MACDUFF B. BLUNT."

"They shan't come, shall they, mother," cried Alice. "We do not want them to care for us now."

"For your father's sake they must be kindly received, my daughter," was the mother's reply.—

"They may yet learn to give us credit for whatever virtues we may have, and excuse our faults."

"And it is never too late to amend, Ally," said Mr. Eldon, patting her shoulder. "Forgive and forget, is a beautiful motto, my dear."

Alice blushed, but held out her little white hand.

"I am ashamed of my childishness, and do poor credit to my darling mother. Do try and let it be forgotten, and I will make up for it by playing the agreeable to my aunt, because she is my father's sister."

"And more than that your father cannot expect, my children," said Mr. Herbert, laying his hand on Mary's soft locks. "He sees, however, one good to be derived from your aunt's visit."

"I know—I know!" cried Berta, clapping her hands.

"Well, what then, little prattler?" asked her father."

"Why you mean that we can now practice what we find it so hard to do—forgive, as we would be forgiven."

"That's my good little Berta!" said her mother, kissing her fondly. "That's my attentive Sunday scholar. I do not waste my time when I preach in the afternoons."

And so, when Mr. and Mrs. Blunt arrived, they were agreeably surprised with the reception they met. The Herderts made no professions—they were too sincere for that, but they were all polite from the beginning of the visit to its end. Mrs. Blunt was delighted with her brother's wife and family; and when, two years after, she was invited to Alice's wedding, she presented the bride with a beautiful silver pitcher, to which Mr. Blunt added a set of crystal for young Mrs. Eldon, to begin housekeeping with. Alice sighed as she looked at her splendid gifts, and thought of the time when half of their value would have made her poor mother feel rich! But with the bright tears in her soft eyes, she wound her arms around that beloved mother, and laid her young face against hers.

"Dear mother! those who need not such rich and costly things are always filled with them. My uncle Eldon has to-day settled on me alone—independently of what he gives Edward—an annuity of nine hundred dollars. I have resolved to lay by so much a year for benevolent purposes, and together we will seek out the poor and the needy. Best of mothers! I cannot equal you in goodness, but I will do my best not to waste the great blessings God has given me."

☞ The following are copies of important bills which have been recently passed by the Legislature:

An Act to Abolish the Freehold Qualification.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the state of New Jersey, That it shall not be necessary hereafter for any person to possess a freehold, in order to qualify him to be elected to and hold, occupy, possess and enjoy any public office whatever, in any country or township in this state.

2. And be it enacted, That it shall not be necessary hereafter, in order to qalify any person to serve on any grand, petit or other jury or inquest, convened under the authority of this state, that such person be a freeholder; and that all writs and processes hereafter to be issued in this state, for the purpose of convening or summoning any such jury or inquest, shall omit the words requiring a freehold qualification, any law, usage, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

A Supplement to the act entitled "An Act concerning distrss," aproved April 16th, 1846.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the state of New Jersey, That the goods and chattles mentioned in the eighth section of the act to which this is a supplement, as by law privileged from distress for rent, shall hereafter be deemed and taken to be all such goods and chattles as now are or may hereafter be by any law of this state reserved to any debtor for the use of his family against his creditor, and not liable to be seized or taken by virtue of any execution or civil process issued out of any court of this State.

2 And be it enacted, That the goods and chattles mentioned or referred to in the fourteenth, sixteenth seventeenth, eighteenth, nineteenth, twentieth and twenty-first sections of the act to which this is a supplement, shall be taken to mean such goods and chattles as are not by law reserved as aforesaid; and all the remedies provided in and by the said several sections for the recovery of rent, shall be limited and restrained so far as to exempt from their operation the amount in value of goods and chattles exempted as aforesaid.

3. And be it enactvd, That nothing in this act shall be construed to affect and contract now existing, or to prevent any tenant from entering into any agreement with his or her landlord that no part of the goods and chattles of such tenant shall be exemempted from distress by law.

Queen Victoria and her Ancestors.

Guelph is the name of the family that has occupied the British Throne since 1713, a period of 136 years.

Victoria, who is now thirty years of age, of a remarkably youthful appearance, of pleasing and affable manners, distinguished for all the virtues which adorn a lady, a wife and a mother, is the Granddaughter of George III. Her father, Edward Guelph, Duke of Kent, died January 23d, 1829, a few months after her birth, and six days before the death of George III. Her husband, Prince Albert of Saxe Gotha, very nearly of her own age possesses a handsome person and a fine address, and speaks the English language in great purity, and is distinguished for his social and domestic virtues. No man in Great Britain is more universally popular. Her eldest son Prince of Wales, and heir apparent to the throne, is about 8 years old. Twelve years since, she, as a sovereign, succeeded her uncle William who died June 20th, 1837.

William IV. reigned 7 years. Consequently he ascended the throne in 1830, upon the death of his brother George. His widow, Adelaide, the Queen-dowager is still living, and receives from the government, a yearly income of $500,000

George IV. reigned 10 years from the death of his father, George III. in 1820.

George III. reigned 60 years from the year 1760, succeeding his Grand-father George II. His father Fredrick, Prince of Wales, died several years before.

George II. filled the throne 33 years from 1727.—He was the son of George I. Both he and his father were born and educated in germany.

George (Guelph) I. reigned 13 years from 1714 when Queen Anne, the last of the Stuarts, expired in the twelfth year of her distinguished reign. He could not speak the English language. He was the Grand-son of James I

James (Stuart) I. in whose reign the translation of the Bible, now in general use, was made, was crowned in 1603. He was the first English King of the family of Stuart. In 1701 one hundred years after, wanting one year, the last sovereign of that family, ascended the throne. James I. was the Great grandson of Henry VII. the first Monarch of the Tudor family.

Henry (Tudor) VII. began to reign in 1485, seven years before the discovery of America, and one generation before the Reformation. He built at his own expense, the first ship of the British Navy, and called it—The Great Harry. This is the beginning of the greatest naval power ever known.

From Henry VII. to Victoria, are twelve generations as follows: Henry (Tudor) VII., Margaret Queen of scotland, James V. of Scotland, Mary Queen of Scots, (beheaded,) James (Stuart,) I. of England. VI of Scotland, Princess Elizabeth, Princess Sophia, George (Guelph) I., Geore II., Frederick Prince of Wales, George III., Edward Duke of Kent, Victoria,

From the death of Henry VII, in 1505 to the death of Queen Anne, a space of 205 years, no ancestor of Queen Victoria was on the throne of England, except James I.

Queen Victoria is a descendant of Egbert, the first King of England, crowned in 1827. All her ancestors through this period of more than a thousand years have a place in history.—Banner of the Union.

A Model Editor.—A correspondent of the Boston Museum thus speaks of Mr. Wright, editor of the Chronotype:

"He has been known to write with a pen in each hand on two different subjects, rock the cradle with his feet, and whistle 'Hail Columbia' for the twin babies, while intently perusing one of Parker's sermons, all at the same time."

PLAINFIELD GAZETTE.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Thursday; March 13, 1851.

The Legislature.—The business in this body is of rather a dubious character; but little progress has been made the past week in those Reforms, some of which have been barely named. It will be impossible for the Legislature to adjourn at the time agreed on (14 th. inst.) if these measures receive the attention they demand. We much fear, unless more attention be paid them, they will inevitably go by the board. The People have demanded them and if they are not passed will act accordingly—choose those who will practice that they preach. We trust therefore that the adjournment will be postponed until they are perfected and passed.

The Senate.—It is expected that the extra session of this body will terminate to-day or to-morrow.

The Thirty-second Congress.—The Thirty-second Congress, which will commence its sittings in December next, will contain 62 Senators, of which number 41 (18 Whigs and 23 Democrats) hold over from the 4th of this month, and 21 are new Senators, of whom six are yet to be elected, as follows—New York, Ohio, Massachusets, Connecticut, California, Tennessee. The House consists of 233 members, and 4 territorial delegates. These delegates, however, have no vote. Of the members of the new House, 130 have already been elected—Whigs 53, Democrats 77, making a Democratic gain of 50 compared with the position of parties in the late Congress.

The "Texas Monument," of the 19th ult. comes to us in mourning for the death of Mr. Albert L. Vail, one of the oldest mearchants of LaGrange, and President of the Texas Monumental Committee.—Sun.

Mr. Vail the was eldest son of Mr. Stephen Vail, of this place, aged 34 years. From the "Monument," which is before us, we learn that he was highly esteemed in that place. The county Court, which was insession, adjourned in respect for his memory, and the Sons of Temperance, of which body he was a member, adopted resolutions expressive of their grief and respect for him. He has left a widow and two children.

☞ The attention of Dealers, Farmers, and others interested in the sale or use of Agricultural implements is directed to the advertisement of Mr. John Moore in another column. The Ploughs of Mr Moore's manufacture have repeatedly been awarded the highest prize for their superiority. He has every size and variety, together with every implement in the agricultural department of as good a quality and at as low a price as can be had in the city of New York or elsewhere. Call and see, 193 Front-St. New-York.

Infidelity.—Circumstances of recent occurrence hereabouts call us to speak at some length on this subect. We do not intend to argue in favor of the authenticity of the Bible, or that the author of the christian religion is worthy of the adoration of mankind—for the very good, reason, that so far as we know, we have not a single subscriber who does not believe them already. It is entirely needless for us, as it is for the gospel minister in this place, to argue these things, for infidels take papers more congenial to their own opinions, and do not often attend church. Infidels have much to say in favor of free discussion, but they are about the last ones to examine our side of the subject—they never read the many able and valuable works very easy of access, or the evidences of christianity—they never read the Bible with a desire to understand and candidly to examine its claims to universal regard. Not they.

It is exceedingly strange to us that a paper constantly inculcating infidel principles, should receive its main support from christians. The seed sown may in time bring forth its legitimate fruits, its deadly effects—and we know that not one christian parent but would greatly prefer to follow their children to the grave in their innocence and infancy than to have them grow up infidels. Infidels, in this free country, have a perfect right to publish and support their own principles, but surely they can have no claims upon christians for aid--and may be those 500 infidels they speak of, can give all the assistance needed.

We do not contend with individuals, and wish to discountenance all personalities.—Plainfield Union.

Our cotemporary after assuming some half dozen propositions of his own as true, may well say he does "not intend to argue" the question; He does not wish to "contend with individuals." No, not he; He prefers an appeal to the prejudice of his readers; and for what—can it indeed be (as his words unequivocally imply) only to promote, at the sacrifice of candor, his own interests by the sacrifice of another's? Is this the christian charity inculcated by the Bible—does it indeed teach that there shall be no argument, no effort to reclaim a wandering brother—that we shall be "passed by on the other side?"

In conclusion we deny most emphatically, having "constantly inculcated infidel principles; we defy our neighbor to point out a single sentence of ours that does so. We have admitted, at the request of some of our readers, articles that may indeed be termed such, believing it the legitimate business of a public journal to discuss or permit the discussion of all questions affecting man's welfare and happiness; we therefore admitted them, trusting that a candid and convincing reply, by some one more able than ourselves, would have silenced and thus prevented their repetition.

We consider this attempt of our neighbor to injure us (his words will not admit of a more charitable construction) alike disingenuous and ungenerous—beneath the character of a candid, high-minded conductor of a public Press.

Cholera at the West.

Cincinnati, March 7.

The Cholera has appeared in a mild form throughout various parts of the West but mostly along the Rivers.

There has been much excitement in Tennessee in consequnce of the appearance of Cholera at Franklin and Nashville. Late accounts from Franklin represent the disease as rapidly disappearing, and at Nashville there have been no new cases for several days.

The Sovereign Pope.—It is mentioned in the French papers, that the Pope is about to cause himself to be represented as a sovereign at Washington by a high diplomatic agent.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. of O. F. of New-Jersey,

Whereas, the clergymen of Plainfield have resolved not to officiate at the funeral of any deceased member of this order or any other order called secret; provided the forms and ceremonies peculiar to such order are observed:

Therefore be it Resolved, That such determination on the part of the Clergy of Plainfield bears the appearance of disrespect to a large body of men among whom are numbered some of the most worthy citizens of Plainfield comprising members of good standing in all the various churches of this place.

Resolved, That this association, individually and collectively hereby express their sincere regret—that the said Clergy have bound themselves by any resolutions, whereby their sacred offices shall under any circumstances be denied to any of God's creatures, especially at that moment when the spirit of man has fled and the heart of the survivor is bowed down with grief and anguish and sorroweth for the desolation which death has occasioned.

Resolved, That the determination of the Clergy of Plainfield, not to act in their ministerial capacity at the funeral of a Brother of the society above named, when that Brother has placed himself in the hands of tried and true friends, to be buried after the ritual of his choice--in the opinion of this society it savors more of Roman intolerance and Pharisaic arrogance than the spirit of their Divine Master, who refused not his kind and healing offices to the veriest outcast of human society.

Resolved, That this determination of the said Clergy, so deliberately formed and acted upon is uncharitable and unchristianlike and has a tendency to weaken the exalted impressions their holy office is calculated to inspire, and the enforcement of such determination must eventually cause a distrust in their divine calling and render their services as expounders of God's word and enlighteners of man's soul, nugatory.

Resolved, That the Institution of Odd Fellowship is more powerful for good to mankind, than the reverend Clergy of Plainfield are aware of, if the resolution above referred to, be indicative of their knowledge in such matters; the Institution of Odd Fellowship in numbering 174,637 members of all denominations of christians (Roman Catholics excepted, who by the bull of their supreme head cannot be members of any society "secret" so called)—distributing $378 888 annually for relief of its members in sickness—$42,410 for relief of widowed families—$7,348 for the education of orphans, and $68,056 for burying the dead; making a sum total of $496,702 per annum for the relief of humanity, presents itself to the world as a spectacle of moral grandeur, unsurpassed by any other institution of like purposes and aims in the universe, and the day for denouncing which is past and gone.

Resolved, That this society hereby protest against this determination of the Clergy of Plainfield and humbly pray that they may rescind all such unchristianlike resolves and that their actions may be more in accordance with the divine teachings and practice of Him whom they profess to serve—ever bearing in mind that "The disciple is not above his Master" and that "Whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple shall in no wise loose his reward."

Resolved, That a copy of the above preamble and resolutions be sent to the Clergy of Plainfield and be published in the "Golden Rule," "Plainfield Gazette," and "Plainfield Union."

Dated Plainfield March 10. 1851.

ISAAC BROKAW, N. G.
STEPHEN HAFF, P. G.

Clark Johnson, Sec'y.

Later from California.

The steamship Empire City, Capt. J. D. Wilson, from Chagres, arrived at New York on Sarurday morning, bringing $750 000 in gold dust and 160 passengers. The Empire City left Chagres at 9 P. M., Feb. 25, and arrived at Kingston at 5 P. M. on the 28th; left Kingston March 1, at 11 o'clock.

On Friday, Feb. 21, lost overboard L. Viel, from Havre, a coal passer on board. He fell forward of the wheel by which he was struck, and brobably killed instantly. Further information and his effects can be obtained at the office of S. B. Stone, 10 Battery place.

March 4—died, Joham Luckner, a German laborer, from the neighborhood of Erie, Pa. His effects were taking in charge by Theobold Hirt, of Erie, Ohio, for delivery to his friends.

The English brig Sarah Hughs, from Chagres for Cuba, put into Navy Bay on the 17th Febuary—all hands sick—but through the attention of Dr. Totten they are at present convalescent, and the vessel will sail in three or four days.

The first rails on the Panama Railroad were laid on Feb. 24. A locomotive and tender were landed by the Port Admiral on the 22nd, Washington's birth-day.

The U. S. Mail steamship Georgia, Capt. Porter, also arrived on Saturday evening, with the Pacific mails and 140 passengers. She left Chagres on the 25th, wilh 320 passengers and $500, 000 on freight. She transfered 210 at Havana for New-Orleans.

On the 26th February, passed the Steamer Mexico, about 300 miles from Chagres, bound to that port. The Georgia left Havana on the evening of the 3d, and has encountered heavy weather during her whole passage.

Died, March 6, of Consumption, Ira T. Alexander. aged 16, a passenger on board the Georgia.

Nothing of importance had occurred in Havana. The Captain General, Concha, is as popular as ever, and it is rumored that he intends visiting Spain shortly, for the purpose of procuring reforms in the Government of the Island. Havana was exceedingly gay, the Carnival season having just commenced. The opera was to close in a few nights.

The Falcon had arrived at Havana, bound for Chagres. The Ohio had not arrived when the Georgia left, but passed her off the Florida reefs.

Education in Indiana.—There are in the State of Indiana 175,017 persons, over 21 years of age, who cannot read or write!

This is a melancholy exhibition of ignorance, and must place Indiana, the fifth State in the Union in point of wealth and population, far in the rear of most of her sister States. Surely, if the Hoozier Commonwealth should be the happiest in existence.—Tribune.

"Ignorance is bliss,"

☞ But few have both the will and the means for deeds of high benevolence, hence none should forget that the cup of cold water was commenced and written in heaven, while the rich man's alms heralded abroad by the sounding trumpet, had its empty and short-lived tones for their only blazon.

☞ We are prepared to print handbills, etc. of any description at an hour's notice at any time during the day or evening. Persons in a hurry will find us ready to receive their orders.

Extracts from the Report of the State Superintendent of the Public Schools of New Jersey.

The state is divided into twenty counties, which contain one hundred and eighty-two townships. Reports have been received from one hundred and seventy-two, leaving only ten to be heard from. This is the most perfect report which has been received since the pasage of the act.

From the returns made by the town superintendents, bearing date the 15th day of December, 1850, it appears that there are about 1569 districts in the state 1470 of which are reported as having made proper and correct returns.

The number of children reported as residing within the districts between the ages of 5 and 16 is 114,-722.

The number returned as having attended school during the last year is 75,245, being an increase over the number returned last year of 5192, or 7 1-4 per cent.

The sum of $112,518 62 has been appropriated for the support of public schools by the inhabitants of the several counties, which, in addition to the sum of 40,000 received from the state, makes an aggregate of $152,518 62 appropriated for educational purposes during the past year, This is an increase of $33,227 23 over the year preceding.

The whole number of children in Essex County between the ages of 5 and 16 are 8,384. The whole number taught is 6,760; for whom $14,927, 33 has been expended. The average number of months that schools have been kept open is 9 1-2. The average price of tuition is $2 for each scholar.

Free schools are established in Bloomfield Newark and Plainfield.

Free Schools.

The subject of Free Schools has been frequently presented by the State Superintendent to the consideration of the legislature and community. Judging from the expression of public opinion, it is confidently expected that some provision will be made, by the present legislature, for the establishment of Free Schools. Many townships in the state have already tried the experiment under special acts, and wherever the method of taxation has been properly adopted, it has succeeded, even beyond the expectations of the most sanguine. It, however, requires great care so to apportion the tax for the support of those schools, that while all contribute their proportion, it falls burthensome upon none, and yet be sufficient, in addition to the amount granted by the state, to open all our schools to every child of proper age to be benefitted by them. There is no good reason why it should be otherwise. The very principles of our government demand an educated people. Universal education is the sure means of promoting universal freedom. It is the only method of securing to posterity the invaluable blessings we received from our fathers. It is the only method which will enable our decendants to withstand "encroachments from without or pressure from within," to resist those attempts which will be made to alter the fair fabrick, or even to pull down the beautiful structure of our free institutions. It is the only method of teaching our successors to appreciate their high responsibilities and destinies as republican citizens, and of qualifying them to perform with credit and usefulness the various duties which may devolve upon them.

To you as legislators of our state, the community are looking for the realization of this long defered hope. To you, the many poor and destitute children of the state are looking with uplifted hands and supplicating countenances for a great boon—the gift of Education They ask you for the means to raise themselves from poverty; and this they can and will do, if you provide a way by which they can obtain such an education as will enable them to become succesful competitors in the various occupations of life; such an education as will raise them from physical machines, "hewers of wood, drawers of water," to educated beings. They point to your splendid prison, and ask you to educate their minds and hearts, that they may never be its inmates.—They call your attention to the rising walls of your "House of Refuge," and tell you, you are preparing that for the outcast, the degraded, for those who, by the want of a proper system of, and provision for public instruction, are left uneducated. They ask you not to doom them to such a fate, but to educate them, and raise them above it. They ask you to search the dark records of crime, both in the old world and the new, and see how great the amount caused by ignorance, how few of the many names enrolled upon it were properly educated. They tell you, that facts plainly demonstrate that ignorance is the fertile source of vice, the parent of iniquity; that the uneducated heart and mind cannot succesfully resist the thousand temptations and enticements which constantly beset and allure them; that it requires the highest moral training, as well as mental, to enable man to mingle with the busy world, and escape the defiling evidences of his contact; they point to your laws "for the punishment of crime," which they cannot read; they show you statutes which they cannot understand; they ask you, if the state claims the right of punishment, it should not also offer the means of instruction; they call upon you for this. If you deny them, to whom can they look?

It is, therefore, recommended that a law be passed, authorising the inhabitants of any township, at their annual town meeting, (due notice of the intention having been previously given) to determine, by a vote of two-thirds of those present at such meeting, to establish Free Schools, and to determine for what period of time they shall be kept open, and to raise, by tax, such sum of money as (in addition to the amount received from the state) shall be sufficient for their support for the period specified. The sum so determined upon to be raised by a tax upon the real estate, personal property, and by a head tax. This will leave the matter where it should be, in the hands of the people. And it is thought, where a change so fundamental is contemplated, it would be unwise to attempt it, unless two-thirds of the inhabitants were in favor. If, with this moral as well as physical majority, Free Schools are introduced, will they not be more likely to remain, more likely to be encouraged, sustained, supported, than if introduced by a mere majority, which the very next year may alter?

In connection with Free Schools, there is an important consideration, namely, the building of School Houses. Under the present law, no provision is made, and one seems imperatively called for. It is for you to determine whether they should be built by a general tax upon the township, or by a tax upon the district in which a house is to be erected. The latter plan seems the preferable one, as it leaves the question of building and paying with those more immediately interested, the inhabitants of the district in which a school house is wanted—Whatever plan is adopted, the system of taxation should be carfully arranged, and should, as far as possible, be equitable and just; every thing should be voluntary, nothing compulsory. The people of New Jersey, since their attention has been directed to Public Instruction, have made rapid strides, and they are ready and anxious to press upward to as high an eminence as that occupied by any of their sister states. But it has been, and must be with the same feelings and principles which induced their fathers to sustain the hardships and privations of a seven years' war, without murmur or complaint, "a firm conviction of the justness of their cause and a voluntary system of enlistment."

In conclusion, although many difficulties have been encountered, the cause of education in the state is still progressive, the amount of money contributed for the support of Public Schools much larger, the number of children attending them greater. The town superintendents, generally, express the opinion that the character of the teachers, in point of intelligence and experience, has greatly improved; that the general tone of feeling is more in favor of Public Instruction that formerly, and that, whilst there are some opposed to the establishment of Free Schools, the great majority are in favor of it. This subject is therefore respectfully but urgently offered to the consideration of the legislature, with the firm belief that there will be no subject brought before them more worthy of their attentive consideration—no subject of more importance to society at large, than of education; and that no act of theirs would find more support, or be more acceptable to their constituents, than a well devised law for the improvement of Public Schools; that no money which the state can spare could be better spent than in the cause of education. To them, then, it is left, with a full confidence that it will receive at their hands the attentive consideration its importance demands.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

T. F. KING.

An American Vessel Hired to Carry English Troops.—The Shipping List states that the fine American clipper ship Roman, at London, was chartered by the British Government to convey troops from that port to Bombay, and that orders were received in this city by the last steamer, from an English house, for the building of a clipper ship of eleven hundred tons burthen. The chartering of an American vessel by the British Government is not only a novel affair, but is the plainest evidence of our great progress and established superiority in ship-building. England wants her troops conveyed to a distant province with dispatch, safety and comfort. She has hundreds of war vessels at her command, and fleets of merchantmen, from which to select a ship to do her work; but she finds that among them all, there is not one which would do the work so cheaply and expeditiously as an American vessel. Guided by economy and prudence, she charters an American vessel; and we have not a single doubt, that, in, future, she will find it greatly to her advantange to frequently employ American vessels to do the carrying part of her naval busines. We will not be surprised to hear of her sending over orders to our ship builders, before very long, to construct for her a few fast steamers to carry her mails. As the Queen's Yacht has turned out to be a poor affair, we would advise Victoria, if she wants a yacht as is a yacht, just to send her orders for one to some of our New York builders. Any of them will turn her out one, on short notice, which will give her and her babies' right royal accommodations when they take a trip to sea.—Sun.

A desire to set our faults in the most favorable light is often mistaken for their candid avowal.

Dr. Roger's Syrup of

Liverwort, Tar, and Canchalagua.

Nothing can be more safe, congenial, or healing to the membranes of the Throat and Lungs, yet at the same time more energetic and thorough in its effects, than this great remedy for CONSUMPTION, Bronchitis, and all other diseases which have their seat in the Lungs, or their auxiliary organs. It seems to fall like palm upon their irritated surfaces. The dry cough becomes loose, expectoration removes the cause of the disease, and the tonic properties of the Canchalagua keep up the strength under the salivary discharge. Liverwort, Tar, and Canchalagua, possess in their separate substances all the elements requisite for the cure of Coughs, Colds, and Diseases of the Liver, and combined, they are irresistable. CALICO AND MUSLINS, pretty cheap and good, at I. S. DUNHAM & Cos. Cheap Dry Good Store.

PROFESSOR A. C. BARRY'S

or Medicated Compound.

FOR RESTORING, PRESERVING, AND beautifying hair eradicating scurf and dandruff, and curing diseases of the skin, glands and muscles, stings, cuts, bruises, sprains, &c., &c. It has been ascertained by experiment that

Barry's Tricopherous,

has produced the same effect in curing disease of the skin, &c., of the Horse and all the animal kingdom.
The following testimonials, selected from hundreds of similar import, will serve to show the value of the preparation, and the estimation in which it is held by those who have given it a trial:

NEW-YORK, Sept. 22. 1850.

Prof. Barry—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted with a cutaneous eruption of the scalp of a most aggravated character for the last sixteen years, and during that period I have had the advice of some of the most eminent physicians, and have tried all the preparations for the hair and skin now known, without the least benefit. I was advised by a friend to try your Tricopherous. I did so, as a last resort, and, to my surprise and gratification, found myself cured in about two months. Such was the violence of the disorder that at times I was partially blind.
Respectfully yours,
G. V. M. RAPELYE, 148 Columbia-st.
Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23d 1850.

Prof. Barry—My Dear Sir: About two years ago my hair came out a great deal, and my head was much affected with dandruff. I was told by a friend to try your Tricopherous, and I did so, and to my astonishment my hair was firmly rooted, and all the dandruff disappeared, as the head now shews for itself
With respect I am your obedient servant,
J. S. TREADWELL, 683 Broadway.

[From the Military & Naval Argus, Nov. 9th.]
There is no remedy for the permanent cure of baldness and diseases of the cranium generally, that has reached the popularity enjoyed by the article known as Professor Barry's Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound. It is extensively used by the upper classes of the community; in almost every nursery in the land it is used in preference to other articles of the kind. It imparts vigor to the roots of the hair, and thus promotes its growth to a remarkable degree. It destroys dandruff and scurf, and yields the hair fine and glossy. It will cure all diseases of the scalp such as scald head, dew worm, and other obnoxious disorderders of the skin; in cheapness, as well as efficacy, it stands unrivalled. It is sold in large bottles, price 25 cents at No 137 Broadway, and at the druggists' generally throughout the United States and Canadas. [123is.

WONDERFUL CURES!

AND

CANCHALAGUA;

FOR THE COMPLETE CURE OF

Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Asthma, Bronchitis, Spitting of Blood, and all other Lung Complaints tending to CONSUMPTION.

NO OPIUM.

This syrup contains no Opium, Calomel, or any mineral whatever, but is composed entirely of those Roots, Herbs, and vegetable substances which have a specific influence upon the Lungs, and their connected organs. Its immediate effect is to allay all irritation, and gently remove the phlegm and other morbid secretions from the Throat and Air-Passages; thus relieving the Cough, by subduing the inflammation and other causes which give rise to it. It also stimulates and imparts a healthy tone to the lungs themselves, thereby enabling them more thoroughly to remove from the blood those impurities and diseased particles, which, if retained, do so much mischief in the system, and lay the foundation for incurable CONSUMPTION. It also exerts a decided action upon the skin, and assists nature in expelling, through the Exhalents, much of that morbid matter which would otherwise be thrown back upon the Lungs, thus relieving them of a part of their work, and rendering the system pure and healthy. When tubercles are forming, it checks their development and further progress; or if ulceration has taken place, it assists the Lungs in throwing off the corrupted matter, soothes the irritation, heals the ulcerated cavities, and restores them again to healthy action. This Medicine, therefore, is not a palliative merely, which only relieves for the time being, but is a thorough curative, as it strikes at the very root of the disease, and by removing it, removes at once all its remote and attendant consequences. This is its distinguishing characteristic—a property possessed, in equal power, by no other medicine of like nature, now before the public.

CIRCULARS, &c.

As no ordinary-sized advertisement can fully explain the nature and merits of this article, the Proprietors have published a new Circular, giving the history of this Medicine; the description, nature &c., of its principal ingredients; the effect they are designed to have upon the Lungs and Liver, and a copious reference to the persons who have been cured by it—giving their names and residences, even to the street and the number. Those who are troubled with a Cough, or whose Lungs are in the least affected, are earnestly desired to call upon the Agents named below, and procure one of these Pamphlets. It can be had gratis, and will well repay a perusal. The "Hints on Health," and "About taking Cold," may be worth to yourself and family, in the the shape of Doctors' Bills saved, besides being the means of prolonging many a valuable life.

HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS,

WARRANTY.

Such is our confidence in its virtues, that we are willing to warrant this Medicine in every case of recent Cold, (where used according to the Directions on page 7th of the pamphlet, inside the wrapper of each bottle,) and where the person is not satisfied that he is deriving benefit from it, by returning the bottle within 24 hours' time, will be returned. ☞ See page 3d of the pamphlet inside the wrapper of each bottle.

THE MONEY

☞ Be sure to ask for Dr. A Rogers' Syrup of LIVERWORT, TAR, and CANCHALAGUA, and let no other be palmed on to you.
CAUTION.—None genuine, unless there is on the buff wrapper a note of hand, signed with a Pen, by A. L. SCOVILL & CO.
FOR SAAE, wholesale and retail, by A. L. SCOVILL & Co., Proprietors, at their Principal Depot, GOTHIC HALL, no 316. Broadway, New York, to whom all orders for the Medicine, and letters relating to agencies, should be addressed, post-paid.
PRICE—In large bottle, $1,00; or six bottles for $5,00.

THE NEW JERSEY

HORSE POWER

Manufacturing Company.

HAVING improved, strengthened and perfected A. D. CRANE'S Patent Horse Power, are now prepared to furnish the same to all who may want.
This Power consists of an endless floor running over a series of pulleys, connected by cranks, without a rack or cog wheel about it: none being required from the fact, that the weight of the horse on the floor or platform causes sufficient adhesion between it and the pulleys to transmit all the power he is able to give. Also by this arrangement the chain is freed from the draught or strain (which cannot be avoided in any other Stall Power.) except, what is reqired to pass the floor around. The requisite speed is obtained direct from the machine thereby avoiding a great amount of friction and wear, and lessening the liability to get out of order. They run so easily as to require less than an inch elevation to the foot. A self acting brake is attached by which the motion is kept regular and uniform even when the work is unsteady and irregular.
From the above description it is evident that this is the most simple and efficient Power known.
They are highly recommended by those who have used them, for driving Circular Saws, Lathes, Drilling Machines, Threshers, Grist Mills, Pumps, &c.
The Company have certificates to prove the above and also to show that the Two Horse Power will grind 40 bushels of Corn to Meal (with Platt's Patent Mill.) in a day of ten hours, making it an invaluable Power for the Southern planter as well as others.
It has taken Silver Medals at the different Fairs where exhibited, and the only one given to Horse Powers by the American Institute last fall.
They also furnish Threshers of the most approved construction.
Price of Single Power with Belt, $75; Double do. with Belt, $110; Thresher and Separator, $35.

HERNIA.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.—This disorder, of very frequennt occurrence, may be considered as arising through weakness of the abdominal walls, inducing an enlargement in the natural openings formed therein for the transmission of blood and other vessels; such openings being enlarged, permit the escape of bowels or other viscera of the abdomen, devolving hernial swellings or rupture, which most generally occur outwardly, as at the navel, groins and thighs.
The complaint is likely to happen at birth, and therefore should be carefully looked for by those having the charge of children, that it may be arrested and cured promptly. It also occurs at any period of life, to either sex, without regard to the condition or mode of living, and when found, should be attended to without delay—the final penalty being death, and that may be induced through strangulation at any momennt.
RUPTURES, are always to be treated with the surgical instruments known as Trusses and Supporters, and these require to be skillfully applied. With this view, the HULL'S TRUSS OFFICE, now established some thirty years, has under the various managers, presented to the public both male and female attendants to apply its instruments directly to the persons, which is preferable in all cases, and has also made improvement at different times, showing that advancement which study and practice only yield toward the relief of this malady.
With much pleasure the fact is now published, that recent improvements BUTLER'S TRUSS PADS have been made, and sufficiently tested upon numerous cases to warrant, through the cures already affected, their submission to the public, as being in adaptation and efficiency superior to any heretofore made known.
These improvements, recently patented, are now being applied at this office, 4 Vesey street, in cases of rupture, gravitation of the bowels, prolapsus uteri, prolapsus ani and piles.
The public may rely upon that care being made in their application, which will most likely tend to the final cure of the several complaints.
Hull's Truss Office, 4 Vesey street, Astor House, opposite St. Paul's Church, New-York.
FRED'K M BUTLER, Proprietor.
N. B.—The ladies' department is attended by a female qualified to fit the instruments, having so attended this office for many years.

GREAT COUGH REMEDY!

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

In offering to the community this justly celebrated remedy for disease of the throat and lungs, it is not our wish to trifle with the lives or health of the afflicted, but frankly to lay before them the opinions of distinguished men and some of the evidences of its success, from which they can judge for themselves. We sincerely pledge ourselves to make no wild assertions or false statemements of its efficacy, nor will we hold out any hope to suffering humanity which facts will not warrant.

Many proofs are here given, and we solicit an inquiry from the public into all we publish, feeling assured they will find them perfectly reliable, and the medicine worthy their best confidence and patronage.

FROM BENJ. SILLIMAN, M. D., L. L. D., &c.,
Professsor of Chemistry, Mineralogy, &c., Yale College, Member of the Lit. Hist. Med. Phil. and Scien. Societies of America and Europe.

"I deem the CHERRY PECTORAL an admirable composition from some of the best articles in the Materia Medica, and a very effective remedy for the class of diseases it is intended to cure."

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 1, 1849.

Prof. CLEAVELAND, of Bowdoin College, Me. Writes—"I have witnessed the effects of your "CHERRY PECTORAL" in my own family and that of my friends and it gives me satifaction to state in its favor that no medicine I have ever known has proved so eminently successful in curing diseases of the throat and lungs."

REV. DR. OSGOOD.

Writes—"That he considers 'CHERRY PECTORAL' the best medicine for Pulmonary Affections ever given to the public," and states that "his daughter after being obliged to keep the room four months with a severe settled cough, accommpanied by raising of blood, night sweats, and the attendant symptons of Consumption, commenced the use of the 'CHERRY PECTORAL,' and had completely recovered."

HEAR THE PATIENT.

Dr. Ayer—Dear Sir: For two years I was afflicted with a very severe cough, accomanied by spitting of blood and profuse night sweats. By the advice of my attending physician I was induced to use your CHERRY PECTORAL, and continued to do so till I considered myself cured, and ascribe the effect to your preparation.

JAMES RANDALL.

Hampden ss. SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 27. 1848.

This day appeared the above named James Randal, and pronounced the above statement true in every respect.

THE REMEDY THAT CURES.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 10, 1847.

Dr. Ayer: I have been long afflicted with Asthma which grew yearly worse until last autumn, it brought on a cough which confined me in my chamber, and began to assume the alarming symptoms of consumption—I had tried the best advice and the best medicine to no purpose, until I used your CHERRY PECTORAL, which has cured me, and you may well believe me. Gratefully yours.

MECHANICAL MEDICINE.

Dr. Banning, formerly of this city, asks to announce that he has returned to 341 Broadway; for consultation and management of weakneses of the vocal, pulmonary, digestive, nervous, spinal and female systems; and also of the drooping, languor and physical deformities, which are so destructive of both health and beauty at the present day.

As these and kindred maladies are usually the result of a violation of the laws of physical organization, he will treat them chiefly by those exercises, mechanical appliances and reformatory habits of body, in conjunction with hydropathy galvanism and other discoveries of the day, which, united with the cooperative efforts of the subject, are calculated to relieve and restore the energies of the suffering and neglected organs.

Having spent several years in traveling for investigation and practical experiment on the subject, he has, at length, greatly improved and multiplied his surgical and mechanical appliances for the purpose. In addition to his new supports for female and spinal weaknesses, are some combining the properties of a universal hernial truss and an effective general support, with which he challenges cases of general debility, constipation, piles and prolapsus, ani, lencorrhea, prolapsus uteri and every variety of hernia.

The distinctive peculiarity of these devices is, that they do not weaken orrestrain the motions or growth of the suffering parts, but act imitatively and conconcordantly with the mathematical genius of the body's forces. Hence, by a most comfortable and gentle pressure, they at once give great support and render the oppressed system eligible to its own restoration.

Feeble invalids coming from a distance will command prompt and faithful attention.

For more definite information, see his revised edition of "Animal Mechanics," and also his circular, which will be sent gratuitously when requested.

His improved body-braces, spinal supports and supporter trusses applied at his office (341 Broadway) and to be had wholesale and retail- City and country physicians and druggists are invited to call and examine Office hours from 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. [121.

DOCTOR YOURSELF!

FOR 25 CENTS!!!

BY MEANS OF THE POCKET ESCULAPIUS, or, Every one his own Physician! Thirtieth edition, with upwards of a hundred engravings, showing private diseases in every shape and form, and malformations of the generative system,

BY WM. YOUNG, M, D.

The time has now arrived, that persons suffering from secret diseases, need no more become the victim of quackery as by the prescriptions contained in this book any one may cure himself, without hindrance to business, or the knowledge of the most intimate friend, and with one tenth the usual expense. In addition to the general routine of private disease, it fully explains the cause of manhood's early decline, with observations on marriage—besides many other derangements which it would not be proper to enumerate in the public prints.

☞ Any person sending TWENTY-FIFE CENTS enclosed in a letter, will receive one copy of this book, by mail, or five copies will be sent for one dollar. Address, "DR. W. YOUNG, No. 152 SPRUCE Street, PHILADELPHIA." Post-paid.

☞ DR. YOUNG can be consulted on any of the Diseases discribed in his different publications, at his Office, 152 SPRUCE Street, every day between 9 and 3 o'clock, (Sundays excepted.) [151.

FOR FEMALES AND MALES

Dr. Lazetti's Juno Cordial, or Protective Elixir.

This is the only actual remedy ever discovered for impetency, Genital Debility, Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases occasioned by certain secret habits; and many of the nostrums recently recommended for the same complaints are worthless imitations which its unrivalled excellence, fame and popularity have brought into the market. The Medical Faculty of Europe and the United States are unanimous in their recommendations of the Juno Cordial and have not given their sanction in a single instance that has been authenticated, to any compound for the same purposes. The nature of the maladies relieved by the Juno Cordial are generally such as to leave the publication of certificates of cures out of the question, or the proprietor could produce a host of the most conclusive testimony to show that the great reputation that it enjoys was not accidentally obtained, but is firmly based upon its positive, and apparently miraculous virtues. In all directions are to be found the happy parents of healthy offspring, who would not have been so, but for this extraordinary preparption. And it is equally potent in the many diseases for which it is recommended. Objection has been naturally made to the price of the Juno Cordial, because the trash that has been thrown into the market in opposition to it is sold cheaper; but the fact is, the Cerdial cannot be afforded for less, and ought to be much dearer, as many of the ingredients which compose it are among the costliest things in nature; whereas the others are made up of cheap drugs, worth but little in money, and less in merit. We assure the reader that the utmost reliance may be placed on the Juno Cordial in the cure of the maladies mentioned above, and also those that follow, viz: Loss of Muscular Energy; Physical Lassitude and General Prostration, Irritability, and all Nervous Affections, Indigestion, Sluggishness of the Liver, Gleet, Lucorrhoea or Whites, and Flour Albus and every disease in any way connected with the disorder of the Procreative Functions—in all of which it will afford almost immediate relief, and, if used as directed, is almost certain to produce a positive and permanent cure Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness or disability of a certain nature, should take this Cordial, as it will infallibly restore health and vigor in a brief period, and where want of offspring is a cause of regret, if recourse be had to it the most beneficial results may be anticipated with confidence. It is of priceless value to those without offspring. It has taken the precedence in Italy and will in all other countries where it may become known.

It also possesses the unrivalled qualities of curing incipient Consumption, and I have administered it with great success to patients who have sought our delightful climate for the restoration of their health and the result is that a medicine has been added to the catalogue for the cure of insipient consumption.

To spread wide the blessings of this medicine, I have appointed Messrs. Judson & Co., of the City of New York, in the United States of America, my sole Agents for its sale; and none can be genuine unless it comes through them, and their signature is on the weapper.

From the Camden Democrat.

The true Motive to Obedience.

All moral and religious teaching may be resolved into three distinct kinds, that is, as regards the principles upon which it is based. The first and lowest in the scale, is that which is predicated upon fear—the second, that which has the hope of reward as its foundation—the third and last is that which rests solely and alone upon the principle of love.—In much of the popular religious teaching of the day, we find the first and second of these principles united, though this is not invariably the case. There are many exceptions to this, as perhaps I should say, all such cases are but exceptions to the rule before stated. Be this as it may, we not unfrequently hear those who stand in the capacity of spiritual teachers to the people, relying wholly upon the first of these principles, and addressing all their admonitions to goodness and virtue, to the fears of their auditors, the fear that if they heed not their counsels and walk not in the paths of rectitude, some impending and awful calamity will inevitably sooner or later befal them. How much indeed of such teaching, has the world not had. Heathen moralists and philosophers were as familiar with this mode of teaching before the Christian era, as the wisest of christians have ever been since. And yet what have been its effects upon mankind? Has it ever elevated man in the scale of moral being to which all moral and religious teachings should tend? It certainly has had its effects upon the world, but they are manifest in the degradation and servitude to which it has subjected our race. These are its legitimate effects. It addresses man as a slave, and consequently the more of such teaching he has, the more of a slave he must necessarily become. And is slavery congenial to the nature of man? Is this the element, the sphere in which he who was created in the moral image of God, desires to 'live and move and have his being?' Is this the peace, the happiness, the joy which is promised him in the religion of Christ? No! a slave—a moral and religious slave is not, cannot be a child of God. With reverence be it spoken, God is not a slave holder. He is 'our Father.'

But what can we say of the hope of reward as a principle of moral and religious teaching. It is perhaps somewhat higher in character than that of fear, and yet I scarcely know in what consists its superiority. While that of fear, however, attempts to drive men into the performance of duty, that which could lead them to it by the hope of reward, seems more in consonance with our knowledge of human nature. Drive mankind you cannot, unless as in the case of the preaching of fear, you first make them believe they are slaves—coax them you may by dazzling their moral vision, by some glittering gew-gaw in the shape of a reward, but yet, what after all does this principle of reward resolve itself into? Is it not inded and in truth, when analized, a bribe? And who needs a bribe? Who will take a bribe? Is it the honest man who will suffer himself to be bought, even though it be to a performance of that which he is told in his duty? Is not in fact, the hope of reward, so for as our moral and religious duties toward God are concerned, a bribe upon treachery, hypocrisy and deceit? It certainly seems so to me. And while the principle of fear, first reduces men to the condition of slaves, and then treats and addresses them as such, that predicated upon the hope of reward, opens wide the door of hypocrisy and double mindedness, and effectually closes that which leads to a cheerful and willing obedience. And are these the blessings flowing from a strict conformity to the requirements of the religion of Christ? In this the pure heavenly mindedness which we are told it inspires? Is this the purity and spirituality for which we are wont to hear it extolled? And who offers this bribe? From whom comes the reward which we hope to receive? From God. And has He made us in his own moral likeness, and yet shall He be under the necesity of bribing us into obedience? How much better in his sight, is that obedience which is rendered through fear of loss and punishment? And yet upon this very principle of reward is based much of the religious teaching of the day, even that which is most fashionable. The principle of fear has to a great extent been discarded, and the hope of is used instead, or occasionally, as in revival meetings, the two extremes are vividly contrasted, and yet either appears no better than the other, and both combined are but magnifying the evil.

But, says an objector, if you discard both the fear of punishment and the hope of reward, there is nothing left as the motive to obedience. Not so—We have not yet spoken of love, as a principle, and the only correct one, of moral religious teaching.—And what shall we say of this principle? The world says—I mean its spiritual guides—that it is good for nothing. They say it removes all restraint from the minds of the righteous, and gives a still looser rein to the propensities of the vicious. But is it so?

The Apostle Paul was of the opinion, that 'the love of Christ (not the fear of hell, or the hope of heaven) constraineth us.' The Apostle John said 'we love him (God) not because we fear his wrath, or expect to purchase his mercy therewith, but because he first loved us.' The Apostle Paul also says, 'I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God (not through fear of punishment or hope of reward,) that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable unto God which is your reasonable service.' And Jesus himself says, 'Therefore' (for the reason that God is so much more kind to man, than an earthly parent can possibly be to his children,) therefore, all things whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them.' Is it true then, that love as a principle of action and a motive to obedience, is good for nothing? Paul did not think so, nor John, nor any of the Apostles, much less did Jesus, their immediate teacher, think so.

And what is the experience of the world upon this point. If the preaching of fear, and that predicated upon the hope of reward are so very efficatious, and the principle of love so utterly worthless, in restraining vice and promoting virtue, the world certainly should know it. But do they know it to be so?—Where's the evidence? Certainly not in the condition of its most sincere and devoted beleivers. Go to our jails and penetentiaries' and behold those whom neither the fear of endless burnings, nor the hope of unceasing bliss, could refrain from the commission of the worst crimes Mark even their sullen and incorrigible conduct while incarcerated within the gloomy walls, and will you say that if we discard these two principles, there is no motive to obedience left? Ah, well would it have been for these miserable and degraded outcasts from Society, had their hearts been blest with the holy influences of love, as a motive to the performence of their duties toward God and man. But alas, here at the goal of their ignominious career, have they for the first time perhaps in their lives, been approached with all subduing love. Here for the first time since entering upon a vicious life, have their souls been melted into tears of contrition, by the tender words of the benevolent keepers.

But as an index to all similar cases—and they all utter one sentiment—look for a moment at the case of the persecuting "Saul of Tarsus." What was it that subdued his stubborn heart, and at a touch moulded him into the devoted "Apostle Paul?"—Was it fear of punishment, or hope of reward?—Saul, says, "why persecutest thou me?" was the only appeal made to that heart which was breathing out threatnings and slaughter against his unoffending fellow man, and behold the consequences. "Lord what wilt thou have me to do?" is the meek request of his willing soul. If fear or reward are more efficacious, than love in restraining vice, would not God have employed either one or both in the conversion of Saul?

STACY.

The Means of Enjoyment.

BY T. S. ARTHUR.

One of the most successful merchants of his day was Mr. Alexander. In trade he had emassed a fortune, and now, in the sixtieth year of his age, he concluded that it was time to cease getting and begin the work of enjoyment. Wealth had always been regarded by him as a means of happiness: but so fully had his mind been occupied in business, that, until the present time he never felt himself at leisure to make a right use of the means in his hands.

So Mr. Alexander retired from business in favor of his son and son-in-law. And now was to come the reward of his long years of labor. Now were to come repose, enjoyment, and the calm delights of which he had so often dreamed. But, it so happened, that the current of thought and affection which had flowed on so long and steadily was little disposed to wide into a placid lake. The retired merchant must yet have some occupation. His had been a life of purposes, and plans for their accomplishment: and he could not change the nature of this life. His heart was still the seat of desire, and his thought obeyed, instinctively, the heart's affection.

So Mr. Alexander used a portion of his wealth in various ways, in order to satisfy the ever active desire of his heart for something beyond what was in his actual possession. But, it so happened that the moment an end was gained—the moment the bright ideal become a fixed and present fact its power to delight the mind was gone.

Mr. Alexander had some taste for the arts. Many fine pictures already hung upon his walls. Knowing this, a certain picture broker thew himself in his way and, by adroit management and skillful fluttery, succeeded in turning the pent up and struggling current of the old gentleman's feelings and thoughts in this direction. The broker soon found that he had opened a new and profitable mine. Mr. Alexander had only to sne a fine picture, to desire its possession: and to desire was to have. It was not long before his house was a gallery of pictures.

Was he any happier? Did these pictures afford him a pure and perenial source of enjoyment? No; for, in reality, Mr. Alexander's taste did not love the beautiful in the abstract. The delight he experienced when he looked upon a fine painting, was mainly the desire of possession; and satiety soon followed possession.

One morning Mr. Alexander repaired alone to his library, where, on the day before, had been placed a new painting recently imported by his friend the picture dealer. It was exquisite as a work of art, and the biddings for it had been high. But he succeeded in securing it for the sum of two thousand dollars. Before he was certain of getting this picture, Mr. Alexander would linger before it, and study out its beauties with a delighted appreciation Nothing in his collection was deemed comparable therewith. Strangely enough, after it was hung upon the walls of his library, he did not stand before it for as long a space as five minutes; and then his thoughts were not upon its beauties. During the evening that followed, the mind of Mr, Alexander was less in repose than usual. After having completed his purchase of the picture, he had overheard two persons, who were considered autocrats in taste speaking of its defects, which were minutely indicated. They likewise gave it as their opinion, that the painting was not worth a thousand dollars.—This was throwing cold water on his enthusiasm—It seemed as if a veil had suddenly been drawn before his eyes. Now, with a clear vision, he could see faults, where, before, every defect was thrown into shadow by an all-obscuring beauty.

On the next morning, as we have said, Mr. Alexander entered his library, to take another look at his purchase. He did not feel very happy many of thousands of dollars had he spent in order to secure the means of self-gratification; but the end was not gained.

A glance at the new picture sufficed, and then Mr. Alexander turned from it with an involuntary sigh. Was it to look at other pictures? No. He crossed his hands behind him, bent his eyes upon the floor, and for the period of half an hour, walked slowly backwards and forwards in his library. There was a pressure on his feelings, he knew not why; a sense of disappointment and dissatisfaction.

No purpose was in the mind of Mr. Alexander when he turned from his library, and, drawing on his overcoat, passed forth to the street. It was a bleak winter morning, and the muffled pedestrians hurried shivering on their way.

"Oh! I wish I had a dollar."

These words, in the voice of a child, and spoken with impressive earnestness, fell suddenly upon the ear of Mr. Alexander, as he moved along the pavement. Something in the tone reached the old man's feelings, and he partly turned himself to look at the speaker. She was a little girl, not over eleven years of age, and in company with a lad some year or two older. Both were coarsely clad.

"What would you do with a dollar, sis?" replied the boy.

"I'd buy brother William a pair of nice woolen gloves, and a pair of rubber shoes. That's what I'd do with it. He has to go away so early, in the cold, every morning, and he's 'most perished, I know, sometimes. Last night his feet were soaking with wet. His shoes were not good; and mother says she hasn't money to buy him a new pair just now. Oh, I wish I had a dollar!"

Instinctively Mr. Alexander's hand was in his pocket, and, a moment after, a round, bright silver dollar glittered in that of the girl.

But little farther did Mr. Alexander extend his walk. As if by magic, the hue of his feelings had changed. The pressure on his heart was gone, and its fuller pulses sent the blood bounding and frolicing along every expanding artery. He thought not of pictures nor possessions. All else was obscured by the bright face of the child, as she lifted to his her innocent eyes, brimming with grateful tears.

One dollar spent unselfishly, brought more real pleasure than thousands parted with in the pursuit of merely selfish gratification. And the pleasure did not fade with the hour, nor the day. That one truly benevolent act, impulsive as it had been, touched a sealed spring of enjoyment, and the waters that gushed instantly forth, continued to flow unceasingly.

Homeward the old man returned, and again he entered his library. Choice works of art were all around him, purchased as means of enjoyment.—They had cost thousands—yet did they not afford him a title of the pleasure he had secured by the expenditure of a single dollar. He could turn from them with a feeling of satiety; not so from the image of the happy child whose earnestly expressed wish he had gratified.

And not alone on the pleasure of the child did the thoughts of Mr. Alexander linger. There came before his imagination another picture. He saw a poorly furnished room, in which were a humble, toiling widow and her children. It is keen and frosty without; and her eldest boy has just come home from his work, shivering with cold. While he is warming himself by the fire, his little sister presents him with the comforter, the thick gloves, and the overshoes, which his benevolence has enabled her to buy. What surprise and pleasure beam in the lads face! How happy looks the sister! How full of a subdued and thankful pleasure is the mother's countenance.

And for weeks and months, did Mr. Alexander gaze, at times, upon this picture, and always with a warmth and lightness of heart unfelt when other images arose in his mind and obscured it.

And for a single dollar was all this obtained, while thousands and thousands were spent in the fruitless effort to buy happiness.

Strange as it may seem, Mr. Alexander did not profit by this lesson—grew no wiser by this experience. The love of self was too strong for him to seek the good of others, to bless both himself and his fellows by a wise and generous use of the ample means which Providence has given into his hands. He still buys pictures and works of art, but the picture in his imagination which cost but a single dollar, is gazed at with a far purer and higher pleasure than he receives from his entire gallery of paintings and statutes.

If Mr. Alexander will not drink from the sweet sping of true delight that has gushed forth at his feet, and in whose clear waters the sun of heavenly love is mirrored, we hope that others, wiser than he, will bend to its overflowing brim and take of its treasures freely.

Doctor Amesbury.

"I 'spose you've hearn of him, hain't you?"

"I never have."

"Well, then, I'll tell you. One day I met the Doctor over at Simpkin's store, buying groceries. It was awful cold I felt a little hoarse, and my tongue was somewhat furry; so says I,

"My head feels a little akish alike; what do you think I'd better do?

"Says he, "Friend S., the best thing you can do, is to go straight home and soak your feet, and take a sweat, cause if you don't you might have a fever."

"Says I, "doctor, I was just thinking that a sweat would do me good, and now I guess I'll do it"

"So, home I went, and drank a bowlful of tansey tea, and if I didn't sweat like a beaver its no matter. The next morning my head was as clear as a bell, and I was well again.

"Well, a day or two afterwards I met the doctor, and says he,

"Neighbor S., I have a small bill against you.

'I looked at him, and says I, "A bill?" and says he,

"Yes, a bill for advice you know, at Simpkin's store the other day."

"What do you think he had charged me? why one dallar for telling me to go home and take a sweat"

"Well doctor, says I, because I wouldn't appear small you know,) 'its all right, and I'll bear it in mind."

"Well, a few days's after, the doctor was passing by my door in his chaise, and somehow or other, one of the wheels got a little loose; so says I, "doctor, if you don't drive that linch pin in an inch, the wheel might come off."

"Says he, "I thank you," and he drove in the pin. Well, I went into the house and just made a charge of it. When I met the doctor again, I presented him the bill.

"Halloa! what on earth is that?" said he.

"Why, that's for advice."

"Advice for what?" says he.

"Why for driving in your wheel pin; and I have just charged you seven and six."

"Well," says he, "the difference between your bill and mine is just six cents."

"That's all you owe me," says I.

"Well, I'LL BEAR IT IN MIND," says he.

"But the doctor is as tight as a candle mould, and I guess he is able to bear it in mind"

The Barn Shinglers.

Every body has heard about the Barn burners, but the history of the Barn shinglers is yet to be written.

Somewhere down east, somd dozen years ago,, a State Legislature had prohibited the sale of spirituous liquors in less quantities than fifteen gallons. This produced great excitement, and at last the subject was brought to the polls—the citizens being divided into Rummies and Anti-Rummies, the former against, and the latter for the law.

Now, at this fearful crisis in the affairs of the State, it so fell out that in the village of Dunsdem the numerous and respectable family of Gripes were seen, for the first time, to take a lively interest in politics. They were all sober, staid, pious men, as the Gripes had always been from immemorial time. They had hitherto belonged rather to the temperance party; had voted with the anti-Rummies, and given their support to the fifteen gallon law. But now, strange to say, they were on the other tack, from, Old Deacon Seth Gripes down to his grandsons who rejoiced in the name of Ahab. Altogether, uncles, cousins brothers, and brothers-in-law, they constituted a formidable body, and, directly and indirectly were suppposed to control at least a hundred votes.

Now, it may well be supposed, that a phenomenon so remarkable as the sudden conversion of the family from their good old fashioned ways to the rummy side of a great social, moral, religious, and political question naturally excited the curiosity of the Paul Prys of Dunsdom. Accordingly, when the above mentioned deacon Seth Gripes requested his neighbor, Solomon Sly, to go with him and his friends, the said Solomon very naturally asked the reason for such a request.

The Deacon replied that he considered the fifteen gallon law injured the glorious cause of temperance; that it was an odious invasion of the liberty of private life, it was unconstitutional, and against the higher law of conscience, which gave man a right to eat and drink, how, when and what he pleased.

"That may all be, Deacon," said Solomon with a face becoming his name, "but you rember that last year you were exactly of the opposite opinion."

"Yes, I don't deny it," was the reply, "but I have changed my mind."

"And what led you to change your mind, if I may be so bold?"

"Why, Solomon, you're a kind of a third cousin of my wife's, and so I think I may tell you all about it. We are going to send my grandson Ahab to the State Legislature.'

"Whew!" said Solomon, "that's news indeed, and what has put you up to that?"

"Well," said the Deacon, "Ahab, you know has been building a barn and he has got it all done except shingling; it will cost about a hundred dollars to finish it, and we calculate that if we send him to the general court this winter, he can save enough to pay the expense.

Now this little piece of history is full of instruction. Not only town and village politics, but even those of free, sovereign and independent States, are often controlled by men who make great declarations about principle, but every one of whom is, after all, only devising the ways and means by which he may shingle his barn.

A PRACTICAL JOKE.—A gentleman of considerable talent as an orator, became a member of the legislative body, in one of the Eastern States. In speaking, he was addicted to an old habit of handling his specktacles; first placing them od his nose—suffering them to remain a minute or two—throwing them upon his forhead, and finally folding them up and laying them before him on the desk. One day a very important question came up for consideration, and he commenced a speech in opposition. A friend to the proposed measure, who was a most incorrigible wag withal, determined to spoil the effect of the honorable member's remarks, and accordingly, before he entered the house, provided himself with a dozen pair of spectacles. The member commenced his speech with his usual ability. But a few minutes elapsed before he was at work with his spectacles, and finally got them upon his forehead. At this jncture our wag who stood ready, laid another pair upon the desk before the speaker. These were taken up, and by gradual gradations, gained a place upon his forhead, by the side of the first. A third, fourth, and fifth pair were disposed of in the same manner. A smile settled upon the countenances of the honorable members, which gradually lightened into a grin, and at last, when the speaker had warmed into one of his most patriotic and elegant sentences he deposited a sixth pair with the others, and there was one long and loud peal of laughter from all quarters of the hall—presidents, clerks, members, joining in chorus. The speaker looked round in asstonishment at this interruption but raising his head he grasped the spectacles, and the whole rushed upon his mind. He dashed the glasses upon the floor, took his hat, and left the hall.

English Opium Eating.

A correspondent of the London Morning Chronicle makes the following developments of the extent of Opium eating in England: "To such an extent is Opium used, that one druggist in Ely informed me that the average annual quantity sold by him for the last few years had not been less than 3 cwt. per annm. From two other druggists I learned that the quantity sold by them was not less than 80 or 90 lbs, in the year. In the town of St. Ives, one druggist informed me that he sold about 2 1-2 cwt. in the year. In Wisbeach and Chatteris, the quantity is considerably more than in either of these towns.—In Whittlesea, also, the consumption of the drug is very large. You may set it down (said a druggist to whom I was speaking on the subject) as a tun weight per year, for the ten parts of Huntington and the Isle of Ely."

The Eating, Drinking, and Smoking Tax of Great Britain.

The revenue derived last year by the Government of Great Britain, upon the eating, drinking, and smoking articles alone, amounted to $150,000,000. This statement was made by Mr. Wood, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, in a recent speech, when presenting his yearly budget to Parliament.

Man's Rights and Duties.

The government of the United States being professedly a government of the People, its founders having proclaimed and the world acknowledged that All men are inalienably endowed by their Creator with equal rights, it of necessity behoves all and every man who claims these privileges as his birthright to protect all in the enjoyment of them. For this end and for this end only was this government established; that all and every individual—the high and the low, the poor and the rich—might equally enjoy in conscious security the fruits of his labors.

"Whenever any government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it; when abuses and usurpations, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism it is their right, it is their duty to throw off such government, and to provide new guides for their future security."

It may be said, by some, that this is merely recapitulating a truism—that all men readily acknowledge them, and that therefore their reiteration is unnecessary, uncalled for. Indeed, although the theory may be thus admitted, all know the practice is not; theoretical liberty may satisfy those who have never felt, enjoyed the regenerating influences of its practical reality—the God endowed blessings pertaining to its full enjoyment;—those who do are never satiated with its repetition, with the attempts to extend and perpetuate its inestimable blessings; therefore that the world may be disenthralled and regenerated from every species of tyrany wherewith the human mind has been fettered, it is right and proper that man's inalienable rights should be prominently kept before the people, that knowing their rights they will be the better prepared to maintain them.

Notwithstanding that the above declaration was made the fundamental basis of our government, and that it was established solely for the protection of man's inalienable rights, there are still 5,000,000 of our fellow men deprived of them by its authority and power! This fact is known and admitted by all; and, what is worse if any one of those who are thus deprived of their rights regains his liberty, although having used milder means that those who proclaimed him thus inalienably endowed—only fleeing for it—he is pursued by that government, as we would pursue beasts of prey, with cunning and stealth, with arms, aye, by a bounty to his captors is he again made a slave; loaded, if needs be, with chains, he is dragged back into hopeless bondage All this is done by a nation, by a government which declares that he is inalienably endowed with liberty by his God!

In the days of ignorance and superstition that are past, when kings claimed power by the grace of God, when priests sold indulgencies as the vicegerents of God; when it was supposed by the ignorant and degraded that all this was ordained of Heaven, then there may have been some shadow of excuse for their blinded victims oppressing their fellow man; bus that in this enlightened age, in free and republican America, in the nineteenth century of the Christian era, men, aye, preachers of the Gospel of Christ, men whose forefathers sought these shores for Freedom—for liberty of Conscience and freedom of Speech—and who subsequently fought that all might enjoy civil and religious liberty, can be found upholding, advocating and teaching that chattel Slavery is ordained of God—that this great wrong, that all the evils growing out of this most unjust oppression, this degrading and hopeless bondage is ordained of God, because, "The powers that be are ordained of God" is a most astounding paradox.

If in this land where Liberty sought an asylum from oppression; if under this government whose first and fundamental principles were Freedom, where man's equal rights are declared inalienably endowed by his Creator; if in this land where all claim the right to worship God according to the dictates of their consciences—where civil and religious liberty claims a birth and a resting place, 5,000,000 of our fellow men are denied these rights, where and when shall they enjoy them? if under a government whose auspices have been thus favorable—where ere now, but for the puny ambition and selfishness of men it could have been accomplished—all men cannot enjoy these rights, then indeed we see no hope for them'th's side the grave—the Archangel's trump alone can awaken men to their acknowledgment.

Reader, much depends upon you; feeling yourself entititled, believing yourself thus endowed—that all men are thus endowed by their Creator, will you as a consistent and earnest advocate of these rights do your duty to your fellow man? If so, if you will lend your earnest aid, however feeble that may be, much may be accomplished; as there is no better protection, no more certain guarantee of your own and your children's rights than this, you owe this duty to yourself, your country and your God.

As an aider and abettor, as a means and forerunner for accomplishing this grand object, this universal freedom, elevation and regeneration of the human race, let us endeavor to teach and practice towards each other those fundamental principles of freedom with which we consider ourselves endowed; instead of degrading and enslaving men to a greater degree of oppression and bondage it is our glorious privilege, it is our duty, it is our interest, eternal as well as temporal, to use our utmost endeavors to raise him up to that degree of freedom and intelligence which we ourselves enjoy; that he may go on progressing in knowledge and virtue until he can walk erect in the full consciousness of his manhood, the glory and image of his Maker.

Man is endowed with a perception, or with faculties which if properly cultivated will enable him to perceive, that his creation was designed not only for for his own happiness and the glory of his Maker but for the happiness of those around and about him; he perceives that that which causes happiness in or to himself produces happiness also to his fellow man; so also that which produces misery, pain or unhappines in himself also produces unhappiness to his fellow mortal. Hence from the necessity of the case he acquires that unering guide, that self consciousness which teaches him that "Whatsoever ye would that man should do unto you, do ye even so unto them," is absolutely necessary to fulfil the laws of his being; and that as he walks in accordance therewith, as he pursues a virtuous and upright life—doing his duty to his fellow man—or as he departs therefrom does he become happy or unhappy; thus he intuitively perceives that all men were designed for happiness; and also, that whatever he was designed for he will ultimately attain unto.

Therefore, Reader, it but remains that you and I practice toward our fellow man those fundamental principles of Democracy, Justice and Truth embodied in the above sentence; which is not only delared by its founders to be the basis of our government, but also by their author, to be the fulfilling the Law and the Prophets. Let us therefore justify ourselves in the sight of God and man, and to our consciences, by raising up the degraded and down trodden to an appreciation of their rights; claiming no privileges, assuming no rights which are not in accordance with these fundamental principles of truth and justice—of the God endowed therefore inalienable rights of our fellow man.

So long as man dogmatically assumes a superiority over his fellow man and attempts to coerce him into the support of a political or religious creed or opinion which his mind does not perceive the truth of—whether in itself true or not—so long is violence done to his nature, to his rights; and the emancipation of his mind from error is retarded, and wrong and oppression is made to hold sway. When man shall become truly enlightened, when he shall fully appreciate Liberty—liberty of conscience, of opinion, of speech—not in himself but in another; when he can tolerate an honest expression of opinion, whether true or false, without denunciation or persecution of the individual or person uttering it, either public or secret, then indeed and not until then may he hope to see justice and truth prevail; then and not until then will swords be beat into plough shares and spears into pruning hooks; then may the lion and the lamb lie down together, and a little child may lead them; then will righteousness cover the earth as the waters cover the sea; then will men have attained to that state of happiness and universal brotherhood, which as a connecting link in the grand harmony of universal nature he was designed and created for.

THE LEGISLATURE.—This body the past week have certainly done much worthy of commendation. The several reform measures have passed both Houses and doubtless will, if they have not already become the laws of the State. The School Law, we are informed, in its general features is very good—calculated to give general satisfaction—and to give a new impetus to the cause of Education. Every man should rejoice that New Jersey in the future on this important subject will stand side by side with the most favored. Education of the masses is most certainly the best guarantee of our future welfare and prosperity. A General Railroad Law, much to the detriment of the public good, was postponed to the next session. But, surely, notwithstanding the appointment of the worst kind of a Whig Senator—one with the trowsers pocket principles—and some few other mistakes, the present Legislature will long be remembered by the people as having accomplished more good than any which has preceded it for many a long year. We shall endeavor to publish some of the most important laws as soon as possible, with the yeas and nays thereon, that the people may know to whom they are indebted for liberal and enlightened legislation.

To the Citizens of Plainfield.

This Appeal is made by the friends and neighbors of the sufferer, who is well known to you, Mr. Thos A. Morton, who, by fire which took place yesterday afternoon, was deprived of nearly all he possessed His immediate neighbors and friends at once made up a sum of about $50, but being uninsured, kind as it was in them, (a thinly settled neighborhood,) goes but a small way to afford relief. They therefore in his behalf, under his trying and distressing circumstances, appeal to your sympathy and good feeling to do something to his relief, by such small contributions as will not be considered as taxing your liberality beyond your means or inclinations; as the smallest sums will no doubt be most thankfully received.

"The work now offered to the public, and which is styled "The Bible in Spain," consists of a narrative of what occurred to me during a residence in the country to which I was sent by the Bible Society, as its agent, for the purpose of printing and circulating the Scriptures. It comprehends, however, certain journies and adventures in Portugal, and leaves me at last in "the land of the Corahai," to which region, after having undergone considerable buffeting in Spain, I found it expedient to retire for a season.

It is very probable that, had I visited Spain from mere curiosity, or with a view of passing a year or two agreeably, I should never have attempted to give any detailed account of my proceedings, or what I heard and saw. I am no tourist, no writer of books of travels; but I went there on a somewhat remarkable errand, which necessarily led me into strange situations and positions, involved me in difficulties and perplexities, and brought me into contact with people of all descriptions and grades; so that a narrative of such a pilgrimage may not be wholly uninteresting to the public, more especially as the subject is not trite; for though various books have been published about Spain, I believe that the present is the only one in existence which treats of missionary labor in that country."

We had marked an extract or two from "Zincali" but space prevents our inserting them, but we would say in conclusion buy this book for yourself, reader, and you will not regret the price,—One dollar for nearly 400 pages, double columns, and handsomely bound.

☞ Those of our readers who may visit Newark for the puchase of Dry Goods will find a very extensive and superior assortment of New, Spring and Summer, Goods, including also an extensive stock of straw and Millinery Goods, just opened at Miller & Ward's, 208 Broad-st. Moderate prices and polite attention to the wants of their customers have secured this firm and extensive business. Their handsome store, under Park Hall, is fitted up in most superb style and in itself is well worth a visit. Their advertisement will be found in another column.

For the Plainfield Gazette.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—From a late number of your paper I learn that the Clergy of Plainfield have resolved not to officiate at the funerals of deceased members of the Sons of Temperance,—especially when the Division, of which the deceased brother was a member, superintends the funeral. Now what strikes me as being somewewhat queer in this matter is, that those same R-e-v's have delivered public addresses lauding the order to the skies,—extolling the members as phylanthropists to their species—and patriots to their country,—as being engaged in the great and glorious work of meliorating the character and condition of man, by lighting up the path of the poor, the unfortunate, the sick, the widow and the orphan, with the lamp of sympathy and pecuniary aid,—bidding them "God speed," and recommending them as well worthy the patronage of all—when, lo! the first thing we hear of them is, that they refuse to preach a sermon at the funeral of a deceased brother of the order,—said brother being at the time of his death a much esteemed member of the Presbyterian church. Were they called upon to perform the funeral rites of the most abject and depraved of the sons of wretchedness, they would, no doubt, consider it their solemn duty to comply with the invitation, and would gravely tell us that their commission required them to "preach the gospel to every creature." But in case of the death of a Son of Temperance, they, forgetting their high and holy calling, say, we cannot officiate if the ceremonies peculiar to the order are to be performed. They will even receive members of the order into the church—admit them to the table of the Lord, and extend to them the right hand of christian fellowship and brotherly love, through life—but after death refuse to perform the last sad office of kindness to the deceased.

"O consistency, thou art a jewel."

But what is there belonging to, or transacted in the society, which is inconsistent with the word of God, and the rules of christian duty, to which they can conscientiously object?

Is it because it is a temperance society?—seeking to reclaim the inebriate from the paths of the destroyer, and save them from the drundards misery on earth—the drunkards grave, and the drunkards hell?

But should not so noble a cause enlist the talents and influence of the ministers of Christ? How any ambassador of the cross can stand aloof from an institution which is accomplishing such an amount of good is what I cannot understand.

Do they object to it because it is a charitable society—bringing mutual relief in the dark and evil hour of adversity—thereby preventing their members from soliciting the charities of a cold, unfeeling world, or suceing in vain for congregational or individual aid.

Is it because it is a vigilant society? watching over the character and conduct of its members with a thousand eyes—thus throwing around those disposed to wander a restraining and salutary influence—and binding all with the golden chain of "Love, Purity and Fidelity?" Is it because they are a secret association? That it is so we do not pretend to deny. But there is no more secrecy about it than is necessary to prevent imposture.

Our CONSTITUTION, BY-LAWS and RULES will abundantly satisfy any reasonable man, upon a candid perusal of them, as to the character of the business transacted in the division room.

But what is there in the funeral rites of the order that is so objectionable? Certainly nothing. Were Clergymen officiating at the funerals of deceased Brothers required to put on the regalia of the order, or to take part in any ceremony which they deemed inconsistent with their views of duty, or derogatory to their ministerial character, then there would be some ground for refusing to officiate. But as this is not the case,—as they are not required to do any thing more than simply to preach a sermon, the objection carries with it proof presumptive of its fallacy.

There being nothing, then, either in the society or its funeral rites which is objectionable, we are now prepared for the question, why this refusal of the clergy to preach funeral sermons for deceased members of the order?

I can conceive of no plausible reason that can be assigned for this course of conduct. Do they say the welfare of the curch demands it? But how the preaching of the gospel, even though it be at the funeral of a Son of Temperance, should injure the church in any shape, I am at a loss to determine, and it would puzzle a D. D. to explain it.

But here is another aspect of the suject. They would not scruple to receive members of the order into fellowship with the church,—In fact there are some, yes many who are leading members of the church as well as of the Division, in this village, who are well worthy to occupy those exalted stations which they hold in both. Now if the society is antichristian, or its ceremonies such as would be disreputable to perform, or even take part in, then it is wrong for them to allow their members to belong to such society, and still more so to permit them to participate in its ceremonies.

The church should not allow her membership to belong to institutions which she views as erroneous, and at the funerals of whose deceased members, clergymen refuse to officiate. Yet such is the case. They will suffer the members of their churches to remain members of said institution till the close of life, and then refuse to comply with the wishes of the friends of the deceased to give them christian burial.

If then the welfare of the church does not justify the course of the Clergy in passing the resolution referred to—on what other ground will they vindicate it. Certainly it must be a very narrow Isthmian spot on which they stand.

Nor can I conceive the design.—what end they had in view—what they intended to accomplish—and what motives urged them to the passage of such a resolution—was it to discountenance the society, and thus prejudice the community against it?—Was it to induce those who are members already, to leave it, and to deter others from uniting with it,—or was it to lord it over the people, and rule them with a rod of iron, instead of being instant in season and out of season, preaching the word? But has it come to this? O tempora O mores. I do not wish to impute unworthy motives to the Clergy of Plainfield, in regard to this matter, neither would I hurl maledictions at them. On the contrary, we had hoped better things from them. But the stand they have taken certainly leaves a great deal of room,—a vast field for speculation, as they have not made their reasons for thus acting known to the public.

A SON OF TEMPERANCE.

THE STORM.—In New York the storm drove the tide up into the cellars of Washington, Greenwich and the cross streets intersecting them, dislodging several hundred families, some of whom barely escaped with their lives, causing severe loss and much suffering to them; they took refuge in the Station house.

For the Plainfield Gazette.

MESSRS EDITORS:—During the last week our village was thrown into a tremendous state of excitement by the circulation of a report that one of the many "clerical guns" of this place intended last Saturday evening to discharge its mighty load of thundering denunciations against secret societies, and to echo through the world his many and conclusive reasons for discountenancing and opposing the Odd Fellows and Sons of Temperance, the only two secret societies in Plainfield.

We were not surprised to find that many exhibited much impatient anxiety to hear the ponderous and conclusive reasons which were to fall from the Reverend gentleman's tongue; particularly when they were to be uttered by a man so universally known throughout the union; and so distinguished for mental ability as a clergyman in his own denomination. Long before the hour of service, the house was thronged with eager and impatient auditors, apparently moved by the most intense excitement and restlessly waiting to catch a glimpse of the "great moral Reformer," whilst here and there might be seen a dejected Odd Fellow or a Son of Temperance trembling and pale with emotion, lest the fate of his own dear institution should that night be forever decided and his fondest hopes annihilated by one blast of this mammoth gun.

The suspense of the audience was soon relieved by the appearance of the long expected, orator at the "Desk," whilst every eye was intently fixed, and every ear expanded to list a powerfully argumentative discussion of the merits of secret societies. It may perhaps be a source of profitable instruction to those who had not the opportunity of being auditors, to present an analysis of the discourse, with the plan of argumentation pursued. We wish to be understood that we merely give our own impressions which the speaker made upon our mind and our views of the tenor of this unparalled effort. The speaker first assumed the position that all secret societies were pernicious to the interests of mankind; that it was manifesting a want of confidence and disrespect to our fellow creatures to withhold our thoughts, feelings and language from the scrutiny of publicity. Secondly that the Odd Fellows and Sons of Temperance are secret societies; and consequently in the third place ought to be condemned. He then proceeded to quote largely from ancient history, and also from some of his own productions previously published in some newspaper, and then concluded by a most striking and eloquent Peroration.

The audience seemed paralized with admiration at this supernatural effort, and the involuntary movement of their lips seemed to wisper 'tis woudrous wonderful. The Ladies in particular appeared much gratified that they now had authority to divulge the many secrets burning in their breasts and thus obviate any disrespect which secrecy might offer to the inquisitive mind.

AUDITOR.

Laborers and Cabitalists.

Under the present social system, Capital and Labor—the shovel and the digger—are two separate and antagonistic powers; and such they always have been, and ever must be, when existing in connection with particular individuals and classes. Although Capital and Labor are intimately connected with and dependent upon each other and both work together for a common end—that end is PRODUCTION, and not the exaltation of one man, and the abasement of another In connection with particular individuals and classes, however, Capital and Labor can have no community of interest; they will ever be in perpetual hostility, for the gain of the capitalist is always the loss of the working man, and the poverty and toil of the last is a necessary consequence of the wealth and the idleness of the first.

Of all the vast wealth now existing in the United States—worth, as it is, so many millions of dollars, and produced as it has been, by the labor of the productive classes during many generations—of all this immense wealth, the share which the working man holds and enjoys is but as an ounce to a ton, a drop to an ocean, in comparison to that which the present social system has enabled the capitalists to obtain possession of. The share of the working man has never yet been greater, and never will be greater, even if millions on millions are annually produced so long as the principle of unequal exchanges is tolerated; for this alone will maintain the present division of society into capitalists and producers, and rear the wealth and the supremacy of the one upon the poverty and the degradation of the other.

When the workman has produced a thing, it is his no longer; it belongs to the capitalist; it has been conveyed from one to the other by the unseen magic of unequal exchanges. The working man, notwithstanding all his toil, finding himself as poor as ever, forthwith labors away to produce more wealth, and this, again, is conveyed to the capitalist in the same manner as the first was. And thus, oppressed and plundered, must the working class toil on to the end of the present social system; for the capitalists and the employers, as such, will always have interests opposed to those of the producers at large.

It is the interest of the working man to acquire as much wealth as possible by means of his own labor—it is the interest of the capitalist to acquire as much wealth as possible by means of profit, or the labor of other people; and as all profit must come from labor, and as the wealth of the capitalist is but an accumulation of profit, the gain of the capitalist must be the loss of the working man.—Middletown Banner.

MARRIED.

On the 12th inst by Rev S. J. Drake, MR. EPHRAIM STELLE, of Brooklyn N. Y. to MISS MARIA E. SHEPPARD, of Plainfield.

Dr. Roger's Syrup of
Liverwort, Tar, and Canchalagua.

Nothing can be more safe, congenial, or healing to the membranes of the Throat and Lungs, yet at the same time more energetic and thorough in its effects, than this great remedy for CONSUMPTION, Bronchitis, and all other diseases which have their seat in the Lungs, or their auxiliary organs. It seems to fall like palm upon their irritated surfaces. The dry cough becomes loose, expectoration removes the cause of the disease, and the tonic properties of the Canchalagua keep up the strength under the salivary discharge. Liverwort, Tar, and Canchalagua, possess in their separate substances all the elements requisite for the cure of Coughs, Colds, and Diseases of the Liver, and combined, they are irresistable. PROFESSOR A. C. BARRY'S

TRICOPHEROUS,

or Medicated Compound.

FOR RESTORING, PRESERVING, AND beautifying hair eradicating scurf and dandruff, and curing diseases of the skin, glands and muscles, stings, cuts, bruises, sprains, &c., &c. It has been ascertained by experiment that has produced the same effect in curing disease of the skin, &c., of the Horse and all the animal kingdom.

Barry's Tricopherous,

The following testimonials, selected from hundreds of similar import, will serve to show the value of the preparation, and the estimation in which it is held by those who have given it a trial:

NEW-YORK, Sept 22. 1850.

Prof Barry—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted with a cutaneous eruption of the scalp of a most aggravated character for the last sixteen years, and during that period I have had the advice of some of the most eminent physicians, and have tried all the preparations for the hair and skin now known, without the least benefit. I was advised by a friend to try your Tricopherous I did so, as a last resort, and, to my surprise and gratification, found myself cured in about two months Such was the violence of the disorder that at times I was partially blind.

Respectfully yours,

G. V. M. RAPELYE, 148 Columbia-st. Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Oct 23d 1850.

Prof Barry—My Dear Sir: About two years ago my hair came out a great deal, and my head was much affected with dandruff. I was told by a friend to try your Tricopherous, and I did so, and to my astonishment my hair was firmly rooted, and all the dandruff disappeared, as the head now shews for itself

With respect I am your obedient servant,

J. S. TREADWELL, 633 Broadway.

[From the Military & Naval Argus, Nov. 9th.]

There is no remedy for the permanent cure of baldness and diseases of the cranium generally, that has reached the popularity enjoyed by the article known as Professor Barry's Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound. It is extensively used by the upper classes of the community; in almost every nursery in the land it is used in preference to other articles of the kind. It imparts vigor to the roots of the hair, and thus promotes its growth to a remarkable degree It destroys dandruff and scurf, and yields the hair fine and glossy It will cure all diseases of the scalp such as scald head, dew worm, and other obnoxious disorderders of the skin: in cheapness, as well as efficacy, it stands unrivaled It is sold in large bottles, price 25 cents at No 137 Broadway, and at the druggists' generally throughout the United States and Canadas. WONDERFUL CURES!

AND

CANCHALAGUA;

FOR THE COMPLETE CURE OF

Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Asthma, Bronchitis, Spitting of Blood, and all other Lung Complaints tending to CONSUMPTION.

NO OPIUM.

This syrup contains no Opium, Calomel, or any mineral whatever, but is composed entirely of those Roots, Herbs, and vegetable substances which have a specific influence upon the Lungs, and their connected organs. Its immediate effect is to allay all irritation, and gently remove the phlegm and other morbid secretions from the Throat and Air-Passages; thus relieving the Cough, by subduing the inflammation and other causes which give rise to it It also stimulates and imparts a healthy tone to the lungs themselves, thereby enabling them more thoroughly to remove from the blood those impurities and diseased particles, which, if retained, do so much mischief in the system, and lay the foundation for incurable CONSUMPTION. It also exerts a decided action upon the skin, and assists nature in expelling, through the Exhalents, much of that morbid matter which would otherwise be thrown back upon the Lungs, thus relieving them of a part of their work, and rendering the system pure and healthy. When tubercles are forming, it checks their development and further progress; or if ulceration has taken place, it asssists the Lungs in throwing off the corrupted matter, soothes the irritation, heals the ulcerated cavities, and restores them again to healthy action This Medicine, therefore, is not a palliative merely, which only relieves for the time being, but is a thorough curative, as it strikes at the very root of the disease, and by removing it, removes at once all its remote and attendant consequences This is its distinguishing characteristic—a property possessed, in equal power, by no other medicine of like nature, now before the public.

CIRCULARS, &c.

As no ordinary-sized advertisement can fully explain the nature and merits of this article the Proprietors have published a new Circular, giving the history of this Medicine; the description, nature &c., of its principal ingredients; the effect they are designed to have upon the Lungs and Liver, and a copious reference to the persons who have been cured by it—giving their names and residences, even to the street and the number. Those who are troubled with a Cough, or whose Lungs are in the least affected, are earnestly desired to call upon the Agents named below, and procure one of these Pamphlets It can be had gratis, and will well repay a perusal The "Hints on Health," and "About taking Cold," may be worth to yourself and family.

HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS,

in the the shape of Doctors' Bills saved, besides being the means of prolonging many a valuable life.

WARRANTY.

Such is our confidence in its virtues, that we are willing to warrant this Medicine in every case of recent Cold, (where used according to the Directions on page 7th of the pamphlet, inside the wrapper of each bottle,) and where the person is not satisfied that he is deriving benefit from it, by returning the bottle within 24 hours' time, will be returned. ☞ See page 3d of the pamphlet inside the wrapper of each bottle.

THE MONEY

☞ Be sure to ask for Dr A Rogers' Syrup of LIVERWORT, TAR, and CANCHALAGUA and let no other be palmed on to you.

CAUTION—None genuine, unless there is on the buff wrapper a note of hand, signed with a Pen, by A. L. SCOVILL & CO

FOR SAAE, wholesale and retail, by A. L. SCOVILL & Co., Proprietors, at their Principal Depot, GOTHIC HALL, no 316 Broadway, New York, to whom all orders for the Medicine, and letters relating to agencies, should be addressed, post-paid.

PRICE—In large bottle, $1,00; or six bottles for $5.00

THE NEW JERSEY

HORSE POWER

Manufacturing Company.

HAVING improved, strengthened and perfected A. D. CRANE'S Patent Horse Power, are now prepared to furnish the same to all who may want.

This Power consists of an endless floor running over a series of pulleys, connected by cranks, without a rack or cog wheel about it; none being required from the fact, that the weight of the horse on the floor or platform causes sufficient adhesion between it and the pulleys to transmit all the power he is able to give Also by this arrangement the chain is freed from the draught or strain (which cannot be avoided in any other Stall Power) except, what is reqired to pass the floor around. The requisite speed is obtained direct from the machine thereby avoiding a great amount of friction and wear, and lessening the liability to get out of order. They run so easily as to require less than an inch elevation to the foot A self acting brake is attached by which the motion is kept regular and uniform even when the work is unsteady and irregular.

From the above description it is evident that this is the most simple and efficient Power known.

They are highly recommended by those who have used them, for driving Circular Saws, Lathes, Drilling Machines, Threshers, Grist Mills, Pumps, &c.

The Company have certificates to prove the above and also to show that the Two Horse Power will grind 40 bushels of Corn to Meal (with Platt's Patent Mill,) in a day of ten hours, making it an invaluable Power for the Southern planter as well as others.

It has taken Silver Medals at the different Fairs where exhibited, and the only one given to Horse Powers by the American Institute last fall.

They also furnish Threshers of the most approved construction.

Price of Single Power with Felt, $75; Double do. with Belt, $110: Thresher and Separator, $35.

HERNIA.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.—This disorder, of very frequennt occurrence, may be considered as arising through weakness of the abdominal walls, inducing an enlargement in the natural openings formed therein for the transmission of blood and other vessels; such openings being enlarged, permit the escape of bowels or other viscera of the abdomen, devolving hernial swellings or rupture, which most generally occur outwardly, as at the navel, groins and thighs.

The complaint is likely to happen at birth, and therefore should be carefully looked for by those having the charge of children, that it may be arrested and cured promptly. It also occurs at any period of life, to either sex, without regard to the condition or mode of living, and when found, should be attended to without delay—the final penalty being death, and that may be induced through strangulation at any momemnt

RUPTURES, are always to be treated with the surgical instruments known as Trusses and Supporters, and these require to be skillfully applied. With this view, the HULL'S TRUSS OFFICE, now established some thirty years, has under the various managers, presented to the public both male and female attendants to apply its instruments directly to the persons, which is preferable in all cases, and has also made improvement at different times, showing that advancement which study and practice only yield toward the relief of this malady.

With much pleasure the fact is now published, that recent improvements BUTLER'S TRUSS PADS have been made, and sufficiently tested upon numerous cases to warrant, through the cures already affected, their submission to the public, as being in adaptation and efficiency superior to any heretofore made known.

These improvements, recently patented, are now being applied at this office, 4 Vesey street, in cases of rupture, gravitation of the bowels, prolapsus uteri, prolapsus ani and piles.

The public may rely upon that care being made in their application, which will most likely tend to the final cure of the several complaints

GREAT COUGH REMEDY!

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

In offering to the community this justly celebrated remedy for disease of the throat and lungs, it is not our wish to trifle with the lives or health of the afflicted, but frankly to lay before them the opinions of distinguished men and some of the evidences of its success, from which they can judge for themselves. We sincerely pledge ourselves to make no wild assertions or false statements of its efficacy, nor will we hold out any hope to suffering humanity which facts will not warrant.

Many proofs are here given, and we solicit an inquiry from the publ c into all we publish, feeling assured they will find them perfectly reliable, and the medicine worthy their best confidence and patronage.

FROM BENJ. SILLIMAN, M. D., L. L. D., &c, Professsor of Chemistry, Mineralogy, &c., Yale College, Member of the Lit. Hist. Med. Phil. and Scien. Societies of America and Europe.

"I deem the CHERRY PECTORAL an admirable composit on from some of the best articles in the Materia Medica, and a very effective remedy for the class of diseases it is intended to cure."

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 1, 1849.

Prof CLEAVELAND, of Bowdoin College, Me. Writes—"I have witnessed the effects of your "CHERRY PECTORAL" in my own family and that of my friends and it gives me satisfaction to state in its favor that no medicine I have ever known has proved so eminently successful in curing diseases of the throat and lungs."

REV. DR OSGOOD.

Writes—"That he considers 'CHERRY PECTORAL' the best medicine for Pulmonary Affections ever given to the publ c," and states that "his daughter after being obliged to keep the room four months with a severe settled cough, accompanied by raising of blood, night sweats, and the attendant symptons of Consumption, commenced the use of the 'CHERRY PECTORAL,' and had completely recovered."

HEAR THE PATIENT.

Dr. Ayer—Dear Sir: For two years I was afflicted with a very severe cough, accomanied by spitting of blood and profuse night sweats. By the advice of my attending physician I was induced to use your CHERRY PECTORAL, and continued to do so till I considered myself cured, and ascribe the effect to your preparation.

This day appeared the above named James Randal, and pronounced the above statement true in every respect.

LORENZO NORTON, Justice.

THE REMEDY THAT CURES.

PORTLAND, Me, Jan. 10, 1847.

Dr. Ayer: I have been long afflicted with Asthma which grew yearly worse until last autumn, it brought on a cough which confined me in my chamber, and began to assume the alarming symptoms of consumption—I had tried the best advice and the best medicine to no purpose, until I used your CHERRY PECTORAL, which has cured me, and you may well believe me. Gratefully yours.

MECHANICAL MEDICINE.

Dr. Banning, formerly of this city, asks to announce that he has returned to 341 Broadway; for consultation and management of weakneses of the vocal, pulmonary, digestive, nervous, spinal and female systems; and also of the droop ng, languor and physical deformities, which are so destructive of both health and beauty at the present day.

As these and kindred maladies are usually the result of a violation of the laws of physical organization, he will treat them chiefly by those exercises, mechanical appliances and reformatory habits of body, in conjunction with hydropathy galvanism and other discoveries of the day, which, united with the cooperative efforts of the subject, are calculated to relieve and restore the energies of the suffering and neglected organs.

Having spent several years in traveling for investigation and practical experiment on the subject, he has, at length, greatly improved and multiplied his surgical and mechanical appliances for the purpose. In addition to his new supports for female and spinal weaknesses, are some comb ning the properties of a universal hernial truss and an effective general support, with which he challenges cases of general debility, constipation, piles and prolapsus, ani, leucorrhea, prolapsus uteri and every variety of hernia.

The distinctive peculiarity of these devices is, that they do not weaken or restrain the motions or growth of the suffering parts, but act imitatively and concordantly w th the mathematical genius of the body's forces. Hence, by a most comfortable and gentle pressure, they at once give great support and render the oppressed system eligible to its own restoration.

Feeble invalids coming from a distance will command prompt and faithful attention.

For more definite information, see his revised edition of "Animal Mechanics," and also his circular, which will be sent gratuitously when requested.

His improved body-braces, spinal supports and supporter trusses applied at his office (341 Broadway) and to be had wholesale and retail. City and country physicians and druggists are invited to call and examine Office hours from 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. [121.

341 Broadway, New-York.

DOCTOR YOURSELF!

FOR 25 CENTS!!!

BY MEANS OF THE POCKET ESCULAPIUS, or, Every one his own Physic an! Thirtieth edition, with upwards of a hundred engravings, showing private diseases in every shape and form, and malformations of the generative system,

BY WM. YOUNG, M, D.

The time has now arrived, that persons suffering from secret diseases, need no more become the victim of quackery as by the prescript ons contained in this book any one may cure himself, without hindrance to business, or the knowledge of the most intimate friend, and with one tenth the usual expense. In addition to the general routine of private disease, it fully explains the cause of manhood's early decline, with observations on marriage—besides many other derangements which it would not be proper to enumerate in the public prints.

☞ Any person sending TWENTY-FIFE CENTS enclosed in a letter, will receive one copy of this book, by mail, or five copies will be sent for one dollar. Address, "DR. W YOUNG, No. 152 SPRUCE Street, PHILADELPHIA." Post-paid.

☞ DR. YOUNG can be consulted on any of the Diseases discribed n his different publications, at his Office, 152 SPRUCE Street, every day between 9 and 3 o'clock, (Sundays excepted) [151.

FOR FEMALES AND MALES

Dr. Lazetti's Juno Cordial, or Protective Elixir.

This is the only actual remedy ever discovered for impetency, Genital Debility, Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases occasioned by certain secret habits; and many of the nostrums recently recommended for the same complaints are worthless imitations which its unrivalled excellence, fame and popularity have brought into the market. The Medical Faculty of Europe and the United States are unanimous in their recommendations of the Juno Cordial and have not given their sanction in a single instance that has been authenticated, to any compound for the same purposes. The nature of the maladies relieved by the Juno Cordial are generally such as to leave the publication of certificates of cures out of the question, or the proprietor could produce a host of the most conclusive testimony to show that the great reputation that it enjoys was not accidentally obtained, but is firmly based upon its positive, and apparently miraculous virtues. In all directions are to be found the happy parents of healthy offspring, who would not have been so, but for this extraordinary preparption. And it is equally potent in the many diseases for which it is recommended. Objection has been naturally made to the price of the Juno Cordial, because the trash that has been thrown into the market in opposition to it is sold cheaper; but the fact is, the Cerd al cannot be afforded for less, and ought to be much dearer, as many of the ingredients which compose it are among the costl est things in nature; whereas the others are made up of cheap dings, worth but little in money, and less in merit. We assure the reader that the utmost reliance may be placed on the Juno Cordial in the cure of the maladies mentioned above, and also those that follow, viz: Loss of Muscular Energy, Physical Lassitude and General Prostration, Irritability, and all Nervous Affections. Indigestion, Sluggishness of the Liver, Gleet, Lucorrhoea or Whites, and Flour Albus and every disease in any way connected with the d sorder of the Procreative Functions—in all of which it will afford almost immediate relief, and, if used as directed, is almost certain to produce a positive and permanent cure Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness or disability of a certain nature, should take this Cordial, as it will infallibly restore health and vigor in a brief period, and where want of offspring is a cause of regret, if recourse be had to it the most beneficial results may be anticipated with confidence It is of priceless value to those without off-spring. It has taken the precedence in Italy and will in all other countries where it may become known

To spread wide the blessings of th s medicine, I have appointed Messrs Judson & Co, of the City of New York, in the United States of America, my sole Agents for its sale; and none can be genuine unless it comes through them, and their signature is on the weapper

WONDERFUL CURES!

AND

CANCHALAGUA;

FOR THE COMPLETE CURE OF

Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Asthma, Bronchitis, Spitting of Blood, and all other Lung Complaints tending to CONSUMPTION.

NO OPIUM.

This syrup contains no Opium, Calomel, or any mineral whatever, but is composed entirely of those Roots, Herbs, and vegetable substances which have a specific influence upon the Lungs, and their connected organs. Its immediate effect is to allay all irritation, and gently remove the phlegm and other morbid secretions from the Throat and Air-Passages; thus relieving the Cough, by subduing the inflammation and other causes which give rise to it. It also stimulates and imparts a healthy tone to the lungs themselves, thereby enabling them more thoroughly to remove from the blood those impurities and diseased particles, which, if retained, do so much mischief in the system, and lay the foundation for incurable CONSUMPTION. It also exerts a decided action upon the skin, and assists nature in expelling, through the Exhalents, much of that morbid matter which would otherwise be thrown back upon the Lungs, thus relieving them of a part of their work, and rendering the system pure and healthy. When tubercles are forming, it checks their development and further progress; or if ulceration has taken place, it assists the Lungs in throwing off the corrupted matter, soothes the irritation, heals the ulcerated cavities, and restores them again to healthy action. This Medicine, therefore, is not a palliative merely, which only relieves for the time being, but is a thorough curative, as it strikes at the very root of the disease, and by removing it, removes at once all its remote and attendant consequences. This is its distinguishing characteristic—a property possessed, in equal power, by no other medicine of like nature, now before the public.

CIRCULARS, &c

As no ordinary-sized advertisement can fully explain the nature and merits of this article the Proprietors have published a new Circular, giving the history of this Medicine: the description, nature &c., of its principal ingredients: the effect they are designed to have upon the Lungs and Liver, and a copious reference to the persons who have been cured by it—giving their names and residences, even to the street and the number. Those who are troubled with a Cough, or whose Lungs are in the least affected, are earnestly desired to call upon the Agents named below, and procure one of these Pamphlets. It can be had gratis, and will well repay a perusal. The "Hints on Health," and "About taking Cold," may be worth to yourself and family.

HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS,

in the the shape of Doctors' Bills saved, besides being the means of prolonging many a valuable life.

WARRANTY.

Such is our confidence in its virtues, that we are willing to warrant this Medicine in every case of recent Cold, (where used according to the Directions on page 7th of the pamphlet, inside the wrapper of each bottle,) and where the person is not satisfied that he is deriving benefit from it, by returning the bottle within 24 hours' time,

THE MONEY

will be returned. ☞ See page 3d of the pamphlet inside the wrapper of each bottle

☞ Be sure to ask for Dr A Rogers' Syrup of LIVERWORT, TAR, and CANCHALAGUA, and let no other be palmed on to you.

CAUTION—None genuine, unless there is on the buff wrapper a note of hand, signed with a Pen, by A. L. SCOVILL & CO.

FOR SALE, wholesale and retail, by A. L. SCOVILL & Co., Proprietors, at their Principal Depot, GOTHIC HALL, no 316 Broadway, New York, to whom all orders for the Medicine, and letters relating to agencies, should be addressed, post-paid.

Respectfully inscribed to Plainfield Division No 33 S. of T. of N. J.

Upward gushing—sparkling glowing,
Glides the Temp'rance stream along,
Few its virtues really knowing—
Else how great would be the throng.

'Tis our "Bethesda"—full of healing—
Ho! ye leprous high and low,
Down in its waters faint and reeling
If ye hope for succor, go!

'Tis not the *first—but each endeavor,
Will meet success without delay;
For an Angel† troubleth ever;
Its healing waters night and day.

Then go be cleansed from blot and blemish,
Go, be your purpose to be clean;
Soon 'twill all your wants replenish—
Make glad your hearts—your minds serene.

Quarried from the rock ‡ eternal—
Are the principles we teach—
Rich in blessings ever vernal—
Rare comforts every heart may reach.

From purest fountain, flowing, flowing,
The Temp'rance stream, how sweet its sound,
Like the dews of Heaven bestowing,
It's silent blessings all around.

*St. John V. II. †of Temperance. ‡of Truth.

For the Plainfield Gazette.

The Teacher.

Acrostic.

To train the mind, direct each tender shoot,
How it shall grow, to bear the richest fruit—
On what to cling, where great profusion lies
More this to shun—or that still more to prize,
Assist the heart, to carle its wild desires
So as to check its passions raging fires—
Work into one, sweet and harmonious whole
All the mystic elements of the soul.
Lo, what a charge! to guide the immortal mind,
Leading it gently on to what its God designed.
All these are his, and he who's ably wrought,
Claims and receives a glory nobly bought,
Enduring as the spirits he has taught.

The Power of Kindess.

How softly on the bruised heart
A word of kindness falls,
And from the dry and parched soul
The moistening tear-drop calls!
Oh, if they knew, who walk the earth
'Mid sorrow, grief, and pain,
The power a word of kindess hath,
'Twere paradise again!

Rowan and the Watch.

Hamilton Rowan, on his way to Holeyhead, stopped to dine at the litttle inn at Caple Curing There was nothing in the house but a shoulder of mutton, which Rowan ordered to be roasted Presently the master of a neighboring hunt, with two brother Nimrods, rushed into an adjoining room, and swearing that they were half starved, clamorously demanded what they could have for dinner.

The landlord with many apologies, told them he had nothing but bread and cheese to offer them.

'I am extremely sorry, gentlemen, said the landlord, much embarrassed, 'but——'

'How d'ye mean, sir?' interrupted the master of the hunt, imperiously—'By h—ll! I don't understand this, Gwilliam! Nothing but bread and cheese to offer us! Why, I smell something roasting in your kitchen at this very moment, sir.'

They all swore they smelt it.

'Why, that's very true, gentlemen,' said the landlord, still more embarrassed; 'there certainly is a shoulder of mutton on the fire, and I wish with all my heart I could let your honors have it, but unfortunately it is bespoken by an Irish gentleman in the next room, and——'

'A what? An Irish gentleman did you say, Gwilliam?' roared out the master with a cotemptuous sneer.

'Yes, sir, and——'

Here the landlord was interrupted by a perfect 'mouth quake' of laughter, in which the whole trio joined.

'Pray, what is this Irish gentleman like?' demanded the squire as soon as he could speak; 'has he been long caught? Has he lost his tail yet? Oh, for heaven sake, do tell us! has he lost his tail yet, Gwilliam?'

'Aye, has he lost his tail yet, Gwilliam?' echoed the others, and again they all laughed most outrageously.

'Indeed, gentlemen,' began the perplexed landlord.

'No more of this,' said the squire, cutting him short, 'unles you mean to make us sick, sir. Go send the mutton into us, and let this Irish gentleman have a welch rarebit. And d'ye hear?' continued he, pulling out a fine old family repeater, and putting it into the landlord's hand, 'take this into him, with my compliments, and ask him if he can tell what time of day it is by it. Go—go, sir! do as I commaud you, or it shall be the worse for you, I promise you!'

The landlord, who durst not disobey, after many apologies, delivered the watch with the message to Rowan, who had overheard every word that had passed.

Perhaps the squire could not have selected a worse subject for this gratuitous insult than Hamilton Rowan, who seizing one of his travelling pistols which lay in the window, immediately joined the trio, who were enjoying themselves and laughing heartily at the joke.

'Gentlemen,' said Rowan, with great severity, 'I am sorry to interrupt your mirth. I delight in a joke myself, especialy when it's a good one. But the fact is our landlord here who must either be drunk or a dreaming, or both, has just brought me a message which he affirms he was ordered to deliver to me by some gentlemen in this room. Now, though I cannot for a moment suppose any person present,' continued Rowan, fixing his eyes on the 'squire,—'guilty of so blackguard an act, I must request as a mere matter of form, to know whether any gentleman here did send me this watch with any such message, I'll thank you for an immediate answer, gentlemen,' added Rowan examining the priming of his pistol, 'for their is a delicious little shoulder of Welsh mutton, just roasted, that I am anxious to pay my respects to.'

Perceiving them all dumfounded, Rowan demanded of each in succession whether he was the owner of the watch.

They all reply in the negative.

'Most extraordiany,' said Rowan; then calling to the landlord, he asked him if the watch belonged to him.

'To me, sir? No, sir!' replied the man in great astonishment.

'Do you know any person, then out of this room, to whom the watch belongs?' demanded the imperturable Rowan.

'Out of this room, sir?'

'Aye, out of this room, s'r! Have the goodness to look this way, and speak without hesitation, to the point, sir!'

'No, sir; certainly sir, I dont know any person out of this room to whom that watch belongs,' replied the landlord.

'Very well, sir; now, go on and serve the mutton up. Well, upon my honor, now that is mighty comical, continued Rowan as soon as the landlord had left the room; here's a watch which belongs to nobody in the room and nobody out of the room; not even to the person from whose hands I received it Well, I must keep it, I suppose, until a claimant starts up. I've no other course to pursue. In case you should hear of any such person, gentlemen, ther's my card—(throwing it on to the table) Upon my word, a mighty handsome watch—a repeater, too! Let me see—aye, just forteen minutes forty five seconds past five—the very time to attack a shoulder of Welsh mutton—ha! ha! Good morning, gentlemen, good morning! You see I know what time of day it is! and with this Rowan left them.

'The watch,' said my informant, 'still remains in possession of the Rowan family.'

Mirabeau's Funeral Oration on the Death of Franklin.

The recent celebration of the anniversary of Franklin's birth-day has brought out some interesting reminiscences. Among the rest is the funeral oration on his death pronounced by the eloquent and gifted Mirabeau, in the National Assembly of France, on the 11th of June, 1790. Mark Anthony's oration over Cæsar's dead body can scarcely surpass it in simple, soul-thrilling eloquence.

"Franklin is Dead!—[A profound silence reigned throughout the hall] The genius which gave freedom to America, and scattered torrents of light upon Europe, is returned to the bosom of the Divinity!

"The sage, whom two worlds claim; the man, disputed by the history of the sciences and the history of empires, holds, most undoubtedly, an elevated rank among the human species.

"Political cabinets have but too long commemorated the death of those who were never great but in their funeral orations: the etiquette of courts has but too long sanctioned hypocritical grief. Nations ought only to mourn for their benefactors: the representatives of free men ought never to recommend any other than the heroes of humanity to their homage.

"The congress has ordered a general mourning for one month throughout the fourteen confederated states, on account of the death of Franklin; and America hath thus acquitted her tribute of admiration in behalf of one of the fathers of her constitution.

"Would it not be worthy of you, fellow-legislators, to unite yourselves in this religous act, to participate in this homage rendered in the face of the universe to the rights of man, and to the philosopher who has so eminently propagated the conquest of them throughout the world?

"Antiquity would have elevated altars to that mortal, who, for the advantage of the human race, embracing both heaven and earth in his vast extensive mind, knew how to subdue thunder and tyrranny?

"Enlightened and free, Europe at least owes its remembrance and its regret to one of the greatest men who has ever served the cause of philosophy and of liberty.

"I propose, that a decree do now pass, enacting, that the National Assembly shall wear mourning during three days for Benjamin Franklin"

M M. de la Rochefoucault and La Fayette immediately rose, in order to second this motion.

The Assembly adopted it, at first by acclamation; and afterwards decreed, by a large majority, amidst the plaudits of all the spectators, that on Monday, the 14th of June, it should go into mourning for three days; that the discourse of M. Mirabau should be painted; and that the President should write a letter of condolence upon the occasion, to Congress of America.

When Burchard, the Evangelist, was in Lockport, New York., it was his custom to go about the village, and call upon the most prominent of the citizens, especially the wealthy, titled and influential, in order to invite them to attend his meetings, and give countenance and eclat to his labors. In the course of his perambulations, one day, he fell in with 'Bob S——,' an attorney of some reputation, and very famous for his wit and readiness at repartee. 'Good morning, Mr. S——, said the evangelist, 'understanding that you are one of the leading men of this town, and a lawyer of high standing, I have called upon you in hope to engage you on the Lord's side.' 'Thank you,' replied Bob, with an air of great sobriety, and with the most professional manner possible—'thank you—I should be most happy to be employed on that side, if I could do so consistently with my engagements; but you will have to go to some other counsel, as I have a standretainer from the other party!' The itinerent was amazed, piqued, nonplussed, and, laughing very heartily, and calling Bob a 'sad dog,' departed from his presence.—Boston Post

The New Jersey Legislature.

The following review of the proceedings of the Legislature from the Newark Mercury, so nearly express our own views on the subject that we give them in place thereof. Coming from one of the most able and candid Whig papers in the state, they show, in a just light, the business that has been done.

"This Legislature has adjourned, after a Session of nine weeks and two days, and its proceedings are before the people of the State, to recive their favor or condemnation. In the main a great advance has been made in liberal legislation, and many of its acts will be eminently beneficial in their influence upon the State. But with a full desire to do justice political opponents, we must say that the principal reform, needed in our State, has not been reached. GENERAL AND NOT SPECIAL LEGISLATION, was the cry which came to us in the last election, from every corner of the State. And this indeed is the great question which towers above every other, and which carries in its train innumerable benefits to the people. Even those who have been loudest in professions, have really proved recreant to this principle, and those who at the last moment were strong in its support, pushed through at an early period of the session all kinds of special Legislation, in direct contravention of the principle. If those who pretend to be so anxious for the passage of the General Railroad Law had voted down the numerous applications presented, until the Geneneral law had been discussed, they would have shown really their attachment to the principle; and we can have little faith in the sincerity of men who acted otherwise. No excuse can palliate the conduct of those members of the Legislature, who failed in establishing first, this great and important doctrine of State Legislation.

But if the Legislature manifested little interest in the passage of the general laws, and in the discouragement of special legislation, the Governor literally abandoned the principle except for the indulgence of a species of claptrap. He vetoed two unimportant manufacturing bills, giving as his reason the existence of a general law, and signed two important Bank Charters in the very face of his doctrine. The truth was evident through the whole session, that the Governor did not mean to carry out in good faith the promises under which he had been elected. The people are looking on with interest, and sooner or later the whole principles of General legislation will be adopted. We shall have a Railroad Law under which works of internal improvement can be constructed, a Plank Road law, that shall authorize the building of roads; and then the State will need but little exclusive legislation. Those who are now opposing these principles must yield to the demand of the times, and to the inherent justice of the doctrines.

The Democracy of the State have however done much to entitle them to commendation. They have secured for New Jersey a portion of the Legal Reform, which we have advocated, they have passed the Household Exemption, the Ten Hours Labor Bill, the School Bill, the Tax Bill and the Bill abolishing Freehold Quaalifications, They have amended liberally the General Banking Law, and made it a foundation for the true Banking system. They have sanctioned these liberal measures and as the instruments of effecting great good, they will receive their deserved portion of the popular approbation. New Jersey may now take her place among the other States of the Union, and claim that when her people speak, legislators must obey. We trust too, that our recent reverses will teach an important lesson to the Whig party, and impress upon its leaders the necessity of a liberal policy. They were forewarned of the danger and yet remained careless, until they were swept from power by a majority hitherto unprecedented in the State. They can by merriting the support of the people, regain that power, and it is incumbent on the rank and file to insist upon such a policy. We shall endeavor to-morrow to give a brief synopsss of the Reform Measures.

Office of the Plainfield Gazette,
PLAINFIELD, March 21. 1851.

To the Plainfield Lodge, No 44. I. O. O. F. of N.J.

GENTLEMEN SIRS—Having published in the Plainfield Gazette, in accordance with a resolution of your body and at their request, a series of Resolutions passed at your Lodge March 10. 1851. respecting a Resolution or determination of the Clergy of Plainfield not to officiate or preach a funeral sermon of a deceased member of your body, and having been informed by one of the body of Clergymen therein alluded to—the Rev. Wm. Whittaker—that your resolutions place him in a false position before this community, he having at your request addressed you a note defining his position in regard thereto; at his request, and that your honorable body may not also be placed in a false position or do injustice to him or to any other person whomsoever, we would respectfully request the aforesaid note or a true copy of the same for publication in the Gazette. We would also respectfully suggest the propriety of publishing any other note, if any such there be, from any other of the Clergy alluded to in your resolutions, that justice may alike be done to all parties concerned. All which is respectfully submitted for your consideration.

N. B. Please answer this note if possible on or before Tuesday the 25th inst., that we may have time to put it in type for the next number of our paper.

Respectfully yours, WM. M. DRAKE.

Plainfield Lodge, No 44. I. O. of O. F.

WM. M. DRAKE, ESQ., Dear Sir:

In compliance with your request, I herewith transmit to you for publication a copy of the communication addressed to the Clergy of Plainfield severally by the committee appointed for that purpose with their respective answers, so far as any have been received.

Per order of Lodge,
ISAAC BROKAW N. G.

C. JOHNSON Secretary.
Plainfield March 24 th. 1851

PLAINFIELD, February 28. 1851.

REV'D. AND DEAR SIRS:

At a regular meeting of Lodge No 44 I. O. of O. F. convened at their Lodge room on Monday Evening Februaty 24. 1851. the undersigned were appointed by the Lodge a Committee to ascertain if the Board of Clergymen, who hold monthly meetings in this place, have at any of their sessions, previous to this time passed a Resolution, declining to officiate at the funeral services of a person, who in his life time, had been a member of either or both of the so called secret societies of this place, "if he be buried with the usual ceremonies observed by the said societies upon the decease of one of their members," and if such a resolution did pass the board of Clergymen, to solicit the reasons that influenced you to vote for it, if you voted in the affirmative.

If no such resolution has passed the Board are you willing (in case you are invited to atttene the funeral of a deceased Brother of the order,) to officiate if the usual ceremonies are observed?

You will oblige the undersigned by a written Reply by Monday next.

Yours Respectfully,
EDWARD B. TITSWORTH, JONATHAN CORY, } Committee on behalf of Lodge.

PLAINFIELD Feb. 28 th. 1851

To the Committee—GENTLEMEN:

Your Communication of the above date has just been received and being reasonable in itself, and couched in respectful phraseology merits from the undersigned a similar answer.

It contains two seperate and distinct interrogatories—first, "have the ministers of this place ever passed a Resolution declining to officiate at the funeral of a person who in his life time had been a member of either, or both, of the so called, secret Societies of this place" and to this question I answer, they have not.

In the second place you ask—"If no such Resolution has passed the board are you willing (in case you should be invited to attend the funeral of a deceased brother of the order) to officiate if the usual ceremonies are observed?"

In reply I would say that I am perfectly willing to attend the funeral of a deceased brother of your order, or any other order if I may be permitted to discharge my own duties without interruption.

A compliance with this reasonable request, which I know you will readily grant will ever secure my services. Respectfully yours,
WM. WHITTAKER.

MESSRS E. B. TITSWORTH, J. CORY, and — ——— ———,—GENTLEMEN:

Enclosed you have the note handed me this morning, which I return, for the reason that I do dot recognize any authority which the body appointing you, have to question me on the subject of the communication.

I will only add that to any of my fellow citizens in their individual relation to me, I am always ready to render a respectful attention, when applied to for information. I am Gentlemen yours truly,

Plainfield, Feb. 28. 1851. S. J. DRAKE.

PLAINFIELD, Mar. 4. 1851.

MR. J. CORY, ESQ., Dear Sir:

I received a few lines, dated Feb. 28th. on the evening of that day, over your signature among others; inquiring as to the action of our Pastoral Conference in relation to a particular subject; and also what I should do in certain ocntingences?

I prefer to address you individually, and reply that our Conference have had some conversation, and a general understanding of each others views; but we have not to my knowledge, passed any Resolution upon the subject of your letter.

As to your second question, my answer may be best understood, by the following expression of my views and feelings.

My office as a ministery of Christ, and my relation to my own People as their Pastor, settles, in my view, the nature of my ministerial work. "I must declare the whole counsel of God." With this work, this Divine Counsel, no man may interpose. Any dictation of doctrines or Measures, I cannot admit; and any interference in our Funeral services (such as, I suppose, implied in your letter) I must view as an intrusion tending to interrupt the solemnities which we feel should ever characterize the burial of the Dead. Yours truly, LEWIS BOND.

For the Plainfield Gazette.

MESSRS EDITORS:—A number of weeks have now elapsed since an article appeared in your paper over the signature of W. M. D. in which the writer affirmed that 'nature ever acts by immutable laws,' and that, 'man knows that whatever is a law of nature to-day, ever has been, and ever will be.' And said W. M. D. goes on to employ these statements as evidence in proof that the bible is not true. I have waited so long, to see if some one would take up the negatve of the questson; but as no one has done so, as I have seen, specifically in an argumentative way, I should be obliged, if you would give the following an insertion in your paper.

This argument of W. M. D, is simply an argument from man's experience; and stated at length, must be in substance as follows:

There can be no power in the universe, that can ever be employed to suspend, reverse, or destroy the laws of nature, but such as has been exerted to its utmost for that purpose, within the experience of man. But no power within the experience of man has ever suspended, reversed, or destroyed the laws of nature.

Therefore, there is no power in the universe that can suspend, reverse, or destroy the laws of nature.

Now whatever may be the truth in regard to the other members of this argument, it will be in order, to speak first, of the first, and major proposition; for on the truth of this, every thing in the argument depends. This major proposition I deny; and look to W. M. D. for the proof of it. He must show, that no power exists in the universe that ever can be employed to suspend, reverse or destroy the laws of nature, but man has had experimental knowledge of the fact, that such power has been exerted to its utmost, for that purpose, and that, without effect, or his argument is in ruins. It will not avail for him to say, this is a man of straw, or that he did not employ such an argument; his declarations can mean or involve nothing else. I know this argument is not original with W. M. D. It was long since used by Hume to disprove miracles, and, long since too, has been answered. I know too that this major proposition was not brought out fair to view, by W. M. D. in his statement; and it was more safe for him that it was not. Yet it is inseperable from his position. For unless man's experience assures him, that no power exists in the universe, but what has been exerted to its utmost for the destruction of the laws of nature, and yet could not affect it, that experience can never prove that no such power exists; because powers unknown (to any experience not universal or infinite) many exist, perfectly adequate to the instant annihilation, both of nature and her laws.

If W. M. D. can obviate the objections to his position, above suggested, he may thus remove a conviction in my mind, that he has affirmed what is impossible for him to know, or to prove. I am aware that W. M. D. is not alone in holding this view, to which I object; it is a very favorite doctrine with many; and I presume they may be candid in holding it. At any rate I feel disposed to treat them with civility, and kindness, and that it is my duty to do so; and that such is the most likely way to do them good. But I must say that I have never seen what I could regard as proof of the proposition above referred to. And I must insist that W. M. D. will attend to this point, and present the evidence of its truth, if such evidence can be furnished.

LUCIUS CRANDALL.

The spirit of the Communication in another column, to which this is a reply, is very gratifying to us; it treats the subject in a candid, argumentative and gentlemanly manner. In our opinion this is the only course in which even a good cause—the cause of truth—can hope to succeed; certain we are that falsehood and misrepresentation or vituperation of motives are not calculated to promote it. We shall therefore—following the example of our opponent—endeavor to elicit truth, by a candid exposition of the subject before us.

We would further preface our reply by stating that we are candid seekers after truth, and that we do not hesitate to accept it from any scource open to us—also that we are consciencious disbelievers in a Divine Revelation, or the authenticity of the Bible, or any other book, as being the word of God. We would further state that we feel that we are as much interested in its truth or fallacy as any other person, having a common interest with our fellow man. We shall therefore treat the subject, as we trust it will continue to be treated by our opponent or opponents, with all candor and sincerity.

Our forefathers sought these shores that they might enjoy Liberty—they fought and died that all might enjoy Freedom—freedom of thought, of speech; that all might enjoy equal rights and equal privileges.

Nothing can be farther from our thoughts wishes or desires than to wound the feeling of the most humble individual; therefore if in the course of our remarks—having been accustomed to think differently from the mass of the community on this subject, our knowledge being almost altogether of a practical kind—acquired by thinking for ourselves—we should in the least offend we humbly and sincerely crave pardon—having no other desire than the communities and our own best good.

With these few remarks for the consideration of the reader we will proceed to discuss or reply to the article alluded to.

As our opponent draws an inference or attempts to establish an unnecessary conclusion from our position, one that there is no necessity for, one that does not at all affect the truth therof, even if admitted, and thereby attempts to bring a false issue, we think proper to state that position in our own words, or so much of them as covers the ground from whence the inference is attempted to be drawn. We would ever prefer that our own words are given when a deduction or corollary is infered therefrom. This prevents a misunderstanding and misconception of them; and is therefore better calculated to elicit truth. Our words were:

"There is implanted in the mind of every man, by and in conformity with the laws of nature, which are also the laws of his being, an intalliable and all sufficient guide to judge of right or wrong, truth or falsehood. This law of nature is universal, everywhere the same, pervades all things, all things being part and parcel of it; and as it is constantly working impressions on the mind of man, it becomes his unerring guide and protector, and has ever led him aright when he pays attention to its dictates; but whenever men have forsaken this guide they have been tossed about like a ship on the ocean without compass, chart or pilot; and in attempting to make faith—"the evidence of things not seen, the substance of things hoped for,"—their guide, have beeen shipwrecked upon the quicksands of superstition and error.

Nature ever acts by immutable laws. Man like all things animate, or inanimate, is subject to those laws; and he knows by his experience that whatever is a law of nature to day, ever has been and ever will be. The truth of this proposition, is proved by the confidence man places in them; it has thus become a universal axiom. All assertion to the contrary backed by all the testimony in the world is constantly refuted by men's acting unhesiiatingly in accordance with them. Hence the certainty with which he knows, that whatever is asserted to have taken place contrary to those laws is untrue. Thus for example, he knows that the waters of the Red Sea did not divide themselves and "stand up as a wall on either side" to let the Israelites pass through, and close to drown the Egyptians. Thus he knows that Shadrach, Meschac and Abednego, were not protected by their suspension from being burned in the fiery furnace—kowing that water ever has and ever will seek a level, and that fire ever has and ever will burn. Thus he knows that Christ could not have fed five thousand men with two small loaves and a few small fishes, and have had more left than there was before they began to eat; neither could he have made wine out of water alone; the juice of the grape or whatever was essential to make the kind of wine represented being wanted, it was only a counterfeit. Thus by the certainty of a law which is stamped upon all things, and without which certainty, or immutability all things as well as man himself would cease to exist—which is impossible as they are eternal—he knows that no circumstance ever yet took place in opposition to them.

Whatever there is in the Bible therefore, that is asserted to be true, can only be admitted to be so by the same evidence that is necessary to establish the same or a similar fact elsewhere; because if admitted on any other ground—such as miracles, martyrdom, or any similar mode of proof—all religions could be established on the same evidence."

Now L. C. (we use the initials for convenience) says:

"This argument of W. M. D is simply an argument from man's experience; and stated at length, must be in substance as follows:

There can be no power in the universe, that can ever be employed to suspend, reverse, or destroy the laws of nature, but such as has been exerted to its utmost for that purpose, within the experience of man. But no power within the experience of man has ever suspended, reversed, or destroyed the laws of nature,

Therefore, there is no power in the universe that can suspend, reverse or destroy the laws of nature."

We cannot perceive how this conclusion can be drawn from our position; neither can we perceive that if it was admitted it would alter or affect its truth. Nature's laws, for all that can be shown to the contrary, are perfect; therfore the absurdity of L. C's conclusion. This is also proven by man's universal experience, and therefore, so far as man is concerned—which we beg leave to say, so far as any argument is concerned, is quite far enough—must be true. If this be the case, and we doubt the possibillity of its being disproved, it proves our position to be true; there being no necessity to "suspend, reverse or destroy the laws of nature."

It is impossible to bring any stronger evidence of anything than can be brought in favor of our position, viz: the evidence of a man's senses; when he can see, feel, hear, taste and smell; when he can count, measure, weigh, &c., and thus mathematically demonstrate a thing, then he knows of its truth or falsehood. Man's existence is not more certainly demonstrable than our proposition, for it depends upon the same kind and degree of evidence; he can see, feel, hear and taste, which makes him conscious that he exists, therefore he knows it.

This evidence has already been given with the proposition L. C. refers to, and conclusively proves it; hence its evasion by L. C. and his attempts to create a false issuse. It is the universal experience of mankind, so far as their history in all ages is known; he has seen, felt, heard and tasted; he has counted, measured, weighed, &c; and thus mathematically demonstrated it; therefore he knows it.—It is a universally admitted axiom, as self evident as man's existence; his existence daily, constantly, depends upon its truth: his acts, which speak louder and more truthfully than words, constantly disprove a contrary assertion. We will therefore simply illustrate it by some examples, that L. C. seeing its incontestibility must give it up and attempt to assail some other point less impregnable.

For instance, the new born infant, like a sheet of white paper, prepared by nature to receive the impressions that are made upon it; nature by her immutable laws commences and continues to make impressions upon it; from the same causes continually and invariably, "without a shadow of turning," the same effects are produced. The first sense of the child that is used, beyond the mere consciousness of existence, is apparently, said; it sees the light—the flame of a candle—its brilliant colors induces it to seize hold of the flame, if it does so it is burned, thus the sensation of feeling is made evident to it; but a short experience, from its invariable effects, is sufficient to teach it that flame, that fire will burn; thus it is impressed with a knowledge, which the assertion of no man or number of men, however respectable they may be, much less traditionary assertion eighteen hundred years old, can gainsay; every person having this evidence within himself thus knows that a contrary assertion cannot be true.

All the impressions that are made upon the child, upon us, as we grow up from the cradle to manhood, from manhood to old age, to the grave, are uniformly, invariably the same, the same causes ever producing precisely the same effects; thus incontestibly proving the laws of nature perfect, therefore proving that there is no necessity, even were the power admitted, to "suspend, reverse or destroy the laws of nature."

Upon this evidence, which we have thus shown to be "universal, everywhere the same, pervades all things, all things being part and parcel of it," does man unhesitatingly act in all the concerns of life; thus disproving any and all assertions of a contrary nature. Upon this evidence he builds houses, churches, mills, steamships and locomotives; upon this evidence he navigates the ocean or travels on the land; upon this evidence he eats, drinks, sleeps and acts in all the concerns of life. Whenever he acts contrary to this evidence his life pays the forfeit of his temerity.

What is the judgment of the community, what do we say of men when they violate these laws; do we not condemn, and are they not also self condemned? For instance, a steam boiler—the boiler of Taylor & Co, Spruce-st N. Y.—was made or intended to be made to bear a certain amount of pressure of steam, number of pounds to the square inch, say 100; and the persons in use of it raise it to 200; it bursts, did burst, and an awful sacrifice of life was the consequence—they were condemned by the community, as well as self condemned, destroyed for violating nature's immutable laws.

Whenever L. C. shall disprove the universality and immutability of nature's laws; when he shall bring stronger evidence to disprove than we have to prove it, then, and not until then, can he establish the authenticity of the Bible, that it is what it is represented to be, a revelation from God.

Whenver L. C. shall reverse the laws of nature, and produce tangible evidence of it such as we have given of their immutability, such as all men know to be true, then we shall believe the Bible authentic, then there will not be much doubt of its truth. For instance, when he shall build a mill upon "Washington's Rock," and a pond to hold the water that is to turn it in the valley beneath, and the water therefrom shall run up the mountain as it now does down it, and set it in motion, or some similar tangible indisputable evidence, then, and not until then will he be able to disprove our position.

We know that men. particularly Clergymen, attempt to prove infidels wrong, and infidelity or a want of belief in what they cannot perceive, having no evidence of, a bad thing; but knowing the difficulty, they generally assume the major proposition; i e, the Bible authentic, and then of course miracles or anything else written therein, however contrary to nature's laws, is also true. But whenever they attempt to bring in science to prove its authenticity it fails them. Recently, (published in the Tribune) an eminent Professor of Astronomy—we believe from the College at Cincinnatti, gave a lecture in New York on that science—if we are not mistaken, at the instance and for the benefit of some Theological body—to prove its autheticity. The result, so far as we were able to perceive it, was, that he incontestibly proved the immutibility and perfection of nature's laws—that the system of the universe had continued to roll on from time immemorial in one ceaseless round; never varying in its revolution through all time, a perceivable amount; and particularly asserted and proved that the Moon or the Earth could not have stood still at the command of Joshua, as it would have inevitably, certainly, incontrovertibly have destroyed the present characteristics of the planetary system.

The Clergy themselves admit this point—the perfection of nature's laws—and attempt to prove from it the existence of God, saying that nothing short of Almighty power and infinite wisdom could have formed or created them; thus they themselves show the absurdity of L. C's inference, there being no necessity to "suspend, reverse or destroy a perfect work." Therefore that it never was suspended reversed or destroyed.

Within the past six or eight months we have heard two sermons—we had often before listened to the same fallacy—wherein it was attempted to prove the immortality of the soul, or the resurection, from a passage in the Bible, (John 12. 24,—1 Cor. 15. 36, 37,) which says that a grain of corn, wheat, or perchance some other grain, that unless it die it cannot produce its kind. Now we venture to assert that there is not a person in the universe, especially a farmer, if arrived at the years of maturity, but what knows this to be false; every person can know it if they will take the trouble to try the experiment. If a grain of wheat or corn must die before it can bring forth its kind, there can be no harm for a farmer to scald, boil or bake his wheat or corn until he is sure of it; then if it does not produce its kind he may know that that passage in the Bible is not true; if it does produce after such test then may the assertion be true but not the inference or conclusion which is drawn from it.

Having thus incontrovertibly proven our position—that the laws of nature are not only immutable but also perfect, therefore not subject to be "suspended, reversed or destroyed," at the word of command, even of Joshua, or any one else, that they have ever acted in one uniform, perfect and immutable manner—that water ever has tended to seek a level and fire ever has burned; thus having demonstrated our position as certainly as L. C. can demonstrate his existence, and having "obviated the objections" and disproven the inference and conclusion or "man of straw" of L. C. we trust henceforth ing found an "unerring guide" he will pay that hav- attention to its dictates in his search after truth.

PROFESSOR A. C. BARRY'S TRICOPHEROUS, or Medicated Compound.

FOR RESTORING, PRESERVING, AND beautifying hair eradicating scurf and dandruff, and curing diseases of the skin, glands and muscles, stings, cuts, bruises, sprains, &c., &c. It has been ascertained by experiment that has produced the same effect in curing disease of the skin, &c., of the Horse and all the animal kingdom.

Barry's Tricopherous,

The following testimonials, selected from hundreds of similar import, will serve to show the value of the preparation, and the estimation in which it is held by those who have given it a trial:

NEW-YORK, Sept. 22. 1850.

Prof. Barry—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted with a cutaneous eruption of the scalp of a most aggravated character for the last sixteen years, and during that period I have had the advice of some of the most eminent physicians, and have tried all the preparations for the hair and skin now known, without the least benefit. I was advised by a friend to try your Tricopherous. I did so, as a last resort, and, to my surprise and gratification, found myself cured in about two months. Such was the violence of the disorder that at times I was partially blind.

Respectfully yours,

G. V. M. RAPELYE, 148 Columbia-st. Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23d 1850.

Prof. Barry—My Dear Sir: About two years ago my hair came out a great deal, and my head was much affected with dandruff. I was told by a friend to try your Tricopherous, and I did so, and to my astonishment my hair was firmly rooted, and all the dandruff disappeared, as the head now shews for itself

With respect I am your obedient servant,

J. S. TREADWELL, 683 Broadway.

[From the Military & Naval Argus, Nov. 9th.]

There is no remedy for the permanent cure of baldness and diseases of the cranium generally, that has reached the popularity enjoyed by the article known as Professor Barry's Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound. It is extensively used by the upper classes of the community; in almost every nursery in the land it is used in preference to other articles of the kind. It imparts vigor to the roots of the hair, and thus promotes its growth to a remarkable degree. It destroys dandruff and scurf, and yields the hair fine and glossy. It will cure all diseases of the scalp such as scald head, dew worm, and other obnoxious disorderders of the skin; in cheapness, as well as efficacy, it stands unrivalled. It is sold in large bottles, price 25 cents. at No 137 Broadway, and at the druggists' generally throughout the United States and Canadas. [123is.

THE NEW JERSEY

HORSE POWER

Manufacturing Company,

HAVING improved, strengthened and perfected A. D. CRANE'S Patent Horse Power, are now prepared to furnish the same to all who may want.

This Power consists of an endless floor running over a series of pulleys, connected by cranks, without a rack or cog wheel about it: none being required from the fact, that the weight of the horse on the floor or platform causes sufficient adhesion between it and the pulleys to transmit all the power he is able to give. Also by this arrangement the chain is freed from the draught or strain (which cannot be avoided in any other Stall Power.) except, what is reqired to pass the floor around. The requisite speed is obtained direct from the machine thereby avoiding a great amount of friction and wear, and lessening the liability to get out of order. They run so easily as to require less than an inch elevation to the foot. A self acting brake is attached by which the motion is kept regular and uniform even when the work is unsteady and irregular.

From the above description it is evident that this is the most simple and efficient Power known.

They are highly recommended by those who have used them, for driving Circular Saws, Lathes, Drilling Machines, Threshers, Grist Mills, Pumps, &c.

The Company have certificates to prove the above and also to show that the Two Horse Power will grind 40 bushels of Corn to Meal (with Platt's Patent Mill,) in a day of ten hours, making it an invaluable Power for the Southern planter as well as others.

It has taken Silver Medals at the different Fairs where exhibited, and the only one given to Horse Powers by the American Institute last fall.

They also furnish Threshers of the most approved construction.

Price of Single Power with Belt, $75; Double do. with Belt, $110; Thresher and Separator, $35.

HERNIA.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.—This disorder, of very frequennt occurrence, may be considered as arising through weakness of the abdominal walls, inducing an enlargement in the natural openings formed therein for the transmission of blood and other vessels; such openings being enlarged, permit the escape of bowels or other viscera of the abdomen, devolving hernial swellings or rupture, which most generally occur outwardly, as at the navel, groins and thighs.

The complaint is likely to happen at birth, and therefore should be carefully looked for by those having the charge of children, that it may be arrested and cured promptly. It also occurs at any period of life, to either sex, without regard to the condition or mode of living, and when found, should be attended to without delay—the final penalty being death, and that may be induced through strangulation at any momennt.

RUPTURES, are always to be treated with the surgical instruments known as Trusses and Supporters, and these require to be skillfully applied. With this view, the HULL'S TRUSS OFFICE, now established some thirty years, has under the various managers, presented to the public both male and female attendants to apply its instruments directly to the persons, which is preferable in all cases, and has also made improvement at different times, showing that advancement which study and practice only yield toward the relief of this malady.

With much pleasure the fact is now published, that recent improvements BUTLER'S TRUSS PADS have been made, and sufficiently tested upon numerous cases to warrant, through the cures already affected, their submission to the public, as being in adaptation and efficiency superior to any heretofore made known.

These improvements, recently patented, are now being applied at this office, 4 Vesey street, in cases of rupture, gravitation of the bowels, prolapsus uteri, prolapsus ani and piles.

The public may rely upon that care being made in their application, which will most likely tend to the final cure of the several complaints.

GREAT COUGH REMEDY!

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

In offering to the community this justly celebrated remedy for disease of the throat and lungs, it is not our wish to trifle with the lives or health of the afflicted, but frankly to lay before them the opinions of distinguished men and some of the evidences of its success, from which they can judge for themselves. We sincerely pledge ourselves to make no wild assertions or false statements of its efficacy, nor will we hold out any hope to suffering humanity which facts will not warrant.

Many proofs are here given, and we solicit an inquiry from the public into all we publish, feeling assured they will find them perfectly reliable, and the medicine worthy their best confidence and patronage.

FROM BENJ. SILLIMAN, M. D, L. L. D., &c, Professor of Chemistry, Mineralogy, &c., Yale College. Member of the Lit. Hist. Med. Phil. and Scien. Societies of America and Europe.

"I deem the CHERRY PECTORAL an admirable composit on from some of the best articles in the Materia Medica, and a very effective remedy for the class of diseases it is intended to cure."

New Haven, Ct, Nov. 1, 1849.

Prof. CLEAVELAND, of Bowdoin College, Me Writes—"I have witnessed the effects of your "CHERRY PECTORAL" in my own family and that of my friends and it gives me satifaction to state in its favor that no medicine I have ever known has proved so eminently successful in curing diseases of the throat and lungs."

REV. DR OSGOOD.

Writes—"That he considers 'CHERRY PECTORAL' the best medicine for Pulmonary Affections ever given to the public," and states that "his daughter after being obliged to keep the room four months with a severe settled cough, accompanied by raising of blood, night sweats, and the attendant symptons of Consumption, commenced the use of the 'CHERRY PECTORAL,' and had completely recovered."

HEAR THE PATIENT.

Dr. Ayer—Dear Sir: For two years I was afflicted with a very severe cough, accomanied by spitting of blood and profuse night sweats. By the advice of my attending physician I was induced to use your CHERRY PECTORAL, and continued to do so till I considered myself cured, and ascribe the effect to your preparation.

THE REMEDY THAT CURES.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan 10, 1847.

Dr. Ayer: I have been long afflicted with Asthma which grew yearly worse until last autumn, it brought on a cough which confined me in my chamber, and began to assume the alarming symptoms of consumption—I had tried the best advice and the best medicine to no purpose, until I used your CHERRY PECTORAL, which has cured me, and you may well believe me. Gratefully yours

MECHANICAL MEDICINE.

Dr. Banning, formerly of this city, asks to announce that he has returned to 341 Broadway; for consultation and management of weaknesses of the vocal, pulmonary, digestive, nervous, spinal and female systems; and also of the drooping, languor and physical deformities, which are so destructive of both health and beauty at the present day.

As these and kindred maladies are usually the result of a violation of the laws of physical organization, he will treat them chiefly by those exercises, mechanical appliances and reformatory habits of body, in conjunction with hydropathy galvanism and other discoveries of the day, which, united with the cooperative efforts of the subject, are calculated to relieve and restore the energies of the suffering and neglected organs.

Having spent several years in traveling for investigation and practical experiment on the subject, he has, at length, greatly improved and multiplied his surgical and mechanical appliances for the purpose. In addition to his new supports for female and spinal weaknesses, are some combining the properties of a universal hernial truss and an effective general support, with which he challenges cases of general debility, constipation, piles and prolapsus, ani, leucorrhea, prolapsus uteri and every variety of hernia.

The distinctive peculiarity of these devices is, that they do not weaken or restrain the motions or growth of the suffering parts, but act imitatively and concordantly with the mathematical genius of the body's forces. Hence, by a most comfortable and gentle pressure, they at once give great support and render the oppressed system eligible to its own restoration.

Feeble invalids coming from a distance will command prompt and faithful attention.

For more definite information, see his revised edition of "Animal Mechanics," and also his circular, which will be sent gratuitously when requested.

His improved body-braces, spinal supports and supporter trusses applied at his office (341 Broadway) and to be had wholesale and retail. City and country physicians and druggists are invited to call and examine. Office hours from 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. [121.

341 Broadway, New-York.

DOCTOR YOURSELF! FOR 25 CENTS!!!

BY MEANS OF THE POCKET ESCULAPIUS, or, Every one his own Physic an! Thirtieth edition, with upwards of a hundred engravings, showing private diseases in every shape and form, and malformations of the generative system,

BY WM. YOUNG, M. D.

The time has now arrived, that persons suffering from secret diseases, need no more become the victim of quackery as by the proscript ons contained in this book any one may cure himself, without hindrance to business, or the knowledge of the most intimate friend, and with one tenth the usual expense. In addition to the general routine of private disease, it fully explains the cause of manhood's early decline, with observations on marriage—besides many other derangements which it would not be proper to enumerate in the public prints.

☞ Any person sending TWENTY-FIFE CENTS enclosed in a letter, will receive one copy of this book, by mail, or five copies will be sent for one dollar. Address, "DR. W. YOUNG, No. 152 SPRUCE Street, PHILADELPHIA." Post paid

☞ DR. YOUNG can be consulted on any of the Diseases discribed in his different publications, at his Office, 152 SPRUCE Street, every day between 9 and 3 o'clock. (Sundays excepted.) [151.

FOR FEMALES AND MALES

Dr. Lazzetti's Juno Cordial, or Protective Elixir.

This is the only actual remedy ever discovered for impotency, Genital Debility, Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases occasioned by certain secret habits; and many of the nostrums recently recommended for the same complaints are worthless imitations which its unrivalled excellence, fame and popularity have brought into the market. The Medical Faculty of Europe and the United States are unanimous in their recommendations of the Juno Cordial and have not given their sanction in a single instance that has been authenticated, to any compound for the same purposes. The nature of the maladies relieved by the Juno Cordial are generally such as to leave the publication of certificates of cures out of the question, or the proprietor could produce a host of the most conclusive testimony to show that the great reputation that it enjoys was not accidentally obtained, but is firmly based upon its positive, and apparently miraculous virtues. In all directions are to be found the happy parents of healthy offspring, who would not have been so, but for this extraordinary preparption. And it is equally potent in the many diseases for which it is recommended. Objection has been naturally made to the price of the Juno Cordial, because the trash that has been thrown into the market in opposition to it is sold cheaper; but the fact is, the Cordial cannot be afforded for less, and ought to be much dearer, as many of the ingredients which compose it are among the costliest things in nature; whereas the others are made up of cheap drugs, worth but little in money, and less in merit. We assure the reader that the utmost reliance may be placed on the Juno Cordial in the cure of the maladies mentioned above, and also those that follow, viz: Loss of Muscular Energy, Physical Lassitude and General Prostration, Irritability, and all Nervous Affections, Indigestion, Sluggishness of the Liver, Gleet, Leucorrhoea or Whites, and Flour Albus and every disease in any way connected with the disorder of the Procreative Functions—in all of which it will afford almost immediate relief, and, if used as directed, is almost certain to produce a positive and permanent cure. Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness or disability of a certain nature, should take this Cordial, as it will infallibly restore health and vigor in a brief period, and where want of offspring is a cause of regret, if recourse be had to it the most beneficial results may be anticipated with confidence. It is of priceless value to those without offspring. It has taken the precedence in Italy and will in all other countries where it may become known.

It also possesses the unrivalled qualities of curing incipient Consumption, and I have administered it with great success to patients who have sought our delightful climate for the restoration of their health and the result is that a medicine has been added to the catalogue for the cure of insipient consumption.

To spread wide the blessings of this medicine, I have appointed Messrs Judson & Co. of the City of New York, in the United States of America, my sole Agents for its sale; and none can be genuine unless it comes through them, and their signature is on the wrapper

WONDERFUL CURES!

AND

CANCHALAGUA;

FOR THE COMPLETE CURE OF

Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Asthma, Bronchitis, Spitting of Blood, and all other Lung Complaints tending to CONSUMPTION.

NO OPIUM.

This syrup contains no Opium, Calomel, or any mineral whatever, but is composed entirely of those Roots, Herbs, and vegetable substances which have a specific influence upon the Lungs, and their connected organs. Its immediate effect is to allay all irritation, and gently remove the phlegm and other morbid secretions from the Throat and Air-Passages; thus relieving the Cough, by subduing the inflammation and other causes which give rise to it. It also stimulates and imparts a healthy tone to the lungs themselves, therereby enabling them more thoroughly to remove from the blood those impurities and diseased particles, which, if retained, do so much mischief in the system, and lay the foundation for incurable CONSUMPTION. It also exerts a decided action upon the skin, and assists nature in expelling, through the Exhalents, much of that morbid matter which would otherwise be thrown back upon the Lungs, thus relieving them of a part of their work, and rendering the system pure and healthy. When tubercles are forming, it checks their development and further progress; or if ulceration has taken place, it asssists the Lungs in throwing off the corrupted matter, soothes the irritation, heals the ulcerated cavities, and restores them again to healthy action. This Medicine, therefore, is not a palliative merely, which only relieves for the time being, but is a thorough curative, as it strikes at the very root of the disease, and by removing it, removes at once all its remote and attendant consequences. This is its distinguishing characteristic—a property possessed, in equal power, by no other medicine of like nature, now before the public.

CIRCULARS, &c

As no ordinary-sized advertisement can fully explain the nature and merits of this article the Proprietors have published a new Circular, giving the history of this Medicine: the description, nature &c., of its principal ingredients: the effect they are designed to have upon the Lungs and Liver, and a copious reference to the persons who have been cured by it—giving their names and residences, even to the street and the number. Those who are troubled with a Cough, or whose Lungs are in the least affected, are earnestly desired to call upon the Agents named below, and procure one of these Pamphlets. It can be had gratis, and will well repay a perusal. The "Hints on Health," and "About taking Cold," may be worth to yourself and family.

HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS,

in the the shape of Doctors' Bills saved, besides being the means of prolonging many a valuable life.

WARRANTY.

Such is our confidence in its virtues, that we are willing to warrant this Medicine in every case of recent Cold, (where used according to the Directions on page 7th of the pamphlet, inside the wrapper of each bottle,) and where the person is not satisfied that he is deriving benefit from it, by returning the bottle within 24 hours' time, will be returned. ☞ See page 3d of the pamphlet inside the wrapper of each bottle.

THE MONEY

☞ Be sure to ask for Dr. A Rogers' Syrup of LIVERWORT, TAR, and CANCHALAGUA, and let no other be palmed on to you.

CAUTION.—None genuine, unless there is on the buff wrapper a note of hand, signed with a Pen, by A. L. SCOVILL & CO.

FOR SALE, wholesale and retail, by A. L. SCOVILL & Co., Proprietors, at their Principal Depot, GOTHIC HALL, no 316 Broadway, New York, to whom all orders for the Medicine, and letters relating to agencies, should be addressed, post-paid.

Supplements to the Tax and School Laws.

A Supplement to the act entitled, "An act concerning Taxes," approved April fourteenth, eighteen hundred and forty-six.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That a poll tax of fifty cents shall be assessed upon every white male inhabitant of this state of the age of twenty-one years and upwards.

2. And be it enacted, That all lands and all personal estate within this state, whether owned by individuals or by corporations, shall be liable to taxation, subject to the exemptions herein after specified, and shall be assessed at the actual value thereof, at such rate per dollar as will be sufficient to produce the sum required, after deducting the poll tax.

3 And be it enacted, That the term real estate as used in this act, shall be construed to include all lands, all water power thereon or appurtenant thereto, and all buildings or erections, thereon, affixed to the same, trees and underwood growing thereon, and all mines, quarries, and all fisheries.

4. And be it enacted, That the term personal estate, as used in this act, shall be construed to include goods and chattles of every description, including steamboats and other vessels, money, debts due from solvent debtors, whether on contract, note, bond, or mortgage, public stocks and stocks in corporations, whether, within or without this state.

5 And be it enacted, That the following persons and property shall be exempt from taxation, viz:

I. The property of the United States and of the state of New Jersey, and of all the counties, townships, cities, and bouroughs in said state.

II. All colleges, academies, or seminaries of learning, public libraries, school houses, and all buildings erected and used for religious worship, the lands whereupon the same are erected, the furniture thereof, and the personal property used therein; pews in churches, grave yards not exceeding ten acres of ground, and all buildings erected and used exclusively for charitable purposes, with the lands on which they are erected and the furniture therein; also the engines and apparatus of any individual or company used for extinguishing fires.

III. The polls of all revolutionary soldiers.

IV. So much of the property of incorporated companies, represented by the capital stock thereof, as by virtue of this act is taxed in the hands of the stockholders.

V. The polls of persons who, by reason of age, infirmity, or poverty, are (in the judgment of the commissioners of appeal in cases of taxation) unable to pay taxes.

6. And be it enacted, that the personal tax shall be assessed upon each inhabitant liable to a personal tax in the township or ward where he resides at the time of the assessment; and every person shall be assessed in the township or ward where he resides when the assessment is made, for all lands then owned by him within said township or ward, either occupied by him or wholly unoccupied; and when the line between two townships or wards divides a farm or lot, the same shall be taxed, if occupied, in the township or ward where the occupant resides; and if unoccupied, each part shall be assessed in the township or ward in which the same shall lie, and this whether such division line be a township or ward line, or also a county line.

7. And be it enacted, That every person shall be assessed in the township or ward where he resides when the assessment is made, for all personal estate owned by him, including also all personal estate in his posession or under his control, as trustee, guardian, executor, or administrator: that the personal estate of every incorporated company liable to taxation shall be assessed in the township or ward where the principal office shall be; or if such company have no principal office or place of transacting its financial concerns, then in the township or ward where the operations of such company are carried on; and where the tolls of any bridge, turnpike, railroad, or canal company are collected in several townships or wards, the personal estate of such company shall be assessed in the township or ward in which the treasurer or other officer authorized to discharge the general pecuniary obligations of said company resides; and the real estate of incorporated companies liable to taxation shall be assessed in the township or ward in which the same shall lie, in the same manner as the real estate of individuals.

8. And be it enacted, That the assessor of every township or ward shall, between the days prescribed by law, annually ascertain, by diligent inquiry and according to the best of his ability, the names of all the taxable inhabitants in their respective townships or wards, and also all the taxable property, real and personal, within the same, and set down in his duplicate, in four seperate colnmns, and according to the best information in his power—

I. In the first column, the names of all the taxable inhabitants in the township or ward, as the case may be.

II. In the second column, the quantity of land to be taxed to each person.

III. In the third colbmn, the full ualue of such land, according to the definitien of the term real estate, as given in the third section of this act.

IV. In the fourth column, the value of all the taxable personable property owned by such person, and that from such valuation of real and personal estate there shall be deducted the whole amount of the debts due and oweing by the owner thereof.

9. And be it enacted, That where a person is assessed, as trustee, guardian, executor, or administrator, he shall be assessed as such with the addition to his name of his sepresentative character, and such assessment shall be carried out in a seperate line from his individual assessment; and in cases where the same property is held by several trustees, guardians, or executors, only one of them shall be taxed for the same, and such property shall be assessed in the hands of such one of said executors, or trustees, as have the actual possession guardians or or control of such property, or the bonds, mortgages, or other securities by which the same is held.

10. And be it enacted, That if any person, whose real or personal estate is liable to taxation, shall, at any time before the assessor hath completed his assessment, make oath or affirmation befere the assessor, who is hereby authorized to administer the same, that the value of his real and personal estate, after deducting his debts due and owing, does not exceed a certain sum, specifying the same, it shall be the duty of the assessor to value such real or personal estate, or both, as the case may be, at the sums specified in the affidavit, and no more.

11. And be it enacted, That when any person, objecting to such assessments, shall not previously have made affidavit concerning the value of his property, as aforesaid, he shall be at liberty to make such oath or affirmation before the commissioners of appeal in cases of taxation; and said commissioners, on such affidavit, shall reduce the assessment to the specified in the affidavit; and all affidavits mentioned in this and the next preceding section, shall be filed in the office of the clerk of said township or ward.

12. And be it enacted, That if the person objecting to the assessment can show, by other proof than his own affidavit to the satisfaction of the commissioners of appeal, or a majority of them, that such assessment is eroneous, the commisioners shall alter the same, without requiring the affidavit of the person objecting.

13. And be it enacted, That when any money shall be directed to be assessed for state or county purposes, it shall be the duty of the assessors of the several townships and wards, in every county, to meet at the time prescribed by law, in every year, at the place of holding the court of common pleas in such county, and then and there to ascertain the amount of the tax required by law to be rated in the assessment to be made, and to compute the value of the real and personal estates liable to taxation, as taken by the assessor of each township or ward, and thereby to fix and adjust the proportion or quota of tax to be levied and collected in each township or ward; and it shall be the duty of said assessors, at such meeting, to make out abstracts of the value of taxable real and personal property in each township or ward, which shall be signed by every assessor present, and on the same day delivered to the county collector, who shall lay one of the said abstracts before the legislature of the state, as now required by law; and the said assessor shall also within fifteen days after such meeting, deliver to the township collector a true transcript or duplicate of said assessment, as is now required.

14. And be it enacted, That all taxes assessed under this shall be collected in the manner provided in the act to which this is a supplement; and that all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act be, and the same are hereby repealed.

15 And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

A Suppplement to an act entitled, "An act to establish Public Schools."

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be the duty of the trustees of the school fund to appropriate in the manner provided for in the first section of the act to which this is a supplement, the sum of forty thousand dollars every year for the support of public schools in this state; which sum shall be apportioned among the several counties, in the ratio of the population thereof, as ascertained by the last preceding census.

2 And be it enacted, That the treasurer of this state is hereby directed to pay to the trustees of the school fund, on or before the first day of April, eighteen hundred and fifty-one, and on or before the first of April of every year thereafter, the sum of forty thousand dollars, to be appropriated by them, in addition to the forty thousand dollars appropriated out of the annual income of the school fund, for the support of public schools in this state.

3. And be it enacted, That in case the board of chosen freeholders in any county of this state shall neglect to appoint a board of examiners, then it shall be the duty of the town superintendent, in connection with the trustees of the several school districts in such county, to meet at such times, in any school district, as the town superintendent shall appoint, to examine and license by certificate, under the hands and seals of the said town superintendent and trustees, or a majority of such of them as shall attend at the time appointed, a suitable person or persons as teachers of public schools whithin said district, having regard always to their scholarship and moral character, which license shall be restricted to the district where the same may be given, and may be revoked and renewed at the pleasure of said town superintendent and trustees, or a majority of them; and no teacher shall be entitled to receive any amount of the public money, unles possessed of such license.

4. And be it enacted, That the board of chosen freeholders shall, in the manner directed by the third section of the act to which this is a supplement, apportion among the several townships in their respective counties the money received from the treasurer for public schools, in the ratio of the number of children between the ages of five and eighteen years, as shall be ascertained by the last annual returns made to the several town superintendents, a copy of which return shall be transmitted by the same town superintendents to the boards of chosen freeholders of the respective counties.

5. And be it enacted, That the district trustees shall, in the manner prescribed by the ninth section of the act to which this is a supplement, make out a list of the children between the ages of five and eighteen years, and transmit the same to the town superintendents; and apportionments of the school money shall be made by the town superintendents among the several school districts, in the ratio of the children therein between the ages of five and eighteen years, unless otherwise made, as herein after authorized.

6. And be it enacted, That the inhabitants of the several townships in this state are hereby authorized, at their annual town meetings; to raise, by tax or otherwise, in addition to the amount apportioned to their use, such further sum of money as they may deem proper for the support of public schools, not exceeding theree dollars for each child contained in the list transmitted by the several district trustees to the town superintendents in the year previous to holding said town meetings; and it shall be the duty of the several town superintendents to report to the said townmeetings the number of said children.

7. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the trustees of the several school districts to apply the money apportioned to their respective districts, or raised therein, to the establishing and maintenance of free schools in said district, in which shall be taught, free of charge, all the children between the ages of five and eighteen desirous of attending the same, except such part thereof as shall be otherwise applied by virtue of the provisons herein contained.

8. And be it enacted, That the taxable inhabitants of the several school districts shall, at their annual district meetings, elect by plurality of votes, three persons, being residents and tax payers in said district, to be trustees of said districts; and, at the first election held after this act shall take effect, they shall elect one of said trustees to hold his office for one year, one to hold his offiice for two years, and one to hold his office for three years, and afterwards one trustee shall be elected annually, to hold his office for threee years, and in case of any vacancy, the same shall be filled by the election of a trustee to hold for the unexpired term; provided, that the trustees may fill a vacancy by choosing a trustee to hold his office until the next annual meeting.

9. And be it enacted, That when the trusteees of any school districts shall desire to become incorporated, they shall adopt a name, and, together with the town superintendent of the township or townships in which said district is situated, they shall make and sign a certificate containing a description of the boundaries of said district, and the name by them adopted, which certificate shall be recorded by the clerk of the county within which said district is situated, and thereupon the said trustees and their successors shall, by the name so adopted, be a body politic and corporate, capable of suing and being sued, of making and using a common seal, of taking and holding such real estate as may be necessary for school houses, and of disposing thereof, and of taking, holding, and disposing of any other estate, real and personal, that may be devised, bequeathed, or given to them for the use of public schools in said district.

10. And it enacted, That whenever the trustees of any school district shall bococome incorporated, the said district shall not be abolished or altered without the consent of a majority of the taxable inhabitants of said district; and in case the same shall be abolished or altered, the town superintendents and the trustees shall make and sign a certificate thereof, and have the same recorded by the clerk of the county in which said district is situate.

11. And be it enacted, That in case the trustees of any incorporated shool district shall desire to purchase land, to build a school house thereon, or to build or enlarge a school house, or to expend in repairs a larger sum in any one year than twenty dollars, or to pay existing debts, or to dispose of or mortgage a school house, or to raise additional money for such purposes, or for maintaining free schools in said district, such trustees may call a meeting of the taxable inhabitants of said district, at some public place therein, by notices, signed by at least two of said trustees, setting forth the time and place and the purpopses of such meeting, and set up in at least three public places in said district ten days before the day of meeting; and the said inhabitants, so met shall have power, by the consent of two thirds of those present, to authorize the trusteess of said district to purchase land, to build a school house thereon, or to build, or enlarge, repair, sell, or mortgage a school house or school houses, and to appropriate the money apportioned to said district, or any part thereof, for that purpose, or to borrow money therefor, and to raise by taxation any such sum of money as two-thirds of the inhabitants so assembled shall agree too, in addition to the money apportioned to said district; and in case any money shall be ordered by a vote of two thirds of said meeting to be raised by taxation, two, at least, of said trustees shall make out and sign a certificate thereof, under oath or affirmation, that the same is correct and true, and deliver the same to the assessor or assessors of the township or townships in which said district is situate; which said assessor or assessors shall assess on the estates of the inhabitants of said school district, and on all lands liable to be taxed therein, in the same manner as township taxes are assessed, such sum of money as shall have been ordered to be raised by the said meeting, in the manner aforesaid; which said money shall be assessed, levied, and collected at the time, and in the same manner as other township moneys are or may be assessed levied, and collected; and it shall be the duty of the collector or collectors of the township or townships in which said district is situate to pay over all moneys by him or them received, which shall have been assessed by virtue of such vote of a district meeting as aforesaid, to the superintendents of the township or townships in which said district is situate, for the use of said district, to be paid out, on the order of the trustees thereof, for the purposes directed by the district meeting so held as aforesaid.

12. And be it enacted, That the state superintendent of public schools shall have power to decide any disputes or controversies that may arise respecting the true construction of this act and the act to which this is a supplement, and his decision, made in writing, and by him signed, and approved in writing by the attorney general, and delivered to any town superintendent or district trustee, shall be conformed to by all persons having notice thereof, until a different decision shall be made by the supreme court or any circuit court of this state.

13. And be it enacted, That so much of the act to which this is a supplement, or any other act, as conflicts with the provisions herein contained, is hereby repealed; provided, that nothing in this supplement contained shall repeal or alter the provisions of any act providing for or regulating public schools, or taxation for school pusposes, in any particular city, borough, township, ward, or district of this state.

14. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

☞ Forty-six years ago a man was executed in France for robbery of the Lyons mail and murder of a passenger. His innocence was subsequently made manifest, and a report to the national assembly recommends a proclamation of his innocence, and the restoration of the forfeited property to his family.

Wanted—An Honest, Industrious Boy.

We lately saw an advertisment headed as above. It conveys to every boy an impressive moral.

"An honest, industrious boy," is always wanted. He will be sought for; his services will always be in demand; he will be spoken of in terms of high commendation; he will always have a home; he will grow up to be a man of known worth and established character.

He will be wanted. The merchant will want him for a salesman or a clerk; the master mechanic will want him for an apprentice or a journeyman; those with a job to let will want him for a contractor; clients will want him for a lawyer; patients will want him for a doctor; religious congregations for a pastor; parents for a teacher of their children; and the people for an officer.

He will be wanted. Townsmen will want him as a citizen; acquaintances as a neighbor; neighbors as a freind; families as a visitor; the world as an acquaintance; nay, girls will want him for a beau, and finally for a husband.

An honest, industrious boy! Just think of it, boys, will you answer the description? Can you apply for this situation; are you sure that you will be wanted? You may be smart and active, but that does not fill the requisition—are you HONEST? You may be capable—are you INDUSTRIOUS? You may apply for a good situation—are you sure that your friends, teachers, and acquaintances can recommend you for these qualities? Oh, how would you feel, your character not being thus established, on hearing the words, "can't employ you?" Nothing else will make up for the lack of these qualities. No readiness or aptness for business will do it. You must be honest and industrious—must work and labor—then will your "calling and election" for places of profit and trust be maae sure.

A LEGAL DECISION.—A Farmer, at the West, had remarked during the sittings of the circuit court, a part of his corn field to be beaten down in a regular track of ten or ten twelve paces in length, as if by the raging of some animal to and fro. Anxious to detect the cause, he ensconced himself one day among the thick leaves and observed, about the hour of adjournment, one of the judges cautiously approaching the spot. Arriving at the path, he commenced pacing it gravely up and down, with knit brow and air of cogitation, and at length, drawing a chip from his pocket, he spit on one side of it, ballanced it an instant on his finger, flipped it up in the air, and watching its descent intently, exclaimed as it fell: "Wet for defendent—Dry for plaintiff;" and the stooping down: "Plaintiff has it!" The farmer avoided all litigation from that moment.

DON'T YOU DO IT.—When you are offered a great bargain, the value of which you know nothing about but which you are to get for half price, "being it's you," don't you do it.

When a clique of warm friends want you to start a paper to forward a particular set of views, and promise you a large quantity of fortune, and fame, to be gained in the undertaking, don't you do it.

When a young lady catches you alone, lays violent eyes upon you, expressing "pop" in every glance, don't you do it.

When a petulant individual politely observes to you—"You had better eat me up, had'nt you?" don't you do it.

When a horse kicks you, and you feel a strong inclination to kick back again, don't you do it.

When you are shinning it very expeditiously round town, in search of somebody with something over, who can assist you to a loan, and you are suddenly anticipated by somebody who wants to borrow from you, don't you do it.

Should you happen to catch yourself whistling in a printing offiice, and the compositors tell you to whistle louder, don't you do it.

If on an odd occasion your wife should exclaim to you—"Now tumble over the cradle and break your neck, do," don't you do it.

When you have any business to transact with a modern financier, and he asks you to go and dine with him, don't you do it.

The Generous Blacksmith.

Mr. Wilson passed late one evening by a blacksmih shop, and hearing the sound of the hammer much later than usual, stepped in to inquire the cause. The man told him that one of his neighbors had just been burned out, and had lost everything—and he had undertaken to work an hour earlier in the morning, and an hour later at night, to help him.

'This is kind in you,' said M. Wilson; 'for I suppose your neighbor will never be able to pay you again.'

I do not expect it, replied the blacksmith; 'but if I were in his sitution, and, he in mine I, am sure he would do as much for me.'

The next morning Mr. Wilson called and offered to lend the blacksmith fifty dollars without interest, so that he might be able to buy his iron cheaper. But the man refused to take it; yet told Mr. Wilson that if he would lend it to the man whose house was burned down, it would go far toward helping him rebuild his cottage. To this Mr. Wilson consented, and had the pleasure of making two men happy.

To-Day.

It is the golden fruit which hangs within my reach. I may pluck it, and secure its blessings; I may neglect it, and lose those blessings. It has duties which cannot be done to-morrow, and privileges which never will be found in the future. The wise man will not leave until to-morrow what he can do to-day, but will improve the present opporutnity. If he has a soul to save, a heaven to gain, a race to run, a crown to win, he will make the most of the present moment. "To-day," will be his motto.—"To-day," will his effort be put forth; and if possible, his success will be secured to-day. Yesterday is gone bearing with it all its joys, and griefs; tomorrow has not come, may never come. To-day I have—to-day I will improve.

Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the state of New Jersey, That no more than one indictment shall be presented against any person at the same term of the court for offences against the provisions of the act entitled "An Act concerning Inns and Taverns," or against the provisions of any of the supplements thereto: provided that nothing herein contained shall prevent any number of offences against the provisions of said act and supplements from being included in the same indictment; nor to prevent the court from imposing the fine of twenty dollars provided by law for each offence of which any person shall be convicted upon one indictment.

Approved, March 19. 1851.

For the Plainfield Gazette.

MESSRS EDITORS:—Your compositor ought to have made three paragraphs in stead of two, of the form of W. M. D's argument, as laid down in the article furnished by me; and published in the Gazette March 27th: see the manuscript.

In reply to W. M. D. I wish to say, I have not attempted to draw any inference, or establish any conclusion whatever, from his position—he has quite mistaken the case. What I undertook to do was, to show what premises his conclusion was necessarily based upon. Things so unlike should not be confounded. In W. M. D's argument, or statements the second, and third propositions of the syllogisms are (in substance) set forth. And if they are known to be true it depends on the fact, that the truth of a foregoing proposition has been proved. This is a simple matter and easy to be understood, if we do not look to high for it, or get confused in our own thoughts, in trying to get hold of it. Let us try to simplify the subject in hand, thus—suppose one to say, that man's experience proves, that nature's laws never can be suspended, reversed or destroyed, and that therefore, all accounts of any events of that kind must be false, is it not plain, that, if the statement be known to be true it must be so known because, the experience of man assures him, that there is no power in the universe, that ever can be employed to suspend reverse or destroy the laws of nature, but what, has in the experience of man been known to have been thus employed to its utmost, without effect. It indeed appears so to me. I can see no false issue here. Nor does W. M. D's extended quotation from his first article vary his position a single shade from the light in which I represented it; only in the way of obscuring, and rendering it indefinite and confused. W. M. D. says "We would ever prefer that our own words are given when a deduction or corollary is infered therefrom." I have made no such use of his words. And besides I did give all his words to which I raised any objection, and that too in their most obvious sense, as used by himself. Did W. M. D. expect me to copy his article entire? I see no occasion for his implication that I had not fairly represented his position, or principles. As to the relevency (to this argument) of the proposition which I held W. M. D under obligation to prove I am content to let our readers judge. But if he or any other man will show it to be true I pledge my word that I will forthwith abjure my faith in the Bible, as boldy as W. M. D. has signified that he has no faith in that book. And in order to facilitate the labors of my opponent, I will, for argument sake (but not in fact) admit that so far as man's experience extends, the laws of nature have always acted with unfailing uniformity. I believe this is all W.M. D. pretends as to the matter-of-fact in man's experience. It will of course not be necessary for him to republish, and repeat, either in the same or other words, his declaration on that point. This reiteration of these things is of no service. If I could be induced to give such a fact the value that W. M. D. does, I would do it at once; but I can not: and however variously he may state, or frequently urge this kind of proof of the immutability of the laws of nature I shall deny its sufficiency to meet the case. Were it a fact that man's experience did not acquaint him with any power that could destroy the laws of nature, I deny that it would be proof that no such power exists—I deny that man's ignorance of the existence of such a power is proof that no such power exists. If it were, then, when a man affirms on the ground of experience that the world is flat, and does not turn over, he has proved his declaration: for he has no experience of that sort. Suppose the whole family of man then on the earth, had been assembled five hundred years ago, and the question had been put to them, whether according to their experience, such an instrument as Morse's Telegraph, would ever or could ever be employed to do just what it now does must not their answer have been "No?" It must. And that would have been just as strong proof that no such instrument ever could be made to do what is now done by that, as the experience of man now can furnish that no power exists adequate to destroy the laws of nature. So far as it can affect this argument I may tearlessly admit (though I no not) that no law of nature ever has been or ever will be destroyed—that these laws are perfect, in the sense, in which W. M. D. uses that word, that is, that no necessity ever can arise requiring their destruction; and yet in spite of all this with good reason affirm that a power may exist, which is adequate to destroy them. For a power may exist, capable of destroying the laws of nature, or of affecting any other result, and yet not be employed for that purpose, or accomplish that end. It will not meet the case therefore for W. M. D. to say that fire ever wll burn—water seek a level and refuse to run up hill. All that may be true and yet his task is not done, no, nor begun. I have not affirmed that a power does exist adequate to destroy the laws of nature, as W. M. D. seems to think, when he repeats. If L. C. can proove this, that and the other, I hope he will not expect to make our readers, or myself, fancy, that I am in the affirmative in this debate. Should I however, make such an affirmation (which possibly I may at some subsequent stage of this discussion, if it shall appear requisite, I will try to make my affirmation good. I may also hereafter take notice of W. M. D's inappropriate bold and untimely assault upon the Saviour and his apostle, Paul, in respect to their teachings, pertaining to the resurection of the dead. But at present, I shall not be diverted from the point under examination whatever exciting or irrevelent topics W. M. D. may see fit to bring in or obtrude upon the attention of our readers. W. M. D. suggests (as if he would befriend me) that I seeing the incontestibility of the point in hand must give it up and attempt to assail some other point less impregnable. That there may be weaker points in his argument than the one I have assailed I do not deny, and if I only sought a victory, without any regard to whether it were any way important, or honorable to the victor, it might be advisable to seek the earliest victory practicable. But such is not my object. I think the value of a victory in this engagement is identified with its being gained at this point, which is weak enough for a victory gained at it to reflect any credit on him who gains it. So it is no favor to me for W, M. D. to suggest an assault of the weaker points, nor is his intimation as to those weaker points much in his favor. Verily W. M. D's position is quite pregnable enough to suit the fancy or court the attack of almost any assailant. To hear a man talk of this, or that principle, or law of nature, being immutable, or eternal, basing his assumptions on man's experience! What does man know of eternity by experience—If the laws of nature have acted with unvarying uniformity through the whole course of man's existence on the earth, what is that to eternity? It is no more, no not so much to eternity as the arrows flight is to the whole course of time. Oh! the amazing arrogance of short lived, and shortsighted man. What does he know of the infinite forces, and powers which may exist in the universe. No W. M. D you have not met this point yet, you have not attended to the discharge of the obligations you have taken upon yourself—No sir, notwithstanding you have informed me that Clergymen generally assume the major proposition, your cause is not gained; for your principles and mine, do not allow such exclusive privileges to those gentlemen, nor shall I permit you to enjoy them. No sir, we must have the proof of the major proposition, before anything else can be attended to—Nor, though you have imformed me that an eminent Professor of Astronomy (and I suppose you would class him with Clergymen) has been teaching some Theological body, that the sytem of the universe has from time immemorial continued to roll on in one ceaseless round, you have not yet gained the summit level of your duty. For with you and me the word of a clergyman without other evidence is of no more weight than the word of any other man unless it should happen that we should have reason to think the Clergyman was a better and wiser man than the other, which is not always the case you will probably admit. If then W. M. D. will attend to this point, and show me how it is, that, the brief experience of man authorizes him to declare, that no power exists, that can destroy the laws of nature, or reverse, or suspend them, I shall be obliged to him. And while I shall not hesitate to hold him to his task, and put the labor on him, by presenting all the difficulties against his views which suggest themselves to me as of real weight, I do not intend that any man shall out-do me, in the actual generosity with which he treats his opponent, or in the ingenuousness with which he meets handles, or contemplates his antagonists arguments.

To the Editor of the "Gazette."

SIR;—Will you permit me through your columns to give expression to my feelings of gratitude to the very many generous and kindhearted inhabitants of this district, who have indeed, proved themselves, in the Scripture sense of the word, NEIGHBORS, to me and my family, in our time of trial and need. Many of them are, even by name unknown to me, but their sympathizing, generous liberality has made an impression upon my mind, which words, at least, such as I can command, would but feebly convey; it will not however, I trust, ever be obliterated; I can only say I thank them and you. Yours, very respectfully,

TAOMAS A. MORTON.

Boston, March 31st.—The grand jury of the United States District Court have found indictments against all those who were bound over by Commissioner Hallett, for having been connected with the rescue of Shadrach the fugitive.

Three Specifics Blended.

Liverwort and Tar have both been held to be sure remedies for Coughs Colds, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, and almost every other variety of disease that assails the breathing apparatus. But the compound was imperfect, until the great California Tonic and febrifuge, which strengthens without exciting, was added to the first named ingredients. When, under the skilful manipulations of Dr. Rogers, the triplicate of vegetable curatives became one in his Syrup of Liverwort, Tar and Canchalagua, the absolute cure of all Lung complaints tending to, and terminating in Consumption, became a thing of certainty. As yet, there have been few failures, but the cures, well attested, are of ample record. Evidence of the highest character is offered in the pamphlet in the hands of Agents, and in an advertisement in this week's paper.

April 3.

☞ We invite the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, in the columns of our paper, as a remedy of the first importance to the comunity. The certificates published in its favor are not from unknown names, but from eminent and widely celebrated men.—Statesmen, Professors, Clergmen and Physicians give their strong assurance that this new medicine for the cure of pulmonary disease, can be relied on with confidence by the affected for relief, and, we truly hope its results in our section, will sustain the conclusons elsewhere.

The continued success of this Magazine presents the strongest motives to the Publishers to make it still more worthy of the unprecedented favor with which it has been received by the public The present number is embellished with the portraits of the eminent American writers Irving and Bryant, and a view of their residences, accompanied with original sketches of their literary character. Others, names names distinguished in letters and science, will be made the subject of articles and pictorial illustrations in subsequent numbers

The circulation of the Magazine is now SIXTY THOUSAND, and is regularly extending in every part of the Union. No effort will be spared to render it a great National Work, both in regard to the richness and variety of its contents and its adaptation to the wants of the American mind. The utmost care will be taken to present a faithful and pleasing picture of the current literature, while nothing will be admitted which can offend the most fastidious taste or the nicest sense of morality. As an agreable and instructive publication for family reading in any portion of our vast Republic, the Publishers are detrmined that it shall be without a superior in the literature of the world

Each number of the Magazine will contain 144 pages octavo, in double columns The volumes of a single year, therefore, will present nearly two thousand pages of the choicest of the Miscellaneous Literature of the age A carefully prepared Fashion Plate, and other pictorial illustrations, will accompany each number.

Terms—Three Dollars a year or Twenty-five Cents a Number. The First Volume, is now ready, neatly bound in Muslin, at Two Dollars The Work may be obtained of Booksellers and Periodical Agents, and of the Publishers.

Liberal arrangemts will be made with the Trade, with Postmasters, and with Agents for efforts in circulating the Work, and Specimen Numbers will be supplied gratuitously to them.

The Publishers will supply Mail and City Subscribers when payment is made to them in advance —Clubs supplied upon liberal terms Muslin Covers for each volume will be furnished by the Publishers and Agents at Twenty-five Cents each.

Persons desiring the Work early will please to furnish their names and address to the Agents. Orders for Numbers from the commencement can now be supplied

PATENT INDEPENDENT HORSERAKE,

In the Counties of Somerset, Middlesex, Essex, Hudson, Bergen and Passaic, and will have them ready ready by the 1st of May.

This Rake was patented by Calvin Delano, of East Livermore, Maine, Feb. 27 1649 It is fitted to the hind wheels of a Single Horse Wagon, and attended by a man or boy who can RIDE AND RAKE, and manage the horse with ease and certainty.

Each Tooth acts separately and independently, its head being suspended on a rod or hinge over the Axletree, one Tooth being attached to each head. It is equally applicable to ROUGH AND SMOOTH LAND, and applies with equal pressure on each kind of surface.

Premiums and Diplomas were awarded it in the Fall of 1847 and 1848, by the Kennebec and Franklin Counties Agricultural Societies. Its utility has been tested by more than 100 Farmers in the State of Maine, who have certified to its superiority over all other Horse Rakes.

Francis F. Haines of East Livermore, authorized by the Patentee, will dispose of the Patent Right, within and for the States of New-Jersey and Pennsylvania, by Counties or Towns on very liberal terms.

☞ All infringements on the Patent Right of the above Invention will be prosecuted, without favor, to final judgment. CALVIN DELANO, Patentee.

PROFESSOR A. C. BARRY'S TRICOPHEROUS,

or Medicated Compound.

FOR RESTORING, PRESERVING, AND beautifying hair eradicating scurf and dandruff, and curing diseases of the skin, glands and muscles, stings, cuts, bruises, sprains, &c., &c. It has been ascertained by experiment that

Barry's Tricopherous,

has produced the same effect in curing disease of the skin, &c, of the Horse and all the animal kingdom.

The following testimonials, selected from hundreds of similar import, will serve to show the value of the preparation, and the estimation in which it is held by those who have given it a trial:

NEW-YORK, Sept 22. 1850.

Prof. Barry—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted with a cutaneous eruption of the scalp of a most aggravated character for the last sixteen years, and during that period I have had the advice of some of the most eminent physicians, and have tried all the preparations for the hair and skin now known, without the least benefit. I was advised by a friend to try your Tricopherous I did so, as a last resort, and, to my surprise and gratification, found myself cured in about two months Such was the violence of the disorder that at times I was partially blind.

Respectfully yours,
G. V. M. RAPELYE, 148 Columbia-st.
Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Oct 23d 1850.

Prof. Barry—My Dear Sir: About two years ago my hair came out a great deal, and my head was much affected with dandruff. I was told by a friend to try your Tricopherous, and I did so, and to my astonishment my hair was firmly rooted, and all the dandruff disappeared, as the head now shews for itself

With respect I am your obedient servant,
J. S. TREADWELL, 633 Broadway.

[From the Military & Naval Argus, Nov. 9th.]

There is no remedy for the permanent cure of baldness and diseases of the cranium generally, that has reached the popularity enjoyed by the article known as Professor Barry's Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound. It is extensively used by the upper classes of the community; in almost every nursery in the land it is used in preference to other articles of the kind. It imparts vigor to the roots of the hair, and thus promotes its growth to a remarkable degree. It destroys dandruff and scurf, and yields the hair fine and glossy It will cure all diseases of the scalp such as scald head, dew worm, and other obnoxious disorderders of the skin; in cheapness, as well as efficacy, it stands unrivaled It is sold in large bottles, price 25 cents at No 137 Broadway, and at the druggists' generally throughout the United States and Canadas. THE NEW JERSEY

HORSE POWER

Manufacturing Company.

HAVING improved, strengthened and perfected A. D. CRANE'S Patent Horse Power, are now prepared to furnish the same to all who may want.

This Power consists of an endless floor running over a series of pulleys, connected by cranks, without a rack or cog wheel about it: none being required from the fact, that the weight of the horse on the floor or platform causes sufficient adhesion between it and the pulleys to transmit all the power he is able to give Also by this arrangement the chain is freed from the draught or strain (which cannot be avoided in any other Stall Power) except, what is reqired to pass the floor around. The requisite speed is obtained direct from the machine thereby avoiding a great amount of friction and wear, and lessening the liability to get out of order. They run so easily as to require less than an inch elevation to the foot. A self acting brake is attached by which the motion is kept regular and uniform even when the work is unsteady and irregular.

From the above description it is evident that this is the most simple and efficient Power known.

They are highly recommended by those who have used them, for driving Circular Saws, Lathes, Drilling Machines, Threshers, Grist Mills, Pumps, &c.

The Company have certificates to prove the above and also to show that the Two Horse Power will grind 40 bushels of Corn to Meal (with Platt's Patent Mill,) in a day of ten hours, making it an invaluable Power for the Southern planter as well as others.

It has taken Silver Medals at the different Fairs where exhibited, and the only one given to Horse Powers by the American Institute last fall.

They also furnish Threshers of the most approved construction.

Price of Single Power with Belt, $75; Double do. with Belt, $110; Thresher and Separator, $35.

HERNIA.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.—This disorder, of very frequent occurrence, may be considered as arising through weakness of the abdominal walls, inducing an enlargement in the natural openings formed therein for the transmission of blood and other vessels; such openings being enlarged, permit the escape of bowels or other viscera of the abdomen, devolving hernial swellings or rupture, which most generally occur outwardly, as at the navel, groins and thighs.

The complaint is likely to happen at birth, and therefore should be carefully looked for by those having the charge of children, that it may be arrested and cured promptly. It also occurs at any period of life, to either sex, without regard to the condition or mode of living, and when found, should be attended to without delay—the final penalty being death, and that may be induced through strangulation at any momennt.

RUPTURES, are always to be treated with the surgical instruments known as Trusses and Supporters, and these require to be skillfully applied. With this view, the HULL'S TRUSS OFFICE, now established some thirty years, has under the various managers, presented to the public both male and female attendants to apply its instruments directly to the persons, which is preferable in all cases, and has also made improvement at different times, showing that advancement which study and practice only yield toward the relief of this malady.

With much pleasure the fact is now published, that recent improvements BUTLER'S TRUSS PADS have been made, and sufficiently tested upon numerous cases to warrant, through the cures already affected, their submission to the public, as being in adaptation and efficiency superior to any heretofore made known.

These improvements, recently patented, are now being applied at this office, 4 Vesey street, in cases of rupture, gravitation of the bowels, prolapsus uteri, prolapsus ani and piles.

The public may rely upon that care being made in their application, which will most likely tend to the final cure of the several complaints.

Hull's Truss Office, 4 Vesey street, Astor House, opposite St. Paul's Church, New-York.

GREAT COUGH REMEDY!

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

In offering to the community this justly celebrated remedy for disease of the throat and lungs, it is not our wish to trifle with the lives or health of the afflicted, but frankly to lay before them the opinions of distinguished men and some of the evidences of its success, from which they can judge for themselves. We sincerely pledge ourselves to make no wild assertions or false statemements of its efficacy, nor will we hold out any hope to suffering humanity which facts will not warrant.

Many proofs are here given, and we solicit an inquiry from the public into all we publish, feeling assured they will find them perfectly reliable, and the medicine worthy their best confidence and patronage.

FROM BENJ. SILLIMAN, M. D., L. L. D., &c.,
Professsor of Chemistry, Mineralogy, &c., Yale College. Member of the Lit. Hist Med. Phil. and Scien. Societies of America and Europe.

"I deem the CHERRY PECTORAL an admirable composit on from some of the best articles in the Materia Medica, and a very effective remedy for the class of diseases it is intended to cure."

New Hiven. Ct., Nov. 1, 1849.

Prof CLEAVELAND, of Bowdoin College, Me. Writes—"I have witnessed the effects of your "CHERRY PECTORAL" in my own family and that of my friends and it gives me satifaction to state in its favor that no medicine I have ever known has proved so eminently successful in curing diseases of the throat and lungs."

REV. DR OSGOOD.

Writes—"That he considers 'CHERRY PECTORAL' the best medicine for Pulmonary Affections ever given to the public," and states that "his daughter after being obliged to keep the room four months with a severe settled cough, accommpanied by raising of blood, night sweats, and the attendant symptons of Consumption, commenced the use of the 'CHERRY PECTORAL,' and had completely recovered."

HEAR THE PATIENT.

Dr. Ayer—Dear Sir: For two years I was afflicted with a very severe cough, accomanied by spitting of blood and profuse night sweats By the advice of my attending physician I was induced to use your CHERRY PECTORAL, and continued to do so till I considered myself cured, and ascribe the effect to your preparation.

MECHANICAL MEDICINE.

Dr. Banning, formerly of this city, asks to announce that he has returned to 341 Broadway; for consultation and management of weaknesses of the vocal, pulmonary, digestive, nervous, spinal and female systems; and also of the drooping, languor and physical deformities, which are so destructive of both health and beauty at the present day.

As these and kindred maladies are usually the result of a violation of the laws of physical organization, he will treat them chiefly by those exercises, mechanical appliances and reformatory habits of body, in conjunction with hydropathy galvanism and other discoveries of the day, which, united with the cooperative efforts of the subject, are calculated to relieve and restore the energies of the suffering and neglected organs.

Having spent several years in traveling for investigation and practical experiment on the subject, he has, at length, greatly improved and multiplied his surgical and mechanical appliances for the purpose. In addition to his new supports for female and spinal weaknesses, are some combining the properties of a universal hernial truss and an effective general support, with which he challenges cases of general debility, constipation, piles and prolapsus, anal, leucorrhea, prolapsus uteri and every variety of hernia.

The distinctive peculiarity of these devices is, that they do not weaken or restrain the motions or growth of the suffering parts, but act imitatively and concordantly with the mathematical genius of the body's forces. Hence, by a most comfortable and gentle pressure, they at once give great support and render the oppressed system eligible to its own restoration.

Feeble invalids coming from a distance will command prompt and faithful attention.

For more definite information, see his revised edition of "Animal Mechanics," and also his circular, which will be sent gratuitously when requested.

His improved body-braces, spinal supports and supporter trusses applied at his office (341 Broadway) and to be had wholesale and retail. City and country physicians and druggists are invited to call and examine Office hours from 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. [121.

341 Broadway, New-York.

DOCTOR YOURSELF!

FOR 25 CENTS!!!

BY MEANS OF THE POCKET ESCULAPIUS, or, Every one his own Physician! Thirtieth edition, with upwards of a hundred engravings, showing private diseases in every shape and form, and malformations of the generative system,

BY WM. YOUNG, M, D.

The time has now arrived, that persons suffering from secret diseases, need no more become the victim of quackery as by the prescriptions contained in this book any one may cure himself, without hindrance to business, or the knowledge of the most intimate friend, and with one tenth the usual expense. In addition to the general routine of private disease, it fully explains the cause of manhood's early decline, with observations on marriage—besides many other derangements which it would not be proper to enumerate in the public prints.

☞ Any person sending TWENTY-FIFE CENTS enclosed in a letter, will receive one copy of this book, by mail, or five copies will be sent for one dollar. Address, "DR. W YOUNG, No. 152 SPRUCE Street, PHILADELPHIA." Post paid.

☞ DR. YOUNG can be consulted on any of the Diseases discribed in his different publications, at his Office, 152 SPRUCE Street, every day between 9 and 3 o'clock, (Sundays excepted) [151.

FOR FEMALES AND MALES

Dr. Lazzetti's Juno Cordial, or Protective Elixir.

This is the only actual remedy ever discovered for impetency, Genital Debility, Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases occasioned by certain secret habits; and many of the nostrums recently recommended for the same complaints are worthless imitations which its unrivalled excellence, fame and popularity have brought into the market. The Medical Faculty of Europe and the United States are unanimous in their recommendations of the Juno Cordial and have not given their sanction in a single instance that has been authenticated, to any compound for the same purposes. The nature of the maladies relieved by the Juno Cordial are generally such as to leave the publication of certificates of cures out of the question, or the proprietor could produce a host of the most conclusive testimony to show that the great reputation that it enjoys was not accidentally obtained, but is firmly based upon its positive, and apparently miraculous virtues. In all directions are to be found the happy parents of healthy offspring, who would not have been so, but for this extraordinary preparption. And it is equally potent in the many diseases for which it is recommended. Objection has been naturally made to the price of the Juno Cordial, because the trash that has been thrown into the market in opposition to it is sold cheaper; but the fact is, the Cordial cannot be afforded for less, and ought to be much dearer, as many of the ingredients which compose it are among the costliest things in nature; whereas the others are made up of cheap drugs, worth but little in money, and less in merit. We assure the reader that the utmost reliance may be placed on the Juno Cordial in the cure of the maladies mentioned above, and also those that follow, viz: Loss of Muscular Energy, Physical Lassitude and General Prostration, Irritability, and all Nervous Affections, Indigestion, Sluggishness of the Liver, Gleet, Lucorrhoea or Whites, and Flour Albus and every disease in any way connected with the disorder of the Procreative Functions—in all of which it will afford almost immediate relief, and, if used as directed, is almost certain to produce a positive and permanent cure Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness or disability of a certain nature, should take this Cordial, as it will infallibly restore health and vigor in a brief period, and where want of offspring is a cause of regret, if recourse be had to it the most beneficial results may be anticipated with confidence It is of priceless value to those without off-spring. It has taken the precedence in Italy and will in all other countries where it may become known

To spread wide the blessings of this medicine, I have appointed Messrs Judson & Co, of the City of New York, in the United States of America, my sole Agents for its sale; and none can be genuine unless it comes through them, and their signature is on the weapper

WONDERFUL CURES!

AND

CANCHALAGUA;

FOR THE COMPLETE CURE OF

Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Asthma, Bronchitis, Spitting of Blood, and all other Lung Complaints tending to CONSUMPTION.

NO OPIUM.

This syrup contains no Opium, Calomel, or any mineral whatever, but is composed entirely of those Roots, Herbs, and vegetable substances which have a specific influence upon the Lungs, and their connected organs. Its immediate effect is to allay all irritation, and gently remove the phlegm and other morbid secretions from the Throat and Air-Passages; thus relieving the Cough, by subduing the inflammation and other causes which give rise to it. It also stimulates and imparts a healthy tone to the lungs themselves, thereby enabling them more thoroughly to remove from the blood those impurities and diseased particles, which, if retained, do so much mischief in the system, and lay the foundation for incurable CONSUMPTION. It also exerts a decided action upon the skin, and assists nature in expelling, through the Exhalents, much of that morbid matter which would otherwise be thrown back upon the Lungs, thus relieving them of a part of their work, and rendering the system pure and healthy. When tubercles are forming, it checks their development and further progress; or if ulceration has taken place, it assists the Lungs in throwing off the corrupted matter, soothes the irritation, heals the ulcerated cavities, and restores them again to healthy action. This Medicine, therefore, is not a palliative merely, which only relieves for the time being, but is a thorough curative, as it strikes at the very root of the disease, and by removing it, removes at once all its remote and attendant consequences. This is its distinguishing characteristic—a property possessed, in equal power, by no other medicine of like nature, now before the public.

CIRCULARS, &c.

As no ordinary-sized advertisement can fully explain the nature and merits of this article, the Proprietors have published a new Circular, giving the history of this Medicine; the description, nature &c., of its principal ingredients; the effect they are designed to have upon the Lungs and Liver, and a copious reference to the persons who have been cured by it—giving their names and residences, even to the street and the number. Those who are troubled with a Cough, or whose Lungs are in the least affected, are earnestly desired to call upon the Agents named below, and procure one of these Pamphlets. It can be had gratis, and will well repay a perusal. The "Hints on Health," and "About taking Cold," may be worth to yourself and family.

HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS,

in the the shape of Doctors' Bills saved, besides being the means of prolonging many a valuable life.

WARRANTY.

Such is our confidence in its virtues, that we are willing to warrant this Medicine in every case of recent Cold, (where used according to the Directions on page 7th of the pamphlet, inside the wrapper of each bottle,) and where the person is not satisfied that he is deriving benefit from it, by returning the bottle within 24 hours' time, will be returned. ☞ See page 3d of the pamphlet inside the wrapper of each bottle.

THE MONEY

☞ Be sure to ask for Dr. A. Rogers' Syrup of LIVERWORT, TAR, and CANCHALAGUA, and let no other be palmed on to you.

CAUTION.—None genuine, unless there is on the buff wrapper a note of hand, signed with a Pen, by A. L. SCOVILL & CO.

FOR SAAE, wholesale and retail, by A. L. SCOVILL & Co., Proprietors, at their Principal Depot, GOTHIC HALL, no 316. Broadway, New York, to whom all orders for the Medicine, and letters relating to agencies, should be addressed, post-paid.

Galileo.

GALILEO GALILEI was born at Florence in Italy, in 1564. His father, Vincet Galilei, was a Florentine nobleman, and a man of talents. He desired his son to be a physician, and for awhile young Galileo applied himself diligently to the study of medicine; but he was not satified with the medical profession, and finally his dislike for it becoming so great, his father consented that he might give it up.

He was fond of painting and music, but mathematics afforded him the greatest pleasure. After obtaining consent to lay aside the study of medicine, he pursed his favorite science with so much ardor, that at the age of twenty-four he was appointed mathematical professor at the University of Pisa, at that time one of the most celebrated institutions of learning in Italy.

His dislike to the philosophy of Aristotle made him so many enemies that he resigned the chair at Pisa in 1592, and accepted the professorship at the University of Padua. He remained in this place 18 years. Cosmo III. at length invited him back to Pisa, and soon after called him to Florence where he received the title of Principal Mathematician and Philosopher to the Grand Duke.

Galileo discovered the thermometer, an instrument by which we measure the degrees of heat and cold In 1609, he heard of an instrument which had been constructed in Italy, that made objects seem larger and distant ones appear nearer. He immediately took two magnifying spectacle glasses, and fitted one in each end of a leaden tube. On looking thro' it he discovered that two objects appeared enlarged.

This instrument magnied only three times, yet simple as it was when compared with the telescope of the present age, he carried it to Venice, and presented it to the senate, where it excited great interest. He afterwards made another instrument which magnified eight times, and at length one magnifying thirty times.

He now applied his larger telescope to the heavenly bodies, and the result was the discovery of the 4 moons of Jupiter, the moon—like phases of Venus, the rings of Saturn, inequalities of the moons surface, and also the starry—like nature of the Milky Way. His discoveries convinced him of the truthfulness, of the Copernican system.

Soon after this he made public his belief that the sun was the centre of the solar system, and the earth moved around it and turned on its axis. On account of this belief he was persecuted by the Inquisition at Rome. The Pope and officers of the Church of Rome which composed this Inquisition, believed that the doctrines of Galileo were contrary to the Bible; accordingly they decreed, in 1615, that he should renounce his sentiments, and neither teach nor publish them, or be cast into prison. Thus compelled he renounced his belief.

For several years he remained silent on the subject, and the fears of the Inquisitors became quieted. But truth and science could not thus be long suppressed in the mind of Galileo. He longed to tell the world his views, and at length he published a dialogue, in which one person advocated the Copernician system—and another the Ptolemaic system, the one generally believed at that time. This enraged his enemies, and on the 14th of Februry, 1633, he was again summond before the Inquisition, at Rome on the charge of heresy.

Previous to this Galileo had declared that, 'Never will I barter the freedom of my intellect to one as liable to err as myself.' But the time had come to test his courage and resolution. For a few months he was allowed to remain in a secluded place, with a friend, but on the 21st of June, 1633, he was cited before the Inquisition.

Solemnly, and by authority which it was fatal to resist, Galileo was called on to renounce a truth which nearly his whole life had been concentrated to reveal and maintain. This old and infirm philosopher they bade adjure and detest his own convictions and teachings as false and heretical. His book they decreed to the flames and condemned him to the dungeons of the Inquisition bidding him recite, 'once a week, the seven penitential psalms for the good of his soul!

Did Galileo yield? Did he renounce what he knew to be true? Did he abjure that theory, now universally recieved, affording such ample proof of the beauty and order of the universe? He was broken down by age and infirmity; his friends, more alarmed than himself importuned him, and kneeling on the ground he pronounced and signed the following abjuration:

'With a sincere heart and unfeighed faith, I abjure, curse, and detest said errors and heresies, that the earth moves around the sun. I swear that I will never in future say or assert anything, verbally or in writing, which may give rise to a similar suspicion against me. I, Galileo Galilei, have abjured the above with my own hand.'

His indignation was so great, and his conviction of the truthfulness of his doctrine so strong, that, as he arose from his knees, he stamped upon the ground and wispered to a friend—'It DOES move though!' Ay, and in spite of the Inquisition it has gone round for centuries since; nay, the whole world of thought itself has moved on and on, and by the impulses of such minds will continue to revolve for ages in a glorious cycle for mankind.

When Galileo had signed his abjuration he was sent to prison and confined for several years, after which he was permitted to retire to his home in Florence, upon the condition that he would not leave his house, nor receive visits from his friends. Though he was removed from the prison of the Inquisition they made a prison of his home.

Notwithstanding he was thus doomed to be forever shut up from communication with great minds, and from social intercourse with his friends, yet the way from Rome to Florence seemed long, and the fleetest traveling all too slow. There was yet left to him one being from whom he could receive words of consolation—it was his affectionate child, Maria Galilei. To her his heart clung with more than fondness.

Galileo longed once more to fold her to his heart; and she too anticipated meeting her father with a pleasure greater than ever before enjoyed, since he had become in her eyes a sainted victim, by the persecution he had suffered. But alas! this source of happiness was soon blighted. Within one short month after his return, the fond daughter died and his home was then a prison to him.

There came yet another trial: for three years before his death he was totally blind, yet he did not despair. Like Milton, he labored on for mankind, still pursuing his scientific studies. He bore all his misfortune with patience. 'Never,' said Galileo, 'never will I cease to use the senses which God has left me; and though this heaven, this earth, this universe be henceforth shrunk for me into the narrow space which I myelf fill, so it please God it shall content me.'

He died January 8 1642, in the 78th year of his age. Such was the malice of his enemies that his right to make a will was disputed, and he was denied a burial in consecrated grounds, also a monument, for which large sums had been subscribed.—But his remains have been re-interred, and a splendid monument since erected to his memory.

'Little more than two hundred years have passed since the death of Galileo, but ample justice has been done his memory. His name will be a watchword through all time to urge men forward in the great cause of moral and intellectual progress; and the tree of knowledge whose fruits were once on earth plucked perhaps ere they were matured, has shot up with its golden branches into the skies, over which has radiated the smiles of a beneficent Providence, to cheer man onward in the career of virtue and intelligence.'

A Hint to Farmers.

Will Good Farming Pay?

We are sometimes provoked by the receipt of letters from farmers who coolly undertake to set us right with regard to what we may term High and Low Farming—they considering our notions occasionally indicated in the Tribune entirely erroneous, or at least unsuited to the present condition of Agriculture in this Country. "Land is so cheap and Labor so dear," say they, "that we can't afford to farm so high as the English and Belgians do." Now half the men who talk in this way have no clear idea of what superior farming really is, but, if pressed for a definition of it, will dilate on the unproductive expense of white-washing trees, planing boards for fences. or something of the sort, which has nothing to do with Farming at all. A farmer, good or bad may expend so much capital in mere fancy-work as to render his farm unproductive and even an expense to him; but that does not invalidate the sound general rule that Any thing can profitably be WELL done which can profitably be done at all. To this rule we know no exceptions. One man's land may be unsuited to Corn, or Wheat, or Barley, so that he ought not to attempt the growing of that particular grain; but if it will pay for growing ANY crop of it at all, it will pay for growing a GOOD one. If it will not yay for such a crop, it will not for any; and should be turned over to something of which it will yield a generous return; and, in default of that, given up to pasturage and got into wood as soon as possible. To raise a twenty-bushel crop of Indian Corn ought to be indictable as a perversion and waste of the bounties of Providence.

The farmer who plows (once) five or six inches, and manures feebly, and gets in his crop late, and about half cultivates it through the Summer, and gets a meager half-crop in the Fall, (unless cattle happen to break over his shiftless fences and eat it up meantime) not only dooms himself to fence and watch, and pay taxes to twice or thrice the extent he ought, but he is committing a flagrant crime against Nature by exhausting the Soil of its virtues. An official survey of our National Agriculture estimates the deterioration of the soil of this country since its settlement by white men as detracting at least Five Hunred Millions of Dollars fom its value? All observing men are familiar with facts which sustain this estimate. There are whole Counties, and almost whole States, which would once have yielded an average of twenty bushels of Wheat or forty of Indian Corn to the acre, yet would now (unmanured) average not more than twenty of Corn and not five of Wheat. 'The virtue has gone out of them' They have been gradually robbed of their fertility by false, miserable, wasteful culture. The elements essential to the production of the cereal grains have been gradually abstracted, and not returned nor replaced. They have been sent off to the cities, to Europe, and have long since served to fertilize British fields or have been thrown from the docks, or crept through the sewers of our seaboard cities into the ocean. Every dollar of the diminished value of the Soil is so much robbed by indolence and ignorance in the past from the patrimony of future generations.

Every acre of land under cultivation ought to be worth more after each years tillage that it was before. It may not, indeed, be in condition to produce a larger amount of that same crop; if so, that is ample reason for changing to something else. To say that a frrmer can't afford the fertilization and culture needed to obtain fifty bushels of corn from an acre but can afford to own, fence, till and pay taxes on it for twenty bushels, is an amazing absurdity.—N. Y, Tribune.

MRS. PARTINGTON AND THE DOG.—"Drive him out?" screamed Mrs. Partington, as Ike whistled an immense dog one wet day, who perambulated the kitchen, dotting the newly washed floor with flowers in mud, and audaciously smelling Mrs. Partington's toes as the old lady stood up in a chair to avoid him. "Drive him out, what is his name, Isaac? "Guess, aunt," replied Ike. "I can't, I know, perhaps it's Watch or Ponto, or Cæsar; what is it?" "Why, Guess.' 'I tell you I cant't guess. Perhaps it's Hector or Tiger, or Rover. What is his name?" "Guess, aunt." "Oh, you provokin creater, I'll be tempted to whip you within an inch of your skin if you teaze me so. Why dont you tell me?" "I did tell you the first time," blubbered Ike, "his name is Guess." The old lady was melted by his emotion and as soon as the dog was sent out some nice quince jelly settled the difficulty. "He is such a queer child," she said to herself—"so bright: I suppose because he was weaned on pickles." Ike ate his presarves in silence but his eye was on the acorn on the post of the old lady's high back chair, and he thought what a nice top it would make if he could saw it off some day.

Yankee Doodle—With the Variations.

A correspondent of the Knickerbocker Magazine tells the following good one:

"We have a young lady-acquaintance who is a very fine performer on the piano. Her houee is in rather too close a proximity to the street, and the parlor is not proof to the gaze of the passersby, or of those who are so rude as to take advantage of this too common fault of constructing buildings in our cities Whilst in the midst of her musical efforts, a tall young Kentuckian who had just made his egress from the "barrens" where he was born and "raised," chanced to saunter along the street, and charmed with the novel music, but rather uninformed as to the conventional rules of town society, approached the parlor window, and with eyes dilated and mouth extended, stood there enraptured while she sang, "give me a cot in the valley I love."

'Are you fond of music?" inquired the lady who likes a bit of sport.

"Well I am that thing," said the blunt Kentuckian,

"Do you play?" asked our friend, in a quizzical manner.

"I can play a smart lot of tunes on the fife," said the countryman; "but d—n me if I ever saw any one play on the bureau before."

"This is what we call a piano, sir," said the performer; "did you never hear of such an instrument?"

"No sir-ee!" said Kentuck; but it makes mighty nice kind 'o music, don't it? Can you play Yankee Doodle on that machine?" said he, suddenly, and with great earnestness of manner.

The lady answered in the affirmative; and this popular national air, with variations, was performed in truly artistic style. But the uncultivated ear of the rustic, could hardly discover, through the "variations," a single strain of his much loved tune, and at the close of the piece he exclaimed:

"Is that Yankee Doodle?"

"Well ejaculated 'Kentuck' thrusting a hand into each pocket, preparatory to a start, "that may do for your city folks, but give me the plain Doodle!" And off he went.

THE FORREST FUNERAL.—She was a fair child, with tresses of long black hair lying over her pillow.

Her eye was dark and piercing, and as it met mine she started slightly, and looked up and smiled. I spoke to her father, and turned to her, asked her if she knew her condition?

"I know that my Redeemer liveth." said she, in a voice whose melody was like the sweetest strains of the Æolian. You may imagine the answer startled me, and with a very few words of the like import, I turned from her. A half hour passed and she spoke in that same deep, rich, melodious voice.

"Father I am cold—lie down beside me," and the old man lay down by his dying child, and she twined her arms around his neck and murmured in a dreamy voice, "dear father, dear father."

"My child," said the old man, "doth the flood seem deep to thee?"

"Nay father my soul is strong."

"Seest thou the thither shore?"

"I see it, father, and its banks are green with immortal verdure."

"Hearest thou the voices of its inhabitants?"

"I hear them father—the voices of angels falling from afar in the still and solemn night time—and them call me: Her voice too, father. Oh! I heard it then."

"Doth she speak to thee?"

"She speaketh in tones most heavenly."

"Doth she smile?"

"An angel smile! but a cold, calm smile: but I am cold! Father, there is a mist in the room. You'll be lonely. Is this death father.

"It is death my Mary."

"Thank God!"

Sabbath evening came and a slow procession wound through the forest to the little school house. There with simple rites, the clergyman performed his duty and went to the grave. The procession was short.

There were hardy men and rough, in shooting jackets, ahd some wiih rifles on their shoulder. But their warm hearts gave beauty to their unshaved faces, and they stood in reverent silence by the grave. The river murmured, and the birds sang, and so we buried her.

I saw the sun go down from the same spot—and the stars were bright before I left—for I always had an idea a grave yard was the nearest place to heaven on earth—and with old Thomas Brown, I love to see a church in a grave yard, for even as we pass through the place of God on earth, so we must through the grave to the temple of God on high.

THE KNOWLEDGE OF CARD PLAYING APPLIED TO NAUTICAL PURPOSES.—Capt. R——, long and favorably known as a master and owner in the Havre trade, tells the following anecdode:—At the port of N. Y., in consequence of the scarcity of good hands, he shipped a crew of green hands or landsmen; finding it impossible to learn them the ropes of his ship, and fearing a storm, he adopted the following plan for their instruction.

Calling his crew to the quarter deck he asked them if they could play cards, and receiving an affirmative answer from them he immediately took a pack of cards and placed them on the principal ropes—the ace on one, the king on another, the queen on another, &c. When the blow came he gave orders to haul "taut" on the jacck of diamonds, overhaul the ace of spades, let go the ten of clubs, cast off the duce of hearts, &c, &c, and in three days he asserts he had as good a crew as any Captain need wish for.

☞ When we meet with reverses, and friends far away from us our pecadillos are like birds' nests, which become more and more conspicuous as the leaves drop off, tempting every passing urchin to throw a stone at them.

☞ The cause of the decline of the stage, is now attributed to the increase of omnibuses.

Boys After Night-Fall.

I have been an observer, as I am a sympathising lover of boys. I like to see the happy, cheerful, gleesome. I am not willing that they be cheated out of the rightful heritage of youth—indeed, I can hardly understand how a high-toned useful man can be the ripened fruit of a boy who has not enjoyed a fair share of the glad privileges due to youth. But while I watch with a very jealous eye all rights and customs which entrench upon the proper rights of boys, I am equally apprehensive lest parents, who are not forethoughtful, and who have not habituated themselves to close observation upon this subject, permit their sons indulgences which are almost certain to result in their demoralization, if not in their total ruin; and among the habits which I have observed as tending most surely to ruin, I know of none more prominent than that of parents permitting their sons to be in the streets after nightfall.

It is ruinous to their morals in all instances—they acquire under the cover of the night, and unhealthful and excited state of mind; bad vulgar, immoral and profane language, obscene practices, criminal sentiments, a lawless and riotous bearing, indeed it is in the street after nightfall that boys principally acquire the education of the bad and capacity of becoming rowdy, dissolute, criminal men. Parents should in this particular have a most rigid and inflexible rule, that will never permit a son, under any circumstances whatever, to go into the street after nightfall, with a view of engaging, in out of door sports or meet other boys for social or chance occupation. A rigid rule of this kind, invariably adhered to, will soon deaden the desire for such dangerous practices. Boys should be taught to have pleasure around the family centre table in reading, in conversation and in quiet amusements. Boys, gentlemen's sons are seen in the street after nightfall, behaving in a manner entirely destructive of all good morals. Fathers and mothers, keep your boys at home at night, and see that you take pains to make your homes pleasant, attractive, and profitable to them; and, above all, with a view of their security from future destruction, let them not become, while forming their characters for life, so accustomed to disregard the moral sense of shame, as to openly violate the Sabbath day, indulging in street passtimes, during its day or evening hours.—A True Friend of the Boys.

A Sly Dash at the "Critter."

One of our subscribers, says the Rhode Island Republican, who happened to be at Newport last summer, got down in a bar-room at a very early hour, when there was nobody but a boy in attendance, when lo! who should come, but a tall, well dressed Quaker gentlemen, who had been attracted thither by the yearly conference. The Friend looked about for a moment, and then turned to the boy, inquired: "Boy, doest thee ever make any lemonade?"

"Certaintly, sir—a great deal every day."

"Well, make me a glass. Take that largest sized tumbler."

Boy mixes ingredients and pours in water about half full.

"Stop—leave a vacancy. Has thee any old French brandy?"

"Yes sir."

"Well, pour till I tell thee to stop."

The boy acted accordingly.

"Stop!" exclaimed the Quaker, in due time "hast thee any good Jamaica rum?"

"No sir."

"Any Santa Cruz?"

"Yes."

"Well, pour till I tell thee to stop.

It was done, and the boy mixed the contents of the tumbler, which was brimful, in the usual mode; our Quaker friend raised it to his lips, and poured down in one continuous stream, the whole arrangement,' without the interruption of breath. Then with a look of satisfaction to the inner man, which on such occasions, is seen but not described, he sat down his glass and inquired how much he had to pay. He had forgotten something just as he reached the door, and casting an eye to the fountain of refreshments where he received the exilerating beverage, he exclaimed:

"Lod, thee is a very small boy; but thee makes a gr-gr-great lemonade!"

Origin of Roast Pig in China.

We have always admired, and always shall admire, as the very best of human stories, Charles Lamb's account of the origen of roast pig, in China. Ching Ping, it seems, had suffered his father's house to be burned down: the out-houses were burned along with the house; and in one of these the pigs, by accident, were roasted to a turn. Memorable were the results for all future civilization! Ping, who—like all China beside—had hitherto eaten his pig raw, now for the first time, tasted it in a state of torrefaction. Of course he made his peace with his father by a part—tradition says a leg—of the new dish. The father was so astounded with the discovery, that he burned his house down once a year, for the sake of coming at an annual banquet of roast pig. A curious, prying sort of a fellow, one Chang Pang, got to know this. He also burned down a house with a pig in it, and had his eyes opened. The secret was ill kept—the discovery spread—many great conversions were made—houses were blazing in every part of the Celestial Empire. The insurance offices took the matter up. One Cheng Pong, detected in the very act of shutting up a pig in his drawing-room, and then firing a train, was indicted on a charge of arson. The chief justice of Pekin, on that occasion, requested an officer of the court to hand him a piece of the roast pig, the corpus delicti, for pure curiosity led him to taste; but within two days after, it was observed that his lordship's town-house was burned down.—In short, all China apostatized to the new faith; and it was not until some centuries had passed, that a great genius arose, who established the second era in the history of roast pig, by showing that it could be had without burning down houses.—De Quincey's Essays.

Later California News.

The Steamer Georgia arrived at New York, Monday evening, from Havana, with twenty days later news from California, brought to Panama by the steamer California, which left San Francisco on the 5th or March with 200 passengers, and $1,000,000 in gold. The following abstract of the news is given by the Newark Advertiser.

The News from the Isthmus and California are both generally interesting, and in some respects highly important. Three of the murderers of the passengers on the boat in the Chagres river, noticed by a previous arrival had been tried and shot, and the ring-leader in the robbery of Howland & Aspinwall's train has been sentenced. One mule of the Brittish silver train had been stolen and shot in the woods, but the silver had proved too burdensome for the robbers who had dropped it, and it was recovered, without however, a detection of the robbers.—The Isthmus was generally healthy, and the railroad progressing.

The only political news relates to the efforts to elect a U. S. Senator by the Convention of the Legislature, which had balloted 144 times without a result, and then adjourned till next January. The candididaes were J. C. Fremont, T. B. King. S. Heydenfeld, J. W. Geary, T. A. Weller and J. A. Collier. The last ballot gave Mr. King 20 votes, Weller 18. Fremont 9. Greary 1. Much excitement prevailed, though no bad feeling is noticed. The two most prominent candidates, Messrs. King and Fremont, are both said to be inelegible to office, the former holding an office under the government, and the latter having challenged Senator Foote to fight a duel.

The news from the mines presents no striking features. The miners were reported to be as successful as usual, and the previous accouts of the richness of the placers at Trinidad, Klamath and Scott's rivers confirmed. The markets were all in about the same condition as before.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4. 1851.

Our community has for the last few days been laboring under the most intense excitement, on account of the repeated robberies and murderous assaults which have been committed by a gang of desperate thieves and ruffians, that have infested the city for for some time past. Two men were arrested on Saturday week for a villainous assault upon one of our most respectable and useful citizens. So great was the public indignation against these men, that the people demanded that they should be given up to immediate punishment. This was resisted by the civil authoritis, but had it not been for the timely interference of the Washington Guards, who were on parade that afternoon, the prisoners would unquestionably have been hung before night. The people, however, demanded a committee should be selected to guard the prisoners, and be answerable for them until Sunday morning, when there was to be a meeting in the Plaza, to decide upon their fate.

On Sunday, the excitement was really fearful, and after the committee had made their report and asked to be discharged, there was a general cry, "bring them out!" "hang them!" A rush was made to the jail where the prisoners were confined, but so complete was the organization of the Police department, under the command or Mr Fallon, the Chief, that the attempt did not succeed. A jury was then selected from the citizens, and the meeting adjourned, until 2 P. M., when the trial was to take place, and if the jury should render a verdict of guilty, they were to be hung in half an hour. After sitting about two hours, the Jury reported to the meeting that they could not agree, and reccommended a trial by regular course of law. After considerable murmuring, and the repeated assurances of Judge Parsons, Recorder Tilford and others, that a speedy and impartial trial should be had, the meeting gradully dispersed and the excitement ended.

On the following day, a citizen of Sacramento was shot down in cold blood by a gambler, on the corner of Front and J streets. The cry was immediately made, "Lynch him! Lynch him!" Strenuous efforts were made by several persons to prevent such a result. He was hung the same evening.

A Justice of the Peace. (a most estimable man) in Napa City, was a few days since most inhumanly murdered by a farmer in the neighborhood, on account of an unfavorable decision which had been given against him by the Judge. The weapon of death was a Bowie knife, and the Judge, it is said, was literally cut to pieces. The murderer was taken charge of by the people, who immediately sent for a Judge of the Court who resided some distance from Napa, with a message that if he did not come and try him on Monday the 3d, they would hang him themselves without judge or jury. The result is not known here.

It is much to be regretted, that it seems necessary to resort to such severe measures, but so bold is the attitude that crime has assumed, and so frequent and daring have been the acts of violence and bloodshed, that the people have determined that the most summary and rigid punishment shall be meted out to the villains and murderers who have heretofore been allowed to infest society, and whom the laws, or rather the loose manner in which they have been administered, have failed to restrain. There is hope that the influence of this swift infliction of punishment will be salutary.

The new and elegant steamer "Santa Clara," which has been running to Stockton for the last month, was discovered to be on fire yesterday morning, and in spite of every effort was burnt to the water's edge. So rapid was the progress of the flames, that the wife of one of the owners, who was on board, was obliged to throw her child into the water to save it; it was picked up by a small boat. Three men were burned to death—all the firemen on board. The steamer Hartford also caught fire, and was completely ruined. A large number of mules were on board which were burned or drowned.

A fire broke out this morning on the corner of Bush and Pine sts; it was arrested after destroying 12 or 15 houses, most of them occupied by the poorer class.

From the Scientific American.

American Locust, Cicada Septendecim.

The habits of the locust are as follows: by shaving off an inch of the soil, from the 1st to the 10th of April, or any time before the 20th of May, in any place where trees, &c, grew in 1834, you will open the chambers of the locusts. They look like half inch auger holes. Dig down, and you will find one locust in the hole. This hole or chamber is a place wherein he prepares himself for his final appearance in the perfect state. During night, and in cold or wet weather, he is at the bottom of the hole, 8 to 12 inches deep; in the middle of the day he is at the top, and evidently preparing to slough the shell or skin. The walls and top of the chamber are made water proof by a peculiar viscid humor.

About the 20th of May, a day or two earlier or later, according to the weather, they will begin to leave the ground. You will see their old shell adhering to the bark of a tree or shrub. But few will be found the first day, more the second, and so on, increasing in numbers will appear, and then in less number thereafter till about the 5th of June, when no more will leave the earth.

When they come up from the earth—always about daylight or a little before—they climb the first object they meet with, a tree, or bush, or stake, anything, two or three feet. They then lay hold of the bark, fixing themselves firmly by their claws, and commence working themselves out of their old shell, which is done by rupturing it on the back, between the shoulders, and drawing themselves out, they seize hold of the old shell with their claws, raise themselves, and begin to expand their wings. Their bodies and wings at this time are exceedingly delicate, white and moist; but a few minutes exposure to the air dries and hardens them, so that by the time the sun is fairly risen they are perfect, and can fly. The wings before sloughing are beautifully folded up, and it is a beautiful sight to see them unfolded, and in a few minutes change from the most soft to the firm and frigid wing of a perfect insect. If it be a wet or very cloudy day, they are very apt to perish in the act of sloughing and drying.

Though they can fly, their flight is very short; from tree to tree, some fifty or a hdndred yards is about as far as they usually attempt to fly. Very high winds frequently drive them to a considerable distance, even over rivers. Rivers and mountains are generally the bounderies of their districts.

As before stated, there are now several places where the insects of neighboring districts have comingled, causing their appearance every eight and nine years alternately, &c. Who knows that but other insects require also a number of years for their existence, though they now appear to be annual?—The progeny of one that appeared several years ago coming up this year; and those of another that appeared a year efter coming up next year and so on.

The depositing of the eggs of the insect is a very interesting sight. You will see one attached to a limb or twig, and it will not fly away as you approach. Look closely and you will see it excavating a hole in a limb with its its curious ovipositor.—Watch it closely, and as soon as it has inserted the ovipositor completely into the limb, take hold of the insect and gently but quickly draw it forwards, and apply the point of the ovipositor to the palm of the other hand, when you will see two eggs ejected in your hand in quick succesion. They deposit two eggs at each insertion of the ovipositor, and generally five to ten pairs in each place on the limb. She then goes to other places on the same limb, or to some other limb, and repeats the operation, till she has laid about 400 eggs. The eggs are white, or pearl color, about the 12th of an inch long, and about one 6th as thick as they are long. It is this operation that destroys the small limbs, the excavations cutting off the sap vessels. The time of despositing the eggs continues till about the 20th of June, when they cease. All kinds of trees and shrubs are selected by them for their deposits, except pines or other turpentine trees. They do not seem to select the hardest nor the most soft wood, but that which is about the size of their bodies or less, seems to be chosen; the operation requiring them to grasp the sides of the limb with their claws, which they could not do so well if the limbs were large. By grasping firmly with their claws, they are able to make great pressure upon the point of the ovipositor and thus effect their object.

About the 25th of July the eggs of the locust are ready to hatch. Then take a limb containing them, cut carefully till you expose the eggs, and take them out, place them in the palm of the hand, and they will hatch in a few moments. The little insect frees himself from the egg shell precisely in the same way that the large one did in spring, by rupturing the shell on his back. As soon as he is fairly out of the shell he starts off briskly in search of food. Let him get to the ground and you will see him work his way into it; follow him and you will see him attach himself to the tender roots of grass or other vegetables, and commence taking up the liquid exudation from the surface with his little rostrum or snout. These observations can only be made with a good magnifying glass. By the aid of the glass you will see the young insect has evey feature and member precisely the same as the large one had when he came from the ground in the spring. By carefully watching you will see the young insect coming out of the excavations of the limbs, and falling to the ground. You can sometimes see great numbers falling from high trees. They are like little moats in the air, and require sharp eyes to see them. They are so small, and their apparent specific gravity so inferior that they are not inqured by the fall.

The ovipositor is a most curious instrument. It is about three eights of an inch long, of the size of a small pin, flattened at the point, and the whole forming a moderate curve. It is composed of a material much resembling tortise shell, of a dark redish brown color. It is composed of three pieces, a centre piece which is the tube or duct, and two side pieces. The centrepiece or tube has a very sharp chisel-formed point, with two sharp projecting points, one above the other below the orifice, resembling a fish's mouth. The two side pieces are supplied with saw teeth on their edges, and their flat faces are rasps. They are attached to the centre piece by tongue and groove. In use the centre piece is fixed firmly to the bark, and the two side pieces commence working up and down, first one and then the other, alternately, and thus the excavation is made. All this however can only be seen with the aid of a powerful magnifying glass. On looking at the instrument with the naked eye no such mechanism would be suspected.

The musical organs are also very curious, and difficult to describe. Directly under the shoulder of the wing on each side of the chest there is a beautiful membrane, somewhat triangular, convex, and ribbed with fine boney ridges This mebrane resembles a small shell, and is stretched over a cavity in the chest, the lower angle connected internally with a strong muscle. On the breast there are two large scales, one on each side, firmly attached to the breast above, but free below. On bending the body backwards these scales are elevated and expose two large cavities, also covered with extremely fine and silk like membranes. These cavities are connected with those under the musical membranes under the wing shoulders, and probably serve for lungs. When these cavities are filled with air, the musical organs or membranes first described, are made to produce the sound by the large muscles; the boney ridges of the membranes being made to act upon each other with such rapidity that the motion is scarcely perceptible. GIDEON SMITH, M. D.

Noble and Witty Reply.

In 1561, Philip I, sent the young Constable de Castile to Rome, to congratulate Sextus the Fifth on his advancement. The Pope immediately said—"Are there so few men in Spain that your king sends me one without a beard?" "Sir," said the fierce Spaniard, "if his Majesty possessed the least idea that you imagined merit lay in a beard, he would have deputed a goat to you, not a gentleman."

Five Sundays in February in 1852.

We believe it will be found that there are five Sundays in February once in 28 years; and the next instance of this kind after 1852 will consequently be in 1880. This, however, will not be the case when the termination of a century occurs during the interval, owing to the dropping of the century leap year.

FRANCIS'S PILOSITOUS COMPOUND.—Again the proprietor of this Compound, boldly and decidedly states in his circular, that it will remove baldness. Will it do so? Can it restore a growth of hair on the denuded Scalp? These questions may at once be settled by calling on Mr. Hampton W. Marsh, formerly of Rahway N. J. In his case and several others, to which we can promptly refer, all doubt relative to this matter ends, in the irresistable VISIBLE proof that Francis's Pilostous Compound will, when used as directed, produce a fresh growth of hair on the head that has been bald for years.—Nesbitt's American Times.

DELANO'S

PATENT INDEPENDENT HORSERAKE,

In the Counties of Somerset, Middlesex, Essex, Hudson, Bergen and Passaic, and will have them ready ready by the 1st of May.

This Rake was patented by Calvin Delano, of East Livermore, Maine, Feb. 27 1649 It is fitted to the hind wheels of a Single Horse Wagon, and attended by a man or boy who can RIDE AND RAKE, and manage the horse with ease and certainty.

Each Tooth acts separately and independently, its head being suspended on a rod or hinge over the Axletree, one Tooth being attached to each head. It is equally applicable to ROUGH AND SMOOTH LAND, and applies with equal pressure on each kind of surface.

Premiums and Diplomas were awarded it in the Fall of 1847 and 1848, by the Kennebec and Franklin Counties Agricultural Societies. Its utility has been tested by more than 100 Farmers in the State of Maine, who have certified to its superiority over all other Horse Rakes

Francis F. Haines of East Livermore, authorized by the Patentee, will dispose of the Patent Right, within and for the States of New-Jersey and Pennsylvania, by Counties or Towns on very liberal terms.

☞ All infringements on the Patent Right of the above Invention will be prosecuted, without favor, to final judgment. CALVIN DELANO, Patentee.

THE NEW JERSEY

HORSE POWER

Manufacturing Company.

HAVING improved, strengthened and perfected A. D. CRANE'S Patent Horse Power, are now prepared to furnish the same to all who may want

This Power consists of an endless floor running over a series of pulleys, connected by cranks, without a rack or cog wheel about it: none being required from the fact, that the weight of the horse on the floor or platform causes sufficient adhesion between it and the pulleys to transmit all the power he is able to give. Also by this arrangement the chain is freed from the draught or strain (which cannot be avoided in any other Stall Power)except, what is reqired to pass the floor around. The requisite speed is obtained direct from the machine thereby avoiding a great amount of friction and wear, and lessening the liability to get out of order. They run so easily as to require less than an inch elevation to the foot A self acting brake is attached by which the motion is kept regular and uniform even when the work is unsteady and irregular.

From the above description it is evident that this is the most simple and efficient Power known.

They are highly recommended by those who have used them, for driving Circular Saws, Lathes, Drilling Machines, Threshers, Grist Mills, Pumps, &c.

The Company have certificates to prove the above and also to show that the Two Horse Power will grind 40 bushels of Corn to Meal (with Platt's Patent Mill,) in a day of ten hours, making it an invaluable Power for the Southern planter as well as others.

It has taken Silver Medals at the different Fairs where exhibited, and the only one given to Horse Powers by the American Institute last fall

They also furnish Threshers of the most approved construction.

Price of Single Power with Belt, $75; Double do. with Belt, $110: Thresher and Separator, $35.

PROFESSOR A. C. BARRY'S TRICOPHEROUS,

or Medicated Compound.

FOR RESTORING, PRESERVING, AND beautifying hair eradicating scurf and dandruff, and curing diseases of the skin, glands and muscles, stings, cuts, bruises, sprains, &c., &c. It has been ascertained by experiment that has produced the same effect in curing disease of the skin, &c., of the Horse and all the animal kingdom.

Barry's Tricopherous,

The following testimonials, selected from hundreds of similar import, will serve to show the value of the preparation, and the estimation in which it is held by those who have given it a trial:

NEW-YORK, Sept 22. 1850.

Prof. Barry—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted with a cutaneous eruption of the scalp of a most aggravated character for the last sixteen years, and during that period I have had the advice of some of the most eminent physicians, and have tried all the preparations for the hair and skin now known, without the least benefit. I was advised by a friend to try your Tricopherous. I did so, as a last resort, and, to my surprise and gratification, found myself cured in about two months. Such was the violence of the disorder that at times I was partially blind.

Respectfully yours,

G. V. M. RAPELYE, 148 Columbia-st. Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Oct 23d 1850.

Prof. Barry—My Dear Sir: About two years ago my hair came out a great deal, and my head was much affected with dandruff. I was told by a friend to try your Tricopherous, and I did so, and to my astonishment my hair was firmly rooted, and all the dandruff disappeared, as the head now shews for itself

With respect I am your obedient servant,

J. S. TREADWELL, 633 Broadway.

[From the Military & Naval Argus, Nov. 9th.]

There is no remedy for the permanent cure of baldness and diseases of the cranium generally, that has reached the popularity enjoyed by the article known as Professor Barry's Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound. It is extensively used by the upper classes of the community; in almost every nursery in the land it is used in preference to other articles of the kind. It imparts vigor to the roots of the hair, and thus promotes its growth to a remarkable degree. It destroys dandruff and scurf, and yields the hair fine and glossy. It will cure all diseases of the scalp such as scald head, dew worm, and other obnoxious disorderders of the skin; in cheapness, as well as efficacy, it stands unrivalled. It is sold in large bottles, price 25 cents at No 137 Broadway, and at the druggists' generally throughout the United States and Canadas. [123's.

HERNIA.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.—This disorder, of very frequent occurrence, may be considered as arising through weakness of the abdominal walls, inducing an enlargement in the natural openings formed therein for the transmission of blood and other vessels: such openings being enlarged, permit the escape of bowels or other viscera of the abdomen, devolving hernial swellings or rupture, which most generally occur outwardly, as at the navel, groins and thighs.

The complaint is likely to happen at birth, and therefore should be carefully looked for by those having the charge of children, that it may be arrested and cured promptly. It also occurs at any period of life, to either sex, without regard to the condition or mode of Living, and when found, should be attended to without delay—the final penalty being death, and that may be induced through strangulation at any momennt.

RUPTURES, are always to be treated with the surgical instruments known as Trusses and Supporters, and these require to be skillfully applied. With this view, the HULL'S TRUSS OFFICE, now established some thirty years, has under the various managers, presented to the public both male and female attendants to apply its instruments directly to the persons, which is preferable in all cases, and has also made improvement at different times, showing that advancement which study and practice only yield toward the relief of this malady.

With much pleasure the fact is now published, that recent improvements BUTLER'S TRUSS PADS have been made, and sufficiently tested upon numerous cases to warrant, through the cures already affected, their submission to the public, as being in adaptation and efficiency superior to any heretofore made known.

These improvements, recently patented, are now being applied at this office, 4 Vesey street, in cases of rupture, gravitation of the bowels, prolapsus uteri, prolapsus ani and piles.

The public may rely upon that care being made in their application, which will most likely tend to the final cure of the several complaints.

Hull's Truss Office, 4 Vesey street, Astor House, opposite St. Paul's Church, New-York.

FRED'K M BUTLER, Proprietor.

N. B.—The ladies' department is attended by a female qualified to fit the instruments, having so attended this office for many years.

GREAT COUGH REMEDY!

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

In offering to the community this justly celebrated remedy for disease of the throat and lungs, it is not our wish to trifle with the lives or health of the afflicted, but frankly to lay before them the opinions of distinguished men and some of the evidences of its success, from which they can judge for themselves. We sincerely pledge ourselves to make no wild assertions or false statements of its efficacy, nor will we hold out any hope to suffering humanity which facts will not warrant.

Many proofs are here given, and we solicit an inquiry from the public into all we publish, feeling assured they will find them perfectly reliable, and the medicine worthy their best confidence and patronage.

FROM BENJ. SILLIMAN, M. D., L. L. D., &c.,
Professsor of Chemistry, Mineralogy, &c., Yale College, Member of the Lit. Hist. Med. Phil. and Scien. Societies of America and Europe.

"I deem the CHERRY PECTORAL an admirable composition from some of the best articles in the Materia Medica, and a very effective remedy for the class of diseases it is intended to cure."

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 1, 1849.

Prof. CLEAVELAND, of Bowdoin College, Me. Writes—"I have witnessed the effects of your "CHERRY PECTORAL" in my own family and that of my friends and it gives me satifaction to state in its favor that no medicine I have ever known has proved so eminently successful in curing diseases of the throat and lungs."

REV. DR. OSGOOD.

Writes—"That he considers 'CHERRY PECTORAL' the best medicine for Pulmonary Affections ever given to the public," and states that "his daughter after being obliged to keep the room four months with a severe settled cough, accommpanied by raising of blood, night sweats, and the attendant symptons of Consumption, commenced the use of the 'CHERRY PECTORAL,' and had completely recovered."

HEAR THE PATIENT.

Dr. Ayer—Dear Sir: For two years I was afflicted with a very severe cough, accomanied by spitting of blood and profuse night sweats. By the advice of my attending physician I was induced to use your CHERRY PECTORAL, and continued to do so till I considered myself cured, and ascribe the effect to your preparation.

THE REMEDY THAT CURES.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 10, 1847.

Dr. Ayer: I have been long afflicted with Asthma which grew yearly worse until last autumn, it brought on a cough which confined me in my chamber, and began to assume the alarming symptoms of consumption—I had tried the best advice and the best medicine to no purpose, until I used your CHERRY PECTORAL, which has cured me, and you may well believe me. Gratefully yours.

MECHANICAL MEDICINE.

Dr. Banning, formerly of this city, asks to announce that he has returned to 341 Broadway; for consultation and management of weaknesses of the vocal, pulmonary, digestive, nervous, spinal and female systems; and also of the drooping, languor and physical deformities, which are so destructive of both health and beauty at the present day.

As these and kindred maladies are usually the result of a violation of the laws of physical organization, he will treat them chiefly by those exercises, mechanical appliances and reformatory habits of body, in conjunction with hydropathy galvanism and other discoveries of the day, which, united with the cooperative efforts of the subject, are calculated to relieve and restore the energies of the suffering and neglected organs.

Having spent several years in traveling for investigation and practical experiment on the subject, he has, at length, greatly improved and multiplied his surgical and mechanical appliances for the purpose. In addition to his new supports for female and spinal weaknesses, are some combining the properties of a universal hernial truss and an effective general support, with which he challenges cases of general debility, constipation, piles and prolapsus, ani, lencorrhea, prolapsus uteri and every variety of hernia.

The distinctive peculiarity of these devices is, that they do not weaken orrestrain the motions or growth of the suffering parts, but act imitatively and concordantly with the mathematical genius of the body's forces. Hence, by a most comfortable and gentle pressure, they at once give great support and render the oppressed system eligible to its own restoration.

Feeble invalids coming from a distance will command prompt and faithful attention.

For more definite information, see his revised edition of "Animal Mechanics," and also his circular, which will be sent gratuitously when requested.

His improved body-braces, spinal supports and supporter trusses applied at his office (341 Broadway) and to be had wholesale and retail. City and country physicians and druggists are invited to call and examine Office hours from 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. [121.

341 Broadway, New-York.

DOCTOR YOURSELF!

FOR 25 CENTS!!!

BY MEANS OF THE POCKET ESCULAPIUS, or, Every one his own Physician! Thirtieth edition, with upwards of a hundred engravings, showing private diseases in every shape and form, and malformations of the generative system,

BY WM. YOUNG, M, D.

The time has now arrived, that persons suffering from secret diseases, need no more become the victim of quackery as by the prescriptions contained in this book any one may cure himself, without hindrance to business, or the knowledge of the most intimate friend, and with one tenth the usual expense. In addition to the general routine of private disease, it fully explains the cause of manhood's early decline, with observations on marriage—besides many other derangements which it would not be proper to enumerate in the public prints.

☞ Any person sending TWENTY-FIFE CENTS enclosed in a letter, will receive one copy of this book, by mail, or five copies will be sent for one dollar. Address, "DR. W. YOUNG, No. 152 SPRUCE Street, PHILADELPHIA." Post-paid.

☞ DR. YOUNG can be consulted on any of the Diseases discribed in his different publications, at his Office, 152 SPRUCE Street, every day between 9 and 3 o'clock, (Sundays excepted.) [151.

FOR FEMALES AND MALES

Dr. Lazetti's Juno Cordial, or Protective Elixir.

This is the only actual remedy ever discovered for impetency, Genital Debility, Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases occasioned by certain secret habits; and many of the nostrums recently recommended for the same complaints are worthless imitations which its unrivalled excellence, fame and popularity have brought into the market. The Medical Faculty of Europe and the United States are unanimous in their recommendations of the Juno Cordial and have not given their sanction in a single instance that has been authenticated, to any compound for the same purposes. The nature of the maladies relieved by the Juno Cordial are generally such as to leave the publication of certificates of cures out of the question, or the proprietor could produce a host of the most conclusive testimony to show that the great reputation that it enjoys was not accidentally obtained, but is firmly based upon its positive, and apparently miraculous virtues. In all directions are to be found the happy parents of healthy offspring, who would not have been so, but for this extraordinary preparption. And it is equally potent in the many diseases for which it is recommended. Objection has been naturally made to the price of the Juno Cordial, because the trash that has been thrown into the market in opposition to it is sold cheaper; but the fact is, the Cerdial cannot be afforded for less, and ought to be much dearer, as many of the ingredients which compose it are among the costliest things in nature; whereas the others are made up of cheap drugs, worth but little in money, and less in merit. We assure the reader that the utmost reliance may be placed on the Juno Cordial in the cure of the maladies mentioned above, and also those that follow, viz: Loss of Muscular Energy, Physical Lassitude and General Prostration, Irritability, and all Nervous Affections, Indigestion, Sluggishness of the Liver, Gleet, Lucorrhoea or Whites, and Flour Albus and every disease in any way connected with the disorder of the Procreative Functions—in all of which it will afford almost immediate relief, and, if used as directed, is almost certain to produce a positive and permanent cure Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness or disability of a certain nature, should take this Cordial, as it will infallibly restore health and vigor in a brief period, and where want of offspring is a cause of regret, if recourse be had to it the most beneficial results may be anticipated with confidence. It is of priceless value to those without offspring. It has taken the precedence in Italy and will in all other countries where it may become known.

It also possesses the unrivalled qualities of curing incipient Consumption, and I have administered it with great success to patients who have sought our delightful climate for the restoration of their health and the result is that a medicine has been added to the catalogue for the cure of insipient consumptien.

To spread wide the blessings of this medicine, I have appointed Messrs. Judson & Co., of the City of New York, in the United States of America, my sole Agents for its sale; and none can be genuine unless it comes through them, and their signature is on the weapper.

WONDERFUL CURES!

AND

CANCHALAGUA;

FOR THE COMPLETE CURE OF

Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Asthma, Bronchitis, Spitting of Blood, and all other Lung Complaints tending to CONSUMPTION.

NO OPIUM.

This syrup contains no Opium, Calomel, or any mineral whatever, but is composed entirely of those Roots, Herbs, and vegetable substances which have a specific influence upon the Lungs, and their connected organs. Its immediate effect is to allay all irritation, and gently remove the phlegm and other morbid secretions from the Throat and Air-Passages; thus relieving the Cough, by subduing the inflammation and other causes which give rise to it. It also stimulates and imparts a healthy tone to the lungs themselves, thereby enabling them more thoroughly to remove from the blood those impurities and diseased particles, which, if retained, do so much mischief in the system, and lay the foundation for incurable CONSUMPTION. It also exerts a decided action upon the skin, and assists nature in expelling, through the Exhalents, much of that morbid matter which would otherwise be thrown back upon the Lungs, thus relieving them of a part of their work, and rendering the system pure and healthy. When tubercles are forming, it checks their development and further progress; or if ulceration has taken place, it asssists the Lungs in throwing off the corrupted matter, soothes the irritation, heals the ulcerated cavities, and restores them again to healthy action. This Medicine, therefore, is not a palliative merely, which only relieves for the time being, but is a thorough curative, as it strikes at the very root of the disease, and by removing it, removes at once all its remote and attendant consequences. This is its distinguishing characteristic—a property possessed, in equal power, by no other medicine of like nature, now before the public.

HORSE POWER

Manufacturing Company.

HAVING improved, strengthened and perfected A. D. CRANE'S Patent Horse Power, are now prepared to furnish the same to all who may want.

This Power consists of an endless floor running over a series of pulleys, connected by cranks, without a rack or cog wheel about it: none being required from the fact, that the weight of the horse on the floor or platform causes sufficient adhesion between it and the pulleys to transmit all the power he is able to give. Also by this arrangement the chain is freed from the draught or strain (which cannot be avoided in any other Stall Power.) except, what is reqired to pass the floor around. The requisite speed is obtained direct from the machine thereby avoiding a great amount of friction and wear, and lessening the liability to get out of order. They run so easily as to require less than an inch elevation to the foot. A self acting brake is attached by which the motion is kept regular and uniform even when the work is unsteady and irregular.

From the above description it is evident that this is the most simple and efficient Power known.

They are highly recommended by those who have used them, for driving Circular Saws, Lathes, Drilling Machines, Threshers, Grist Mills, Pumps, &c.

The Company have certificates to prove the above and also to show that the Two Horse Power will grind 40 bushels of Corn to Meal (with Platt's Patent Mill,) in a day of ten hours, making it an invaluable Power for the Southern planter as well as others.

It has taken Silver Medals at the different Fairs where exhibited, and the only one given to Horse Powers by the American Institute last fall.

They also furnish Threshers of the most approved construction.

Price of Single Power with Belt, $75; Double do. with Belt, $110; Thresher and Separator, $35.

THE BOY'S STRATAGEM.

BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

It was a bright morning, but cold withal, in the month of December, 1775, that two men stood upon Hancock's wharf, in the town of Boston. Near them, upon an old cask, sat a youth of not more than sixteen years, who seemed intent upon nothing more than the occupation of keeping his hands warm by slapping them upon his knees. Though he was dressed in the rough garb of a fisher boy, still there was about his countenance that peculiar light of intellectuality and frankness which at once marks the trustworthy and honorable man, and from his eyes, too, there shone forth the light that can come only from a soul at ease with itself. He had been sitting thus about fifteen minutes, when the elder of the two men turned and beckoned him to approach

"Your name is Maxwell, is it?" said the gentleman, as the youth drew near.

"Hugh Maxwell, sir."

"Mr. Ross tells that you think you could run your shallop out of the harbor."

"Yes, sir, I think I can."

"Do you understand the nature of your errand?"

"Only that I must get out of the harbor to do it, that's all," replied the youth.

"Then" said the gentleman—whose name was Greene—"you are not aware that you may have to remain outside for several days."

"Nor do I care," answered the youth, "if I remain outside forever, only so that my work shall be for the good of the Colonies."

The manner in which Hugh spoke, as well as his general appearance, seemed to inspire Mr. Greene with confidence, and without further hesitation he explained the nature of the business in hand.

"There is a large vessel on her way from Glasgow to this place, and our people are much in want of her, so much so that some risk must be run to get possession of her. Now if information can only be conveyed to Capt. Manley that she is daily expected, he will be on the watch for her, and if John once gets his eyes on her, she is sure to be the property of Washington. Manley's vessel, the Lee. is some where between here and Plymouth, and we want the information conveyed to him as soon as possible. Do you think you can do it?"

"Yes, sir," emphatically answered the youth,

"When can you leave the harbor?"

"This very evening, if you wish."

But you are aware that every precaution is taken by the vessels in the harbor to prevent even the smallest boat from going out."

"I know it, sir," answered hugh, "but if you will place your instructions in a letter, I will deliver them to Captain Manley, if his vessel is in Massachusetts Bay."

It was soon agreed that Hugh Maxwell should call at the house of Mr. Greene after dinner, at which time and place he should receive the necessary instructions, and as the two gentlemen turned to leave the wharf, Hugh followed them till he came to the street, and then turning off he passed down Ship street till he came to a small dock just south of Grant's ship-yard, where lay moored a handsomely built shallop of not less than fifteen tons burthen. She was slightly icebound, but with the assistance of two men, who stopped on board, he soon had her in good sailing order. and long before night he had everything in readiness for the adventure. He had obtained the letter for Capt. Manley, which he very carefully rolled up within a piece of sheet lead, so that in case of accident he might sink it, and he had also obtained the assistance of four fisherman who were nothing loth to get out of a place where their daily avocation was placed under such an uncompromising embargo.

It was drawing towards dusk when an English midshipman, accompanied by a sergeant of marines came running down Battery Alley, and stopping the sentry, whose post extended from Grant's to Borrough's wharves he asked:

"Sentry, is there a boat any where about here that can be easily and quickly cast off?"

"Nothing smaller than Maxwell's shallop, sir," replied the soldier, as he gazed in wonder upon the excited countenance of the young officer.

"Never mind the size," hastily cried the midshipman, only show me where it lays. Be quick, too or the rebels will have the start of us."

The sentry immediately led the way to the dock where the shallop lay, and as soon as he had pointed it out, the midshipman hailed one of the men who stood upon the deck:

"Hallo, there, on board that shallop,—how many men have you on board?"

"There's three of us, sir," replied he on board the small vessel.

"Then start up smartly, all of you, and get me on board the commodore's ship as soon as possible."

"But sir," urged the man thus addressed, "this shallop belongs to another man, and we have no—"

"Silence, sir," hastily interrupted the young officer; "I bear the king's commission, and if you dare to disobey me, I'll shoot you the moment you do it. Start up your men, and cast off your shore fasts. Bear a hand now." Then turning to his companion he continued:

"Here, sergeant, you cast off the head-line while I jump on board and start up those lazy rebels."

As he spoke he caught hold of the main-stay and slid down on to the deck, and then drawing a pistol from his pocket, he set the three men about the desired work. As soon as the sergeant had cast off the line he slid down upon the deck, and in a few moments the sails were loosed, and the shallop started out. For the first time, the sentry began to think that the officer ought to have a pass, and as the thought found room among the excited imaginations of his brain, he hinted the fact to the midshipman.

"Ah, yes, I had forgotten," returned the officer. "Here, you man there forward, get out a boat-hook and stop her," and then taking a piece of folded paper from his pocket he passed it up to the sentry, saying, as he did so.—"There is general Howe's pass, and when Col. Southerland comes—he will be here in ten or fifteen minutes—tell him that I have obtained a boat and shall immediately pass the generals communication to the admiral."

The half-bewildered sentry said he would, and as the shallop put off, he very naturally opened the paper he held in his hand, but it had got so dusky that he could not read, and so, as the paper looked all right, he very confidently placed it in his cartridge-box, wondering very much what important thing had turned up, and also muttering something about being glad that the officer made them "cussed Yankees" start their stumps.

The wind was blowing briskly from the northward, and the shallop had it fair, and with flowing sheets she started down the harbor. As she nearned the admiral's ship, which lay just off Noddles Island the midshipman had the sheets hauled in and shoving the helm down, the small vessel very gracefully came up under the ship's stern.

"Boat ahoy!" shouted the officer of the deck from the poop of the ship.

"The general's yacht," answered the middy. "Is Admiral Graves on board?"

"No,—he's at the general's quarters," answered the officer from the ship.

"No,—he left there an hour ago," returned the middy, "and forgot his orders, so I've had to bring them off. Can you catch them?"

"Yes."

"Look out, then," and so saying the midshipman threw a sealed packet up, which the lieutenant easily caught.

"Now," continued the young commander of the shallop, "will you have the goodness to point out to me where the Viper lays?"

The lieutenant run his eyes over the lower end of the harbor for a moment, and then pointing down towards Spectacle Island, he answered:

"Do you see that low light just to the north'd of Spectacle Island?"

"Yes," returned the middy, as he went to the bows of the shallop and looked in the direction pointed out.

"That's the Viper. What's in the wind now?

"I don't know," replied the midshipman.—All I can tell about it is, that Gen. Howe and the admiral have concocted some plan for an expedition for some of these small fry, and I have orders for the Viper and Spitfire to join in it Good night."

"Good night," returned the officer of the ship, and in a few moments the shallop was off before the wind.

The little vessel, however, didn't go any where near Spectacle Island, but as soon as she was out of reach of the ship, she hauled her wind, and standing on to the northward of Governor's Island, she passed out through Broad Sound, and ere long she stuck her nose into the free waters of Massachusetts Bay.

"Ha, ha, ha," laughed out hugh Maxwell as he threw the gold-banded cap of the English middy down by his side and replaced it by his old sou'wester, "that's a good one. I guess the admiral will be as much pleased by the contents of his packet as the poor sentry will with that pass of mine. The poor soger was too late for the countersign, ha, ha, ha. He swallowed the pistol game beautifully, though, Come, Jack, dowse those marine togs and ———, Hallo, there goes a rocket—there's another. There's a gun from the old North Battery. Our trick is discovered;—but fire away, my hearties, you'll have to work smartly to catch old Maxwell's shallop."

The trick had been discovered, but it was too late for the British to mend the matter, for the shallop was far out at sea before anything could be sent in pursuit, and under the circumstances they did the only thing left for them,—they made the best of it. Some explanation was demanded of old Maxwell, but he knew nothing whatever about the matter, only that his shallop was gone, but as he had little or no chance to use it, he did not feel the loss very severely, especially when he learned that it was under the charge of his son.

Hugh Maxwell ran across the Lee the next day, and safely delivered his charge to Capt. Manley, after which he ran into Plymouth. In the week after that time the Colonists were in possession of the richly laden ship from Glasgow, and for this "streak of luck" they were solely indebted to "THE FISHER BOY'S STRATAGEM."

A Rhode Island lad, under examination by a Connecticut schoolmaster, being asked: "How many gods are there?" the boy, after scratching his head some time, replied—"I don't know how many you have in Connecticut; but we have none in Rhode Island!"

In St Giles's the following notice was lately posted in the window of a lodging house: "Hay, sack and flour to let, chickens and carrot." The purport of the notice was: "A second floor to let, kitchen and garret."

Why should a tetotaller refrain from Marrying? Because if he got a wife, his principles would not permit him to sup porter!

Mrs. Partington is opposed to the Home Exemption law, because men she says, would stay away all night. "Bless her old heart!"

Why is a hog the most extraordinary animal in creation? Because you first kill him and afterwards cure him.

A man's wedding day should be called his "bridal day;" the orthography of that word is wrong, and it should be written "bridle day."

A lady meeting a girl who had lately left her service, inquired, "Well, Mary, where do dou live now?" "Please, ma'am," answered the girl, "I don't live now—I'm married."

Editors, however much they may be biased, are fond of the word impartial. A Connecticut editor once gave an "impartial account of a hail storm."

"Ma" said little Whilhelmina, "I dont think Solomon was so rich as they say he was." "Why, my dear?" said her astonished ma. "Because 'he slept with his fathers:' and I think if he had been so very rich he would have had a bed of his own!"

Dobbs says tailors would make splendid dragoons, they charge so.

Why is it always proper to take up a penny collection? Because there is some cents (sense) in it.

A lady was asked at the Springs, during the past season, how she liked "Crabbe's Tales?" "I never eat any crabs tails," innocently replied the exquisite representative of the "upper ten."

The California Bride.

A SKETCH FROM LIFE.

Some months past, an advocate's clerk, placed in one of the first offices at Paris, and well esteemed by his employer despairing of raising sufficient to purchase a study, undertook the adventerous risk of tempting fortune in the new El Dorado.

"Now," quoth he, "I have no longer need to marry an heiress," and he addressed a young milliner upon whom he had cast glances of affection for some time back. "Now you see me despoiled of a conjugal ambition, I will marry you willingly; could you prevail upon yourself to venture upon the hazard of the journey?"

"I accept," responded the milliner with an intrepidity belenging to her social institution.

It was arranged that the young clerk who had already secured his passage on board a vessel about to sail, should start forthwith, and the young woman would follow him as soon as she collected in some debts due and made a package of her worldly wealth. She thus avoided the embarrassment of a new establishment in unknown country, and on her arrival would be received by her future husband and installed in a ready furnished lodging.

The young clerk departed them in advance; the deserter from the notary's office, contracted in resources, but filled with abundant expectations, landed on the California shore.

The greater part of his illusions were quicly dispelled. He discovered the opulent country already cleaned out; that all the gold lying on the surface of the earth and concealed beneath the crystal waters of the streams, had disappeared; that the thousands of adventurers who had enriched themselves had left their successors a difficult means of support. There still remained treasures in California; great fortunes could be made in course of time; there, like elsewhere the rich gained the most, and those possessing silver repaid a harvest of gold.

One of the richest settlers, arrived among the first in California, discovered to the new comer the condition of the country.

"It requires twelve years of hard labor to acquire one quarter of what I have amassed in the first six months from my arrival in this country. Thanks to a lucky commencement, my business arrangements progress royally, nothing is lacking to complete my happiness but a woman, a companion, a wife!"

"I daily expect one to arrive," replied the ex-clerk, who started in affright at this new subject of expense in a country where everything was already too dear.

"You are indeed blessed!" responded the California nabob.

A few days after the milliner arrived; the nabob who was present at the disembarkation, drew the ex-clerk aside, and said to him—

"What will you take to let me get married in your place?"

"You are doubtless joking!"

"Not at all. First listen to me, and then have the goodness to answer me. How much do you calculate to earn in this country?"

"I always thought that about ten thousand francs a year would suffice to create my happiness. Ten Thousand francs a year, that's the extent of my imagination!"

"I'll give it you."

"What say you?" exclaimed the bewildered student.

"I," resumed the nabob, "already I have some millions, and I still desire more. Two hundred thousand francs are a mere trifle, and I am charmed to purchase a wife at such a price. You on your part, will see your expectation realized; you can return to Paris, where you can find a number of damsels to take your pick from."

"Yes, but my bride?"

"She will accept," responded the California nabob, with the air of superiority the fact of his being the Crœsus of the country gave him.

In fact the milliner acceded to the proposition.—The ex-clerk returned to Paris last month; he gave a sumptuous banquet to his happy consummation of fortune on a voyage to California.

Longitude of Savannah.

The telegraph wires between Charleston and Savannah have recently been employed by the officers on the Coast Survey in ascertaining the difference of longitude of the two cities. They have erected a temporary observatory at the latter place, to which is attached a clock with Professor Locke's apparatus for breaking the circuit of the electric fluid.—The circuit is broken at each beat of the pendulum, which enables the observers at Charleston to hear the strokes of the seconds as distinctly as though they were by the side of the clock in Savannah.—These beats are recorded by a register similar to that used in telegraphing. The transits of the stars as they pass the meridian of Charleston are noted on the register by another break in the electric circuit, which is made at the option of the observer, by pressing on a key fixed to the transit instrument. Accordingly, the paper which registers the passage of time by having second marks stamped on it by the clock, also gives evidence of the precise moment of a star's transit.—The passage of the same star over the meridian is then noted by the observers at Savannah. The difference in time is the longitude between the two places.—Sci. American.

Cold Water for Burns.

Fowler & Wells recommend the applicaton of cold water as a cure for slight burns. This I tried with the following success. My little girl, 2 years old, fell from a dining chair upon the top of a cooking stove heated almost to redness with coal. One half of her face was burned to a blister, and one arm the same. Cold water was immediately applied with linen cloths, the child ceased crying, and soon fell asleep and apparently suffered no great inconvenience from it afterwards. This was no more than a year ago, and there is not even a scar left to tell where the burn was. G. L. F. BAILEY.

I shall ask for the abolition of the penalty of death, until I have the infalibility of human judgment demonstrated to me.—Lafayette.

Thursday; April 17, 1851.

☞ Mr Albert D. Drake is our authorised agent to receive subscriptions and advertisments.

☞ Mr. E. W. Carr, Third street, Philadelphia, opposite the Exchange, is our authorised agent for that city.

☞ It is a clearly established fact, one beyond the reach of refutation, that those who advertise can sell, and afford to too, a better article at a less price than an inferior one can be sold for by those who do not. The wherefore, is; that they are better known to purchasers—consequently, having more customers, they make more money off of smaller profits—therefore is advertising made mutually advantageous to buyer and seller—therefore, reader, will a careful perusal of our advertising columns most bounteously repay your attention; they are a complete directory, wherein you can find where all the necessaries, conveniencies and comforts of life may be most advantageously purchased.

☞ We publish this week the Act to facilitate the Administration of Justice, and the Act for the foreclosure of Mortgages, and also an Act respecting executions, regulating the sale of personal estate; with several others. These acts being specially important, particularly the above named, all persons should procure and preserve a copy.

☞ "THE MORNING OF LIFE: A Memoir of Miss. A———n, who was educated for a Nunn; with many interesting particulars and original letters of Dr. Doyle, late Roman Catholic Bishop of Carlow;" by her friend, M. M. C. M.

Those who are fond of and can fully appreciate memoirs of a religious character, will undoubtedly find much that is highly interesting and valuable in the above work. It is a small and neatly bound volume of 214 pages, well and neatly printed on good paper, and is published and for sale by Robert Carter and Brothers, 285 Broadway, N. Y.

The Reforms.

We have been not a little amused of late, to observe the futile efforts of the Whigs to render the reform measures odious. Our chief amusement has arisen from the fact that our opponents are devoid of any concert of action, and consequently very frequently contradict each other, one praising what another condemns.

In reference to the Tax Law, one Whig journal says "It is an outrage, productive of the worst consequences to society"—another says "we are grateful to find that our taxes have been equalized, although done by a Democratic Legislature"—another says, "the Whig party would have passed a similar act, if they had had time to discover the feelings of the people—but they were opposed to hasty legislation." One Whig paper complains that "the effect of the law will be to drive out home capital"—another rejoices that "it will induce investments from other States."

The amount of it is, simply, that they would like to appear displeased, for the purpose of creating an odium against the Democracy: We trust however, that they will be deceived. We do not claim that the Reform measures are perfect—we are free to admit that they may be deficient in certain minor details, it would be presumptous to pretend otherwise. But the principle is correct, the intention is noble, the attempt meritorious. The Democracy have done more in one session than the Whigs have in fifteen. They have opened the way to future general prosperity, and all that any future legislature will have to do will be to perfect these laws by amendments,—and MAKE ALL OFFICERS ELECTIVE.—True American.

☞ "THE INFANT'S PROGRESS from the Valley of Destruction to Everlasting Glory:" by the author of "Little Henry and his Bearer." Published by Robert Carter and Brothers, No 285 Broadway, N. Y.

This is a convenient sized volume of 359 pages, well printed on first quality paper, and neatly bound in cloth, with several appropriate engravings illustrative of its contents. The nature of the work will be more fully understood from the author's introduction, which we here subjoin.

MY LITTLE CHILDREN,—

The intention of this story is to make you acquainted, in an agreeable manner, with many of those awful mysteries of our holy religion, the knowledge of which is necessary to your salvation.

You do not yet know what it is that has separated you from your God: nor do you fully understand what it was that induced the Lord our Redeemer to descend from heaven for the purpose of assuming our nature, and dying upon the cross. You have, perhaps, never yet been informed that the sin of man's heart is very great very prevalent, and very hateful; and that, except it be overcome, it will subject him to everlasting perdition.

Many long sermons have been preached, and many learned volumes have been written, in order both to describe the nature of this sin, and to guard us against its influence: but little children cannot understand these grave and elaborate discourses. I have therefore written for your instruction on this subject a story about some little children, who, like yourselves, were born in a state of sin. And in this story I have personified the sin of our nature, and introduced it as the constant companion of these children.

The relation is given under the form of a dream, the various incidents of which are so contrived as to show how incessantly sin assaults even those who are truly devoted to God, and what unhappiness it causes them from the beginning to the end of their days.

Through the whole of this dream, the present life is compared to a pilgrimage, wich signifies a journey undertaken for some pious purpose; and in every part of it especial care has been taken distinctly to mark the straight and only way to the kingdom of heaven,—viz. the Lord Jesus Christ, who himself hath said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the Father but by me."

Now as nuts and almonds are hidden under rough shells, and as honey is concealed in the bells and cups of flowers, so there is a hidden meaning in every part of my allegory, which I hope you will be enabled to draw forth for your profit. In the mean time, my dear children, I pray God to seal instruction upon your hearts and fill you with that heavenly wisdom whose price is far above rubies.

I will just add that this little work was composed in the East Indies during the year 1814.

Unpopular personages.—A fat man in an omnibus, a tall man in a crowd, a short man on parade.

An Act

To facilitate the Administration of justice.

Whereas, great inconvenience has arisen from the frequency of the several courts, and the holding of the same during the summer season, when the services of jurors and others can only be obtained at great personal sacrifice and expense; for remedy whereof,

Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That from and after the fifth day of July next, the several regular terms of the respective courts of this State, shall be held at the following times and not otherwise, that is to say:

1. The Court of Errors and Appeals on the third Tuesday of June and November, and the 2nd Tuesday of March

2. The Court of Chancery on the third Tuesday of May and October, and the first Tuesday of February.

3. The Supreme Court on the first Tuesday of June and November, and the fourth Tuesday of February.

4. The several regular terms of the Circuit Courts, Courts of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery, the Court of Common Pleas, the Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace, and the Orphan's Court in and for the several counties in this State, at the times following, and not otherwise, that is to say:

1st. In the counties of Bergen, Sussex, Monmouth and Camden, on the first Tuesday of April, September and December.

2nd. In the counties of Hudson, Hunterdon and Cape May, on the second Tuesday of April, and also in the county of Hudson on the second Tuesday of December, and the county of Hunterdon, the second Tuesday of September and December, and in the county of Cape May on the second Tuesday of August.

3d. In the counties of Morris, Somerset, Burlington and Cumberland, on the third Tuesday of April and September, also in the counties of Somerset and Cumberland, on the third Tuesday of December, and in the counties of Morris and Burlington on the fourth Tuesday of December.

4th. In the counties of Essex, Warren and Salem on the fourth Tuesday of December.

5th. In the counties of Passaic, Ocean, Mercer and Gloucester, on the first Tuesday of May and October, also in the counties of Passaic, Mercer and Ocean, on the second Tusday of January, and in the county of Gloucester on the first Tuesday of January.

6th. In the counties of Middlesex and Atlantic, on the second Tuesday of May and October, and also in the county of Atlantic, the second Tuesday of December, and in the county of Middlesex on the third Tuesday of Janury; provided, that the amount of the judges' circuit fees for each county shall be the same as now allowed annually, and no more.

2. And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the plaintiff in any action at law, when the defendant shall have omitted to file a plea or demurer to the declaration, or any subsequent pleading, within the time required by law, to enter as of course, either in term or vocation, in the minutes of the court, such rule for judgment by default, either interlocutory or final, as he would by law have been entitled to if such rule were applied for in open court, expressing in such rule the true date of the actual entry thereof; and such rule, when lawfully entered, shall have the same force and effect as if entered by order of the court; and if unlawfully entered, shall be utterly void; and for the purposes of this act, any friwolous plea or demurrer, or sham plea, or plea irregularly pleaded may be treated and regarded as if the same had not been filed.

3. And be it enacted, That any judge of the court in which such action may be pending may, upon application made before the entry of such rule for judgment by default, upon affidavit to be filed, made by the defendant, or his attorney in the suit, or agent in the matter in controversy, that the defendant hath a defence to said action, which such affiant believes to be just and legal, that he hath in good faith endeavored to prepare his plea, and setting forth a sufficient excuse why he has not been able so to do, or upon affidavit made by any person on behalf of the defendant, that he believes that the defendant has a real defence to said action, and has been absent from the state ever since the service of process, or upon affidavit showing that the ends of justice require that further time be given, grant, by order, under his hand, further time to plead, not exceeding thirty days; which order, if filed with the clerk, before the entry of judgment by default, shall during the time therein granted, stay the entry of such judgment, except upon application in open court.

4. And be it enacted, That in all cases where the plaintiff's damages may be assessed by the court, the plaintiff may have them assessed by the court, or in vacation, by any judge thereof, at his chambers, or by the clerk thereof, unless a rule be entered at any time before the end of ten days after the plaintiff is entitled to his judgment by default, for a writ of inquiry; and either party may enter such rule where he is entitled to the same, as of course either in term time or vacation; and where the damages are assessed by a jury, no rule for final judgment shall be entered, except by order of the court, but where the damages are assessed by the court, or a judge, or the clerk thereof, a rule for final judgment may be entered, upon filing such assessment, as of course either in term or vacation, unless the defendant shall, within the time above limited for entering a rule for a writ of inquiry. enter a rule to assess the damages in open court, which rule may be entered in vacation and shall be a waiver of a writ of inquiry; and where any rule for final judgment shall be entered in vacation, such judgment shall be signed and take effect as if the day when such rule was actually entered in the minutes, which shall be truly stated in such rule.

5. And be it enacted, That after any judgment shall have been entered in vacation by default, the court in which such action is, if it be made to appear to its satisfaction that the defendant has a real defence in such action, may, at the next term, on such condition, as it may deem proper, order that the defendant may plead to the action, and that further proceedings in the meantime be stayed; but if such judgment shall have been regularly obtained, and without fraud, the lien acquired thereby, and by any execution thereon, shall remain until judgment is entered for the defendant in such suit, or the amount found due the plaintiff shall be paid.

6. And be it enacted, That the courts of law shall always remain open for the return of writs of summons, except on Sunday.

7. And be it enacted, That all demurrers and pleas to bills in Chancery shall be filed within forty days from the return day of the subpœna, unless further time be granted, and the cause, within ten days thereafter, noticed and set down for argument for the next term, by the party demurring or pleading, or a decree pro-confesso may be taken in term time or vacation: provided, that to prevent fraud or mistake, the Chancellor may, at any time, upon notice and sufficient cause shown, grant a rule staying proceedings by virtue of such decree.

8. And be it enacted, That the answer to any bill in Chancery shall be filed within forty days from the time of filing the order for overruling the plea of demurrer, or within sixty days from the return of the subpœna, in case no plea or demurrer be filed or a decree pro-confesso may be taken, as in the next proceeding section, unless further time be granted in the manner therein provided.

9. And be it enacted, That when a demurrer shall have been-filed which shall not be actually argued, or which upon argument, appears to the Chancellor to be frivolous, or intended for the purpose of delay, the same shall be overruled as frivolous, and the Chancellor shall not grant in such suit any order extending the time to answer herein limited, unless upon full examination of the circumstances of the case, it shall be made to appear to him that evident injustice would be done without such extension, and then he shall grant such extension only as may be absolutely necessary with proper diligence to prepare such answer.

10. And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the Supreme Court to make such rules and regulations as they may deem necessary, for the proper carrying into effect the objects of this act in the courts of law, and to obviate any difficulties that may arise in practice in said courts, by reason of any omissions or defects in the same; and also for the Court of Chancery to make the like rules and regulations in respect to the Court of Chancery, and the practice therein; provided that said rules and regulations shall not be inconsistent with the provisions of this act, or of the constitution or laws of this state.

11. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the justices of the Supreme Court, as soon as it may be convenient after this act shall take effect, to arrange into districts the circuits of the Supreme Court, and the holding therefore by the said justices, in such manner as to the said justices may seem right and just with respect to said justices, and best calculated to promote the due administration of justice; which arrangement may be altered by said Supreme Court, from time to time, as they may deem proper.

Approved March 15, 1850.

An Act

For the more easy foreclosure of mortgages in this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the state of New Jersey, That in all suits for the foreclesure and sale of mortgaged premises where all the mortgaged premises are situate in the same county, the Circuit Court of said county shall have the same jurisdiction and powers as the Court of Chancery has or may have in like cases; and such Circuit Court shall proceed in the same manner as the Court of chancery is or may be authorized to do: and shall be governed by the rules of the Court of Chancery, so far as the same are applicable; and said Circuit Court may issue suppœnas and all other lawful process into any of the counties of this state, and enforce obedience thereto.

2. And be it enacted, That the fees of the solicitor for drawing and engrossing a bill in such suits shall be five dollars, and no more.

3. And be it enacted, That the fees and costs in suits relating to mortgages in the Circuit Courts shall be the same as are allowed for similar services in the Court of Chancery, except that the fees of the Court and clerk shall be two-thirds the sum allowed for like services in the Court of Chancery.

4. And be it enacted, That the clerks of the Circuit Courts shall perform the same duties in mortgage cases as are required to be performed by the clerk of the Court of Chancery in similar cases; and the judges of the said Circuit Courts shall sign the decrees in such cases as Chancellor is required to do.

5. And be it enacted, That the masters and examiners of the Court of Chancery shall be ex-officio masters and examiners of all the Circuit Courts in this state, and shall have the same powers and perform the same duties in cases commenced in the Circuit Court, by virtue of this act, as they have and do in like cases in the Court of Chancery.

6. And be it enacted, That all persons aggrieved by any order or decree of any Circuit Court, in mortgage cases, may appeal from the same or any part thereof, to the Court of Errors and Appeals, within the same time and in the same manner as appeals are now authorized from orders or decrees of the Court of Chancery.

Approved March 18, 1851.

A Supplement

To the act entitled "An Act respecting Executions, and regulating the sale of Personal Estate by virtue thereof," approved April sixteenth, eighteen hundred and forty-six.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That household goods, chattles and tradesmen's tools, to the value of two hundred dollars, and all wearing apparel, the property of any debtor having a family residing in this state, shall be reserved, as well after as before the death of the debtor, for the use of the family, against all creditors, and shall not be liable to be seized or taken by virtue of any execution or civil process whatever, issued out of any court in this state (except the same be issued in cases of taxation) on any contract made after the passage of this act.

2. And be it enacted, That in case any sheriff or other officer shall have an execution or civil process as aforesaid, against any defendent having a family as aforesaid, and such defendent shall not have sufficient goods and chattles or other property, besides his or her household goods and chattles, and tools of trade, subject to such execution or process, whereof the amount thereof can be levied and made, it shall be the duty of such sheriff or other officer to make a careful and particular account and inventory of the household goods and chattles, and tools of trade, of the defendent in said execution or process, and thereupon to apply to one of the court of common pleas of the county wherein such execution is levied, whose duty it shall be to appoint, in writing, three discreet and judicious persons of said county, indifferent between the parties in said execution, to make a just appraisment of the household goods and chattles, and tools of trade so levied upon; which persons shall, before they enter upon the duties of their appointment, be severally sworn before said judge, well and faithfully. honestly and impartially to appraise such property according to the true and intrinsic value thereof, and without reference to what the same might be supposed to bring at sale by vendue, under said execution or process; which said oath shall be endorsed upon said appointment by the said judge, and filed, together with the same, in the clerk's office of the said court of common pleas.

3. And be it enacted, That the said appraisers shall appoint a time and place when they will proceed to make the appraisment aforesaid, and shall cause at least five days notice to be given to the plaintiff in said execution, or his attorney; and shall at the time and place so appointed, proceed to make the appraisement aforesaid, in the presence of the plaintiff in such execution, or his attorney, if he shall see fit to attend, and shall set down in writing a particular account of the articles and things appraised, with their respective values annexed, and sign the same; and if the amount of said appraisment shall exceed two hundred dollars, the defendant may select from such inventory, articles to the amount of two hundred dollors, to be reserved for the use of himself and his family, and shall annex a written statement thereof, signed by himself, to said inventory; and the said sheriff or other officer shall proceed and sell the residue of such goods and chattels, or tools of trade, or other property in payment, or towards payment of said execution; but in case the said appraisment shall not exceed the sum of two hundred dollars, the said sheriff or other officer shall suffer the same to reman in the possession of the defendent, for the use of himself and his family; and in either case it shall be the duty of such sheriff or other officer to annex the said inventory and account made by said appraisers, and the debtor's statement, if any, to the execution or process, and return the same to the court from whence it was issued.

4. And be it enacted, That in case of the decease of any debtor, leaving a family, it shall be the duty of the executor or administrator, of such deceased debtor, to apply to a judge of the court of common pleas of the county where such deceased debtor resided at the time of his death; and the said judge shall thereupon appoint three discreet and judicious persons of said county, not interested in the estate of said deceased, and not of kin to his widow or children, who shall be sworn as aforesaid, and make an inventory, account and appraisment in manner aforesaid, of the household goods and chattles whereof such deceased debtor died possessed; and in case such inventory account and appraisment shall exceed the sum of two hundred dollars, then the widow of the deceased, his executor or administrator, may select from such inventory and account (and make and annex to said inventory, a written statement thereof as aforesaid) articles to the value of two hundred dollars, which shall thereupon become the property of said family, and be and remain for their use; provided, that nothing herein contained, shall be permitted to conflict with the provisions of the last will and testament of any debtor.

5. And be it enacted, that nothing herein contained shall be deemed or held to protect from sale under execution or process, any goods, chattles or property, for the purchase whereof the debt or demand for which the judgment on which the execution or process was issued, shall have been contracted.

6 And be it enacted, That the sheriff or other officer having the execution or process, shall be entitled for the services required of him by this act, to receive the sum of fifty cents; the judge, for the appointment of the appraisers, and drawing and administering to them the oath aforesaid, the sum of fifty cents; the clerk, for filing the same, eight cents; and the said appraisers for the services required of them the sum of fifty cents each, to be paid by the defendant in the execution or process, or by the executer or administrator of the deceased debtor.

7. And be it enacted, That of the ninth section of the act to which this is a supplement, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as relates to any contract made after the passage of this act, and that all acts and parts of acts, which conflict with this act, be, and the same is hereby repealed.

8 And be it enacted, That this act shall go into effect immediately.

Approved, March 14, 1851

A further Supplement.

To the act entitled "an act relative to juries and verdicts," approved April seventeenth, eighteen hundred and forty-six.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the state of New Jersey, that whenever application shall be made to the Supreme Courts the circuit courts, and the courts of common pleas, respectfully, in any civil action or suit, for an order for a jury to be struck, as provided in the fifteenth section of the act to which this is a supplement, the said order shall not be made unless the court to whom the application is made shall be satisfied by affidavit or affidavits that the nature and importance of the matter or matters in controversy in such suit or action renders it reasonable and proper that said order be made.

2. And be it enacted, That so much of the act to which this is a supplement as is inconsistent with this act, be and the same is hereby repealed.

Approved February 28, 1851.

An Act

For the relief of widows, in certain cases.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the widow of any person who shall die testate or intestate, shall be entitled to demand and receive from the executor or executors, administrator or administrators, of such person, all such goods and chattles, choses in action, or other personal property, which at or immediately before the covertue between the deceased and his said widow, belonged to her, or which during coverture came to her by bejuest, gift or inheritance, and which at the time of the death of the deceased remained in his possession; Provided, that this act shall not be construed to affect the claims of creditors whose debts shall have been contracted previous to the time this act shall take effect.

Approved Mar. 12. 1851.

☞ A Fire at Baskenridge, N. J., broke out on Friday last, the Morris Jerseyman states, in a building occupied by several persons for mechanical purposes and temporarily by the post office. This, with the storehouse of E. H. Dayton, the dwellings of William Ayers, Alex. Allen, Mrs. Rebecca Sanders, the store house recently occupied by Thomas Curtis, and the millinery establishment of Miss Mary A. Easton, were all consumed. The mails, papers, letters, &c., in the post office were all destroyed; also all the books and records of the township, temporarily deposited in the storehouse of Mr. Curtis, and the whole contents of the mechanics' shops. The buildings were insured in New York and Mendham, but the occupants were not so fortunate.

☞ The Post Master General has decided that under the new postage law which takes effect on the 1st of July, weekly papers only, are entitled to circulate in the mail free of postage, in the county where published, and that in estimating the various distances mentioned in the Act, the office of publication is the starting place and not county lines.

Three Specifics Blended.

Liverwort and Tar have both been held to be sure remedies for Coughs Colds, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, and almost every other variety of disease that assails the breathing apparatus. But the compound was imperfect, until the great California Tonic and febrifuge, which strengthens without exciting, was added to the first named ingredients. When, under the skilful manipulations of Dr. Rogers, the triplicate of vegetable curatives became one in his Syrup of Liverwort, Tar and Canchalagua, the absolute cure of all Lung complaints tending to, and terminating in Consumption, became a thing of certainty. As yet, there have been few failures, but the cures, well attested, are of ample record. Evidence of the highest character is offered in the pamphlet in the hands of Agents, and in an advertisement in this week's paper.
